FACTS—The property is absolutely proven territory, lying as it does with the UNION OIL CO. producing on the south, the LIBERTY OIL CO. producing on the west, the BARD OIL CO. producing on the north, which only recently erected its 30th rig, and Puritan Oil Co. to commence drilling on the east. Also it is located in a district of BIG PRODUCING COMPANIES, such as Ojai Petroleum, Pyramid Oil Co., Canadian Oil, Capital Creek, Bard Oil and Asphalt Co., and others. THERE'S NO QUESTION ABOUT THIS COMPANY GETTING OIL. It is possible that Liberty Oil Company's new well will be a gusher, which would make the ATLANTA OIL COMPANY stock worth par. Mr. Cowell, our Superintendent, knows every foot of the ground, and having his log book of Liberty property, which adjoins our land, and as experienced OIL MAN and we consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining his services. VENTURA CO. OIL represents the cream of the industry. It is the home of HIGH GRAVITY OIL. VENTURA COUNTY OIL means $1.50 a barrel at well. Costs from 25 to 35 to produce it. THE GREAT UNION OIL Co. —— its start in VENTURA CO. and has paid over twenty-two millions in dividends. These GREAT ASSETS had a small beginning in the WILD CAT GUSHERS, within a ... OF ATLANTA OIL CO. property. The demand for refining OIL FAR EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY. The $5 subscription in California sets buying for the product. The eastern high gravity fields are diminishing. The OHIO FIELDS, FOR INSTANCE, have fallen off one-third. The demand is caused by the increased market for gasoline. Throughout the world the number of automobiles and internal combustion gasoline engines is bordering up the price of high gravity oil, petroleum. Eastern operators are now looking to VENTURA COUNTY, which are held to be the most extensive known. THIS IS THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT of ground floor offering of ATLANTA OIL CO., and may be overshadowed at any time. One day's delay may mean you are too late. ACT NOW. WRITE FOR LATEST NEWS OF VENTURA OIL FIELDS.

The lumber for the derrick is on the ground and machinery has been ordered. Well No. 1 will be started as soon as drilling is installed. It should get to the oil sands in six months to complete first well. Well No. 2 by conditions of lease, must be in operation by February 10th, 1911.

ADVANCES TO 30c AUGUST 30th.

Lord Mayor's Show to be Gorgeous

London, Nov. 8.—According to hints dropped from official sources Londoners will be treated tomorrow to one of the longest and most gorgeous Lord Mayors' parades of recent years, when Alderman Sir Vezey Strong will be formally installed in the office of chief magistrate of the city. For some years there has been a tendency to make the annual Lord Mayors' Show a dignified procession of military and civic organizations by cutting out the spectacular features which were formerly associated with the time-honored pageant. The public, however, did not take kindly to the change and the announcement that this year's procession is to return to the old style of spectacle, with gorgeous floats and gayley costumed horsemen, has been warmly welcomed.

At the same time, in deference to present-day ideas, the pageant tomorrow is to be somewhat "educational" in character. The chief feature will be the inclusion of four or five Shakespeare groups, each containing about fifty performers. The chief object of those responsible for the idea is to arouse the interest of Londoners in the proposed Shakespeare Memorial. In the military division the territorial force and the Boy Scouts will be represented for the first time.

FAITH IN HER DESTINIES.

Halifax, Nov. 8.—T. P. O'Conner is now on the high seas bound for England. From Moncton, while on his way to Rimouski, where he was to embark, the distinguished visitor sent to the Morning Chronicle the following farewell message to the Canadian people. He said:—

"I will always look back on my tour in Canada as one of the most memorable experiences of my life. I had an opportunity of seeing the great West, and all I had read and read of that wonderful region fell infinitely below what I found there.

FOR HOME RULE.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier at Ottawa, Mr. Walter Scott at Regina, Mr. McBride at Victoria, Sir Lomer Gouin at Quebec; Attorney-General Foy, acting Premier of Ontario, at Toronto; Attorney-General McLeod, acting Premier in Nova Scotia, have been present at my meetings and have pronounced for home rule, and I might add a long list of Cabinet Ministers, such as Hon. Charles Murphy, secretary of State; Hon. Robert Rogers, of Manitoba; Hon. Duncan Marshall, of Alberta, and many others.

GENEROUS AND HOSPITABLE.

"I would be wanting in gratitude if I did not return thanks to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, to Messrs. Mackenzie & Mann, and to those in control of the State railways for their great generosity and hospitality extended to me.

"Without such kindness on their part I could not have covered such a vast space in so short a time. I could not have learned to know as I now do all the greatness and potentialities of Canada.

TRIED TO SPOIL HIM,

"My brethren of the press have entertained, feasted and tried to spoil me, and in their columns have said much that was kind and much that was undeserved.

"I bid farewell to Canada with overflowing gratitude for her support of my cause, for kindness to me, and with boundless faith in her destinies."

RAIN IS NEEDED.

Long Dry Spell in New York State Will Cause Serious Convenience In Many Sections.

Albany, N.Y., Nov. 7.—The report of C. C. Covert, district engineer of the United States Geological Survey for this State, made to the State Water Supply Commission shows that unless there are copious rains before freezing weather sets in serious inconvenience will be caused during the winter months.

In general the record of stream flow throughout the State seem to indicate a slight increase over the month of September, and over those of October for the last three years. The drought which prevailed for the past four or five months, began in this State in the southwestern part, in May, and gradually worked west and north across the State until by the end of July the entire State was affected. Unless the country receives copious rainfall before the winter set in, not only the farming community but many villages and smaller cities will be confronted by alarming conditions. The heavy precipitation the latter part of September and frequent rains during October has afforded some relief to a portion of the State but there are several sections, notably that portion east of the Hudson River, and south of the Battenkill, which are still suffering from the drouth.

"I have made a general comparison of a few of the streams where records are available up to date. While my studies show that the minimum run for this month, for the period indicated in nearly every case occurred in 1908, and while 1909 and 1910 records were slightly in excess of the minimum flow, those of 1910 are generally below the mean."

STAR WITNESS HOME.

Bruce Miller Declines to Discuss the Crippen Verdict.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Bruce Miller, whose platonic friendship for Belle Elmore Crippen, made him a star witness in the trial of Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen, in London, returned to his home in East Chicago today. He refused to discuss the report that Mrs. Crippen is alive and hiding near Chicago.

"I do not think it would be wise to discuss Crippen's effort to escape the gallows because of my peculiar position in the case," he said.

HOW COMMISSION RULE WORKS.

In the last several weeks two or three American cities have joined the growing group of commission-governed municipalities. Perhaps the "rush" is over for the present, and people generally are disposed to await the results of the experiments already undertaken. But there is no evidence for intimation from any quarter that commission government has been disappointing. On the contrary, all the reports so far are highly encouraging.

Keokuk, Iowa, has just published a statement covering the first six ment all along the line. Bonded indebtedness has been reduced; a "bash balance has taken the place of a shortage and floating debt; the city has been drawing interest instead of paying it; rents and fines have been collected where they had never been collected before; more and better work has been obtained in the street repairing department, and at lessened cost, and so on.

The application of ordinary business efficiency and method has brought about these results. A few responsible men have accomplished what many politicians under a system of misdirected checks and balances could not or would not accomplish.

"I do not believe there is any other medicine so good for whooping cough as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. Francis Turpin, Junction City, Ore. This remedy is also unsurpassed for colds and croup. For sale by all dealers.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

Tarring Roads.

Experiments in tarring macadam roads in England are said to have been very successful, the result being to secure comforts along roadways, which were formerly excessively dusty to motor traffic. Last year 20,000 square yards of granite coated main roads around Alton were sprayed with tar at a cost of 1¼ cents a square yard. The tarring was most successful when done on a very hot day.

Mr. T. J. Moore Wins His Suit.

His Honor Judge Hoyeke has given judgment in the Division Court for the plaintiff, Mr. T. J. Moore, who took action against Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Lane, whom he alleged took fixtures from a house after he had purchased it from defendants. Plaintiff sued for $60, and he was awarded $16.50 and costs. Mr. W. H. Moore, for plaintiff. Mr. R. E. Wood, for defendants.

MARRIED.

JAKEMAN—CHAMBERS—On Tuesday, November 8th, 1910, at Lindsay, by the Rev. B. M. Secombe, John Hector Jakeman, youngest son of Walter Jakeman, to Bertina Mabel Chambers, fifth daughter of James Chambers, both of Manvers Township.

Exaggerated Report of C.P.R. Accident.

In a Peterborough newspaper a few days ago, appeared a scare-head report of a man being hurt on a C.P.R. car in their local yards. Yesterday a Times representative, made enquiries as to the man's condition. The result of The Times investigation showed that the "seriously injured man," had been making a slight repair to a car. The car was, what is known in railroad circles as "in a grade." A sudden gust of wind caused the car to move. In consequence, the man, in question, sustained a slight bruise on one of his arms. In other words the accident might have been described thusly: "From the azure depths of heaven, appeared a horrible winged creature, commonly known as a musquito that, with its terrible proboscis, stung an innocent man, causing him, as a result to lose sixteen seconds of his valuable time." The local agent of the C.P.R. was naturally somewhat vexed at seeing this unavoidable, and inconsequential accident magnified to a serious story. The man "hurt" did not lose an hour's time, and, had he done so, the bruise he sustained, was the result of an accident that might occurr any time to any man, but, fortunately in his case, did not amount to anything.

Death of Popular Ennismore Lady.

A sad death occurred about seven o'clock yesterday morning, when Katherine Murray, passed away at the home of her uncle, Mr. M. Perdue, ex-reeve of Ennismore. The young lady, who was only 23 years of age, had been ill for about six months. The deceased is survived by her mother, a sister, Ellen, a brother, Patrick, of Ennismore, and a brother, Thomas, of this city. The departed was popular with all who knew her. The funeral will be held at nine o'clock tomorrow morning, from the late residence, to St. Martin's church, Ennismore, and thence to St. Martin's cemetery.

Seating Capacity at Royal Enlarged

Mr. M. Pappas, proprietor of the Royal and Princess theaters, seems bound to win out. Patrons of the Royal will remember that in the south-western part of this theater, was a large vacant space, where formerly was a barber shop. Yesterday Mr. Pappas had one hundred new seats placed in this formerly vacant space. The seats are of the latest make. They are of mahogany, and have comfortably rounded backs, with folding seats to allow free access to and through the aisles. This enlarges the seating capacity of the Royal to about six hundred, and every seat, these days is needed at that popular place of amusement.

Girl Accidentally Shot.

At Mr. Norris, last Saturday, at Oak Lake, was taking a shell out of his gun, an explosion took place. The deadly bullet unfortunately found its billet in the breast of Norris' little girl, who stood near her father. Close to the scene of the accident was seated Mr. Whitney, who is a convalescent after a long illness. The shock sustained by the latter, caused him in his weak condition, to faint as he sat in his chair. The child bewildered by the noise of the report and seeing Whitney faint did not realize at the time that she herself, was wounded. She ran away to tell her mother of the accident, thinking that her father had shot himself. It was not till some time later, that the child feeling a pain in her chest, learned that she had been struck a glancing blow by the bullet from her father's gun. She was taken at once to Dr. Holderoft of Havelock, who treated her, and claims she will shortly recover.

C.P.R. Grain Route.

Lindsay Post: Stewart and Perry, railway contractors, who have the contract for eight miles of the work on the line of the new branch of the C.P.R., between Lindsay and Orillia, are opening an office on Lindsay St. and intend commencing operations at once. They expect to give employment to a large number of men and teams. They intend working in a large force of scraper teams until it freezes up, when they will put these forces on hauling gravel for concrete work to be done in the early spring. Persons having teams they wish to work, can get all information from the Supt. at their office here.

Danny Simons, Peterborough's contribution toward the successful end of the American comedy stage, is making a great hit in "The Military Hobo." Dan plays in New York City this month.

The visit of the A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's church, Springville, has been unavoidably postponed for a week on account of an important engagement of Dr. Marsh.

The local Board of Health was to have met yesterday morning but as a quorum did not show up, the meeting, a regular monthly one, was postponed. Ring your chestnut bell.

Reports from the northern part of the county indicate that deer are scarce this year, and that few big kills will be made. Thus venison will be as high in price, as the average English epicure likes venison in flavor.

SCIENTISTS ON THE SOCIALIST PROBLEM

In commenting on the paradoxes and contortions of Chesterton's book on "What is Wrong with the World" we ventured to suggest that the real trouble with humanity was its youth, its inexperience. Exactly the same view has just been expressed by Sir Oliver Lodge, the eminent English scientist.

In a lecture on life and human development Sir Oliver pointed out that "we were still barely emerging from the ruthlessness of savage competition;" that the earth was still full of darkness and cruelty, and that our civilization is still raw and crude. Humanity, he was sure, is good enough where it has a chance, and the paramount problem is to give it a chance. "There is room for everybody in a properly organized universe"—room as well as food, comfort, joy. Our business is to organize our little universe, to establish justice and eradicate the survival of savagery.

This business, as evolutionists like Spencer have demonstrated, could not be carried on by nations and societies that regarded war as a normal condition. Peace, industry, commerce, the accumulation of capital, the application of science and art to production and exchange, the abolition of privileges and evils inherited from a dark, military, feudal past; the realization of equal opportunity, the enactment of laws shackling greed and cunning without discouraging legitimate ambition and enterprise—these are the conditions of future advance. In these lies the hope, the certainty, of humanity.

The problems presented to us by modern industry and modern politics and complex and difficult, but we shall prove equal to them. Corporations will be peopleized, law will be moderized, unfair privileges will be done away with, undeservec pauperism and misery will be prevented through insurance, compensation, pension systems. Polltical machinery will be simplified and perfected. All we need is time, courage, sympathy and earnest efforts to "get understanding." Happily, being human, we have all of these requisites. The seer, the scientist, the student of history, cannot possibly "land" in pessimistic conclusions.

Tenders must be made on the forms supplied by the Commissioners and be signed and sealed by all the parties to the tender, and witnessed, and be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered Bank of the Dominion of Canada, payable to the order of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway, for a sum equal to ten per cent., (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender.

The right is reserved to reject any or all tenders.

By order,
P.E. RYAN,
Secretary.

The Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway.
Dated at Ottawa, October 25th, 1910.

Newspapers inserting this advertisement without authority, from the Commissioners will not be paid for it.

PREMIER SUCCEEDS PREMIER

There is no indispensable person, says a French proverb. There are indispensable policies, however, and there are urgent questions and "indicated" solutions at certain critical periods.

In France, Briand as premier, succeeds Briand as premier simply because no real change in leadership or policy is either desirable or possible. In England the tory-liberal conference is apparently reaching an agreement because sane men feel that another general election would be futile. The situation would remain unchanged, the present policies would be ordered continued, and the Hotspurs would be covered with confusion.

It is reported that the conference will recommend a convention to discuss imperial federation as well as home rule all round. The signs are multiplying that the tories are in a mood to make large concessions to Ireland and to democratic sentiment. In other words, the upper house will be reformed, the land taxes will stand proposed insurance against unemployment and sickness will be encouraged.

What is it that is causing the tories to acquiesce in reforms they have bitterly opposed, and the liberals to moderate and revise some of their more radical demands? Nothing else, nothing less, than the logic of facts and conditions. The time is ripe for certain changes in English politics and governmental machinery, in taxation, finance, and national economy. All parties—some sooner, some later—bow to necessity; only the fanatics and extremists refuse to face reality. The political genius of the British people has never had a greater opportunity than it has now, and an agreement between the two major parties on the vital issues now outstanding would excite admiration all over the world and give new proof of soundness and strength. The battles of 1680-90 cannot be fought over again in 1910; new needs teach new doctrines, and England's need is more democracy and greater well-being for the masses. Land reform, industrial insurance, home rule and imperial federation are all parts of a great programme that no party can monopolize, that all parties must further.

Lost Load of Hay to Save Hat.

A prominent farmer of the township of Douro, has a son. Of course other farmers of that and other townships are afflicted the same way. Still this Douro farmer, a few days ago sent his son into the city with a load of hay. The young fellow, whilst perched on his lofty seat, driving towards town, encountered that trouble, that is the bane of the aviators, a sudden gust of wind. His hat blew off. The young man slid down the rear end of the load of hay, hanging as long as he could to the pole at the top that binds the load. He dropped, as a specially strong gust of wind, came along. Away went his hat, carried by the breeze. The wind possibly blew part of the hay against the nether part of the team. In any event, the horses, uncontrolled by any driver, ran away, and hay was scattered along the roadway. About two miles from the scene described, the team was caught by a farmer, who returned the horses, in due course to their owner. The young fellow's father remonstrating with the former, asked "How in earth did you spill that hay all over Douro?" The young man replied naturally, "Why my hat blew off, and I jumped down to get it, and then the dam ran away." The elder man, with language that would shatter any self-respecting linotype machine to reproduce, said, (with the eliminations that decency or parliamentary procedure requires) "You jumped down to save a ten-cent hat and you've got a team all hanged up, and spilt enough hay to feed four horses for three weeks. Another time let the hat go, and look after your horses."

Peterborough Must Treat Its Sewage

Will Not be Allowed to Contaminate the Otonabee River

Unless the Council of the City of Peterboro takes some steps to treat the sewage from the city so that it will no longer pollute the waters of the Otonabee River, the Provincial Board h Health will step in and, so far as lies in its power, will compel the city to do so, says the Mail and Empire. A large deputation from the Township of South Monaghan interviewed the Board, to complain of the contamination of the river by the sewage from Peterboro and were advised to interview the City Council of Peterboro with a view of having the sewage treated. If this is not done, then the Board of Health will try to get relief for the township.

The board passed the plans for the extension of the Oshawa sewage system, subject to the approval of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board. Reports were received on the typhoid outbreaks at Orono, Cobalt and Webbwood, and of ten cases of small pox at Montreal River, all of which are now under control. Reports also were presented from the provincial laboratories at Toronto and Kingston, and the Lindsay ozone purification plant. The Stratford sewage extension by-law was passed.

HAVE REPUDIATED THE REPUBLICANS

New York, Nov. 9.—William R. Hearst issued this statement early this morning:

"The voters of the country have repudiated the Republican party and undoubtedly the Republican party has amply merited the rebuk it has received.

"The voters have turned to the Democratic party, and the serious question now to be determined is whether the Democratic party will deserve the confidence of the people, and will do more to remedy the conditions of which the people complain than the Republican party has done.

HOPES FOR DEMOCRATS.

"For my part, I sincerely hope that the Democratic party will fully realize the expectations of its supporters and fully respond to the requirements of the citizens.

"I supported the Democratic party in many states. But in this state I was exceedingly anxious to see Mr. Hopper elected, as I believed him to be the most genuine Democrat in the field for Governor.

"As for Mr. Roosevelt he came home from his parade abroad just in time to give the tottering Republican edifice one final push, and to be buried in the ruins.

"I am not disposed to mourn for Mr. Roosevelt. As a matter of fact, I am thoroughly delighted that the United States like Portugal, has decided to be a Republic, and depose and reject this royal pretend er."

Japanese Antartic Trip

Tokio, Nov. 9.—The latest information concerning the Shirase Antiarctic expedition to that a vessel of 249 tons has been obtained for the undertaking, at an outlay of $1,250. It depends chiefly on sails for its power of locomotion, but is equipped with an auxiliary engine.

The personnel of the expedition is to be enlarged by the addition of two men, Takeda Terutaro, formerly teacher in the 5th Higher School, and Kurino Tetsuzo, instructor in the commercial department of Waseda University. The former will undertake the meterological surveying and the study of natural products and the latter will make photographic records of astronomical phenomena.

It has been definitely decided that the expedition will start on November 15.

RECIPROCITY WITH THE CANADIANS

For nearly half a century the United States pursued its course without reference to the policy, the desires or prejudices of the Canadian people. Whether we had high tariff or low tariff Washington was not concerned. The single aim of the American Government was to consider the interest of the American people, to build up American industries, to safeguard the welfare of American workmen and provide markets for American farmers.

Even now the chief arguments employed in behalf of low tariff or reciprocity with Canada declare the necessity of securing free access to Canadian raw materials in order to assist American manufacturers. The one consistent object of American statesmen is to establish the supremacy of American industries on this continent and to exclude the manufacturers of other countries. There was no indication of a change of policy in the recent election campaign, and no suggestion of lower duties for the advantage of Canada or any other country.

We are where the United States was thirty, forty, or fifty years ago. The stream of the world's population has turned to the Dominion. Owing to the prodigal waste of their own resources, Americans seek to control the natural resources of Canada. If we second their efforts we contribute to the industrial supremacy of the neighboring country. If we reject their proposals American capitalists must continue to invest millions in this country and establish branches of their works in the Canadian provinces.

These must employ Canadian labor, give trade to Canadian merchants, build up Canadian cities, supply traffic for Canadian railways and improve markets for Canadian farmers. Under all the circumstances it would be nothing less than national suicide to enter into any binding trade treaty with the United States. It would be sheer stupidity even to lower the general scale of Canadian duties in return for absolutely free access to American markets.

Activity of Vatican in Italy

Some time ago, Mayor Nathan, of Rome, made a statement criticizing the political activity of the vatican in Italy. The pope issued an indignant reply. A mass meeting was called in Montreal to protest against the statements made by the mayor of Rome and to resent the "insults" which had been cast at the pope. A condemnatory resolution was passed by the City Council also. The incident was a curious one, as showing first of all, the devotion of the French-Canadian Catholics to the person of his holiness, and secondly, the general tendency in Quebec to consider politics and religion as one and indivisible.

Mayor Nathan has replied to the Montreal City Council, pointing out that his criticisms had nothing to do with faith. They treated, he said, of a political organization which was waging war in faith's name against Italy, striving to undo Italian unity, to repress and condemn liberty of conscience, power of research, modern science and civil progress.

For many years in Canada the ultramontane spirit has been growing. The slightest criticism against the political activity of the French clergy has been construed into an attack upon the church. Thus hostility against English-speaking people has been fostered. The whole nationalist propaganda tends towards the subserviency of the State to the Church, and against unity of Canadian sentiment. Mr. Bourassa does the work of the ultramontanes in halting the march towards a real national feeling, and in severely criticizing Bishop Fallon for his strictures on bilingual schools.

No one in this Province desires to attack the liberty of any man to worship in his own way. Liberty of conscience is part of the birthright of British citizenship. But interference in politics for the purpose of gaining special power for any church will not be tolerated here any more than it is tolerated in Rome, in Portugal, in France, or in Spain. Anti-clericalism is a liberal, progressive movement—and it will not be checked by the accusation of ultramontanes and their newspapers that is merely atheism.

UNIFICATION OF THE EMPIRE ADVOCATED BY COL. DENISON

Brilliant Success of Canadian Club's First Dinner of the Season---Mr. Matsumi, of Japan, Advocates Canadian Navy

Last night the grand rotunda of the National Hotel was crowded about eight o'clock with an assemblage of Peterborough's leading manufacturers, merchants bank managers and representatives of the local troops. Dress suits and uniforms were the order not for the day, but for the evening.

The occasion was the first annual banquet of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Club. Mine Host Dennison of the National Hotel, had a spread ready, cooked and served prepared fit for the Gods of Olympus. The dining room was appropriately decorated for the occasion.

Among those present were, representing the local troops Col. Young of the 24th Field Battery, Capt. Ackerman Major Medd, Col.-Sergt. Snell, Sergt. Ackerman, there were present also members from almost any of the higher walks in local life viz., Ex-Mayor H. Rush, J. H. Burnham, Dr. Morgan, Gerald Hall, L. M. Hayes, County Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, Principal Kenner of the Collegiate Institute, Dr. King, F. H. Dobbin, Dr. Greer, T. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., W. Higgins, Ross Cameron. Among those present representing the banking interests, were bank managers Eastwood, Campell, Crane, Ferguson, Wainwright and others. Messrs. Postmaster Stratton, E. Peck, Dr. Morrow, R. Ruddy, Rollie Glover, Inpustrial Commissioner Duggan, School Inspector Mowat, Dr. Whiteman, Rev. Chas. Carpenter of St. John's Church, R. Fair, Rev. Dr. Langfield, Dr. Amys, W. S. Davidson, Hodgson, Dr. Hammond, Dr Eastwood, Dr. Frederick, T. Q. Quartermain, Walter Rogers, Dr. Boucher, Dr. Buchanan, Dr Halloway, Clerk of the County Court Sherry, Geo. Cairns, Arthur Rogers and others. After the soup, fish, oysters on the half shell, roasts, entrees, pastry, etc., had been disposed of the speeches began.

It might be nited that the guest of the evening, Col. Denison, was seated at the center of the long table to the west, supported on one side by Principal Kenner, and on the other by Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., Mr. J. H. Burnham occupied the chair at the head of this table. The gallant Toronto colonel was decorated with his well earned medals.

Mr. Kenner noted that the first work of the meeting was nomination of officers as follows:

Eastwood Cameron, M.D.—President.
L. E. Goodwill—1st Vice.
T. F. Matthews—2nd Vice.
W. R. Morris—Sec.-Treas.

Mr. Kenner then called on President Dr. Cameron for a few words.

Dr. Cameron said he felt highly honored by being elected president of the Canadian Club. He paid a high tribute to Messrs. Kerr and Kenner for their work in the past. The Canadian Club does all it can to raise a thorough spirit of patriotism. We have a magnificent country in Canada with boundless resources and chances for the future. We want a bright picture of the future that awaits Canada. The work for this winter is broad. We have Col. Geo. T. Denison present, and also Dr. Symons will speak later. In March there will be two big meetings. There is a presentation to be made to a member of the 24th Field Battery, Col. Denison then called Sergt. Batten, and telling him that he, Col. Denison, had his name on the last of the roll of 1875, had much pleasure in presenting the long service medal.

President Cameron said he wished to present Mr. Matsumia, a gentleman from Japan, after Col. Denison made a few remarks.

Col. Denison said he is president of the Canadian Club. He is often asked to address Canadian Clubs. Canadian Clubs need no explanation, they are to advance the interests of Canada. He belongs to no political party. He is for Canada first, last and all the time. We have a great country. He was in the Northweat rebellion. There, whilst he only got to Humboldt, he saw the immense chances of the country. He noticed the immence country and the sparse population. In our latitude and long itude we have a country in the limits that have made the big countries of the world. Canada must stand up and fight for her rights; in saying this he was not using jingoism but common sense. In 1812 to 1814 our fathers fought hard and won. He saw the great British fleets in England at various times. There for miles were the magnificent battle ships of England, the security of the Empire. Canadian ships sail in safety from British Columbia to Hong Kong, Shanghai, Yokahama, and other eastern points in perfect security, owing to the protection of England's fleets. A short time ago there was a scarce over the German navy, and within the past few years the great Krupp works is turning out big guns for Germany. Germany would not want a fleet to attack France or Austria, she could just send her troops on the borders. What are the docks at Emden for. They are to supply ships against no other country in the world but England. People in Toronto have called him a scaremonger for using this argument. At the time of the Spanish armada, did the people of England sit still and wait. No! The English sailors, blue jacket bull dogs, went out and whipped the Spaniards. England increased both her navy and her army She, England, did not wait until Napoleon's fleet got to England. The English navy went to Copenhagen smashed Napoleon's power. Suppose the English fleet were defeated in the North Sea, Germany could cut off England's food supply, and starve the Mother Country to death. England would have to give up every naval station she has. Should England be defeated Germany flushed with victory, with four millions of soldiers, the Munro doctrine would not count. You could go from Lake Ontario to Southern Mexico, with a microscope, and you would not find a trace of the Munro doctrine. The United States would not try to prevent Germany from taking Canada. He would prefer Germany in possession of Canada, to the United States owning it. Canada must do something to uphold the naval power of the Empire. He would sooner see the national debt of Canada doubled than see Canada go under. It is of the utmost interest that the Empire be consolidated for defence and in trade. The whole Empire should have a protective tariff around that Empire. Twenty-five years ago he spoke on imperoal federation, that was before Canada's western country was known. If Canada in the future has a population of 100,000,000 with her wealth, she should demand a unification of the Empire. Reciprocity is now the cry of certain people. He does not think it would be good for Canada. Canada has a future of her own. The States tried years ago to force Canada into annexation. In those days, during the Civil War, Canada had no factories, and the Yankees came to Canada to get all the natural products of this country. Still the Canadians stood true to their country. We then got a revenue tariff. The Yankees came into Canada, and in Toronto shut up the growing factories. In 1878 the Canadian people got their eyes open and got a protective tariff. Canada, thank God, is now a self-sustaining country. When Wyman came to Canada to try and seduce the country, he gave Toronto some baths, that he believed were paid for by the Northern Railroad. Wyman now comes around again offering libraries. He is practising international peace, which means Canada being eaten up by the United States. The present movement for reciprocity is a most serious menace to Canada. After the Franco-German war France began to pick up. France, however, was ruled by university men, full of theory. Pitt sent Lord Aulton to get a reciprocity treaty with France. The university men of that country made a treaty, letting French goods into England cheaply. England sent coal to France so cheap that French coal was put out of the market. France thought so badly of the treaty they thought of going to war with England. Pitt, however, saw that the treaty was knocking France out [illegible] more than some rebellion. This was the result of a reciprocity treaty. The speaker told of a few gallant deeds done by Canadian troops in the Boer war.

Mr Matsumi, a Japanese gentleman, on his way home to England, one of the guests of the evening, paid a strong tribute to England. Our comrades in arms," and advocated a Canadian army and navy.

Armament Limitation

There are signs that German thinkers are beginning to entertain the idea of armament limitation, an idea long pooh-poohed in the fatherland as Utopian. Editors have changed their attitude, progressive statesmen discuss where sneers were deemed sufficient, and even distinguished military experts are being converted.

Colonel Gadke, the foremost military critic of Germany, has written an article on "Peace and Disarmament" which is as radical as anything that has ever been said by the lay advocates of peace and unlimited arbitration. He declares present armaments a constant menace to peace instead of guaranty of it. He shows that last year $1,400,000,000 were wasted for defense by the European powers alone. He points out that henceforth no great power can hope to alter its own advantage the mutual relations of the strong nations by piling expenditure on expenditure. What one does all do; the rivalry is furious and frenzied, and secrecy is out of the question. More ships and men for Germany will simply mean more ships and men for England, France, Austria. Where, then, is the benefit of colossal armaments?

The time has come, concludes Colonel Gadke, when all the powers should earnestly consider a limitation of armaments and the substitution of arbitration for war in all cases.

This is a most significant utterance from a remarkable source. Let us hope the superficial politicians and jingoes will pause to reflect and to realize that it is they who betray ignorance and stupidity when they repeat old threadbare fallacies about the "impracticability" of limitation of armaments. Present military-naval budgets spell appalling waste and bankruptcy; they necessitate heavier and heavier taxation, and forbid social and economic reforms of the most imperative sort. The whole world is insurging because it wants better conditions of living and working. Where are the states going to "find" money for pensions, insurance schemes, reclamation, improvements? The cost of food and comforts of existence is still increasing, and in Berlin and Vienna riots have taken place because workmen are deprived of meat.

It is only necessary to be sane, to or idealistic in order to favor limitation of armaments and arbitration treaties of the most sweeping kind. It is only necessary to be sane, to see things as they are.

DID TOM JARDINE TELL ALL HE KNEW?

Goderich, Nov. 10.—The rumor that Tom Jardiame is under surveillance and that he will be arrested shortly on a charge of perjury is not true. Sinclhis release at yesterday's trial he has been constantly around the town and could have been arrested at any time.

Chief Postlethwaite says that he understands that at some future time Tom Jardine may be wanted on such a charge but he has not made any effort to place him under arrest.

"There is no use in watching him. He can't get away. I could lay my hands on him any time I wanted him in half an hour," said Chief Postlethwaite today.

However, an information has been laid against him, and if need arises, he can be arrested for perjury, in regard to the giving of his evidence at the coroner's inquest. That will not be yet, however.

"It would be altogether too prematurei" said the Crown attorney this morning. "He knows of the information against him, however, I told him." said he.

HOW HE GOT LIBERTY.

It is rumored that Tom Jardine had much to do with getting his own liberty, by telling the authorities a different story as to his movements on the night of the murder and what he knew of his brother's doings at the same time. Neither he nor the Crown officials will say, however.

Meanwile Ed. Cardine is back in jail and likely to remain there till his trial, as there is no chance of getting bail, so his counsel, L. F. Dancey, says.

Mrs. Jardine, who is still suffering from the nervous trouble that she complained of at the coroner's inquest, received the news of Tom's freedom while lying in bed. She seems to be dissatisfied. "I don't see why they couldn't either keep them together or free them both," she said.

Natives of Africa are on the Warpath

Cape Town, Nov. 9.—A rising of natives in the Ibiala district against the government, with the burning and sacking of the government buildings and the release of all prisoners confined in the local prison, is the latest effort of the Nigerian natives to prevent the march of civilization. The district in question lies between Onitsha and the important town of Oguta, and is densely populated.

The natives have long been in astate of unrestand that week this culminated in a determined attack on the station. Troops from Onitsha under the command of Captain Hoseley, South Nigerian Regiment, have been hurried to the scene, and some warm fighting is expected.

To reach the district of Ibiala the River Orashi has to be crossed and the natives are reported to have cut all the bridges and to be in ambush.

The force sent to deal with the rebels consists of four British officers, and 11 rank and file.

ECLIPSE OF THE MOON ON NOV. 16

There will be a total eclipse of the moon on November 16. The cause will be the moon getting so nearly in line with the centre of the earth and the sun, as to pass into the great shadow of the earth. The first contact of the moon with the shadow will be at 5.45 p.m., and it will be entirely within at 6.55. At 7.47 it will begin to pass out, so that it will be within the shadow for forty-two minutes, being midway at 7.21. This eclipse comes at a convenient time for observation and will be well worth watching, but will be seen to reddish, or copper colored.

All Red-Route

London, Nov. 9.—At a meeting of the Holyhead town council the clerk stated that the All Red Route Line proposed building a pier at Holyhead, and that all traffic for Canada would be carried as far as Galway, from where a railway would be built to Kingstown. It is also conteplated constructing a steamer learge enough to convey a train from Dublin or Kingstown to New Holyhead pier, and so connect with the railway there.

Had a Bad Fall

Yesterday evening just at 5 o'clock an old gentleman, well known to many of our readers, was crossing Hunter street across George street. Just as he passed Tully's drug store his feet seemed to have caught the aviation desire, as they went skywards, and the south ends of his coat tails kissed the pavement. Three young men ran to his assistance, and picked him up. Fortunately the old gentleman was not severely hurt, although he sustained a visible shock from his fall. Whether his fall was due to the slippery snow-clad pavement or caused by an otange peel, is not known. The old man, whose friends requested that names be omitted, went north on a car.

To Speak in Crystal

Dr. John Brown, secretary of the Y.M.C.A. International Committee, will address g men's meeting in the Crystal Theater next Sunday afternoon. Dr. Brown's subject will be "The Strength of a Man," a topic which will be well worth the attention of every man who can attend. The singing will be led by a male chorus of twenty voices, and there will also be some special solo or quartette work.

Dr. Brown is a former Toronto West End boy, and is well known to many Peterborough men as "All right." This contemplated meeting is illustrative of the strenuous and unremitting work done by the local Y.M.C.A.

THOUSANDS FIGHT PROFANITY.

Washington, Nov. 11.—As a protest against profanity, the Holy Name societies of the Catholic archdiocese of Baltimore, several thousand strong, marched through the national capital today over the course followed by the inaugural parade. At the monument grounds Rev. Father Edward G. Fitzgerald, O.P., of New York and Michael I Weller of this city addressed a vast throng, which stretched far beyond the carrying power of their voices.

The First Taste

Learned to Drink Coffee When a Baby.

If parents realized the fact that coffee contains a drug—caffeine—which is especially harmful to children, they would doubtless hesitate before giving the babies coffee to drink.

"When I was a child in my mother's arms and first began to nibble things at the table, mother used to give me sips of coffee. As my parents used coffee exclusively at meals I never knew there was anything to drink but coffee and water.

"And so I contracted the coffee habit early. I remember when quite young the continual use of coffee so affected my parents that they tried roasting wheat and barley, then ground it in the coffee mill, as a substitute for coffee.

"But it did not taste right and they went back to coffee again. That was long before Postum was ever heard of. I contjnued to use coffee until I was 27, and when I got into office work, I began to have nervous spells. Especially after breakfast I was so nervous I could scarcely attend to my correspondence.

"At night, after having coffee for supper, I could hardly sleep, and on rising in the morning would feel weak and nervous.

"A friend persuaded me to try Postum. My wife and I did not like it at firsti but latter when boiled good and strong it was fine. Now we would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever tasted.

"I can now get good sleep, am free from nervousness and headaches. I recommend Postum to all coffee drinkers."

WORK ON C. P. R. GRAIN ROUTE

Lindsay Post:—John Brothers who have the contract for a section of the C.P.R. grain route between a point three miles north of Lorneville and Cambray intend pushing the construction work this fall, and in fact during the winter if the weather is favorable. Several carloads of lumber are on the siding at Eldon station, which will be used in the construction of camps.

Stewart and Perry, the contractors who will build the stretch from Cambray to Lindsay will lose no time in getting their part of the work under way, and things are expected to boom shortly.

It is understood that the contracts for the section between Lindsay and Cavanville will not be awarded for some time.

PORT HOPE WANTS GENERAL HOSPITAL

The town of Port Hope has started a movement with a view to establishing a general hospital. At the present time Port Hope is without hospital accommodation of any kind, and is, as a matter of fact, one of the few towns of its size in the province that has not a public institution of this kind. Peterboro, Belleville, Cobourg and Lindsay in this district have excellent hospitals. Port Hope feels that they should not be behind the times in this respect, and the citizens are now making a move in that direction. It appears that the late Miss Carr, a former resident of Port Hope, left $2000 to be applied towards the project. There are apparently no large bequests in sight, but the ladies of the town who are entering into the project with much enthusiasm, have collected the sum of $800.

A Near Catastrophy

Yesterday morning at about 11.30 as a north-bound car was passing Brock street, a man attempted to mount the car by the front steps. Just as he caught the handle to swing aboard, he seemed to slip in the mud, and fell. Fortunately the motorman brought the car to a standstill just the fraction of a section before the venture some passenger was made into sausage meat. No possible blame could have been attached to the motorman had the passenger been killed. It was simply a case of lack of judgment on the part of the latter, who seemed to be protected by luck.

"I do not believe there is any other medicine so good for whooping cough as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. Francis Turpin, Junction City, Ore. This remedy is also unsurpassed for colds and croup. For sale by all dealers.

The heavy rain of the last day or two was badly needed, as many wells in the country were dry.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1910.

THE FEDORENKO CASE.

Sarva Fedorenko is a Russian revolutionist now resident in Manitoba After the events of "Bloody Sunday" in St. Petersburg, five years ago, the Czar issued a manifesto granting "real inviolability of personal rights" to all the Russsian people. This naturally included freedom of speech The Radicals took heart of grace and began to hold meetings. The city was still under that modified form of martial law which is known as "enforced vigilance." In spite of the Czar's decree the police raided one of these revolutionary assemblies. In the struggle that followed one of the police officers were killed, and it is said that Fedorenko and another man fired the fatal shots.

After some difficulty Fedorenko got out of the country safely. He went to Vienna, thence to Buenos Ayres, to the United States, and then to Canada. The Russian Government then made a demand for his apprehension and extradition. The man was arrested and his case heard by Chief Justice Mathers of the Manitoba High Court. He was committed on the evidence and the final determination of the case now rests with the minister of justice.

The very anxiety shown by the Russian government for the extradition of this man, as well as the facts of the case, suggest that the offence had apolitical character. It is alleged that Mr. Justice Mathers did not take evidence respecting the political aspect of the case, but whether or not this be true, it can have but little effect on the result. Habeas corpus proceedings have been taken, and the final disposition of the case rests with the minister of education Technically, perhaps, the man is guilty of murder, or of manslaughter, but if it can be shown that the crime was the result of political agitation it ceases to be an extraditable offence.

For many years British soil has been the refuge of the Russian revolutionists. London has an enormous colony of Russian Liberals, most of them brilliant and forceful men who have suffered because of their opinions, and who dare not cross the Russian frontier for fear of being tortured, executed or sent to Siberia Prince Kropotkin recently published in London a pamphlet on the terror in Russia. He alleges, bringing official reports to prove his statements that in 1905 the number of persons imprisoned in Russia was 85,000. On February 1st, 1909, it hah reached 181,000. The prisons are in a disgusting condition. Brutality amongst the warders is common. Typhus rages, and one man was taken out and hanged when his temperature was 104 degrees. According to official reports 2,118 persons have been executed since the uprising of 1905, and up to November 1st, 1908, one hundred and sixty persons committed suicide. It seems to be the policy of the government to take the bitterest revenge against the revolutionists for the troubles of Black Sunday.

Fedorenko's countrymen in the West are protesting abainst the proceedings to enforce his return to Russia. Organized labor in Winnipeg has become interested in his case and is supporting the protest with energy

At least the minister of justice should be thoroughly convinced that the prisoner has not been pursued for purely political reasons before he is extradited. Mr. Aylesworth should be just as careful not to extend Canadian toleration to the crime of murder in Russia or elsewhere.

UNIONISTS AND LIBERALS!

Recent Conference Cause Much Comment.

London, Nov. 9.- The recent conference between the Unionists and Liberals is the subject for much comment.

The London Times is printing a series of remarkable letters signed "Pacificus," on the conference between the leaders of the Unionists and Liberal parties. A similar series of letters which appeared in the Times from the same writer was greatly influential in bring the party leaders together to d vise means of ending the constitutional deadlock. While 'Pacificus' does not suggest that he ha penetrated the secrets of the conference, the fact that he has such knowledge is only half concealed. His letters foreshadowed a wider conference such as that which created the American Union or than which devised the South African confederation in order to consider the position of Ireland and a general scheme of Imperial organization. A fair conclusion from the letters, is that nothing final will result from the conference now proceeding, but that it will recommend that the work be carried on by a regular constitutional convention which the two houses Ireland, and the other provinces of the United Kingdom will have adequate representation.

"La Petite Marquise."

One of the most charming society hostesses is the Countess of Carnarvon. She has entertained royalty on several occasions, and the King has no doubt sat in the chair which Napoleon used when he signed his abdication at Fontainebleau This chair is one of the great collection of interesting French relics possessed by the countess, who is half French by birth. In her lovely pink-and-white boudoir, with its painted ceiling, her ladyship has numerous treasures of Marie Antoinette and other fair and hapless victims of the French Revolution. Her music-room, is in the Louis Seize style, panelled in white brocade, embroidered with silver. To her intimate friends she is known as "La Petite Marquise."

Why Tommy Likes His Lordship.

Lord Grenfell is a man of strong and sympathetic personality, which traits account largely for his success with men under his command There is a story told of how a private was once brought before him for not saluting a superior officer. "Well," said his lordship, "what have you got to say to this charge?" "That I did salute him, but for some reason or other Capt. Blank did not notice the action," was the reply. "Very well," said Lord Grenfell, "I believe you." And that is the secret of his wonderful success in dealing with men. He never bullies, but always takes Tommy Atkins at his word.

A Beauty Tip.

When the skin takes on a shiny appearance one should take especial care of it. Rinse the soap off well with water when washing. The face should be dried with a very soft towel. Apply a simple remedy of one dram of boracic acid mixed with four ounces of rosewater. Before the face is quite dry a little powder should be placed on it. Then rub the face gently with a chamois after the powder has dried. In many cases where the blood is not at fault for the condition this remedy will be found entirely sufficient to take away the shiny appearance.

Encouraging Wrinkles.

Have you ever caught a glimpse of yourself in the mirror when you are doing your hair, brushing your teeth or putting the finishing touches to your toilet? If you haven't, just try it once and you will probably see, to your amusement, that you are making horrible grimaces and twisting your forehead into all sorts of frowns and wrinkles while doing these simple duties. Many people encourage wrinkles in this way and when too late to remedy matters wonder how in the world they got them.

A Good Tooth Powder.

Never use a tooth powder with camphor in it. It certainly whitens the teeth for a time, but it makes the enamel so brittle that the teeth are apt to decay very quickly. The best tooth powder to use is simple precipitated chalk. It should be kept in a wide mouthed glass stoppered bottle and can be perfumed by adding a few drops of eau de cologne or any favorite perfume.

An Unintended Error.

The Critic—In the twelfth chapter of your novel you say, "As Clifford Dangerfield came slowly up the long garden walk Clarissa, with maidenly admiration, gazed upon him."

The Author—Well, isn't that all right?

The Critic—Hardly. How can Clarissa "gaze" after she has been blinded?

The Author—After she has been blinded? What are you talking about?

The Critic—Why, in the previous chapter, in which you describe Clifford's planing mill, you say, "For a long, fascinating minute Clarissa rested her beautiful brown eyes upon the swiftly revolving buzz-saw."

The Oldest Known Bookkeeping.

In the primitive villages of the Andes, scattered through Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador, the descendants of the ancient Incas depend upon the "kipu" for keeping all their accounts. It was in use when Pizarro conquered Peru, and the Andean Indians have never improved on it. It is the oldest known form of bookkeeping. The kipu is simply a collection of knotted strings Differently colored strings denote different articles in daily use and ten distinct knots the ten numerals. In the absence of a written language it is a marvelously perfect system. Large transactions are conducted as accurately by it as if double entry bookkeeping were employed.

Very Fishy.

She was a fisherman's daughter, she wore her hair in a net, and she preferred love in a piscatorial way.

"My love," he whispered, "you hold first place in my heart! Although I flounder about in expressing himself my sole wish is that you will save me from becoming a crabbed old bachelor. I shall stick to you closer than a limpet. From you a wink'll be the road to guide me. Together we will skate over life's rocks, and when I look at your hand beside me I shall say to myself, 'Fortune was mine when I put her-ring there!'"

And then the lady dropped her eyes in sweet confusion and murmured:

"Pass the salt."

Didn't Choose Well.

Some years ago a certain candidate, a relative of one of the present New Brunswick Senators, was running for the House of Assembly of that province. One canvass against him was that he was an infidel; and in the course of his nomination speech an opponent who possessed a rather shady business reputation shouted: "You don't believe there is a God."

"Do you, Mr. B.?" asked the candidate.

"Of course I do," replied the opponent.

"Then why have you served the devil all your life?"

THREW WHITES OUT.

Muskogee, Okla., Nov. 8.—Trouble has broken out between negroes and whites at Fussey Creek precinct in Wagonner County, and the negroes have taken possession of the polling place, throwing the white officials out. Fussey Creek is four miles from Coweta, the nearest white town, and is a big negro settlement.

The rumor was despatched by the election officers to Coweta asking for help. Two automobiles loaded with fifteen white men armed with shot guns and Winchesters, started immediately for the scene. Others will follow. These white men will attempt to put the election officers back in control and disarm the negroes, nearly all of whom carry guns. It is expected that when the whites arrive at Fussey Creek the shooting will begin.

The negroes have commenced to offer affidavits of their qualifications to vote at Coweta, but none have been allowed to vote on them yet. The negroes there are sullen, but have not made any demonstration yet.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

Taft Starts for Panama.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 9.—President Taft reached the capital this morning on his return from Cincinnati. After a few hours spent with his family and in discussing the results of the elections with some of his most intimate political friends, the President will depart on a special train this afternoon for Charleston, S.C., whence he is to sail tomorrow for Panama to make an inspection of the progress of the work on the isthmian canal.

TARIFF STRIFE WITH GERMANY.

Fatherland Refuses to Make Concessions to American Users of Potash.

Washington, Nov. 9.—A tariff war with Germany is evident, according to the declaration of a State department official today. Secretary of State Knox will arrive here tonight from Pittsburg. Tomorrow, when the president arrives, the secretary of State is to take up with him the question of making good the threat of the United States government to declare a tariff war on Germany until concessions are made to American users of potash.

Negotiations have failed at Berlin to secure a square deal from the German potash syndicate, which is backed by the German Government. M. H. Davis, the department's special representative at Berlin today addressed the State Department that his mission was a failure.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm Elliott, who have been in the city visiting friends for a few days, have returned to their home in Madoc.

SHE WILL TAKE AUTO CAR ALONE TO OTTAWA.

Mrs. Markels, of New York, will Drive Machine Long Distance With No Aid to Win Wager.

New York, Nov. 9.—For a stake of a dinner and theater party, Mrs. Bertha Markels, of No. 68 West Thirty-eighth street, started at noon yesterday, for Ottawa, Canada, in an auto that she must drive and repair with absolutely no assistance.

The bet was made at a dinner given last week by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Weisman, of No. 511 West One-Hundred and Thirty-ninth street. Mrs. Markels and her husband were guests. In the general chatter somebody brought up the question of the comparative ability of men and women to drive autos. Mrs. Markels, who had recently bought a machine, asserted that she could drive it as well as any masculine amateur. Mrs. Weisman dissented and offered to bet a dinner and theater seats for twenty persons that Mrs. Markels could not pilot her car to Canada without assistance.

Mrs. Markels promptly accepted the wager, and fixed on Ottawa as the destination. Noon yesterday was agreed on as the time for starting. Clad in a canvas suit and equipped with every appliance the wise automobilist carries to triumph over disrupted mechanism the young woman left her home at that hour yesterday.

Markels and Alexander Haeckel took a train for Albany to meet her when she arrived there. They will accompany her in the car to act as judges and see that she does not apply to a garage for aid or violate the rules in any way. When the three reach Ottawa a telegram will be sent to Mrs. Weisman.

ONE SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS. Every case submitted to us receives the personal attention of our Medical Staff, who consider the symptoms, complications and chronicity, and then decide as to the disease and curability. Specific remedies are then prescribed for the case and are compounded by our own chemist in our own Laboratory. Such appropriate treatment cannot fail to cure, as specific medicines are selected to cure the symptoms that trouble you. We have no cure-all medicines like most specialists use who send the same medicines to all patients alike and cure none. We have treated patients throughout Canada for over twenty years and can refer to any bank as to our responsibility.

BOTH BROKE THE PEACE.

A row that took place on Hunter street, Wednesday afternoon, resulting in a broken christy hat, and a few blows exchanged, culminated yesterday morning in a police court case. Albert Beard, accused Ralf. Chambers, with having assaulted him. The evidence seemed to show that both plaintiff and defendant had transgressed the law, so the cadi dismissed the case.

BIG TIME AT TEMPLE.

Ensign Merritt gave a very interesting address last night at the Salvation Army Temple, on modern interpretations of Bible teachings. A new flag was presented to the band, with appropriate ceremony. The quarterly balance sheet was read and showed most satisfactory results. The Salvation Army seems to have established itself permanently, in this respect of the community, and to have demonstrated that the good work done by them in uprairing downfallen humanity is now thoroughly appreciated.

SOMETHING TO FALL BACK ON.

Thoughtful Wife Had Provided Husband with a Sample.

He stood irresolutely in front of the woman's stocking counter for a few minutes, then with a determined expression on his face he elbowed his way between two women shoppers and accosted the saleslady.

"Have you any light blue stockings?" he said; "you see I—"

"Gents' furnishings, third counter to the left," drawled the girl, as she reached for a box on the upper shelf.

"No, I don't want them for myself," said the man, getting red. "You see, my wife is in the country and she wants me to get two pair of light blue silk stockings for her."

"Oh, what size?" asked the girl, with a foolish smile.

"Well, that's what I have been trying to figure out," confessed the man, growing nervous. "Don't they all come about the same size? You see, she told me the size, but I can't recall it."

"Oh, no; they run in half sizes, from 6 to 14," giggled the girl.

"Huh," said the man; "well, I suppose I will have to do it," and he reached in his inside pocket and slowly drew out a dainty light blue stocking.

"She gave me this in case I forgot," he said, in confusion.

There is little danger from a cold or from an attack of the grip except when followed by pneumonia, and this never happens when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. This remedy has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds and grip and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. For sale by all dealers.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Wild ducks are plentiful this season.

It is known yet when the Crown will sentence young Gorham. County Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, is himself ignorant on this point as yet.

The handsome new wall map of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, issued by The Times is now ready for delivery.

A steam heating system is being installed in The Times building by Mr. R. G. Sturgeon.

The grain is rapidly being moved from Midland through Peterborough.

For pains in the side or chest dampen a piece of flannel with Chamberlain's Liniment and bind it on over the seat of pain. There is nothing better. For sale by all dealers.

Save up your small, or possibly better, your large change for Saturday, and pay up well for the badges distributed by 150 young ladies of the city, in aid of the Children's Shelter. A collar—or two spent for this object will do more than a V or an X, for many another cause.

The Canadian Club dinner at the National last night was a great success. Mine Host Denison supplied a grand repast, but the caief d'jeuner of the evening, was Col. Dennison's address, given in another column.

Soap has gone up thirty cents a case. The local grocer does not seem to be buying automobiles or flying machines from the raise. Still the good housewife has to pay the difference. If cleanliness is next to Godliness, and salavation is free for all, why this raise in the price of soap in Peterborough?

Among the recent changes made by his Lordship Bishop Sweeney in the diocese of Toronto, Rev. C. D. G. Brown, formerly assistant at Trinity Church, East, under Canon Dixon, has been appointed to the mission of South Burleigh, Young's Point.

The Journal of Detroit, Mich. says that the use of oil to lay dust in that city has ruined the macadamized roads where used and that it will cost from $225,000, to $300,000 to put the highways in that city where oil was used back into condition.

FOR LIGHT, QUICK LUNCHEON

Recipes That May Come Handy in Emergency That Frequently Confronts Housewife.

Boiled Spaghetti with Italian Dressing.—Break a package of imported spaghetti and put into a colander, set this into a kettle of boiling salted water, and boil rapidly for three-quarters of an hour. Spaghetti sticks to a kettle very easily, but I find that by placing it in a colander it needs no stirring. When done, dash cold water over it to remove the starchy substance.

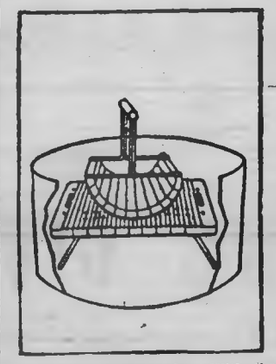
Dressing.—Heat a can of tomatoes, then press through a potato ricer, so as to remove all seeds; place in a saucepan, then add: One onion, chopped fine, one bay leaf, small pinch of ground cloves, butter the size of a walnut, salt and pepper to taste. Cook this 15 minutes, then add one-half teaspoonful of the best beef extract; then, when this is well dissolved, thicken with flour and water to the consistency of cream. After removing from the fire, add a few chopped olives. When serving the spaghetti, sprinkle a good layer of grated parmesan cheese over it; then the dressing.

Marshmallow Cream.—This is a fine, quickly prepared dessert. Cut one-half pound of fresh marshmallows into quarters; also break a cupful of English walnut meats into small pieces. Then whip one-half a pint of cream and sweeten it with two teaspoonfuls of pulverized sugar and a little flavoring extract. Then stir the marshmallows and nuts into the cream.

NEW WASHING MACHINE IDEA

Simple Device Does Work Well and Saves Wear and Tear on Woman's Knuckles.

The washboard appears in a new form in an invention which has recently been perfected in the shape of a washing machine without any of the usual mechanism of levers and wheels. It consists of but two parts working together and the clothes between and is designed particularly for use in stationary washtubs, but is equally serviceable in portable tubs. With the water on a level with the base, the soaped pieces are spread thereon when, with the addition of an inch or two of boiling water, the segmental rubber is oscillated back and forth 30 or 30 times. This action forces the water and soap or other alkaline ingredients through the interstices of the goods. It is said to be especially serviceable in large pieces, such as blankets, curtains, rugs, etc. When operated in stationary tubs there is added convenience of hot and cold water and as the two parts may be left in the tub after use no extra room is required.



Fits Any Glass.

at the top to form two arms, with the opening between them just wide enough to admit the handle of a spoon, inserted sideways, and with the wide part just narrow enough to keep the handle of the spoon from slipping through. The lower part of the holder consists of a flat strip which runs down inside the glass and a spring clip on the back which goes outside the glass and clamps the whole firmly on. The spoon, when not in use, is hung on the holder and does not fall into the bottom of the glass. While the device fits on the edge of any receptacle, it is chiefly employed where the receptacle is deeper than the spoon is long.

Belgian Soup.

One pound of turnips, weighed after peeling, one pint of water, one pint of milk, one heaped tablespoonful of flour, two ounces of butter, pepper and salt.

Cut the the turnips into dice and simmer in the water with the butter for 20 minutes. Then stir in the milk and flour, which must be quite smooth, bring to the boil and let it cook till the vegetable is perfectly tender. Pass through a sieve. Season with white pepper and salt, and serve very hot with a dusting of chopped parsley over. Hand grated Parmesan cheese with this soup.

HOLDS THE SPOON IN GLASS

Handy Device That Will Do Its Part Toward the Promotion of Comfort.

Among the numerous minor inventions that seem trifling in themselves but add so much to the comfort of humanity is the spoonholder devised by a New York man. It is a simple little device, but is of great convenience for use on tall glasses, such as those used for iced tea, etc. The device consists of a piece of metal bent

Fits Any Glass.

The Home.

Many bristle brushes, if merely dusty, can be cleaned in cornmeal.

Keep a bag of sulphur in the bird cage to drive away lice in the hot weather.

Ice cream becomes butter if it is not allowed to chill before the can is turned in the ice.

Do not put milk into cut-glass goblets. Milk clouds glass so that its original brilliancy cannot be restored.

A small broom made of stiff wire is convenient for use in cleaning skillets. Such a brush is easily kept clean.

When mosquitoes get into the house heat a shovel, pour a teaspoonful of carbolic acid on it and burn. It kills or drives them out.

To kill fleas on a pet dog, if the animal is small, place him in a small bathtub of water and comb the hair with a fine comb. Water drowns these pests.

Liver Dumplings.

Take ten cents' worth of calf liver; wash it good; scrape fine with a knife; take three slices of stale bread crumbs, some soup vegetables, one onion, small piece of garlic; put in hash bowl and chop fine; put all in large dish; add two well beaten eggs, salt, pepper, nutmeg, allspice; mix well; add flour; make it good and stiff; drop in boiling water with spoon in stewpan to be boiled 15 to 20 minutes.

Butter Dumplings.

Take half a pound of butter and stir until it is all nice and soft; then take four well beaten eggs and mix it all well; a little salt; then thicken it with flour; be sure and make it good and stiff; strain your soup; have it boiling good; then drop into it by the spoonful. Boil 15 to 20 minutes. Can use boiling water, but then there is no waste by dropping them in the soup. This is a very rich dish.

To Make Fruit Juices.

Take half a pound of sugar to one lb. of fruit. Sprinkle sugar on fruit. Let stand over night. In the morning put on stove and let come to a boil. Strain through cheese cloth. Put in air tight jars. The last can be squeezed, but should be kept separate, as it will not be so clear.

Tomatoes Stuffed with Corn.

Hollow out a number of firm tomatoes which have been carefully peeled. Cut from the cobs enough boiled corn to fill the tomatoes, first mixing the corn with mayonaise dressing. Let the stuffed tomatoes stay on ice until ready to be served.

TOUCHED HEART OF MARSHAL

New York Server of Eviction Papers Moved by Tragedy of Which He Was Chief.

Thirty little children sat on cheap wooden benches in the second-story room at 11 Suffolk street the other day. Every one of them was ragged. Most looked as though they had not had enough to eat. But they were bright-eyed and alert and not for a moment did their attention stray from the white-bearded old rabbi who was teaching them Jewish prayers, although the smeary little pictures on the walls and the myriad of noises of the roaring East side street must have been a constant temptation. And then the door opened and City Marshal Lazarus stepped in, dispossess warrant in hand, says the New York correspondent of the Cincinnati Times-Star. The struggling little congregation of the synagogue hadn't been able to pay the rent. Their few pennies were needed to keep their own roof trees and give their little ones a meager fare. The old teacher stood silent, with bowed head, as the poor furnishings were ripped from the place and stacked in the street below. Tears trickled down his beard. The children carried the things through the squalid neighborhood and in a moment the street was choked with shrieking, gesticulating, weeping men and women. They begged the marshal's men for mercy. As each bit of the poor furnishings appeared they redoubled their entreaties. The rabbi, no longer erect and venerable, but a puny, old, grief-stricken man, his eyes red with tears, his hands shaking, moved among them, trying to repress their emotion. Marshal Lazarus was moved by the agony of this, perhaps the most poverty-stricken congregation in all New York. He went to the old rabbi and handed him a little money. "That's to keep you going for a few days," he said kindly.

The old man accepted it. "But it is for my people," he said proudly. "Myself, I can starve. But who will watch my little children here?"

WRONG SYSTEM IN PORTUGAL

Land Cut Up Into Portions on Which Comfortable Living Cannot Be Made.

The Portuguese are an extremely conservative people. Every man follows rigidly the methods employed by his father and forefathers. In very many parts of the country the old wooden plows are still used.

When a man dies instead of one of the heirs taking the whole property and paying the remaining heirs for their parts the whole property is divided into as many parts as there are heirs. More than this, each separate part of the property is thus divided.

Thus if a property consisted of ten acres of pasture land, 10 of vineyard and ten of grain land, and there were ten heirs, each heir would receive one acre each of grain and pasture land and eight acres of vineyard. This process has been going on for a very long time, so that now in the most fertile part of Portugal the land is divided into incredibly small portions.

The immediate result of this, according to the United States consular reports, is that the product of the land is barely sufficient at best to sustain the owners. South of the river Tagus on the other hand, there are enormous tracts of uncultivated land lying unused, but it has been found impossible to induce the farmers of the north to move into this region and take up large holdings.

Must Reinstate Montreal Teachers

(Special to The Times.)

Montreal, Que., Nov. 11.—The Catholic School Commissioners recently discharged five teachers on the ground that they were tainted with Freemasonry, and after cropping of the lodge emancipation exposures. Judge Decmers this morning declared these dismissals illegal and granted an injunction restraining the commissioners from putting their resolution into Effect. He also said the action exposed the commission to action for damages.

1813 --- THE BATTLE OF CRYSLER'S FARM --- 1910

Ninety-Seven Years Ago Yesterday British and Canadian Soldiers, Outnumbered More Than Three to One, Turned Back an Army of Invaders From the South---One of Many Brilliant Achievemets

Cornwall, Nov. 11.—Ninety seven seven years ago today the people of this section heard the angry roar of foreign guns. This is the anniversary of the battle of Crysler's Farm, Nov. 11, 1813, when some 900 British soldiers, Canadian militia and loyal Indians defeated 3,000 Americans of General Wilkinson's army of invasion, commanded by General Covington, who was one of the 83 Americans slain in the struggle, during which 237 Americans were also wounded.

It is now an old story—nearly 100 years of age in fact, but like the story of Nelson's victory at the Nile cannot die of age. A suitable celebration is planned to be held in the summer of 1913 on the old and historic battle ground. The British-Canadian victories at Crysler's Farm and at Chateauguay turned back the United States' invaders and secured to the British Crown the northern portion of the continent.

On Sunday, November 8, 1813, General Wilkinson's flotilla of 300 boats, carrying, it is said 10,000 men, appeared west of Point Iroquois. It was fired upon by a dozen or so mihtiamen on picket duty. A detachment of 200 Dundas militia also joned in the firing, but when the Americans landed a strong force on Jack Brouse's farm, the militiamen were forced to retreat inland.

On Tuesday, November 10, Wilkinson, hearing that a strong British force was coming down the river, embarked his men, passed the Rapid Plat and landed at the east side of Williamsburg township, to prepate his boats for the running of the Longue Sault Rapids. Here he was joined by General Brown and 3,000 men, whom with part of his own force, he was sent by land to capture the government stores at Cornwall. At Hopple's Creek (now Dickenson Landing) Brown's march was opposed by 1300 illarmed and undisciplined Glengarry militia under Major Dennis, who after a few volleys retired, and Brown pushed on to Cornwall, camping on lots 17, 18 and 19, Cornwall township, owned by Joseph Prescott, Joseph Anderson and William Bunions.

Before the Americans reached Cornwall the government stores were removed by way of St. Andrew's and Martintown down the Kings road to Coteau du Lac. The American soldiers are said to have been very civil to the women and children, the men being nearly all out with the militia, but they helped themselves freely to the contents of cellars and granaries, and in most cases did not pay for what they took from the stores. Some of them threatened that they would destroy the town and neighboring farmhouses before continuing their march to Montreal.

BATTLE OF CRYSLER'S FARM.

However, events were happening at Crysler's Farm, which caused them to change their minds. The cannonading at Crysler's Farm was plainly heard by the American troops at Cornwall, and General Brown was amazed on the morning of the 12th, to hear that the British had won. He immediately embarked his troops, ran down the river and landed at the Salmon river on the American side. Wilkson's defeated army followed, and they established a post called Fort Covington, after the general killed at Crysler's Farm. This, however, was afterwards abandoned, and in February, 1814, Col. Pearson with 500 men crossed over from Cornwal on the ice, destroyed the boats left in the Salmon River, marched to Malone, N.Y., and brought away or destroyed the stores left there by General Brown's retreating army. Some of the ruined bateaux burned and sunk in the Salmon river were dug up a few years ago.

The battle of Crysler's Farm itself was not a long one but it was a red hot engagement while it lasted. The steadiness of the British regulars, seasoned soldiers of a dozen campaigns, proved too much for their opponents, but they were too few in number to pursue the enemy recklessly. The British troops engaged were companies from the 49th and 89th regiments of the line, the crews of three gun boats a company of Canadian fencibles, under Lieut. de Lotimier, some Provincial Dragoons under Captain R. D. Fraser, two companies of Canadian Voltigeurs under Major Heriot, some militia under Lieut. Samuel Adams and 30 Indians under Lieut. Anderson. The British officers killed were Captain Nairn and Ensign Clause of the 49th, and Lieut de Lorimer of the Fencibles.

The battle of Crysler's Farm, Wilkinson's invasion and couplée, with a similar engagement at Chateauguay saved Montreal from investment.

The battlefield is marked by a fine monument of Canadian sandstone erected about 16 years ago.

Large Number of G.T.R. Men Still Out of Work.

Lindsay Post: It was announced yesterday that the Grand Trunk Railway Company had reinstated ten more strikers. One hundred and forty are still out of work. This is considered as the outcome of the conference in Ottawa between representatives of the Dominion Government and officials of the railway. The three conductors who were recently suspenced have received no word of their reinstatement.

Nearly 100 Lives Were Lost in a Wreck

THE BRITISH STEAMER WALLY DRIVEN ON REEF OFF. BRAZIL.

Where She Foundered—Very Few Lives Were Saved—Steering Gear Went Wrong.

Plymouth, Eng., Nov. 11.—It is reported that the British steamer Wally, had been wrecked off Para, Brazil, with a loss of nearly 100 lives.

The Wally was wrecked off Para on October 21st, with a loss of 50 lives. The cable despatch from Plymouth, doesn't state whether this is a second disaster.

According to the report from Para the steering gear was rendered defective by the storm. The vessel was driven upon a reef where she foundered. Only a few of the passengers and some of the crew reached land.

COMING TO PETERBOROUGH.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fallis of Cavan, Honored.

On Monday night the neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Fallis gathered at their home on the Fallis Line to express their regret at their departure to live in Peterborough, and to present them with a token of esteem as indicated by the address below. As old residents of the township and very highly esteemed as well, there is general sorrow that Mr. and Mrs. Fallis have decided to spend their remaining years away from their old surroundings. The following is the address:

To Mr. and Mrs. John Fallis—

Dear Friends,—We are indeed sorry for the occasion that has brought us together at this time, to bid you farewell as you go from our neighborhood. When first we heard of your intention to change your place of residence, we hoped that you would settle near by and that we might see you often, but in this we have been disappointed, your going out from us will leave a place vacant that will not soon be filled. We will miss you as a neighbor who by a kindly interest in our well being have endeared yourselves to us all. We will miss you as friends who in the hour of trouble have stood with us in sympathy, exemplifying the Bible precept, weep with those who weep. We will miss you in our social gatherings, where, because of your keen interest in social and political matters, you have always made yourselves welcome. We need hardly assure you that we wish you God speed as you go, God's blessing upon you in your new home, and many years more of life and prosperity. We ask you to accept this watch and chain, not because of their intrinsic value but as slight token of the high esteem in which you are held in the community where you have lived so long.

Signed on behalf of the neighbors.

FIREMEN'S NEW UNIFORMS.

A Splendid Canadian Serge of Unexcelled Durability and Good Local Tailoring.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council visited the fire hall last night, and inspected the brigade in their new uniforms. The men, donned their new suits, and assembling in the capacious south bedroom, went through a brief drill under the capable command of Chief Howard, in a manner that would reflect considerable credit on a crack company in a military organization. The new uniforms are the work of Mr. Geo. Ball, and the cloth is Forbes' 24 oz. indigo blue military serge, manufactured at Hespler, Ontario. The tailoring is perfect, while the Canadian cloth is far superior to the English military serge, being more closely woven, which enhances its durability. The outfit cost the city $108.05 for 13 suits and an officer's tunic, and the only drawback apparent is that the suits while admirably adapted to winter wear are too heavy for summer use. But the city should furnish the men with lighter weight suits for summer wear, say an 18 oz. Forbes' serge, which would eventually mean but a suit a year—one for summer and another for winter as this serge of either weight, is really good for more than twelve months' wear. In fact Chief Howard showed the committee a coat made of serge from the Hespler mills, that has been in commission six years, and which has been through the wash tub more than once, to say nothing of the natural wear and teat of a fireman's duty. And the coat in question is still good for service.

A pleasing feature of this transaction is that while Mr. Ball was biased in favor of English serge, he was subsequently persuaded by Chief Howard to figure on the Canadian goods, and now acknowledges that the Hespler serge is the best on the market.

The committee and Chief Howard expressed their unqualified gratification at the highly satisfactory work of Mr. Ball, which left nothing to be desired. The chief says that these uniforms are the best the brigade ever had made, both in quality of workmanship and material.

An inspection of the fire hall revealed the fact that everything is kept spic and span, and that cleanliness prevails throughout. The gong was also sounded and it is difficult to conceive of any brigade manning their respective posts in quicker time One could hardly turn around before the horses were out of stalls and in harness, the lines in hand, and exit doors open. In fact Peterborough has reason to be proud of its fire hall, equipment and present well drilled brigade.

Ex-President Roosevelt is Preparing Important Political Announcement

WHEN CURIOSITY IS AT HIGH PITCH ROOSEVELT WILL BE READY TO SPEAK.

Is Expected to Deal With the Presidential Succession in United States for 1912—Not Politically Dead—Just Starting the Fight.

Oyster Bay, L.I., Nov. 11. — That Col. Roosevelt's seclusion and reticence is the preamble to a bristling statement on politics, in which he will declare positively whether or not he will be a candidate for president in 1912, is a belief which gained ground among his friends today.

GIVES UP HIS PASTIMES.

Since Tuesday the colonel has not allowed himself to be interrupted, but those who have gone to Sagamore Hill have seen the colonel only in his library busily engaged in reading newspapers or writing. All the old pleasures of receiving visitors, horseback riding and tree chopping are forgotten by the former president According to certain friends of Col. Roosevelt, the statement soon will be made public.

MAIL IS DOUBLY HEAVY.

At the Oyster Bay post office it was said today that the colonel's mail, which has always been heavy, has doubled since election. The task of getting it to Sagamore Hill without a wagon is becoming a question to the postmaster.

New York Nov. 12 The annual Horse Show in the Madison Square Garden and the opening of the season of the Metropolitan Opera Company will divide the attention of society in New York and throughout a large section of the country as well.

Canadians in New York.

(Special to The Times.)

New York, Nov. 12.—At the annual banquet of the Canadian Club of New York, to be given Tuesday night at the Hotel Astor, a movement will be launched for the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the signing of the Peace Treaty at Ghent between the United States and Great Britain.

Parliament Opens Thursday.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—The third session of the eleventh parliament of Canada will meet Thursday. The session is expected to be of more than ordinary interest, in that there is the possibility that it will be the last before another general election. Reciprocity and the tariff, the naval policy and other large issues will come up for discussion.

The Cooper Trial.

New York, Nov. 12.—The case of Robin Cooper is on the docket for trial at Nashville, Tenn., but there is a probability that the trial will be again postponed. Robin Cooper and his father, Col. Duncan B. Cooper, were convicted of the murder of former Senator Edward W. Carmack the trial ending in the spring of last year. The verdict was reversed by the Supreme Court in the case of Robin Cooper and he was granted a new trial. He has since been at liberty on $10,000 bail.

More Light Wanted.

Chief Howard exemplified to the Fire, Water & Light Committee last night the crying need of more light at the Grand Trunk crossing on Charlotte street. On cloudy nights that come under the "moonlight" schedule of the street lighting contract this spot is in comparative darkness. Thursday evening two ladies narrowly escaped being caught between cars at this point, and the chief urged upon the committee the necessity of arranging for a string of incandescent lights at this crossing in substitute for the arc lamp when it is not burning under contract. The committee will take this matter into their earnest consideration.

AWFUL LOCAL CONDITIONS.

Affairs in Adjoining Counties Want Government Attention.

Mr. J. J. Kelso, well known here, a few days ago spoke in Napanee, on the degenerate type of settlers to be found in the isolated regions of North Hastings, Haliburton, Lennox and Addington, etc. Missionaries could do as much good in these regions as in China or India. There were no schools or churches, and large families of children were without shoes or stockings through the long winter, and rarely saw a human being.

In fact local conditions in those counties were shown by photographs taken on the spot. Some of these tracts should be closed to settlement, the speaker thought, and assistance should be given the people to removed to more favorable farming land in other sections of the Province. The occasion was the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society.

Local Barbers Demand Protection.

The tonsorial artists of this city need legislation. The barbers of Peterborough and the general public will be interested in learning that the proposed new license law will be brought before the Ontario Legislature. The Act is to regulate the occupation of barbering so that a board shall be formed to insure a better education of such practitioners, to provide rules regulating the proper sanitation of barber shops, preventing the spreading of contagious and infectious diseases.

Dead Woman Had Gash in Her Head

Kingston, Nov. 11.—A woman foun found dead at Collin's Bay this morning was identified as Mary Ann McAlpine, of Ottawa, who was travelling with Samuel Slattery, also of Ottawa, an umbrella mender. He found her dead beside him this morning in a bush where they were under shelter from a storm.

Slattery says George Simmons, who is under detention, came along and gave them whiskey. They drank until they were insensible. The woman was dead this morning with a gash on her head. She was aged 44 years, and had two brothers, named McDonald, in Ottawa, also two sisters and a son and daughter in Fort William Coroner Ross will hold an inquest.

THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE TEAM FOR LINDSAY.

The Collegiate Institute Rugby team journey to Lindsay today for a friendly game with the Lindsay Junior O.R.F.U. team. The local students will line up as follows:

Full—Hayes.
Halves—Hogan, Minorgan, Gibson.
Quarter—Matthews.
Scrimmage—Corkery, Hill Leahy.
Inside Wings—Laing, Eastwood.
Middle Wings—Throop, Harstone.
Outside Wings—Gilbert, Conroy.
Spare—Ingram.

Whose Behind This Proposition?

The Port Perry Star in its council proceedings report says: "A letter was received by the clerk from a legal firm in Lindsay asking what amount of electric power could be brought from Buckhorn Falls to Whitby. A rough estimate was made at about 400 h.p. if the price could be made right. It was also suggested that should the electric road from Oshawa to Lindsay go through much more power could be used."

Retiring From Business.

Mr. Herbert Burnham, who was home here a couple of weeks ago ill, has found that he cannot continue his Peterborough business, and is disposing of it with a view to a year's rest to recuperate, which we hope may prove of avail.

Removal of Snow.

Large posters have been issued from The Times job rooms, by the city, calling for tenders for removal of snow and slush from the pavements and sidewalks of this city. The city has this year, for such purposes, been divided into eight districts. All snow and slush must be removed before nine o'clock each morning, and in case of stormy weather the pavements must be cleaned as soon as possible, and as often as to make traffic easy for pedestrians.

Sergt. Batten is Honored.

The many friends of Sergt. Batten, learning by the report in The Times yesterday morning, extended sincere congratulations to that veteran of the local forces over being awarded and handed by Col. Denison, the long service medal. The gallant sergeant has well earned this distinguished honor. Sergt. Batten has the sincere congratulations of The Times and, most certainly those of a host of friends over the honor paid him in public, and over the national mark of approval.

NEW YORK HORSE SHOW.

Record-Breaking List of Entries for the Event.

New York, Nov. 12.—With a record-breaking entry of 1740, which is almost 250 in excess of last year's figures, the twenty-sixth annual exhibition of the National Horse Show Association will open in Madison Square Garden today. The directors chose Saturday as the opening day this year instead of following the time-honored precedent of having the premier on Monday, and consequently the show will run seven days instead of six days as heretofore.

Another unusual feature of the opening day this year was the presence of thousands of orphans, crippled children, and other little wards of Greater New York as guests for the first time in the show's history. The children filled one entire section of the big garden this afternoon and manifested their appreciation of the show by applauding every feature. The ponies, however, elicited the greatest measure of their enthusiasm.

The classes well represented in this year's show include trotters, thoroughbreds, hackneys, Morgans, hunters, saddle horses of various types, militia mounts, polo ponies, army officers' chargers, mounted police, carriage pairs and singles, four-in-hands, tandems, road coaches, Shetland and other ponies.

There are the usual jumping classes with additional international contests at water jumping and stone wall jumping between picked teams of cavalry officers from Canada, England, France, Holland, Germany and the United States.

W.C.T.U. at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 12.—Hundreds of delegates from all parts of the country are in Baltimore for the annual national convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and all indications point to one of the largest gatherings in the history of the organization. The meetings will continue through next Wednesday night. On the programme as speakers are many of the most prominent women temperance workers in America.

REMANDED ONE WEEK.

Charged With Beating Board Bill and Stealing Watch, the End to Come.

At yesterday's session of the police court Albert Hutt had a serious charge to face. It was alleged that he ran a board bill of $60, and was given a $5 bill to go to the market to buy goods. The prisoner pleaded guilty to several charges of theft in in the police court. It seems Hutt had been boarding with a Mr. Richard O'Rourke, and had run a board bill of $60. He was asked to pay the bill, and left, taking a valuable gold watch with him. He sold the watch for $7, and did not return to his boarding house. The watch was found, and Hutt was "pinched." Hutt gave an explanation of the depature of the watch from its owner, which resulted in a week's remand for sentence.

Those Who Seek Slimness.

Overfat men and women, mortified and humiliated by the publicity of conspicuous rolls and billows of fat, are gradually learning that through the discovery of an eminent physician the burden of overfatness is taken from them, leaving the figure attractively proportioned, the flesh firm, the skin smooth, and the general health vastly improved, without dieting, exercise or resulting wrinkles or flabbiness. There is no equal and no substitute for the famous Marmola Prescription, but there is a new and more convenient form—a tablet form of this safe fat remover. Marmola Prescription Tablets contain the same harmless, effective ingredients as the original prescription that has enabled so many thousands of uncomfortable men and women to reduce their weight evenly and steadily at the rate of a pound or more a day. An exceptionally large case of these Marmola Prescription Tablets is sold by all druggists at 75c, or sent you direct by the Marmola Co., 1192 Monroe Ave., Detroit, Mich., on receipt of price.

IT IS FEARED THAT GUN BATTLES TYPICAL OF OLD DAYS WILL OCCUR.

The Feeling in Mexico Runs High and Clashes are Reported at Various Points.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 11. Clashes between Americans and Mexicans are occurring all along the Mexican border today, according to reports reaching this city from various points. At a number of places in Texas shots were fired The frontier along the Rio Grande was a skirmish ground which offered the lawless element possibility for much violence in a condition of border warfare.

The rangers were moved southward today so as to be on the ground in case actual hostilities were inaugurated.

Stories of anti American feeling were carried into the lonely ranges of Chihuahua by couriers. There are many big international ranches along the border country where Americans and Mexicans are employed indiscriminately, and it is feared that the dislike which has always existed will give way to gun battles typical of the old days.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I read several such that soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

A New Polar Controversy.

Peary had the joy taken out of the announcement of his discovery of the north pole by the anticipatory claims of Dr. Cook. He suffered in popular esteem also by his exhibition of temper, but after all the wrangling Cook is discredited and scientists generally have accepted Peary's story.

Now, however, there are intimations that Knud Rasmussen is to prove by the testimony of Cook's Eskimos that neither Cook nor Peary reached the pole. This may look like an impartial denial of favors, but are the Eskimos a final authority? In effect all the story comes to at present is the suggestion of another cloud upon Peary's title, for Cook is beyond being hurt.

The consensus of opinion is that plenty of sour has been mixed with Peary's allowance of sweet, and that he should be cheerfully conceded his belated glory unless a most convincing case can be made out against him.

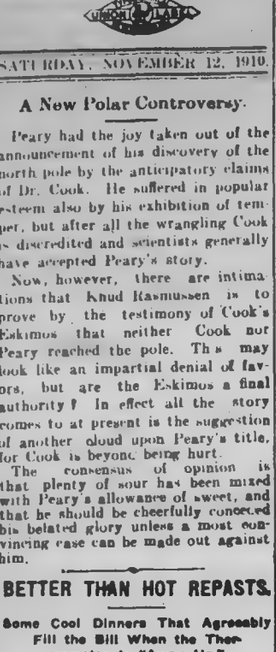
Butter a baking dish well, line with a layer of meat, then add a layer of macaroni, cooked for 30 minutes previously in salted water and then one of tomatoes; repeat until dish is full. I use a third of a package of macaroni and one can of tomatoes, and season each layer well with salt and paprika. Cover with cracked crumbs dotted with butter and bake 1½ hours.

Salmon Cream.—Take one pound of salmon, either canned or fresh boiled and flake it. Make a white sauce of one pint of milk, salt and pepper to taste, thickened with one heaping tablespoonful of flour, add the salmon and, when thoroughly heated, a can of peas or one-half peck green ones. Serve on toast. This should all be made in the double boiler.

Rice and Honey.—Wash a cupful of rice, put in a double boiler and add a pint and a half of milk. Steam till the rice has absorbed all the milk, and then add one-half pound of seeded raisins. Serve with strained honey.

HOUSEWORK APRON.



Attractive housework apron of blue linen. The cut is slightly empire and a seam down either side of the front gives it shape. The armhole is very large so that the apron slips on easily. A little handkerchief pocket adorns the front of the waist. Two buttons are sewn on at the waist line and from them hang a flat holder and a towel. Rather picturesque is the dusting cap of the same blue linen.

Stuffed Eggplant.

Choose a large eggplant and cut it in half lengthwise. Scrape out the inside and to the pulp add two chopped tomatoes, a minced pepper, and a half cupful of bread crumbs. Season to taste and fill the halved shells of the eggplant with this mixture, molding it high. Sprinkle with crumbs, dot with bits of butter, and set in a baking pan. Pour a cupful of hot water about the eggplant and roast for an hour, basting every 15 minutes with butter and water. Transfer to a hot dish and pour tomato sauce about the vegetable.

Egg Sandwiches.

Mash the yolks of hard-boiled eggs to a powder and moisten with olive oil and a few drops of vinegar. Work to a paste, add salt, pepper and French mustard to taste, with a drop or two of tabasco sauce. Now chop the whites of the eggs as fine as possible (or until they are a coarse powder) and mix them with the yolk paste. If more seasoning is necessary add it before spreading the mixture upon sliced graham bread.

BRITISH PROCEDURE.

A striking contrast in the proceedings of courts is furnished by the trial of Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve. It took the English law but a short time to get at the bottom of the Crippen case, to sift evidence that has attracted the entire English-speaking world, to sum up the whole ghastly affair and to announce the punishment that goes to the perpetrator of appalling crimes. Had Crippen been tried in America the legal defence would have been insanity or brain storm, the case would likely have dragged on through the courts for weeks and the outcome in all probability would have been a short sentence in an hospital for the insane, or acquittal on the grounds of insufficient evidence. 6

A TIMELESS WORLD.

What Would Happen if We Were Entirely Inclosed by Clouds.

If astronomers are right in ascribing the wonderful brightness of Venus to the existence of an atmosphere continually filled with clouds, then she must be a world without time at least there can be no measurement of time there such as we have here.

It is because we can see the sun and the stars that we are able to traverse the oceans and run railroad trains across the continents.

Surround our earth with an unbroken shell of clouds and what would become of all our clocks and chronometers? Not a ship could safely cross the sea; not a railroad would be able to run its trains without a series of frightful wrecks. In a few weeks every clock and watch would be hopelessly wrong and all exact timekeeping would cease.

Probably there are few who stop to think of the way in which our every day life depends upon astronomical observations. Our great primary timekeeper is the earth rotating on its axis. If we could not see the sun and stars because of clouds we should not know that the earth rotates and there would be no standard to which we could refer our timepieces and by which we could correct them. In fact we should probably have no timepieces.

There could be no hours and minutes, for they are exact divisions of an ideal day based upon celestial observations which would be impossible to us.

They could not be based upon clocks or other mechanical devices, because the most exquisite chronometer that can be constructed will not keep time definitely and must be continually corrected by means of observations of the stars made in the observatories.

There could be no accurate maps of countries or charts of the seas, for such maps and charts can be made only by the aid of astronomical observations.

There could be no parallels of latitude or meridians of longitude, for they, too, are based on celestial observations which would be impossible to us.

We should not know with any certainty where we were upon the earth. We could not measure the distance from New York to London nor from New York to San Francisco.

Poetical minds, moved by the spectacle of Venus in her glory, have drawn brilliant pictures of the delights of life in that radiant world, but there is another side to the question of which we may well think as we gaze admiringly upon her electric splendor.—Garrett P. Service in New York American.

A "Sure Thing" Poet.

Poets as a rule are not good business men, but an exception is one of a little group of young writers and artists who dine every evening together and talk shop. The poet very often reads the verses he has composed, and sometimes the comments are not exactly flattering. "That's rotten!" exclaimed an artist on hearing one of these effusions recently.

"I'll bet you $5 I can sell it to a magazine," replied the poet.

The wager was made, and the artist lost. Since that the poet has made several similar bets with his scoffing friends and has won them all. He was chuckling over it to an outsider the other day. "You must have wonderful confidence in the merit of your work," said the rank outsider.

"Confidence nothing," laughed the poet. "I couldn't lose. I never read a poem to those fellows until I have first sold it."—New York Sun.

Caring For Eyeglasses.

Most people seem to think that glasses will stand any sort of treatment, and yank and pull at them until they go to the repair shop with alarming frequency. Glasses should never be taken off with one hand; an optician advises that they be carefully grasped by the rims of the lenses on both sides and removed by pushing upward. Pulling at one side of spectacles bends the frame; with nose glasses it loosens the screw, and the lens shakes continually. Sometimes this happens in spite of care, and then it is well to purchase one of the tiny screwdrivers used by opticians and tighten them whenever necessary. Clean your glasses with some soft material—a common piece of tissue paper is better than any medium yet invented—and occasionally give them a bath in warm water into which a little ammonia has been dropped.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

When transferring a pattern for embroidery to silk hosiery slip a piece of cardboard inside the stocking, taking care not to stretch the silk at all. After adjusting the paper pattern in the proper place press with a hot iron and the work will be accomplished.

If you buy a petticoat ready made do not wear it with all the fullness the manufacturer gives it at the waist line. Remove the band and gore the skirt, leaving a little fullness at the back. This change will make the skirt far more comfortable than it would have been in its original form, and it will look neater beneath the dress.

One of the newest patterns in embroidery shows a table cover with a scalloped border on two sides. The hems were ten inches deep. In the outer threads were drawn to outline eight blocks, four on each side, with edges touching the hems. This brings the blocks in the center of the table. All blocks are embroidered in a different floral pattern, making it something original and at the same time attractive.

To insert lace or insertion first baste the material to be ornamented on stiff paper, then apply the lace to it and sew by hand or machine. To form yoke or cuffs of insertion cut the shape in stiff paper, then baste on the insertion, making it lie flat, and sew on the machine. One edge of the lace must, of course, be lapped over the other. The machine sewing gives a better finish than hand sewing and is much easier.

Seldom Such An Opportunity

is offered to investors as that of the Cartwright Automatic Job Printing Press.

This is the first radical improvement in the ordinary job-presses for over 50 years past.

Meantime great advances have been made in newspaper and book presses, and in type-setting machines, on which fortunes have been made for the Shareholders.

Publishers, printers, and everybody welcome the Cartwright, are buying both the press and the Capital Shares.

The Company are sending out some very interesting literature, which can be obtained for the mere asking.

Some readers of the "Times" are among the recent investors in Cartwright Shares.

Let us send you some of our readable literature.

THE "INTERNATIONAL LIMITED."

One of the most artistic folders issued by the Grand Trunk is a brochure just out giving information regarding the "International Limited," which is heralded as Canada's fastest train, as well as its finest. The booklet is prepared in most attractive style, well printed and illustrated, while the esthetic relation of type and illustrations is maintained to a notable degree. The story of "International Limited" is a familiar one to Canadian, as well as American, travellers, but as shown in the latest publication of the Company, it is still not merely interesting, but attractive. A full description of this train between Montreal and Chicago is given, together with all the information regarding time and accommodation that any passenger could require, the whole tastefully put together and artistically illustrated. A copy may be had free on application to Grand Trunk City Office, Mr. W. Buntin, Peterboro.

A couple of good steady girls wanted at the Times Office, to learn bookbinding. Eight hours per day and permanent employment.,

GRAY HAIR

Dr. Tremain's Natural Hair Restorative will restore grey hair to its natural color. Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

BEATING THE STATES.

The Canadian Gazette, noting the very heavy British immigration to Canada, 80,151 in the six months ending September 30, observes. "What a comment these figures supply upon the recent English agitation against the Canadian immigration regulations. Far from closing her doors, Canada has left them open wide enough to let this phenomenal number through. For the six months in question the British immigration exceeded by 1,600 the immigration from the United States.

FOR PERFECT JELLY

FLAVOR, TRANSPARENCY AND CONSISTENCY THE CHIEF POINTS.

Expert Tells How Best Results May Be Achieved and Explains Some of the Reasons Why Product Is a Failure.

Now that the jelly-making season is here it reminds us that so many people who are recognized cooks have no poor an idea of good jelly. What is perfect jelly as we know it to-day? Some of us must learn to change our ideas in that regard. As judge of foods at the state fair and county institutes where women are supposed to bring their best we infer that jelly making is comparatively an undiscovered art. Flavor, transparency and consistency are the points to be considered. Hundreds of women have their jellies (good to them) passed by and cannot understand the reason. One great fault is that the judging is often done by incompetent people; an otherwise fine cook may be an extremely poor judge of jelly, and the standard of good jelly is what the judge has made it from year to year. Secure a judge who has had training and is recognized as authority, then follow her advice and the prize may be yours next year. If every person who enters an exhibit understands the score card and is not satisfied until she understands the standard of good jelly and knows why she did or did not receive the blue or red ribbon jelly making in that community will be improved. So much has been said of exhibits, as they are a great incentive in the rivalry which they create.

Now, then, how are we to tell perfect jelly when we see it? First, it must be well flavored, clear and of just the consistency to stand and keep the form of the mold when turned out. A quivering mass of transparent color.

A few reasons why some people cannot have good jelly. The fruit may be over-ripe, or picked after heavy rains, it may be cooked too long, or squeezed through the jelly bag or not well skimmed while cooking.

Jelly that seems very thin may, by standing in the sunlight for a day or two, be well thickened. When cold, pour over melted paraffin to preserve from germs and mold.

Some fruits are hard to jelly, as they lack the pectin, which is the gelatine of the fruit. To such fruits as strawberries and peaches, which lack this principle, currant and apple will supply the lack.

NELLIE MAXWELL.

CLINGING TO THE PAST.

Erckmann and Chatrian in one of their Alsatian romances drew a character whose toryism was superb. He used to say that the strata of society were divinely ordered— that it was necessary and right for the peasant to look up to the small proprietor, for the small proprietor to respect the squire, for the squire to bow to the nobility, for the nobility to yield homage to the king and for the king to be subject to the pope. And all this time the French "citizens" in cross belts and shakos were marching on the village. In due time the republican watch fires were built in the streets, the republican muskets were stacked and the lumbering republican guns were jolting over the stones. The theories of the good old man were quenched by this overwhelming, unanswerable show of facts.

The parallell between this character of fiction and the Free Trade party in Britain is singularly apt. Sir Alfred Mond, and other prominent Free Traders in Britain are olc timers. They cling to the theories of Cobden when the economic position of Britain has suffered tremendous changes. When Cobden lived British industrialism was supreme. No other nation had approached within seeing distance. British goods dominated in the world's markets. There was no danger of hurtful competition from foreign manufacturers either abroad or at home. But even under those conditions Cobden did not foresee that the other nations would decline to follow Great Britain's lead. He thought that the destruction of the British tariff wall would compel or induce world-wide Free Trade Britain at the time could afford to make the experiement. But if Cobden were alive today it may be doubtful if he would still advocate a policy which makes the United Kingdom the dumping ground of the world, strangles British industry and creates an army of unemployed. Germany and the United States have arisen since Cobden began to speak. A policy well suited for one generation may not be suited for the next. Protection grows in the world.

Sir Alfred Mond and his allies cling to the old time cure all. What has been must be, according to their political creed. They call themselves Liberals, but their whole attitude is conservative. They cannot realize fully that the world has changed. At the same time they hear the tramp of strange hosts and make curious concessions to the new evangel. To benefit the shareholders Brunner, Mond & Co., make trade agreements and dally with other protective devices. The worthy baronet continues to talk well, however, and to flaunt his conservatism in the air.

Duke to Lay Cornerstone.

Capetown, Nov. 5.—The last of the public functions attending the visit of the Duke of Connaught in Cape Town will take place today, when his royal Highness officiates at the laying of the foundation stone for the new university to be erected here. The first of the week the royal party will leave for their tour of the Orange River Colony, the Transvaal and Natal.

HER SHARE IN THE OWNERSHIP.

Something Proud Young Father Seemed in Danger of Forgetting.

He picked up the baby, he hoped, just as if picking babies up were an every-day occurrence. In point of fact, he remembered that an elderly lady had told him in his youth that cats, when lifted, like to be supported with a hand held underneath, and he thought that this principle would work out with babies, and it did. And having awakened Louise, he handed her back, triumphant, to Constance, diffusing an air of competency, as though he could help rear any number of children at once. At any rate, she was comforted. Whether he knew much or little, he stood back of her.

It may be that John's success as a father led him to seem vainglorious when he was not. He certainly put on airs about the baby. It was not long after this that he lured two old friends ostensibly to dinner. His invitation did not include a visit to Louise, and, of course, it was merely an accident that she should have been awake at the time when they were there. As a matter of fact, she usually awoke at that hour, but the men didn't know this—or perhaps they wouldn't have come. Men have a becoming shyness about babies, and these were bachelors.

John had arrived at that state of arrogance when he actually went over to the crib, and asking no one's permission, picked Louise up and displayed her to the two men, who were as embarrassed as a dog in the presence of a June bug. He laid her down again with an expert hand, and ostentatiously changed the subject, to show that he was not among those fathers who pushed their children down other people's throats. But his manner said:

"This is my baby; and when you fellows can show me anything as interesting you will be of value to society."

It was after they had gone that Constance came up, and put her hands on John's shoulders, and said:

"After all, you know, it's my baby, too."—Woman's Home Companion.

REASON FOR THIS SLANG TERM.

Medical Men Say One Really Sees Blue When Fainting.

The use of the word "blue" to denote melancholy or terror, as in the phrases to "feel blue," "blue devils," a "blue funk," and so on, is not entirely figurative, if we are to credit a recent medical writer.

The class of phenomena that includes fainting, vertigo, nausea, etc., is controlled by certain brain centers that also bring about a sort of cramp of the external muscles of the eye. The resulting compression of the organ causes objects to look gray or bluish, and ultimately produces apparent darkness.

The use of the word, having a physiological basis, is common to many languages. The French say, for instance, "I see blue." A writer says that the French word ebloussement (giddiness) should be spelled ebloussement, and has the same origin.

RESTFUL TO EYES AND NERVES.

Green Is One of Nature's Cures for Worry and Fatigue.

"If the whole of London were painted green it would have a wonderful effect upon the health and spirits of us Londoners," said one of the leading specialists to a Mirror writer. "Eyesight and health are most closely connected, and among town dwellers eyesight is steadily deteriorating. Green is one of nature's cures for worry and fatigue. Watch a man who is worrying or tired out and see how often he will wander to a window from which he can gaze on a tree in leaf. Instinctively his eyes seek the restful green of the foliage. A great deal of the good obtained from a visit to the country is from the incessant environment of the green fields and green leaves.

"A green room, too, is a splendid thing. I know of a case of a popular actress who could never understand why it was that in a certain room in her house she could always rest so much better than in any other one. She mentioned the fact to me one day, and I pointed out to her that the paper and furniture were entirely green."

See Dictionary and Get Light.

The chap who patronises cheap restaurants picks up numerous ineradicable wrong notions which he persists in repeating to such acquaintances as sit at his feet and swallow his ipsedixits. "Now," he will spout, "everybody knows that 'rarebit' is vegetable, while 'rabbit' might be either flesh or fowl. So we have Long Island rabbit—a hare; and Long Island rarebit—of a fowl. A restaurant man is lucid if not right." But he doesn't tell where the toast, the ale, the cheese, the sauce and the baking powder come in! Nor does he tell why this delectable dish is called "Welsh." There are famous Welsh hares, the finest of hunting; but why should cheese and toast, etc., make a Welsh rabbit? Why not a Scotch rabbit? Why not a Texas rabbit? Why not a jack rabbit, the noblest animal of his race? More light, more light! This thing is hazy.

Puzzle for Cupid.

A young man named Jamie had been calling quite often where there were two sisters of nearly the same age. It was a sort of joke to the girls as to which was the attraction, as he invariably asked for both and divided his attention impartially. One evening when he called only one of the girls was at home—by arrangement—but, as usual, he asked her to sing, as they were all fond of music. In a spirit of mischief she sang, "Take Me, Jamie, Dear," which left him rather breathless, but smiling. A little later the other sister came in, bright and bewitching, and upon being requested to sing she sat down at the piano willingly and sang, "If Jamie Asks Me to Marry Him What Shall I Say?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

THOUGHTS OF A BUSY FELLOW

On Past, Current and Coming Events of Local and General Import.

WHO WILL BE LIBRARIAN?

Many applications male and female—are on fyle for the position of librarian for the new public library, and also for that of assistant. And now that the positions are being advertised, the number of aspirants will probably increase to such an extent as to render selection somewhat difficult. The minimum qualification for the senior office is none too prohibitive for a position held to be sufficiently responsible in the States to justify the maintenance of library schools offering special instruction in library work. We don't want a "machine" or an "automaton" as Librarian, but some person with sufficient education and versatility of brain and general knowledge to warrant the assumption that he or she can advise, guide and perhaps at times even instruct. But here comes the question of sex—gentleman or lady, which shall the Librarian be? The chairman of the Library Board offered on Tuesday night that there is more business about a lady, she did not talk as much as a man. This was a new version of the generally accepted length of a woman's tongue, and did not meet with the board's approval. Mr. H. R. H. Kenner's wise advice was that this being a manufacturing city, a large number of mechanics would unquestionably patronize the library in search of technical works that would aid them in their calling, and a gentleman would naturally be more acceptable and serviceable to them. The writer's advice—without entering into the question of qualification—is that the new Public Library would offer sufficient feminine attraction to meet the case with a young lady assistant under the fatherly eye of a staid gentleman librarian.

FORGOT HIS NATIVE DIALECT.

On February 2nd, 1709, Captain Alexander Selkirk, master of the "Cinque Ports Galley," who was left by Captain Stradling on the desolate island of Juan Fernandez, for four years and four months, was rescued by Captain Woodes Rogers, and taken to England. He had forgotten the dialect of his country. It was upon the adventures of Alexander Selkirk that Daniel Defoe founded the story of "Robinson Crusoe." He was brought from the desolate island by two Bristol privateers called the "Duke" and the "Duchess." An account of this may be seen in "Providence Displayed," a pamphlet in the Harleian Miscellaney.

FLYING AND TIGHT-ROPE WALKING.

Whether man will solve the difficult, not to say dangerous, problem of flying or not, a fair amount of progress have been made in the matter of navigating the air. The main difficulty in balloon sailing seems to lie in generating sufficient propelling force to overcome the wind's aggravating habit of carrying one where one hasn't the shightest desire to go—oftentimes necessitating leaving a costly apparatus behind and walking back to civilization—while the chief problem in aviation is that of avoiding the unpleasant experience of descending to terra ferma at break-neck speed, and effecting an untimely exit from civilization altogether. However, when one turns back to the first cruce attempts at sailing serenely through the clouds, present day results are somewhat encouraging.

The first men to attempt ballooning were two French brothers, whose balloon was constructed, if memory is not at fault, of coarse cotton fibre. Buoyancy was obtained by means of hot air, generated from a wood fire. They carried with them in the car a considerable quaneity of wood, and made a very successful ascension as long as the fuel held out. On August 10th, 1784, M. de Moret, a Frenchman, made an unsuccessful attempt at ballooning in London. He was preparing for his ascent when his machine caught fire and was burnt, the unruly mob avenging their disappointment by destroying the adjoining property. This occurred in some tea gardens in an open and rural space, known as the "Five Fields," the present site of Belgrave and Eaton Squares. De Moret made a timely escape, and a carricature of the day represents him flying off to Ostend with a bag of British guineas, leaving the Stockwell Ghost, the Bottle Conjuror, Elizabeth Canning, Mary Toft, and other cheats, enveloped in the smoke of his burning balloon.

Thirty years ago a balloon ascension was of sufficient novelty to attract large crowds at the Crystal Palace, a pleasure resort within a few miles of London, England, gas being used to inflate the expensive silk balloon. These advertised ascensions seldom failed to successfully materialize. At that time also Blondin was in the zenith of his fame as a tight-rope walker at the Crystal Palace. His favorite exploit was to wheel a man across a rope some eighty feet high in a wheel-barrow—when he could get a man fool enough to take the risk. Another clever feat of his was to carry with him on the rope a stove and other accessories, light a fire, cook pancakes, which he threw down amongst the awe-stricken crowd, draw a bottle of beer which he drank himself—and, generally speaking, had a "high" old time.

FOR GENTLEMEN READERS ONLY

With pipe and book at close of day,
Oh, what is sweeter, mortal, say?
It matters not what book on knee,
Old Izaak or the Odyssey,
It matters not meerschaum or clay,
And though one's eyes will dream astray.
And lips forget to sue or sway,
It is enough to merely be
With pipe and book.
What though our modern skies be gray,
As bards aver I will not pray
For "soothing death" to succor me,
But ask this much, O Fate of thee—
A little longer here to stay
With pipe and book.
—Richard Le Gallienne.

This piece has had an enormous success at Kharkov.

USE OF INTOXICANTS.

In June, 1895, Mr. Flint, M.P., introduced a motion before the House at Ottawa to prohibit by law the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating liquors in Canada, except for sacramental, scientific manufacturing and medical purposes. The vote stood 57 to 68 against prohibition. Since that time the consumption of liquor in Ontario has been appreciably moderated by the influence of education, and the successful operation of the present license act.

LIBERTY OF CONSCIENCE.

The great fundamental principle upon which advanced civilization is founded is liberty of conscience—freedom to think and act for one's self, providing one does not violate the laws. The impregnable superstructure upon which Protestantism is built is liberty of conscience, which privilege Portugal has recently acquired and Spain is agitating for. The days of ecclesiastical autocracy and arrogative dogmatism are past, and have given place to temperance and justice. The church no longer dominates state affairs in Anglo-Saxon countries, and even Latin races have rebelled and are rebelling against political organizations waging war in faith's name. But 'tis a pity that in free and enlightened Canada there should exists a city council, like that of Montreal, sufficiently thin-skinned to say the least, as to pass a stupid vote of censure on a man like Ernesto Northan, the mayor of Rome, who stands for liberty of conscience, power of research, modern science, and civil progress. However, his worship of Rome may sleep content that the great preponderance of public opinion in Canada is in keeping with the principles he so manfully advocates.

When Pope Clement XII, excommunicated the Freemasons, certain persons formed a new order in Germany under the patronage of members of the government and others of high rank, with signs and passwords, and all the paraphernalia of Freemasonry. They set up a dog as their emblem, a sign of fidelity, and called themselves Mopses—pug-dogs. To avoid the appearance of being Freemasons, they admitted women into their order. Over each of their lodges they set a grand master and a grand mistress, each ruling alternately for six months, who were addressed as Grand Mopses. On the admission of a candidate, instead of the Masonic rite, a brass collar and chain were attached to the neck, by which he or she was led blind-folded into the lodge; immediately the Mopses began to bark and howl like dogs. The final ceremony was too gross to be described here. On August 8th, 1816, The meetings of Freemasons and other secret societies were prohibited by the King of Naples under penalty of banishment, fine, and imprisonment.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 258 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO MONDAY NOVEMBER 13 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Staff-Sergt. Sharpe Has Passed Away

Yesterday morning a useful life was cut off, and Peterborough lost a highly respected citizen in the person of Staff Sergt. Samuel C. Sharpe, who died at his residence, 510 College street. The late Sergt-Sharpe's death was not altogether unexpected, as he had been afflicted by illness for some time past. still his loss will be severely felt among a large circle of friends.

Sergt. Sharpe, who was 50 years of age, has lived here practically all his life. He was a member of Otonabee Lodge No. 19. I.O.O.F., and was for many years a useful member of the old Volunteer Fire Brigade. Sergt. Sharpe was a prominent non-commissioned officer in the 57th Regiment, and had some years ago been awarded the long service medal, testifying to twenty years' faithful service in the defence of his country. He leaves to mourn his loss, his widow and two daughters, Irene and Ruby, living at home, his mother, two brothers, William and Joseph of Peterborough, three sisters, Mrs. Arthur Tebb of Vancouver, B.C., Mrs. Samuel Crawford of Toronto and Mrs. Thos Emmerson of Peterborough.

The funeral which will be conducted under joint auspices of the local Oddfellows and military will be held tomorrow afternoon. Service at the house at 2.30. Funeral at 3 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery.

Cobourg Young Man Killed at Pittsburg

Cobourg, Nov. 11.—W. H. Monicom of this town, has received the sad intelligence that his son, Harry Monicom, 22 years of age, was accidentally killed at Pittsburg, where he was employed as switchman in the yards of the Lehigh Valley Road. He had just finished setting the switch, when a new engine that he did not know was to be put out of the roundhouse, struck him as he stepped back. When raised up he only spoke once, and that was to give the number of the next switch to be turned. Deceased was married last April to Miss Malone of Pittsburg, who survives him. Previously he was associated with his father in the milk business at Cobourg.

Millionaire's Wife was in Love with a Clerk

THE $30 A WEEK CLERK'S CLOTHES WERE A MASTER PIECE OF TAILOR'S ART.

Further Developments in the Poisoning of J. O. Schenck at Wheeling—His Spouse Often Went Out for Long Auto Rides.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 12.—Following a confession by Lundy Wilson, chauffeur of the Schenck family, that Mrs. John O. Schenck, who is in jail with charge of trying to poison her millionaire husband hanging over her head, was in love with a $20 a week clerk, Mrs. Schenck tried to commit suicide, according to a report issued today.

It is said that poison had been smuggled into the woman's cell in the Ohio county jail but that Mrs. Schenck was detected by a wardess in time to save her life.

SHE LOVED A CLERK.

John O. Schenck still lies in a precarious condition in the hospital from arsenic alleged to have been administered by his wife. Sensational developments came out today linking the names of Mrs. Schenck and a young clerk in a local piano store. Wilson the chauffeur made a statement to the authorities which told of extreme affection existing between the clerk and Mrs. Schenck.

Wilson told the police that the clerk had the run of the Schenck garage and that he and Mrs. Schenck frequently made long automobile trips together. He said the conduct of the couple were very loving. The office of the prosecuting attorney, J. B. Handlan, is said to be searching for a mysterious woman. What part in the tragedy she plays is not known.

Mr. Morris Guerin's Death.

On Saturday morning, one of the best known residents of the township of Douro, in the person of Mr. Morris Guerin, passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital, at the age of 42 years. The deceased, who was the son of Mr. Martin Guerin, leaves to mourn his loss, seven brothers, viz. Messrs. Michael, Dennis, and Frank, of Peterborough; Messrs. James and William, of Douro, and John and Martin, of Michigan, and a sister, Mrs. Stratton, in New York. The funeral will be held at 9.30 to St. Joseph's church, and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery for interment.

Yesterday afternoon Canon David soc, rector of St. John's church, in that edifice christened three children of ages from possibly a month to five or six years old.

TO BE A MILITARY FUNERAL

The funeral of the late Samuel Sharpe will be a military one. The 24th Field Battery will furnish a gun carriage, and the firing party will be chosen from the members of the 57th Regiment. The Regiment will assemble at the armories at 2 o'clock, and together with the bugle and brass bands will march to the residence, to take charge of the funeral.

Edwards Forfeits the Prize.

Willie Edwards of Keene, who came in first at the Thanksgiving Day Examiner Boys' road race, having failed to produce proper certificates of his age, to establish his being under 18 years old, forfeits his claim to the prize, which has been awarded to Frank Leahy of Douro. The judges were Messrs. R. M. Roy, Jos. Picard, and A. C. Yokome, who, on Edwards failing to prove his age, within a reasonable time had no option but to give the prize to Leahy, the second prize is given to G. Holnbeck of Cobourg, and third to Cecil Armstrong of this city.

"I had been troubled with constipation for two years and tried all of the best physicians in Bristol, Tenn., and they could do nothing for me," writes Thomas E. Williams, Middleboro, Ky. "Two packages of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets cured me." For sale by all dealers.

W.C.T.U. at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 12.—Hundreds of delegates from all parts of the country are in Baltimore for the annual national convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and all indications point to one of the largest gatherings in the history of the organization. The meetings will continue through next Wednesday night. On the programme as speakers are many of the most prominent women temperance workers in America.

Thirteen thousand tags were issued for sale on Saturday.

$1,260 GATHERED IN FROM THE SALE OF TAGS ON SATURDAY

GOOD WORK FOR A GOOD CAUSE—PEOPLE RESPONDED LIBERALLY TO YOUNG LADIES.

The One Hundred and Fifty Ladies By Hard and Intelligent Work Secured Twelve Hundred and Sixty Dollars.

Possibly never, in the memory of the oldest citizen was a more active and wide-spread interest taken in any purely local affair than was exhibited Saturday over the distribution and sale of "tags," in aid of the Children's Shelter. Not to be approached by at least, one of the one hundred and fifty girls who distributed the tags was practically to be considered a nonentity or too poor to raise even a nickle in so good a cause. The ladies worked like Trojans, and, in their zeal, did not hesitate to tackle gentlemen of their acquaintance were though such a friend might be wearing three or four tags when stopped. Before seven in the morning little girls were to be seen everywhere waiting for prospective purchasers. One gentleman, who had occasion to go down two blocks along George street, at ten minutes past seven in the morning, was stopped by three pairs of young ladies in that distance. One local merchant proudly displayed nine different tags, fluttering to the breeze, hung from buttons of coat and vest and watch chain.

At the City Hall, Mr. Geo. Cochrane, agent for the Children's Aid Society was a busy man. Headquarters were at the City Hall, where a staff was busily engaged getting tags ready for distribution. At Ackerman's factory, and others, the tag distributors were allowed to pass through the buildings, where a rich harvest of dimes and quarters was reaped. At noon, about a dozen ladies awaited the men leaving the Canadian General Electric Company's gate, and, whilst some few sales were lost, for lack of sufficient small silver to make change, the employes of this establishment contributed handsomely towards the Shelter. Farmers were to be seen everywhere decorated with the diamond shape tokens of generosity. The Italian colony contributed well to the fund. In short, refusals to buy tags were few and far between. Even the delivery horses of grocers and butchers were decorated with rosettes, sold to help the fund. Several pet dogs were adorned with tags.

Judging by the onset made on Chief Howard of the fire department, and Chief Thompson of the police, those gentlemen's pockets must have been lightened considerably.

The main interest, however in the day's proceedings are the financial results. The results amounted to the handsome sum of twelve hundred and sixty dollars ($1260), which will be a great help to the shelter. During Saturday many prophycies were made by all classes of the community as to what the collections would amount to: guesses running all the way from $300 to $2500, the general average guess being from $500 to $600. In response to a question put by The Times last night to Mr. Campbell, treasurer of the society, as to whether any portion of the $1260 would be used as a permanent fund and put out at interest, that gentleman replied, "No every cent must be used for our immediate needs. We are just about down to hard pan now."

The officers of the society, are Messrs. T. F. Matthews, president; R. P. Campbell, treasurer of the society W. Travers, vice-president; P. Campbell, treasurer, E. L. Goodwill, secretary, and Geo. Cochrane agent. Great credit is due to these gentlemen, as well as to the faithful brigade of one hundred and fifty ladies who worked so hard and well on Saturday for their permanent and great interest in the society.

Tarring Roads.

Experiments in tarring macadam roads in England are said to have been very successful, the result being to secure comforts along roadways which were formerly excessively dusty to motor traffic. Last year 20,000 square yards of granite coated main roads around Alton were sprayed with tar at a cost of 1¼ cents a square yard. The tarring was most successful when done on a very hot day.

NOTICE

NOTICE is hereby given that a By-law was passed by the Council of the City of Peterborough, on the 24th day of October, A.D., 1910, providing for an issue of debentures to the amount of $12,500 for the purpose of paying the cost of erecting and equipping an Isolation Hospital in the City of Peterborough, and that said By-law was registered in the Registry Office of the County of Peterborough on the 25th day of October, A.D., 1910.

Notice is also hereby given that a By-law was passed by the Council of the City of Peterborough, on the 27th day of October, A.D., 1910, providing for the issue of debentures to the amount of $20,000 for Waterworks purposes and that such By-law was registered in the Registry Office for the County of Peterborough, on the 28th day of October, A.D., 1910.

Any motion to quash or set aside the said By-laws or either of them, or any part of either of them, must be made within three months after the first publication of this notice, and cannot be made thereafter.

Dated the 28th day of October, 1910.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Clerk.

FOUND GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Winnipeg, Nov. 12.—Frank Leland, formerly watchman in a signal tower at the wood's siding near this city on the C.P.R., was convicted of manslaughter in the assizes today. Sentence was deferred until Monday.

Leland was very drunk on duty on September 10, when the local train from Winnipeg, approached the Crossing of the C.N.R. at a siding. He threw the switch as the train approached and derailment ensued. Fireman Samson Pattison jumped, but was crushed to death under the locomotive.

FLOODS DO GREAT DAMAGE IN FRANCE

LAST YEAR'S SERIOUS INUNDATIONS AGAIN THREATENED IN MANY PLACES.

The Seine Running High—Streets in Nancy and Troyes Already Flooded—Property Losses Enormous.

Paris, Nov. 11.—France is again today manifesting great uneasiness over the flood situation, which threatens to duplicate last year's serious inundations.

Heavy rains, which have been falling for some days, continued unabated today, and the officials are expressing great alarm.

The Seine at the Point Royal has reached a stage of 15 feet, 3 inches, as against its normal stage of seven feet, eleven inches.

The weather is cold, and hard rains are reported from all the upper tributaries of the Seine, so that a vast volume of water is soon to be forced into the river. The river is already so high that few boats are running, being unable to pass under the bridges in the city.

The lowest streets in Nancy and Troyes have already been flooded, and great propert loss has alreacy been sustained in many of the rural districts and small cities, where the dikes have not been built as high as in the larger city.

La Patrie today describes the valley of the Moselle River as a vast lake, and declares that property loss in that region will be enormous.

GAMBLING TRUST.

Controlled by the "Big Four" Alleged in Montreal.

Montreal, Nov. 12.—In a dispute over a gambling house Andrew Maloney said in court that there was a gambling trust in Montreal controlled by four men known as the "Big Four," who met regularly and bossed the whole gambling business of the city. They persecuted small men like him, making them pay them a percentage of their profits. The other side of the case will be heard next week, and some interesting details are expected of the way in which the gambling business is run here.

APPEAL TO PEOPLE.

Premier Asquith Favors Resignation of Cabinet.

London, Nov. 11.—Following last night's announcement of the failure of the constitutional conference, there was today the greatest activity at all the party headquarters, where the decks were being cleared for action in view of the possibility of an almost immediate general election.

The government stalwarts urged a prompt appeal to the country on the ground that the sooner they struck the better would be the chance of overwhelming the opposition, but Premier Asquith is believed to be in favor of quickly winding up the business of the Parliamentary session before placing the resignation of the cabinet in the hands of the King. Much will depend upon the attitude of the Irish and Labor parties upon the reassembling of parliament next Tuesday.

The stock market was weak as a consequence of the conference failure.

Consols for money sold off half a point to 78¾, the previous low record on the failure of the conference. Home securities were also weak.

GENERAL ELECTION UNLIKELY

London, Nov. 11.—The Canadian Associated Press has been given to understand that an immediate general election in December is most unlikely.

Premier Asquith has gone to Sandringham, presumably with the purpose of consulting with his majesty on affairs in connection with the ministerial proposals relative to the present crisis.

Government Estimates.

The government Blue Book of Canada's public accounts for the year 1910 has been issued. In the balance sheet of the government's investment appears the tidy little sum of $7,563,568.28 for Trent river navigation.

Every family has need of a good reliable liniment. For sprains, bruises, soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains there is none better than Chamberlain's. Sold by all dealers.

Toronto Man Cleared $70,000 from Tour of Melba in Canada

PROFITS FROM MELBA TOUR.

Mme. Melba gets $50,000 for about 15 weeks of singing.

Frederic Shipman, a Toronto man, gets $70,000 for engineering the tour.

The public contributed about $150,000.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Frederic Shipman, a well known Torontonian, who has made New York his headquarters for several years, has closed the tour of Mme. Melba, the celebrated singer, and gets for his trouble $70,000.

The tour lasted about 15 weeks, the diva appearing [illegible] times a week all the way from Halifax to the Pacific Coast.

TOOK NEW TERRITORY.

It was Mr. Shipman's ingenious plan to introduce the great concert star to cities of the Canadian West, which had hitherto been denied such opportunity. A guarantee was demanded of most cities. Saskatoon putting up $4,000 in advance. Edmonton paid $6,000 for the privilege of the singer's visit, and other well-to-do cities similarly paid a handsome price. Seats sold for five dollars and over, and even at that were very scarce.

CAME GREAT DISTANCES.

Scenes such as never before were experienced are recorded of Melba's visit—of people coming fifty and a hundred miles at a heavy expense to hear the voice of the renowned diva.

At Saskatoon, Mme. Melba, delighted and attracted by the country and its commercial possibilities, invested four thousand dollars in land near the railway station and made other heavy investments at various Canadian points. Mr. Shipman is now making arrangements for a tour of Mme. Nordica.

HON. MR. FIELDING TO GO SOUTH

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—Hon. W. S. Fielding, minister of finance, who recently suffered from a slight attack of paralysis, has decided to take the advice of his doctors and go away for a complete rest. He will go to Florida next week, and remain there until after Christmas at any rate. It is altogether unlikely that the minister will make an appearance in the house of commons before he goes away. He is far from being well.

TO CLAIM EXEMPTION.

Messrs. Burnham & Ruddy Will Apply for Local Bodies for Equal Privileges.

Messrs. Burnham & Ruddy intend making application to the City Council to have the Sons of England, Knights of Phythias, Orangemen and Foresters exempted. The application states that the above societies have heretofore been of the opinion that exemption should be curtailed or abolished. If however, the council intends to exempt societies, the above hope also to come under the law to that effect.

Shows a Decrease.

The second annual distribution made by the Board of License Commissioners, and handed to the city treasurer, shows a decrease of $1,833.17, over the corresponding period of last year. This of course is accounted for by the reduction of local hotels. Peterborough now has 12 tavern licenses, 3 shops and 16 bartenders, each of whom pay a license fee of $2. There were eight fines during the year for a total of $90. The amount of the two distributions was $3,347.15, and this is against $5,180.32 for last year.

The Cooper Trial.

New York, Nov. 12.—The case of Robin Cooper is on the docket for trial at Nashville, Tenn., but there is a probability that the trial will be again postponed. Robin Cooper and his father, Col. Duncan B. Cooper, were convicted of the murder of former Senator Edward W. Carmack the trial ending in the spring of last year. The verdict was reversed by the Supreme Court in the case of Robin Cooper and he was granted a new trial. He has since been at liberty on $10,000 bail.

THE GREATEST SHIPS.

Measuring 882 feet in length, the new White Star liners, Olympic and Oceanic, are not yet provided with suitable piers in the New York harbor. The Olympic is expected there on her first voyage next July, but where to put her the company cannot say, perhaps for months to come. These ships are becoming too long for the harbor facilities. The piers in the Hudson are 825 feet long and the company has asked that they be extended out into the river 100 feet more; but the war department at Washington has refused to consent to the project for the reason that it would interfere with the tides in the Hudson and cause the river gradually to fill in. When the new 1000 foot Cundarder is built the docking problem in New York will become even more difficult.

Big Anti-Foreign Out Break in China Trouble Was Totally Unexpected MISSIONARIES ABLE TO ESCAPE THROUGH A WARNING GIVEN THEM.

Presbyterian Church Hospital and College in Province of Kwang-Si Destroyed—Uprising Totally Unexpected.

Canton, China, Nov. 12.—Refugees arriving here today by boat from the province of Kwang-Si reported that practically all the American missions had been destroyed in a revolt against foreigners which is raging there.

The American Presbyterian church, the hospital and the American college were burned. Three battalions of troops have been sent from here to quell the disturbances. At Lienchou, in the Kwang-Si province, the mission is in charge of Doctors Machle and Ross, Mrs. Ross, Mrs. Carver, Mr. Kunkle, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards and Miss Patterson.

Only by a timely warning were the missionaries able to escape from the anti-foreigner rioters.

TROUBLE UNEXPECTED.

The uprising was totally unexpected by the missionaries. No disturbances have occurred in the Kwang-So province for nearly two months, and the Americans believed themselves to be on the most friendly terms with the Chinese.

Two months ago there was uprising which was not taken as a demonstration solely against the foreigners, but chiefly as a protest by the natives against additional taxes. There has been considerable uneasiness among the American missionaries in China, however, since the riots of last April and May, when scores of buildings erected by Americans in various missionary colonies were destroyed and attempts made on the lives of the missionaries.

A Million Dollar Paper Mill to be Built at Soo

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 12.—Manager W. C. Franz of the Lake Superior Corporation stated this morning that arrangements had been made for the installation of a paper mill here, valued at $1,000,000, although nothing definite is given as as to the site. The fact that the Lake Superior Corporation has arranged for the improvement of the water front from the ship canal to Bruce street would lead to the belief that the new paper mill is to be constructed in that vicinity. This contradicts the rumor that an American syndicate had arranged for the construction of a paper mill in the Soo.

Yesterday the blast furnaces of the Lake Superior Corporation made another record turning out 680 tons of bessemer iron. The former record for one day was 676 tons, and the average for the past month was 662 tons per day.

ANOMALIES IN MARRIAGE LAWS

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—Evicently fearing publicity in connection with the address on the subject, "The Law of Christian Marriage," given by Mr. Travers Lewis, K.C., at the afternoon session yesterday at the annual conference of the deanery of Ottawa members of the press were rigidly excluded. It was stated by one of the clergy earlier in the day that the action of Archbishop Bruchesi of Montreal, in annuling marriages between Roman Catholics and Protestants would be discussed and some action taken. Whether this was done, is a secret, however, and when quieried by a reporter, after the meeting, several of the clergy stated that the matter had not been taken up. It was, however, given out that Mr. Lewis informed the clergy that no person in Quebec under twenty-one years of age could marry without the consent of the parents. If this consent was not obtained, and the marriage was performed, the ceremony was null and void.

Other information imparted to the clergymen was that a minister in Ontario could refuse to marry a couple, providing he had good grounds for his objection, and that an Ontario clergyman could not perform a marriage ceremony in Quebec but that a cleric from Quebec, or any part of Canada could solemnize a marriage in this province.

At the evening session, Adam Short, M.A., spoke on social work and one of his statements was that the workingmen should not be severely criticized whenever necessary. He advocated arranging the social work to suit the local conditions.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S FIGHT IN NEW YORK.

After many years of sitting in the outer darkness, the Democratic party of the United States sees the light again, and is filled with hope and joy. It has made remarkable gains in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Ohio and the middle West and will control the lower house of the next congress. Whether it will justify the confidence that has been reposed in it remains to be seen. The country needs more than one sufficient political organization, and it has turned ta the Democrats now because the Republicans have been demoralized by too long a tenure of power.

The break in the control the latter exercised was due in the first place to the arrogance of the standpat leaders, who persistently defied public sentiment. These men were very unpopular before the struggle over tariff began, and that struggle increased the enmity that was felt towards them. We cannot estimate the effect of factional fighting on the elections at this time, but it is certain that the progressive Republicans read the public mind aright and took the course that was dictated by sound statesmanship.

While the standpatters were standing pat and glorying in the tariff bill that they had manufactured, the bill was being roundly denounced as unjust all over the land. It was thought that it was a bill of special privileges,one that benefitted the few at the expense of the many, and it became an important factor in the discussions that were raised over prices. Every housewife is talking high prices in a decidedly unfriendly mood, and the Democrats have found it easy to make party capital out of this fact. How far the tariff really has affected prices it would be difficult to say, but the feeling was that it might have exercised considerable influence, and also that it was far from fulfilling the Republican promises of a downward revision.

The discontent due to particular causes was probably intensified by a desire for a change on the principle that variety is the spice of life. This is indicated by the general result.

THE DEMOCRATIC VICTORIES.

The New York election has an extraordinary interest because ex-President Roosevelt's participation in the campaign, and the result will be a disappointment to his friends.

There had been a drift away from the Republican party for some time owing to the legislative scandals. Though there was the usual bipartisan combination of corruptionists, the Republicans were the majority party; corruption was proved specifically against prominent Republican legislators, and it was impossible to make a big party asset of the record of Governor Hughes when the record of the party was so badly stained. The glory belonged to the man rather than to the party, which had to bear the burden of a discredited machine.

Colonel Roosevelt faced the situation with characteristic boldness, beat the Old Guard at Saratoga, sought to stem the tide by proclaiming the purification of the party, which, as he described it, had turned its rascals out. But there was disaffection still to be overcome as well as strong opposition.

The state was influenced, like its neighbors, by the outcry against the tariff and high prices, and as a further offset to Roosevelt's moral campaign there was the hostility of the great financial interests to Roosevelt himself. There were old scores to be paid off, and he had added to the dislike of the interests by his radical declarations on certain questions.

The Republican candidate for governor was a capable man with a clean record, but Roosevelt became the paramount issue, and the defeat of Stimson will be hailed with great glee as the defeat of Roosevelt. The cry was, "Beat Roosevelt now and you will have him beaten for 1912," and the returns indicated that it was used with great effect.

GOT BUCK FEVER.

Hunter on Northern Lakes Missed Three Bears, All Within Easy Range.

The hunters from the far back lakes are beginning to straggle back with their spoils of the chase. The Times yesterday met two gentlemen who had hunted on Ketchgoldeag lakes, who, in that strict confidence, that means "give the other fellow a roast, but don't say I told you," told a story of one of the hunters' experience with bears. It seems that one of the party locater on a runway, about 150 yards from the lodge, straining eye or ear for a prospective buck and doe, heard the baying and patter of the hounds and got his rifle into position and his paddle to hand. Just then a big female bear, with two well grown cubs trotted past him, within about ten yards of where he stood. Now, whilst a man "on watch" for deer may not shoot at porcupine, partridge, wild duck or any small game, for fear of frightening off the deer, a bear is legitimate game. Up jumped the rifle to the watcher's shoulder.Bang! The big bear was evidently wounded as its herce growls were heard in the cook camp. The hunter then, whether from a concatenation of unfortunate events, or whether the hunter got "buck fever" is not known. Anyway when the sportsman went to shoot again, the old bear just looked at him and grinned sardonically as the hammer of the rifle went click, click, click, with no resultant explosion, and no bullet to find its billet. The three bears left for Galway or Anstruther, and were not seen again. Its not safe however to ask that hunter what he would take for a bear skin.

HAVE SOME HOCKEY FANS BEEN SMOKING.

The despatch given below appeared in yesterday's Toronto papers. Some reporter must have a fertile imagination, or else some one in Peterborough has been "kidding." The despatch referred to reads:

"Belleville, Nov. 10.—A meeting of the representatives of the proposed Eastern Ontario Professional Hockey League was held here last night Mr. Irving, the promoter af the league, was present, as were also representatives from Belleville, Trenton, Peterborough and Port Hope. The delegate from Cobourg, was unable to be present, but wired his concurrence.

An organization was effected, with these officers: President, Dr. Yeomans, Belleville; first vice-president; J. Menary, Peterborough; second vice-president, George Nolan, Trenton; Secretary, N. E. Irving; Treasurer, Captain Colwell, Port Hope. Executive Committee—Messrs. Brown of Port Hope, Burrows of Belleville, Hawley of Trenton, Morgan of Peterborough, Purser of Cobourg. The referees suggested are: Messrs. Burrows and Connolly of Belleville, Lou Marsh of Toronto, Steacy of Kingston, James Fraser of Galt, Chas. Boney of Port Hope, Rolly Glover of Peterborough.

The games are to be played in three periods of twenty minutes each. The schedule of games will be arranged at a meeting of the executive at Port Hope on Friday next."

Miss Lavina Davis of Newfoundland, is registered at the Hotel National.

HIS TALE TOLD IN A MOMENT.

But It Is Not Hard to Imagine That the Delay Was Fatal to the Flower Beds.

One morning not long ago there burst into the office of a physician in Tacony, Pa., an excited individual, who, as he perceived the doctor just disappearing into his consulting room with a patient, exclaimed:

"Doctor! Doctor! Just one moment!"

"I'll see you shortly," was the curt professional response.

"Only a second, doctor! Only a second is what I want!" protested the perturbed one.

"I'll see you shortly," reiterated the physician, with increasing impatience.

Whereupon, with a sigh, the man took a seat in the general reception hall, says Harper's Weekly. His excitement soon subsided, for he read the morning paper through, glanced through a number of magazines, and played awhile with the doctor's cat. Then, after a period of half an hour, the doctor reappeared, and, in an air of great condescension, said to the erstwhile excited person:

"Now, sir, I am at your service. Your turn has come. What can I do for you?"

"Oh, nothing special," was the reply. "I only dropped in to tell you that your neighbor's cows have escaped from the yard and are now having a fine time among your flower beds."

THE MAD RACE FOR WEALTH.

Stock Gamblers Misapply Funds That Are Theirs Only in Trust.

We once knew a professional gambler who habitually lost in front of other men's tables what he made behind his own. How do you account for that? He would sit behind his own tables night after night, claiming his sure percentage from the gamblers on the other side, and when he had thus accumulated $20,000 or $30,000, he would go and lose it all in one sitting on the wrong side of another man's table.

Most of the scandals affecting stock exchange members in Wall street came of their having got on the wrong side of the table. A house does not set out deliberately, in the first instance, to make away wrongfully with the customers' funds. The head of the house or one of its members becomes extravagant, lives beyond his resources, and needs money quickly. He turns to the stock market. He begins as a speculator, takes greater and greater risks, becomes a gambler, and ends by breaking his house and cheating his clients. Haven't you wondered why in these cases the men who misuse your funds in their private stock-market gambling always lose them? That is because they have been trying to do what you have been trying to do—make 500 or 1,000 per cent. on a given amount of capital—and it simply can't be done.—Everybody's.

Wise Idea of Matron.

The spirit of independence is driving men and women into apartments, where they can live as they please and be under obligations to nobody. Favors are returned, and so are slights, and a degree of harmony prevails. Such people are welcome guests in many places, for they have the good sense to limit visits. "Live with my maid" repeated a handsome matron the other day to a friend who wondered why she was not an inmate of the pretty home she visited frequently. "Not I," with emphasis. "There is the deepest affection between us, which I take pradous care to preserve by this sensible arrangement. I am an important personage now, but if I was treated in the best chamber of that house I would become a nuisance. I have seen something of the world, and I want to end my days in peace and comfort."

Seldom Such An Opportunity

is offered to investors as that of the Cartwright Automatic Job Printing Press.

This is the first radical improvement in the ordinary job-presses for over 50 years past.

Meantime great advances have been made in newspaper and book presses, and in type-setting machines, on which fortunes have been made for the Shareholders.

Publishers, printers, and everybody welcome the Cartwright, are buying both the press and the Capital Shares.

The Company are sending out some very interesting literature, which can be obtained for the mere asking.

Some readers of the "Times" are among the recent investors in Cartwright Shares.

Let us send you some of our readable literature.

THE "INTERNATIONAL LIMITED."

One of the most artistic folders issued by the Grand Trunk is a brochure just out giving information regarding the "International Limited," which is heralded as Canada's fastest train, as well as its finest. The booklet is prepared in most attractive style, well printed and illustrated, while the asthetic relation of type and illustrations is maintained to a notable degree. The story of "International Limited" is a familiar one to Canadian,-as well as Americas, travellers, but as shown in the latest publication of the Company, it is still not merely interesting, but attractive. A full description of this train between Montreal and Chicago is given, together with all the information regarding time and accommodation, that any passenger could require, the whole tastefully put together and artistically illustrated. A copy may be had free on application to Grand Trunk City Office, Mr. W. Buntin, Peterboro.

A couple of good steady girls wanted at the Times Office, to learn bookbinding. Eight hours per day and permanent employment.

GRAY HAIR

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

BEATING THE STATES.

The Canadian Gazette, noting the very heavy British immigration to Canada, 80,151 in the six months ending September 30, observes: "What a comment these figures supply upon the recent English agitation against the Canadian immigration regulations. Far from closing her doors, Canada has left them open wide enough to let this phenomenal number through. For the six months in question the British immigration exceeded by 1,000 the immigration from the United States.

COUNT BONI AFTER DIVORCE.

Wants Church to Endorse Civil Annulment of His Anna Gould Marriage.

Rome, Italy, Nov. 10.—Count Boni de Castellane, former husband of Anna Gould, now the wife of his cousin, Prince de Sagan, today filed with the vatican a formal petition, asking the pope to confirm his civil divorce and grant him a church divorce. Count Boni, it is said, is suing for the hand of Miss Anna Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan of New York.

De Castellane, in his petition, is said to have set up that his marriage to Anna Gould was illegal, from a church standooint, the bishop of his diocese not having been formally notified.

The petition is understood to be under secret discussion by high officials of the vatican and it is known that there is great opposition to granting the divorce, for under the laws of the Catholic Church, no such thing as a formal divorce can be granted, but a marriage may be annulled, and regarded as never having taken place on the grounds of illegality. Children of a marriage thus annulled, however, are regarded in the Catholic Church as illegitimate, on the grounds that there parents were never married.

The vatican authorities are said to be seriously hesitating before placing the church stamp of illegitimacy upon the three De Castellane children, who is the care of their mother, are being raised as devout Catholics.

In some circles it is said J. Poerpont Morgan refused to permit De Castellane to pay attention to Miss Morgan until the vatican has annulled his marriage with Anna Gould.

HAD TO RECOGNIZE

The New Administration—No Other Course Open.

The question has frequently been asked during the past week or two whether the powers of Europe, particularly Britain would acknowledge the republican government established in Portugal consequent of the revolution. Being one of the most ancient of European nations the twenty-one guns that announced the uprising in Lisbon naturally shook the whole Iberian peninsula, including the Basque provinces of Spain, but though the overthrow of a monarchy was by an element partly anarchial, the other powers have no course left but recognize the new administration. Were an alliance to exist between Britain and Portugal, or Germany and Portugal it would not, under the present conditions, give these nations an excuse for ignoring the new republican government. On the other hand, had an attack been made on Portugal by an outside enemy the allied nations could step in, if the clauses of the treaty went so far and help defend the crown.

Internal revolution is like a family quarrel in a household. Its consequences may be ever so much deplored by interested relations, yet legally they have no justification for interfering. Republican form of government has long since been proven acceptible, particularly in countries like France, where the people are possessed of revolutionary instincts. It has long been recognized at all courts, and no matter how reluctant they may be to bow to revolutionary factions, diplomats of other lands must acknowledge what the people demand.

The danger wgich Portugal faces is not that alone of an unsettled people, but the spread of anarchy and atheism. In the wake of republicanism has decimated these destroyers of citizenship. Seditious doctrines have been brewed and spread till they have poisoned the minds of even peasants in Spain and the Spanish throne has been frequently menaced.

It is in these that the seeds of national destruction lie. It is through them that a monarchy may again be established in Portugal even though the house of Braganza may never regain its throne.

MILLIONAIRE IS FED ARSENIC.

Wife is Held Charged With Administering Same.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 10.—While John Schenck, a millionaire pork packer, lay dying in the hospital from arsenic poisoning today, alleged to have been administered by his wife, she was held without bail in the jail. A report early in the morning said that Schenck was dead, but this was later denied at the hospital, where it was said that the dying man was in a comatose condition and very low.

The Schenck chauffeur is under surveillance of detectives and he may be accused of being an accessory with Mrs. Schenck.

Mrs. Schenck, a beautiful woman, and well known in society, was arrested at her home by Chief of Police Hastings. The specific charge which will be made against her if Schenck dies will be murder, although the police claim to have evidence that the chauffeur placed arsenic in Schenck's food at times.

News of the arrest had created a tremendous sensation today. It became known that the Schenck family had retained private detectives some time ago to watch Mrs. Schenck. The pork packer began complaining of a strange illness. Dr. F. L. Hupp pronounced it arsenic poisoning. The detectives who secured positions in the Schenck home as servants, learned that Mrs. Schenck and the chauffeur were very friendly. A closer watch revealed a plot, it was charged, to end Schenck's life.

MORE ARSENIC IN FOOD.

While he was being treated for illness arising from the administering of poison, it is charged that both Mrs. Schenck and the chauffeur placed more arsenic in his food and medicine.

Mrs. Schenck was put through the "third degree" this morning and stoutly denied her guilt. She said she was surprised to learn that poison had been administered to her husband and asked to be allowed to call on him at the North Wheeling Hospital. After his return from Europe lately, where he spent the spring and summer Mr. Schenck purchased the costliest touring car he could find and presented it to his wife. It is the chauffeur of this car that is being watched.

COMING SESSION.

Parliament Will Open on November 17th.

The coming session of parliament which opens on November 17th, is expected to be of more than ordinary interest, says the Ottawa Journal, an independent newspaper, in that there is the possibility that it will be the last before another general election. The opposition, therefore, may be expected to make the most of the chances they will have to harass the administration. The two parties are in the throes of the fight to rpower. The government is weakrr numerically than it has been since 1896, its majority last session having sometimes fallen as low as twenty.

The opposition also is a strong fighting body with young fighting material. It has been said that it is the strongest opposition since confederation.

What will lead especial interest in the coming conflict of parties is the situation in Quebec. Whereas a year ago there was a small outbreak on the part of F. D. Monk on the Conservative side and Colonel McLean on the Liberal side, over the naval policies of their several parties, the outbreak has grown to such large proportions in the government party that actual retention of office is threatened. The Bourassa campaign in Quebec is now of the most serious character to the Liberals, while other incidents which occurred lately have caused the English-speaking supporters of the government to look with suspicion upon its actions.

The ministry hopes to have a short session in view of the imperial conference in May and the coronation in June, both of which Sir Wilfrid Laurier will attend.

PULPIT SERMONS ON WOMEN

Few Things Said by Ancient and Modern Divines on Momentous Subject.

Why Eve was made from the rib of Adam has been explained by a witty sage of old. If she had been created from his mouth, she would have talked too much; if from his feet, she would have gone about too much; if from his ears, she would have listened too readily; but she was made from a rib, which is near the heart, to show that she must always be dear to man.

An English preacher in the seventeenth century spoke in similar fashion when he said, with the text, "To be or not to be," that woman should be like and unlike three things. She should be like a snail, always keep within her own house; but not like a snail, to carry all she had on her back. She should be like an echo, to speak when she was spoken to; but not, like an echo, always to have the last word. She should be like a town clock, always keep time and regularity; but not, like a town clock, to speak so loud that all the town might hear her.

A preacher in the reign of Charles II. was to receive £10 if in his sermon at the funeral of Madam Creswell he said nothing but well of her. She was rather a bad character and herself had dictated the clause in her will. So, after a general address on mortality, he thus concluded: "By the will of a deceased sister it is expected that I should mention her and say nothing but well of her; therefore to this: She was born well, she lived well and [illegible]; for she was born with one name Creswell, she lived in Clerkenwell and she died in Bridewell."—The Sunday Magazine.

LIGHT ON MEDICAL QUESTION

Scientific Analysis of the Ability of Individuals to Weep "Tears of Blood."

The belief that certain individuals are able to weep tears of blood is of such antiquity that the German equivalent for "bitter tears" is "blutige thranen," "bloody tears." There seems, however, no authentic instance of blood being actually secreted by the lachrymal gland.

Micas has published a very interesting article on real and false tears of blood. It is a clinical study on conjunctival hemorrhage. Some years ago the author was consulted about a boy aged 13 years who, from the slightest cause, such as laughing, or sometimes apparently for no cause whatever, wept tears of blood—an occurrence often repeated several times a day. The lad was pale and enervated from constant hemorrhage.

The source of the bleeding was the tarsal conjunctiva, which was covered with fine papillae, and light cauterisation with the galvano-cautery resulted in a cure.

This case led the author to study the literature of the subject. He found that in none of the cases cited is it certain that the blood did not come from the conjunctiva or from the lachrymal passages. He feels that it is unwise to deny the possibility of sanguineous secretion from the gland, but that examples in which other sources cannot be shown to be present must be exceedingly rare.

Borneo Inviting to Naturalists.

There is no country in the world more inviting to the naturalist than Borneo. Here are found the flying squirrels, flying foxes, flying lizards, flying frogs, and the natives regard flying snakes. Among the most noted birds is the little swift Collocalia Nidifica. Their nests are eaten by the Chinese, and are regarded as a great luxury. These birds build their nests in limestone caves of a glutinous saliva which they produce from their glands; no sticks or any other foreign substances are used. The collecting of these nests is an important industry with the natives, though they pay a tax on all they take to market. The value of these exported from British North Borneo in 1907 was [illegible]. They are served at the great feasts of the Chinese, especially at weddings.

One Child Got a $5 Bill.

On Saturday the 150 young ladies, who, risking an uncivil answer, for sweet charity's sake, tackled every man, rich or poor, they met and in most cases sold them tags for the Children's Aid Society, did heroic work. These girls worked in a good cause, worked intelligently and well. At the corner of Charlotte and George streets, one little girl not much larger than a good lusty grasshopper tackled a well-dressed man, whose general appearance suggested a successful commercial traveller, and was handed a $5 bill in response to her request for aid for the Shelter.

STOPPED SHORT.

Taking Tonics, and Built Up on the Right Food.

The mistake is frequently made of trying to build up a worn-out nervous system on so-called tonics — drugs.

New material from which to rebuild wasted nerve cells is what should be supplied, and this can be obtained only from proper food.

"Two years ago I found myself on the verge of a complete nervous collapse, due to overwork and study, and to illness in the family," writes a Wisconsin young mother.

"My friends became alarmed because I grew pale and thin and could not sleep nights. I took various tonics prescribed by physicians, but their effects wore off shortly after I stopped taking them. My food did not seem to nourish me and I gained no flesh or blood.

"Reading of Grape-Nuts I determined to stop the tonics and see what a change of diet would do. I ate Grape-Nuts four times a days with cream and drank milk also, went to bed early after eating a dish of Grape-Nuts.

In about two weeks I was sleeping soundly. In a short time gained 20 pounds in weight and felt like a different woman. My little daughter whom I was obliged to keep out of school last spring on account of chronic catarrh has changed from a thin, pale, nervous child to a rosy healthy girl and has gone back to school this fall.

"Grape-Nuts and fresh air were the only agents used to accomplish the happy results."

THE WELSH EISTEDDFOD

THE ANNUAL FEAST OF SONG IS A VERY OLD INSTITUTION.

It's History Goes Back to 517 A.D., When the Bard Taliesin Presided Over the National Musical Gathering — Reason That More Widely Known Music Is Not Produced In Piety of the Welsh.

The National Eisteddfod, which is held annually in North or South Wales, was held recently at Colyn Bay. Formerly the Eisteddfod was criticized by the English press rather severely but as its quaint ceremonies have come to be better understood, more sympathy is shown towards the venerable institution. There are, of course, many who continue to adversely criticise the "Gorsedd," or Supreme Court of authority; but it is feared that these and others of similar opinions overlook the fact that the Eisteddfod (of which the Gorsedd is an adjunct) has, whatever its defects, helped to make the Welsh a music-loving moral people. It is a proud thing to be able to say that a nation's chief hobby is music and poetry.

It is impossible to say when music entered into the ceremonies of the Druids, the founders of the Gorsedd and of the Eisteddfod, or "Chair" as it was formerly designated. There is a record of an Eisteddfod held in South Wales in the year 517 A.D., and it was presided over by the bard Taliesin. Another was held in the year 540, at Deganwy, or Conway, and its president was Maelgwn Gwynedd. This person offered a reward to such of the bards and minstrels as should swim over the River Conway. The poor harpists who swam had their harps damaged in the water, whilst the throats of the bards or singers were not affected, and, of course, they carried off the prize or prizes. The records of early Eisteddfods are rare, but I will name three, the first being that held in Cardigan Castle in 1107, when Cadwgan ap Bleddyn, Prince of South Wales, invited the princes and chieftains of all parts of Wales, including the chief bards, singers, and musicians, "and set chairs for them, and instituted contests between them, as was the practice at the feasts of King Arthur." In 1176, at that held in Ystrad Tywi, &c., was kept up for forty days, "when all were allowed to depart, and the bards, musicians, and learned men, and performers of every sort, were honorably rewarded." In the same century Prince Gruffydd ap Cynan held an Eisteddfod at Caerwys, North Wales, for the purpose of regulating minstrelsy. Here laws were established for the better regulation of music and poetry.

As music is now the principal attraction of the Eisteddfod, it is natural to ask whether it is being developed the most on the right lines. Judging by results the best possible method—the answer is "No." Neither have the Eisteddfodic competitions in many cases stimulated the poets to produce their best work; and it may be added that no poem or ode successful at the Eisteddfod has gained world-wide fame. Of course, the Welsh language, in which the successful poets have sung, has handicapped them, though it is a splendid medium for the expression of the poet's varied thoughts and emotions. Music has not been handicapped in the Eisteddfod because of language; and although Macaulay may be right in stating that poetry will be of less use as the light of knowledge increases, it is patent to all that music is ever advancing. It is an art the possibilities of which seem inexhaustible. The music of Wagner, so startling, so disliked by many forty years ago, is fashionable to-day—or, it may perhaps be safer to say, was fashionable yesterday. The art is being developed so fast that Richard Strauss's mysterious effects outclass many of Wagner's!

Take as a starting-point the rather late period of Eisteddfodic existence,—the thirteenth or fourteenth century. An Englishman then produced a piece called "Summer is a-coming in," and English musical production has culminated, in the twentieth century, in the monumental works of Elgar. On the other hand, there is no example extant of Welsh music which can be proved to have been composed in the thirteenth or fourteenth century. Some say the key to a kind of notation in runic characters is lost, and that with it the music of the Druids is gone for ever. Let us hope it is owing to some such misfortune our stock of really ancient music is untraceable; but the sad fact remains, we have nothing brilliant to show the world in music.

The Eisteddfod has produced nothing of great importance. All along it has been satisfied with the awarding of prizes for solos, anthems, and a few cantatas. Why? Possibly one reason is because our Gorsedd leaders or Eisteddfod committees have judged the use of music too much from the religious standpoint. Until recently many of our good leaders believed that musical instruments, theatres, and operas were the things of Satan. Some of these things have their right place in the education and art-life of the people. There is ever before us the fear of becoming too world minded, and so Art suffers; development is arrested.

The Eisteddfod is the meeting-place of the Welsh as a people, and it must not be forgotten that the world measures the standard of the music by what is heard thereat. The standard varies but little from year to year. Knowledge, however, is spreading and the Welsh people are taking a wider outlook upon Art, and we are hopeful it will ere long have its rightful place in the national life. It behooves our Eisteddfod leaders so to direct the working of the venerable institution that it may always encourage and set its seal upon all efforts which have for their object the placing of Wales upon a high pedestal in the world of Art. Then, indeed, it will deserve the title by which we so delight in calling it, 'the Land of Song!'—Pedr Alaw.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

A meeting of B Company, is called for the armories this evening at 8 o'clock.

The men's meeting at the Crystal theater yesterday afternoon was well attended. The chorus of twenty male voices made a most interesting after noon.

The Albert Nicholls party of Bridgenorth, had good luck out hunting, each member of them getting a deer. They got one magnificent buck.

The Normal School at-home was a great success. A most interesting program was rendered, both vocal and instrumental.

GENESIS OF GULLIVER.

How the Famous Satire and Fantasy Came to Be Written.

When the Deanery of St. Patrick's fell to Swift, he regarded it as a recompense ill-proportioned to his deserts, and as a provision uncongenial to his taste; but he accepted it as a refuge after the wreck of all his hopes. He came to Ireland, then, filled with that hatred for her soil which made him, in spite of the accident of Irish birth, ever cling to his English parentage; disappointed with the result of all his efforts, his weapon of satire sharpened by the bitterness of political strife; and hopeless of the future. The one element of his genius which now overshadowed all others was its sarcastic force; and that sarcasm found abundant food amidst his new surroundings. The glaring wrongs of Ireland, the contemptuous indifference of English statesmen; the pettiness of the circle around him; the waste, the misery, the oppression—all these burned into a spirit only too ready to lash itself into rage, and to wreck its anger on the nearest victim. During all these earlier years of Irish banishment, he was in constant correspondence with those in England whose genius was the one redeeming feature of the time to him, but who, like himself, looked on the new world around them with profound disgust.

The first subject that drew him back to activity was the wrong suffered by Ireland. . . . His indignation first found voice in a pamphlet on the "Use of Irish Manufactures," and it presently seized on a still more available topic, present by a scandalous job in connection with the copper coinage of Ireland. This gave rise to the famous "Drapier Letters." Swift did not measure his words; he hesitated at no exaggeration; he left his victims with no shred of defence or excuse. Out of their subterfuges he wrested new and more damnatory charges; he rang the changes on this one topic through every note of fierce denunciation and contemptuous sarcasm; and for the first time he roused, in all its fury, the envenomed bitterness of a wrath that embraced at once the racial antipathy of ages and the political jealousy of the English colonists against their return across the sea.

But this fight, however fierce and exciting, could not employ the whole force of Swift's genius. In his comparative loneliness and isolation, other objects engaged him. His chief attack must be on human nature, and the human race, against which he waged an undying war; and ill-health, melancholy, discontent, long absence from friends, all combined to embitter the hatred with which he regarded it.

It was in such surroundings, and amid such feelings that the "Travels of Gulliver" were composed, and their publication, in 1726, followed immediately upon Swift's last visit to London, and preceded by a few months the death of Stella. Sir Henry Craik.

London's Novelist.

Mr. Pett Ridge dedicates his new book, "To My Wife." It will be remembered that about a year ago the novelist married Miss Olga Hentschel, sister of Mr. Carl Hentschel, the redoubtable champion of the rights of playgoers, and the (in his spare moments) well-known maker of process blocks. It is interesting, by the way, that a firm of process engravers plays a large part in the new Pett Ridge novel.

The Hentschels are a very remarkable family. Carl Hentschel began business life as quite a small boy with his father in Holywell street, working hard and living hard. Afterwards he was one of the heroes of Jerome K. Jerome's "Three Men in a Boat," and the virtual founder of the Playgoers' Club. He has probably been to more theatrical "first nights" than any other living man. He is a little, jumpy man, never still for a moment, and plays an excellent game of golf. Mrs. Carl Hentschel is an ardent suffragist.

Pett Ridge, besides being the most distinguished transcriber of the life and humor of London since Charles Dickens, is a quiet and practical philanthropist, keenly interested in the happiness of the children who live in mean streets. He is a clean-shaven, middle-sized man, with straight hair and (like most humorists) a solemn manner. He speaks nearly as well as he writes, and is a devotee of the pipe.

Duralumin Now Substitute for Steel.

With practically an unlimited field in which to use it, an English firm has begun the manufacture of duralumin, a new alloy of aluminium, which may in time became a substitute for steel in work where lightness, strength, and flexibility is required. H. B. Weeks, head chemist at Vickers' Sons & Maxim's works at Barrow, England, is the discoverer of duralumin. It is a little heavier than pure aluminium, but is as strong as steel and about one-third the weight of brass. It can be rolled, drawn, stamped, extended, or forged. It does not corrode as easily as other aluminum alloys.

The one big drawback to the extensive use of aluminium, aside from its expensiveness, is the fact that while its tenacle strength equals that of steel, it is far less flexible.

He Took the Biscuit.

Concerning his early stage experiences, Mr. Gerald du Maurier, who has had such a good send-off as actor manager at Wyndham's Theatre in London, with "Nobody's Daughter," tells an amusing story. At short notice he had agreed to play Pelleas to Mrs. Patrick Campbell's Melisande at a Birmingham theatre. "I remember," says Mr. du Maurier, "that I wore a pair of creaky boots. They creaked at every step I took. Ye gods, how that Birmingham audience yelled with laughter! At the end of the performances the manager came to me and said, 'Du Maurier, I congratulate you. I never saw any actor in my life draw such volleys of laughter in a tragic part. You take the biscuit.'"

Bracebridge People Favor Commission

A DEPUTATION IN LINDSAY GETTING NECESSARY INFORMATION.

Have Visited Several Places—Cheap Power, Water and Light by Having Commission.

Lindsay Post:—There is some class to the town of Bracebridge, with its thriving population of 2,300 or 3,000 inhabitants. This town is situated in the Muskoka district on the northern division of the G.T.R. and about 125 miles north of Toronto. The town has boat connections in the summer with Gravenhurst, and a number of industries are situated within its limits, mostly lumbering.

Bracebridge also boasts of a live council and board of trade and recently the question of cheaper power water and light has been a much discussed one, the result being that about a year ago a referendum vote was taken to get the opinion of the people as to the advisability of having the business of the power, light and water controlled and superintended by a commission, in place of having it handled by a company, as at present. The vote demonstrated that the ratepayers of Bracebridge, favored by 3 to 1 having a commission.

The outcome was that Mr. Peter Hutchison, chairman of the power, water and light committee of the town council, and Mr. Harry Linpey, representing the board of trade were given instructions to visit several towns in Western and Eastern Ontario to find out what other towns and cities are doing along the commission line and the advantages of the same. These two gentlemen have just returned from Guelph and Barrie and were in Lindsay today interviewing Mayor Begg, the town councillors, officers of the Board of Trade and other citizens, seeking information. They left for Fenelon Falls at noon to investigate conditions there.

At the present time the people of Bracebridge are fortunate in having three falls from which to secure power, the farthest away being only three miles. When the new power line is completed in December next it is estimated that 1600 horse power will be developed, of which 1300 h.p. is already contracted for. It is thought that in a very short time the municipality will have to develop another falls at High Falls, which would give the town 1200 additional horse power.

The rates at present are: For 10 h.p. $12.50 per h.p. per year; 24 h.p., at $15 per h.p. per year.

For domestic use everything is on the flat rate. The first five lamps (16 candle power) costs $2.50 per lamp each year; the second five lamps cost $2, and beyond that they cost $1.50 per year.

In the year 1907 the town of Bracebridge bought a spring situated about a mile from the centre of the town. This flows by gravity to the reservoir, and since the above time five more springs have been added, the result being that at the present time Bracebridge is supplied with ample water to meet the needs of a town double its size. The town was formerly bothered considerably with typhoid fever and similar diseases, but since the above water system was secured there has been very little sickness of any account.

LODGE CENSURES COUNCIL

(Special to The Times.)

Montreal, Nov. 14.—Oldham Lodge, Sons of England, declare the City Council has meddled in matters outside its jurisdiction in entering a civic protest against the action of the mayor of Rome in an attack on the pope. The lodge has passed a strong censure on the city fathers.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY AT VICTORIA, B.C.

GUNNER SHOT CORPORAL DEAD AND THEN BLEW OUT HIS OWN BRAINS.

Was Like the Moir Case—Victim of Murder Had Reproved the Other—Said He Had a Good Reason.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 12.—Corporal John Bowlan, No. 5 Company, C.G.R.A., was murdered yesterday by Gunner Charles Ratcliffe, who shot him through the heart, and half an hour later, after having defended himself from captured with his rifle turned it on himself and committed suicide, blowing away his right eye and tearing a gash through to the back of the head. The murderer and suicide left a note written in pencil pinned to the gate of the fort, which read: "I, Charles Ratcliffe, did shoot and kill Corporal John Bowlan for a good reason, and I am down and out myself."

Members of No. 5 Company after the tragedy could assign no motive for the murder, as the murdered man and murderer had been friends for some time. They were talking together in the barrack yard just before going on duty to the fort, and went off with three other members of the fort detachment in good spirits.

One possible motive assigned for the murder arises out of the banquet last night, where men of the garrison were present. Gunner Ratcliffe was called to order by Corporal Bowlan for boisterous conduct, and was again spoken to on his return to the barracks last night.

The murdered man came to Canada with the Imperial troops and obtained a transfer to the Canadian service, but later transferred, and then took his discharge. He was, however, enlisted for the second time on Sept. 1, 1909.

This tragedy following so rapidly the murder of the late Captain Porter Ellison by Gunner Allen, who is to hang on December 2, created a feeling of uneasiness in the community.

The circumstances under which the tragedy took place are very similar to those at the Wolsley Barracks, London, Ont., when Pte. Moir shot and killed a comrade.

TWO WAITRESSES WERE SHOT IN A TORONTO RESTAURANT

ONE OF THE VICTIMS MAY BE FATALLY INJURED—CAUSE OF SHOOTING A MYSTERY.

James Shaw, a Laborer, was Captured After a Chase, With a 32-Calibre Revolver in His Possession.

INJURED.

Bessie Jones, aged 25, married.
Georgina Carr, aged 21, single.

ARRESTED.

James Shaw, aged 22, laborer.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—Two waitresses were shot this afternoon at 1.45 o'clock at the American restaurant, 233 King street east, by James Shaw, who is now under arrest in Court street station, charged with shooting with intent to kill. Both girls are dangerously wounded. The victims are Bessie Jones and Georgina Carr. All three lived at the restaurant.

The cause of the shooting is a mystery. The only reason that can be given is ill-feeling. Bessie Jones, as she lay on the operating table in the hospital told the News reporter that she and the prisoner were not intimate friends, but that once her friend Georgina, had the prisoner put from the hospital.

It was evident that the girl was seriously wounded. She could only wisper her replies, and that with the greatest difficulty. All through the interview her replies were interrupted with stifled groans as the pains tacked her body.

TOLD HIM TO GO UPSTAIRS.

Shaw had been boarding at the American restaurant, 233 King St. east, for the past couple of weeks. This afternoon he was idling at the rear of the dining room, near the stairs leading to the rooms above, one of which he occupied. He was standing in the passageway leading to the kitchen, and the Jones girl requested him to move.

"Go up stairs," she said. "You are in my way."

"Who told you to talk that way to me?" he replied in great anger and walked to his room.

Five minutes later he came down, and it was noticed that he had removed his overcoat, which he had previously worn. He stood at the door where he was before, and as the two waitresses passed him to have some orders filled he shot them both. The bullet passed through the Jones woman's shoulder and breast, while Miss Carr was dangerously wounded in the lungs. Only the two shots were fired.

CHASED DOWN THE STREET.

The restaurant was filled with customers and every one was thrown into a panic. Men and women rushed to the door and the narrow entrance was blocked with the struggling humanity. In the midst of the excitement Shaw rushed into the group with an irresistible force, parted the crowd, trampled them underfoot, and escaped to the street.

Meanwhile Thomas J. Magorney, who keeps a store next door, rushed to the restaurant. He arrived just as Shaw came through the door. He gave chase to the fugitive, and captured him on Frederick street. No opposition was made by Shaw, and he was pulled back to the restaurant and given into the custody of Policeman Turner.

CARR GIRL MAY DIE.

During the interval a call was sent to the police for ambulances and both the regular and two were dispatched immediately. The injured girls were removed to St. Michael's and the General hospitals. The Carr girl, who was sent to the General, is the most seriously injured and no definite information regarding her condition could be gained at the time of writing, as she was just then being removed to the operating room. Information given to the police, however, was so serious that they at once dispatched the prisoner, with two men to be identified.

BLOODHOUNDS ON THE TRAIL

(Special to The Times.)

Meilen, Mis., Nov. 14.—Bloodhounds are leading a posse of armed woodsmen on the trail of an unidentified hunter, who, Saturday shot and killed City Clerk Louis Oleson, of Abbotsville, apparently under the impression that he was a deer. Sheriff Fleinstiber, who is in charge of the posse is determined to rid the locality of careless hunters, and he obtained two trained bloodhounds a short time ago, after another hunter was killed by mistake, for use in just such an emergency.

APPLIED THE BOOTS TO HIS SON-IN-LAW

PAPA KILGALLEN WANTS TO DIVORCE HIM, AND MAMMA CALLS COUNT "DEAR BOY."

And the Count Stands Pat—His Wife, Countess De Beaufort Is In Hospital With a Broken Knee-Cap.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Assertions by Steel Millionaire Martin Kilgallen that he had "put the boots" to his noble son-in-law, Count Mourik, and that he would immediately start a divorce action against the nobleman, were followed today by counter assertions that talk of a divorce were "absurd," and that the count is a "dear boy," a son-in-law, of whom any father would be proud," from the wife of the millionaire.

While the papa and mamma of Irma, Countess De Beaufort, are divided as to their treatment of the count, he is standing pat and the countess is in a local hospital with a broken knee-cap, blissfully ignorant of the family squabble and also of the fact that her marital experiences are furnishing food for country-wide gossip.

GUARDED HER SECRET

FORMER WIFE OF GUITEAU CONCEALED IDENTITY.

Spent Last Few Years of Life at Home of Daughter—Rarely Seen in the Street.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—The wife of Charles J. Guiteau has just died at her home in Omaha, where she had lived in close retirement for a number of years. In this city she had been known as Miss Anna B. Allen, and the fact that she was the wife of the assassin of President James A. Garfield had been kept so secret that comparatively few people knew that the quiet Mrs. Allen had figured in one of the great tragedies of American history.

All during her Omaha residence, Mrs. Allen had persistently refused to talk of the nightmare period of her life, and it was only from a word now and the dropped by her that the full story is known.

"That is past, let it rest," was the usual quiet way in which she parried any attempt on the part of the inquisitive to question her concerning Guiteau. For a number of years she made her home with her son-in-law and her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Williams of 2,877 Manderson street, where she died last week. The fact that she was once the wife of the murderer of a president has been kept as much of a secret since her death as it was during her lifetime, and the name of "Guiteau" does not appear on the monument.

GRIEF LED TO DEATH.

Father Mourned Over Loss of Three Daughters in Theater Fire.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—After grieving for nearly seven years because of the loss of his three daughters in the Iroquois Theatre fire, in which nearly 600 lives were lost, John H. Reidy, for many years connected with the police force, was buried beside them yesterday in Calvary cemetery.

He died from a disease aggravated by his inconsolable sorrow. For several years he has at times been out of his mind. When the three charred bodies were brought to his home on the morning of December 31, 1903, Reidy tried to shoot himself, but was prevented by other members of his family.

He then was suffering from a mental derangement which never had left him entirely since the moment he learned the fate of his daughters.

Brutal Murder of a Little Nine-Year-Old Girl

STRANGLED WITH HAIR RIBBON AND CLOTHES NEARLY ALL TORN OFF HER BODY.

Two Negroes Arrested — Assailant Tried to Remove Traces of Crime By Setting Fire to the Woods.

Ashbury Park, N.J., Nov 14.—The brutal murder of the little nine-year-old Marie Smith, whose mutilated body was found on the shore of Deal Lake yesterday, may ultimately cause two deaths. Mrs. Peter Smith, the girl's mother, is on the verge of insanity, and attending physicians declared today that she may not survive the shock.

An armed guard protected all night the lockup where Thomas Williams, colored, and another negro named Wynn, with whom Williams lived, are under arrest. The guard was lessened today, but effective precautions are being taken to prevent any outbreak.

MOST BRUTAL CRIME.

The crime is the most brutal in the history of New Jersey. The little girl had been mistreated, and had been strangled with her hair ribbon. Her clothes were nearly torn off her body. Her tiny hands were thrown up above her head to protect herself. There was a long deep gash in the skull.

The chief of police hoped to get enough evidence against Williams today to charge him with the crime. The negro, a big hulking fellow, known as "Black Diamond," is some what locally famous as a prize fighter.

GASH ON GIRL'S HEAD.

He was employed at the home of Mrs. Della Jackson, an aunt of the little girl, and last Wednesday, when Marie disappeared, he was chopping down trees on Mrs. Jackson's estate. The police believe that the gash on the girl's head was made by Williams's axe.

Both prisoners were put through the third degree today in the hope of wringing a confession from them. Williams was stolid and stubborn, Wynn said he knew nothing about the crime until the finding of the body yesterday, and told a tolerably straight story, although the lynch threats which had been made against the pair had frightened him until he was scarcely able to talk.

The assailant of the girl had tried to remove the traces of his crime by setting the woods on fire. The body was covered by leaves and brush and was not burned.

A red stained towel and a silk handkerchief were found in Wynn's cabin by the police. These were microscopically examined today by medical authorities. Coroner Robert W. Purdy had a physician examine the remains of the little victim today in order to build up further the case against the negro.

MAY BUILD AT RICE LAKE

Cobourg, Nov. 14.—A resident of Gore's Landing, who was in town recently, stated that the C.P.R. had purchased a building site for a hotel, which they proposed to erect in that village, and that they had also bought up the boats on Rice Lake; further that The C.P.R. intend entering Cobourg by way of Gore's Landing and Peterborough.

FOUR DROWNED NEAR SASKATOON

CHAPTER OF HORRORS SUPPLIED BY THE LITTLE VILLAGE OF LANGHAM.

A Box of Bones Was Found—They Were Thoroughly Bleached—Man Drove Into River and Lost His Life.

Saskatoon, Nov. 14.—A tragic chapter of events at Langham, about thirty miles north-east of here, is indicated by a report received by the North-west Mounted Police, which states that four boys had been drowned, that a man had lost his life in the river, that the body of a young child had been found and also that a box containing human remains had been discovered.

The report contains but meagre details, but it appears that the drowning of the boys occurred several days ago, and that the man lost his life by being thrown off his wagon while backing into the river, his team making their way home ungoverned.

Coroner Isbister was at Langham today, but reports only having investigated the finding of the box of bones. The discovery was made about four miles from the village. The bones were bleached and apparently had either been placed in the box in the condition in which they were found or the body had been cut up.

Receives Jewellery.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—According to the will of Miss Helen Unwin, who died recently, her niece, Mrs. Fessenden, of Peterborough, gets a gold ring, brooch set with brilliants and other valuable jewellery, and heirlooms, which Miss Unwin possessed.

Atherley to Lindsay Line to be Rushed Through

The Lindsay Warder says that the Georgian Bay and Seaboard C.P.R. grain line will be pushed forward to completion at as early a date as possible, and judging by the activity among the contractors the surveyors and others, the work on the line from Atherley to Lindsay will be commenced at once.

It is understood that it is the intention to rush the line through from Atherley to Lindsay and have the same completed in time to handle the big transportation of grain next year. From Lindsay the grain would be shipped over the present C.P.R. route through Burketon to Peterboro and the east, until the new line is completed.

The result of the survey has not yet been officially published, but it is understood that when the line swings into the town of Lindsay on the east side of the river that it will run southerly through the east ward, passing on the east side of the present C.P.R. depot and thence southeasterly through the Queen st. Methodist church, or to the east of same, branching off from the present C.P.R. passenger line south of the town.

COURTED FOR FIFTEEN YEARS

Turin, Italy, Nov. 14.—The most romantic royal courtship in the annals of Europe culminated today in the marriage of Prince Victor Napoleon, Bonapartist pretender to the throne of France, to the Princess Clementine, of Belgium, youngest daughter of the late King Leopold. The ceremony was celebrated in Monalieri castle in the presence of Dowager Queen Margareta of Italy, the Duke of Aisti, representing King Victor Emmanuel, the Duke of Genoa, the Duke of the Abruzzi, the Count of Salomni and a host of lesser members of the nobility of Italy, as well as a considerable gathering of distinguished Belgians.

LONG LOVE MATCH.

The love match of the royal couple extends back over a period of 15 years. Marriage was impossible during the life of King Leopold, who showed the most bitter hostility to the courtship on the ground, he frequently declared that the marriage of a pretender to the daughter of a reigning monarch would brand that monarch in the eyes of the world as a party of a pretender and be an affront to a friendly nation.

The Princess Clementine is 38 years old, and has been frequently termed the most attractive royal princess in Europe. Prince Victor Napoleon celebrated his 42nd birthday not long ago.

State opposition to the match died with King Leopold, and it was rapidly advanced under the partisanship of Empress Eugenie, whose favorite dream it has been for years.

FIERCE FIGHT IN MONTREAL CHURCH

THE EMANCIPATION LODGE THE CAUSE OF ANOTHER SCRIMMAGE.

Lively Scene in Lecture Hall of St. Jean Baptiste Church — Several Black Eyes Received.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—There was a lively scene in the lecture hall of St. Jean Baptiste church in the north end of the city last night. Mr. A. J. Lemieux, who made the exposure of the Emancipation Lodge, was lecturing on the subject and proceeded to explain how he obtained the papers that resulted in the exposure. During his remarks he accused Gustave Francq, a well-known labor leader, of being a Freemason, and a member of the Emancipation Lodge. Francq, who was in the audience, at once arose and demanded the speaker to produce proofs of his assertion. A lively scene ensued. A number of Lemieux's supporters pounced on France and kicked and jostled him. Francq's friends responded and there was a regular free fight. Cure Auclair tried to restore order, but failed. The police were called, but failed to respond, and the fight was kept up for several minutes, and finally the cure dismissed the meeting. A number of the participants left the hall with black eyes, as a result of the melee.

A New York teamster was held up at the point of a gun was yesterday his money. A Peterborough teamster, in similar trouble would most likely mention the name of the coal company, he works for and the hold-up men would apologize and ask the address of the coal office.

British Elections will Likely Take Place the First Week in December

IMPOSSIBLE SITUATION WITH THE NATIONALISTS HOLDING BALANCE OF POWER.

Ex-Premier Balfour Will Probably Step Out of Public Life in Hope of Clearing Political Atmosphere—O'Connor Sees Ireland's Greatest Opportunity.

STAND OF PRESENT HOUSE.

Liberals	275
Unionists	273
Labor	40
Nationalists	82

This table shows the close balance between the leading parties. Being unable to control the Laborites and Nationalists the government is about to make an appeal to the people.

London, Nov. 14.—The first week in December has been set as the time for holding the general elections. This has been decided upon and will probably be announced by Premier Asquith tomorrow.

London, Nov. 14.—Rather than let the Irish party dominate in the present political crisis Parliament will be adjourned tomorrow with an order for a general election. This announcement was made today by a leading member of the Liberal party. The general election will bring about a big shift in the political parties of Britain. The chief development will undoubtedly be the retirement of ex-Premier Balfour of the Unionist party.

PARTIES ARE AWAKE.

There was great political activity in all parties today. The Irish leaders claimed the balance of power in the House of Commons and the control of the constitutional situation. A careful canvass apparently substantiated their claims.

The constitutional amendments abrogating a portion of the power of the house of peers must be threshed out again. So grave is the situation that a fight will be made to abolish the upper house altogether.

NOW OR NEVER.

T. P. O'Connor, one of the Irish leaders, in discussing the situation today, said that it was now or never for the Irish Nationalists to stand together.

"I depreciate the attitude of the O'Brienites who seem bent on splitting the party when it is now at its strongest," said he. "Never in the history of English and Irish politics has Ireland had an opportunity like the present. The Irish party has sufficient strength to control the situation. I am going into parliament tomorrow with the single aim of doing everything in my power to gain freedom for Ireland, at least, I will secure the best terms possible. If the session ends abruptly it will have to be another parliament which shall listen to my plea.

SHORT ACTIVE FIGHT.

John Redmond has similar views and his contention was that the struggle for Irish Home Rule has now attained the point where only a short but active fight is necessary.

HOW IT STARTED.

The trouble started over a year ago, when the Lords rejected Lloyd George's budget which had passed through the House of Commons. This resulted in the dissolution of parliament, and precipitated a general election which was held early this year.

The voters endorsed the budget and returned the Liberal party to power, but with such a small majority that the government had to depend on the Irish members to carry through this program. This placed the Irish party in a position to dictate and when the new parliament assembled last spring the Irish leaders insisted on the passage of a set of resolutions limiting the veto power of the House of Lords, before the consideration of the budget. The matter was finally settled in the Lower House by the introduction of a set of resolutions which aimed to pass a law to prevent the House of Lords from rejecting or amending a money bill, but that such limitations shall not in anywise affect the rights and privileges of the Commons as they now exist.

Mother and Son in Jail.

Hagersville, Ont., Nov. 14.—Charged with incendiarism and intimidation, Mrs. Fred Smelzer and her son, Lloyd, aged eighteen, of Selkirk, were arrested and lodged in Cayuga jail, following the mysterious letters and the burning of Fred Smelzer's barns in September.

Four Murderers Await Execution

Toronto, Nov. 14.—One woman and three men are under sentence of death in the county jails of Ontario.

The first to die, if the extreme penalty is exacted, will be Robert Parker, the aged Hastings County murderer. The date of his execution has been placed for December 3rd.

Thomas McNulty and his paramour, Mary Dolan, the convicted Uptergrove murderers, will, if the vigorous efforts of their attorneys fail, be hanged together in Barrie jail on December 14th.

The execution of Rufus Woodmark, the Smith's Falls wife murderer, has also been set for the same day in Perth jail, and if clemency is not obtained he will die the same date, December 14th.

ONE MORE TRIAL.

Today opened the last case on the calendar for the autumn Assize court. This trial will be heard at L'Original, where Blondin is charged with murder. This makes the eighth homicide case to be heard during the autumn court sessions.

In these cases five convictions were secured and three were sent over to the Spring Assize. James Gorham, of Peterborough, charged with matricide, was convicted, but not sentenced, owing to a strong recommendation of the jury for mercy. He will probably be given a life sentence.

A SUGGESTION TO GROCERS.

Barrie Grocers Have Inaugurated a Delivery System.

The grocers of Barrie have succeeded in inaugurating a delivery system which Peterborough grocers have talked about but never succeeded in getting it going. This system has proved a success and a benefit to both the customer and the merchant in Barrie and might be tried with profit in Peterboro.

The following is a list of delivery hours in Barrie:

Goods ordered before 10 a.m. delivered before 12 a.m.

Goods ordered between 10 and 12 delivered before 4 p.m.

Goods ordered between 12 and 4 delivered before 6 p.m.

Goods ordered between 4 and 6 delivered before 10 next morning.

An extra delivery on Saturday.

Goods ordered between 4 and 6 p.m., delivered before 9 p.m.

Goods ordered after 6 p.m., Saturday, delivered Monday morning.

Days before holidays same as Saturdays.

Mr. John Brown, M.D., of New York, and Mr. E. M. Griswold of Syracuse, N.Y., are at the National.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

Attention!

You are within six weeks of Christmas.

Begin now, escape the rush and confusion. Get the first pick of fresh goods. Get the best attention of unpressed sales-people.

If the old reasons for an early start won't budge you here is a new one:

Run your mind back over the mid-Decembers of the past ten or twelve years. Three times out of four Chicago weather from December 18 to December 25 has acted like sin. You have been up against gloomy rain, slop, slush and all the forms of meteorological misery. Rubbers and umbrellas, ruined clothes and wet feet, colds and pneumonia—all these generally go with Christmas shopping in this town of ours. Shop, therefore, in the bracing air and bright sun of November.

HARD TO GET.

The securing of new industries for Peterboro evidently is a hard proposition. Is it not about time that we heard from our Industrial Commissioner?

MORE TAX EXEMPTIONS SOUGHT.

The Times is informed that application is to be made to the Council by several local institutions for tax exemption. Surely this is a matter that should hardly be entertained at all under existing circumstances.

THE TYRANNY OF LABOR.

The strike of the labor trust against the express company trust in New York was at one time very serious. Sympathetic strikes are declared and the chief suffering is imposed on the innocent. Class tyranny a few weeks ago threatened the existence of the French republic, but Briand has won against socialistic disturbers. The boycott by Standard Oil and other trusts is just as lawless as the We are gaining much on regulation of capitalistic monopoly. It is now imperative that the mobs in the streets be prevented so far as is possible by growth of a kindly and just spirit between the worker and his employer but by the strong arm of the law if necessary. The man who wants to be free even if he isn't a trust, condemns such combinations of capital and labor as seek to dictate and tyrannize the conditions under which production shall be conducted. The strikers in New York insist that nobody shall have a right to work in the express business unless he pays tribute to a trust and identifies himself therewith. As less than 10 per cent. of American workers are in a trust the sympathetic strike is a demand that the ten per cent. organized shall dictate to the ninety per cent unorganized.

AN AWFUL RECORD.

"Killed, 2,904; injured, 82,374"—this is the casualty record for the railroads in the United States during the year ended June 30 last, according to the Inter-State Commerce Commission It is an increase of 1,013 in the number killed and 18,535 in the number injured over the previous year's figures. There were 5,861 collisions, killing 433 persons and injuring 7,765 and damaging railriad property, $4,629,279. In the year's 5,910 derailments, 340 persons were killed, and 4,014 injured. During the last three months of the year the total killed or injured was 20,650

FIGHTING TYPHOID FEVER.

The valuable experiments in vaccination against typhoid fever, conducted on an extended scale and with marked success in the British army, have been followed up by similar experiments in the United States army upon which Surgeon John Torney, of Washington, has just issued his report. These experiments in vaccinating with killed cultures of the bacillus typhosus were begun in the United States army in March, 1909, and since then 21,771 individuals have qeen vaccinated. Among this number only three cases of typhoid fever have developed, and no deaths have resulted. This would appear to be a striking demonstration of the efficiency of this new treatment for typhoid in which the United States military authorities have taken pattern after the British practice.

HAVE SOME HOCKEY FANS BEEN SMOKING

The despatch given below appeared in yesterday's Toronto papers. Some reporter must have a fertile imagination, or else some one in Peterborough has been "kidding." The despatch referred to reads

"Belleville, Nov. 10.—A meeting of the representatives of the proposed Eastern Ontario Professional Hockey League was held here last night. Mr. Irving, the promoter of the league, was present, as were also representatives from Belleville, Trenton, Peterborough and Port Hope. The delegate from Cobourg, was unable to be present, but wired his concurrence.

An organization was effected, with these officers: President, Dr. Yeomans, Belleville; first vice-president, J. Menary, Peterborough; second vice-president, George Nolan, Trenton; Secretary, N. E. Irving; Treasurer, Captain Colwell, Port Hope. Executive Committee—Messrs. Brown of Port Hope, Burrows of Belleville, Hawley of Trenton, Morgan of Peterborough, Purser of Cobourg. The referees suggested are: Messrs. Burrows and Connolly of Belleville, Lou Marsh of Toronto, Steacy of Kingston, James Fraser of Galt, Chas. Boney of Port Hope, Rolly Glover of Peterborough.

The games are to be played in three periods of twenty minutes each. The schedule of games will be arranged at a meeting of the executive at Port Hope on Friday next."

WEALTHY PAUPERS.

Some Persons Live In Workhouses From Choice.

We have often been told that the idea of going into a workhouse is so repugnant to poor people that they prefer to eke out a miserable existence, in squalor and misery, on a few shillings a week, rather than spend their days in a place where they are at least assured of a comfortable bed, enough to eat, and clean clothing.

And yet there are folk possessing savings amounting to between $500 and $1,000, who have preferred to live in the "House" rather than in a home of their own. For what reason, whether for miserly motives or because they like the comforts of workhouse life, it is impossible to say; but the fact remains, according to a recent report of the Bethnal Green Board of Guardians, that a number of people with money preferred the "House" to liberty.

It was discovered, for instance, that the wife of a glassblower had a banking account of over $600, $500 of which was subsequently awarded to the guardians and the balance to the husband.

Another case was that of an inmate of seventy-five—formerly a soldier in the American Civil War—who was found to be the owner of an army pension from the American Government of $150, a British Government annuity of $150, $700 in a building society, and $100 in Turkish bonds. Of this the guadians exacted $7 weekly for the cost of maintenance, and the balance was handed over to the relatives on the old man's death.

Another case was that of a fish-stall holder of sixty-one, who was admitted on account of destitution, and was found to have $200 in a penny bank.

That the "House" is popular with a number of elderly folk, who, did they desire it, could live in comfort in homes of their own, is borne out by several striking cases. An old lady of sixty-eight was admitted into the workhouse in July, 1905, with $160 in the Postoffice bank and $900 invested in Government stock (three per cent. local loans). She also owned a house at Greenwich let at $2.75 per week.

"Mrs. Ti——," says the report, "has remained in the 'House' since her admission, and declines to leave. She is allowed 50 cent a week pocket-money, and is a member of a local circulating library. . . She wears her jewelry, which is exceedingly good, and appears perfectly happy." Apparently there is no accounting for tastes of his kind.—Tit-Bits.

Payn's Bad Guess.

Although an editor is expected to know everything, and although his store of miscellaneous information is usually large, yet there are some things of which even if he is an average editor has never heard. Such evidently, was the case with James Payn, the well known novelist, when he was editor of The Cornhill. Says a write in McClure's.

One day an unannounced caller who had managed to evade the porter downstairs opened Payn's door. His hair was long and his clothes were shabby and untidy. He had a roll of papers in his hand. Payn, surmising a poet and an epic several thousand lines long looked up.

"Well, sir?"

"I've brought you something about sarcoma and carcinoma."

"We are overcrowded with poetry—couldn't accept another line, not if it were by Milton."

"Poetry!" the caller flashed. "Do you know anything about sarcoma and carcinoma?"

"Italian lovers, aren't they?" said Payn, imperturbably.

The caller retreated, with a withering glance at the editor. Under the same roof as The Cornhill was the office of a medical and surgical journal, and it was this that the caller sought for the disposal of a treatise on those cancerous growths with the euphonious names, which with a layman's ignorance Payn ascribed to poetry.

The Busiest Man In London.

It is said of Lord Esher, who has been criticising the Territorials, that he works harder than any man in London. Certainly "Reggie Brett," as he is known to many devoted friends of his Eton days, has few idle moments. Mr. W. T. Stead describes him as a man of original genius. "He is not a soldier," he says, "but he has reformed the army; nor a sailor, but he has done more than almost any landsman to keep up the first line of our defence." He has written much, too. It may be remembered that, together with Mr. Arthur Benson, he edited Queen Victoria's letters, and he possesses a wonderful collection of Court swords, from the days of Queen Elizabeth to the present day. Lady Esher shares her husband's literary tastes, and has written a great deal of verse.

The Papermaker's Mistake.

The discovery of blotting paper was the result of an accident. Some time in the last century an operative in mills in Berkshire omitted to put the size into its pulp. When the paper was rolled it was deemed useless, and the unfortunate workman received his conge. Some days afterward, when they were about to throw the paper away, some one discovered its power of absorption and tried it with some written matter. The old sand box used up to that time had been used for drying ink was discarded, and the workman was reinstated and rewarded for his negligence. We may add that in comparatively recent years millers in outaway places sprinkled flour over their accounts to dry the ink, but we suppose at this period the flour dredge has gone the way of the sandbox.—London Globe.

The Bishop's Retort.

The parishioners of a certain parish which possesses a very fine and ancient church were eager to reconstruct and embellish the edifice. The wardens wrote to the bishop on the subject. "There are but two things to be done in St. Gregory's," wrote the bishop in reply. "Let the sexton keep it clean and the parson keep it full."—London Graphic.

NO PARDON YET FOR M'NULTY.

Commutation of Orrillia Man and Parmour Has Not Been Decided On.

Ottawa, Nov. 10.—All that can be learned at the Department of Justice about the case of Mary Dolan and Thomas McNulty, who were sentenced to death on December 3rd at the Barrie Fall Assizes for the murder of their illegitimate child by Mr. Justice Britton, is that the matter is under consideration.

It is understood that T. C. Robinette, K.C., of Toronto, who is acting for McNulty, is making strenuous efforts to get the department to act quickly in the matter, as the time for the carrying out of the dreaded sentence is only 24 days ahead.

The recommendation of the jury to mercy as well as other incidents in the case will be considered at the next meeting of the Cabinet Council, but when that will be is a matter of uncertainty. The reciprocity negotiations have got to be disposed of before the two Cabinet ministers figuring in them are free. Of course the matter might be taken up in their absence.

Parliament Opens Thursday.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—The third session of the eleventh parliament of Canada will meet Thursday. The session is expected to be of more than ordinary interest, in that there is the possibility that it will be the last before another general election. Reciprocity and the tariff, the naval policy and other large issues will come up for discussion.

President Taft at Panama.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 12.—President Taft is due to arrive at Panama the first of the week and will spend four days in an inspection of the progress of the work on the great isthmian canal.

THE IMPERIAL CORPS.

King Edward's Horse Made Up From All Over Greater Britain.

It is not perhaps sufficiently known that there is in England a regiment which is a living symbol of the spirit of imperial unity - King Edward's Horse. Only a few days ago the regiment entertained at dinner the Queen's Own Canadian Rifles.

started shortly after the South African war to commemorate the services of the Dominions in the war, the regiment was first known as the King's Colonials. It was considered that the finest memorial the overseas Dominions could raise to the late King was one to which they contributed their personal service. For that reason the present King quite recently approved the name of King Edward's Horse, the King's Over-Sea Dominions Regiment (Imperial Service). King George, who when Prince of Wales was hon. colonel of the regiment, is now its colonel-in-chief. The commanding officer is the able and active Lieutenant-Colonel H. Fortescue, for many years commander of the 17th Lancers.

King Edward's Horse is the one really imperial regiment in existence. It is recruited from over-seas sources, and for this reason has detachments in those centres where young men from the Dominions are mostly found.

London and Liverpool- while there are detachments at Oxford and Cambridge which include a number of Rhodes scholars. The roll includes officers, non-commissioned officers and troopers not only from India, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa, but also from Jamaica, Barbados, Trinidad, Bermuda, Bahamas, Mauritius, Burma, Ceylon, Hong Kong, Uganda, Tasmania the Straits Settlements, and British Guiana.

The regiment is recruited entirely from men with the following qualifications who are resident in Great Britain for a period of not less than four years. The parents must be resident or have been born in over-seas Dominions or Crown Colonies; the recruit must have been born in the over-seas Dominions or Crown Colonies, or have resided there at least five years. The enlistment is for four years, but this can be curtailed at the discretion of the commanding officer in the event of the man returning home for good.

All the members are under a liability to serve, if ordered with the regiment as a whole, anywhere in the world in case of a national emergency. Uniforms, arms, horses, saddlery, and traveling expenses are provided free to non-commissioned officers and troopers.

The objects of this imperial regiment are numerous. To link together the local forces of the Empire under the conception of a common duty to serve the Empire; as a means to the above end to bring together in its ranks young colonials from all the state, temporarily resident in Great Britain, under the above-mentioned liability, to serve wherever the defence of the Empire may require them (the Territorial forces are for the defence of the British Isles); to give such an efficient elementary military education to young colonials temporarily resident in England as may fit them at once on their return to their homes to serve effectively in their local forces; to create in this regiment, representing all the local forces of the Empire, a visible symbol of the Empire's unity for purposes of mutual defence; to form a rendezvous for all duly accredited members of colonial local forces visiting the Mother Country.

The regiment has still further aims "We are allied since the last Colonial Conference," says the commanding officer, "to a number of over-seas regiments- to the first nine and to the 15th Regiments of Australian Light Horse, also the Cape Light Horse, and in Canada to the 8th Princess Louise New Brunswick Hussars. We hope eventually to organize a system of transfer between these allied regiments whereby, for instance, if a man left King Edward's Horse to return to Australia he would be enabled, ipso facto, to join one of our allied regiments there. This as yet is a pious and sentimental aspiration. But we have hopes that the scheme may soon prove workable. Ample financial support of late has been forthcoming from all quarters of the world, and we are hopeful of largely increasing the strength of the regiment in the near future."

To make a corps like King Edward's Horse thoroughly efficient a continual flow of recruits must be maintained, since a very large proportion of them come to England for three or four years only and then return to their respective homes in the over-seas Dominions. Every young colonial in these isles is urged to make it his ambition to join King Edward's Horse.

Some More Nature Fakes Exposed.

An English scientist who has been observing the habits of the cobra in India, has declared that all stories as to the reptile's love of music are fakes. He admits that music will bring the cobra's head out of his hiding place, but also he says that any kind of high-keyed noise loud enough will act in the same manner in bringing it from its burrow. Beating with a switch on the ground, rattling a chain, or any high-pitched sounds catch its ears and curiosity causes the snake to do the rest. It pays no attention to the pounding of the bass drum or to the lower notes of the flute. As to the reptile's power to fascinate birds with its eyes, Dr. Barnard brands the statement as imaginary.

Kept to the Point.

Lord Tenterden had contracted so inveterate a habit of keeping himself and everybody else to the precise matter in hand that once during a circuit dinner, having asked a county magistrate if he would take venison and receiving what he deemed an evasive reply, "Thank you, my lord; I am going to take boiled chicken," his lordship sharply retorted: "That, sir, is no answer to my question. I ask you again if you will take venison, and I will trouble you to say yes or no without further prevarication."—St. James' Gazette.

Grapes and Peaches.

The grape has more sugar in it than any other fruit, nearly fifteen parts in a hundred being sugar. The peach has least, only 1½ per cent.

Turkish Methods.

In Turkey nothing can be done without a bribe, but with a bribe, if it be only big enough, anything can be done, except, perhaps, the publication of correct news in a Turkish paper.

Wings of a Gnat.

The wings of a gnat vibrate at the rate of 15,000 times a second, this observation having been recorded through the use of an ingenious musical instrument.

BIRD SONG RECORDS.

English Naturalist Secures Nightingale's Melody for Gramophone.

During the coming winter the nightingale's song will be heard on the gramophone. After many attempts, Mr. Oliver G. Pike, F.Z.S., F.R.P.S., of England, has succeeded in recording the song which will be heard in various lecture halls throughout the country.

Mr. Pike, who lives near the famous woods of Winchmore Hill, which rare birds frequent, is an enthusiastic naturalist, the youngest lecturer in the country on birds and bird life, and the author of eight books, all illustrated by photographs taken by himself in all parts of the British Isles.

Quite recently he formed one of a small party which journeyed to the lonely island of St. Kilda to make observations on the habits of the sea birds nesting in the island and on the adjacent rocks.

"I have had some amusing experiences," said Mr. Pike, "owing to my youthful appearance. At one hall in Manchester, where I was to deliver a lecture, I gave my slides to the lantern operator, who then asked me if Mr. Pike was coming along.

"Quite recently I have succeeded in devising means of taking bioscope pictures of wild birds in the true colors of nature.

"Yes, I have had some narrow escapes with my bioscope. Not long ago I was photographing a group of gannets near the top of a large rock 600 feet high.

"I was just on the edge of a cliff, about 500 feet up, had got my bioscope in position, and had taken a length of film, when I heard a shout above me.

"Looking up I found that two climbers about seventy feet above me had accidentally dislodged a large boulder, which seemed to be coming straight for me down the slope to the point where I stood with the machine.

"I could neither move myself nor the machine. Although only a second or two coming, it seemed an age to me. To my great relief it struck another piece of rock just above me, and this turned its path a few inches from where I stood.

"In another case I was trying to photograph a raven's nest on a steep Welsh inland cliff. Just as I was putting the camera in its position it became dislodged, and I saw it bounding down the cliff side. It fell about fifty feet and then disappeared over the ledge. Descending, I looked over, and there to my delight I saw it caught in a bush, and subsequently found it so little damaged that I was able to use it later.

"I was once attacked by tramps while on a lonely road. One threw a stone at the camera, but hit me on the head instead, knocking me senseless. I found afterwards that he was making off with the camera when a man came up and seized him.

"Sometimes on these explorations I get home rather late. Two years ago I was arrested by a detective as a fowl thief. This was a huge joke, because by showing them some of my pictures I was able to prove that I 'took' birds, but only with the camera."

Mr. Pike's interest in birds began when he was a little boy, who started taking photographs of them instead of taking their nests. Since then he has photographed hundreds of rare birds, including the buzzard, in their native wilds, away from their nests, and has also invented a special camera now in use among naturalists not only in this country, but all over the world.

Largely, if not chiefly, through his efforts, some of the rarest breeding birds in these islands have been protected.

Author Dizzy's "Life."

A notable event of the autumn publishing season will be the appearance of the long-expected "Life of Beaconsfield," which was to have been edited by Lord Rosebery, by Mr. George Wyndham, by Mr. Lucien Wolf, and by the late Lord Rowton. The actual editor is Mr. William Flavelle Monypenny, a distinguished journalist, who has had to wade through no fewer than forty-three packing-cases containing "Dizzy's" correspondence and papers, and even now, after many years, only the first volume of the book is in the press.

Mr. Monypenny has done responsible editorial work for The Spectator, The Johannesburg Star and The London Times. While editing The Star, his criticisms of Boer methods before the war caused such anger in official circles that one day an irate Dutchman burst into his sanctum and began to whack him. Mr. Monypenny had his spectacles broken before he knew what was happening, but, recovering from his surprise, he began to give his visitor as good as he gave, and something over. The affair ended by Mr. Monypenny kicking his assailant downstairs and out into the middle of President street. Dizzy's biographer afterwards served with distinction in the Imperial Light Horse through the siege of Ladysmith.

"Comin' Thro' the Rye."

An autobiography which is being looked forward to with much interest is that of Miss Helen Mathers (Mrs. Henry Reeves), which is announced for the autumn. It will be published under the curious title of "Phil and I"—Phil being Miss Mather's son, who died last year. The famous authoress was greatly attached to her son, who was wont to assist his mother with her books, and after his death she decided not to write another novel. 'Comin' Thro' the Rye" is generally regarded as her best story, concerning the popularity of which she once received a striking tribute from Thomas Hardy. The great Wessex novelist once told her that wherever he went he was always sure of finding two books — the Bible and "Comin Thro' the Rye."

The Workers.

In the civilised countries of the world 60 per cent. of persons over ten years of age have to work for a living.

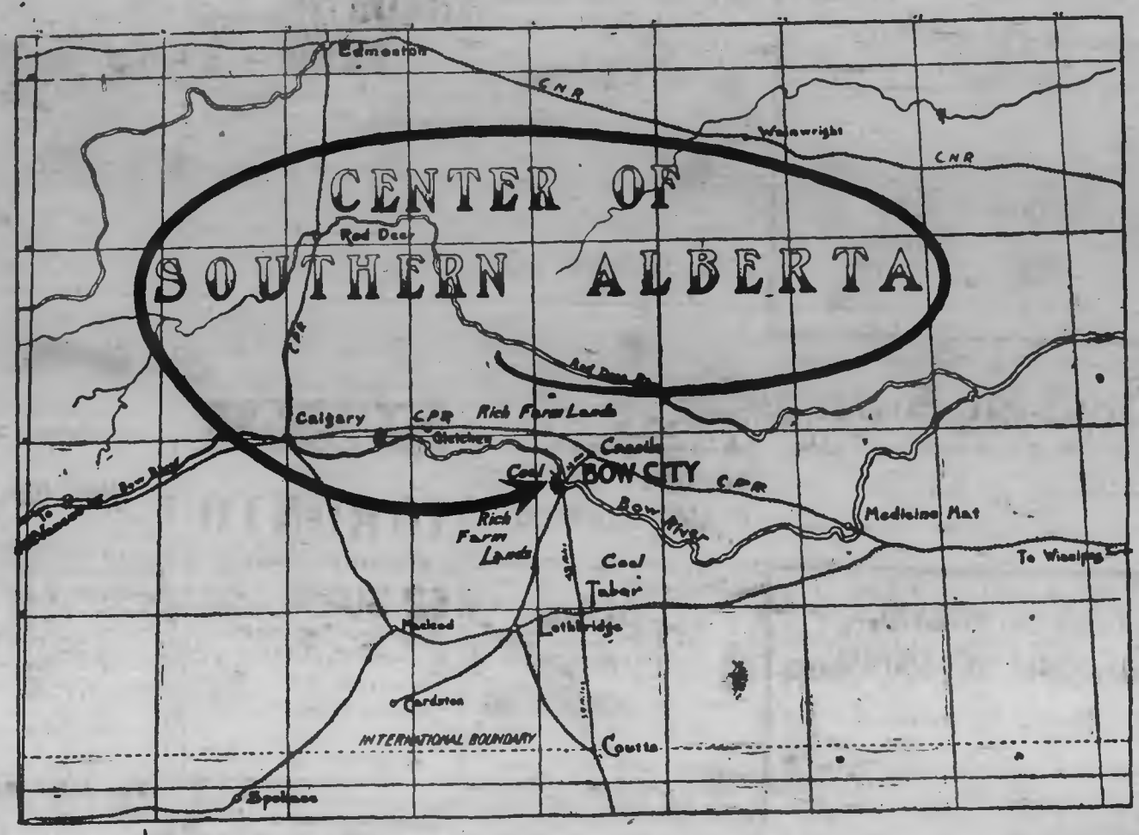
Easy to Close.

The public entrance doors of the great building of the Bank of England are so finely balanced that a clerk by pressing a knob under his desk can close them instantly.

Cents and Nickels.

Cents, being of small value, are carelessly handled and are lost in such great numbers that the United States treasury has to work hard to maintain the supply. The profit to the government on their manufacture is large, however, inasmuch as the blanks for them are purchased for $1 a thousand from a firm that produces them by contract. Blanks for nickels are obtained in the same way, costing Uncle Sam only a cent and a half apiece.

"GIVE YOUR SON A DEED"



If, by way of illustration, you will review the history of the men in your town who have made money out of real estate, you will find that in each and every instance their profits were made from real estate acquired at ground floor prices.

More money can be made by those who acquire a realty interest in a town at its inception per dollar invested than from investments made after a period of years.

Do you know that you can purchase with $5 cash a full sized residential lot in Bow City, Alberta the logical location for a great city, a city which is destined to be known, the world over, as a market place annually for hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain, grown on the vast irrigated fields surrounding Bow City, a shipping point for coal from the great Bow Centre Collieries, and a purchasing depot for hundreds of prosperous farmers resident throughout Southern Alberta.

To-day is your opportunity to acquire an interest in Bow City at the ground floor price.

It will be too late six months hence, to apply for a lot in Bow City at the present prices and on such easy terms as are offered you in this advertisement.

Why not follow Russell Sage's advice given in a letter published some years ago to the fathers in the Western States:—

"Buy your son a lot in a town being the "centre of a great agricultural country—when "he comes of age that lot will be worth consid- "erable money and will provide a handsome "stake for him in life; it is at least most sub- "stantial life insurance—sure and certain."

Buy your son a $50 lot in Bow City, the coming metropolis of the western prairies. In a very short time he can re-sell the same at a big increase, which money he will find advantageous in business pursuits or in a college course.

Bow City, the centre of the great granary of Southern Albert has a future concerning which no sane business man or banker has any doubt.

When you are assured of the success of the city, when you have proven to you beyond the shadow of a doubt that Bow City will, in the very near future, be one of the most active, one of the most progressive towns on the Western prairies, you should not hesitate to acquire at least one $50 residential lot, when same is on sale on such easy terms as 10 per cent cash and the balance 10 per cent per month until paid--a deed at any time.

Bow City is in the heart of a famous irrigated farming belt whose farmers are assured of a crop every year. They are prosperous and their prosperity will naturally enhance the value of Bow City real estate.

The great coal mines of Bow City will furnish work for 1,000 to 1,500 miners daily, these miners will constitute a substantial basis for a successful city.

The present owners of Bow City have decided that no licenses shall be issued for the sale of spirituous liquors; they intend that this great mining and agricultural centre shall be free from any traffic in intoxicating drinks—it will be a clean city.

Bow City is the headquarters of a railway which taps a territory unparalleled for richness in crops and natural resources.

The Sale of Bow City Lots opened but a few days ag

If you are desirous of acquiring a $50 residential lot close in you should lose no time in making application by wire direct to the General Agents of the townsite, or to the nearest sub-agent.

Do not delay by sending your apulication by mail.

Wire at once your reservation for one or more lots On receipt of wire your name will be placed on the closest-in unsold lot or lots and same will be held in your name, allowing you sufficient time for your cash payment, mailed same day you wire, to travel from your home to the head office.

You may find it to your advantage, if you are desirous of securing a business opening, or a business lot, to write for copy of the plans, booklets and descriptive matter concerning Bow City, all of which may be had on application, free of charge.

MAD TO RECOGNIZE

The New Administration—No Other Course Open.

The question has frequently been asked during the past week or two whether the powers of Europe, particularly Britain would acknowledge the republican government established in Portugal consequent of the revolution. Being one of the most ancient of European nations the twenty-one guns that announced the uprising in Lisbon naturally shook the whole Iberian peninsula, including the Basque provinces of Spain, but though the overthrow of a monarchy was by an element partly anarchial, the other powers have no course left but recognize the new administration. Were an alliance to exist between Britain and Portugal, or Germany and Portugal it would not, under the present conditions, give these nations an excuse for ignoring the new republican government. On the other hand, had an attack been made on Portugal by an outside enemy the allied nations could step in, if the clauses of the treaty went so far and help defend the crown.

Internal revolution is like a family quarrel in a household. Its consequences may be ever so much deplored by interested relations, yet legally they have no justification for interfering. Republican form of government has long since been proven acceptible, particularly in countries like France, where the people are possessed of revolutionary instincts. It has long been recognized at all courts, and no matter how reluctant they may be to bow to revolutionary factions, diplomats of other lands must acknowledge what the people demand.

The danger which Portugal faces is not that alone of an unsettled people, but the spread of anarchy and atheism. In the wake of republicanism has decimated these destroyers of citizenship. Seditious doctrines have been brewed and spread till they have poisoned the minds of even peasants in Spain and the Spanish throne has been frequently menaced. It is in these that the seeds of national destruction lie. It is through them that a monarchy may again be established in Portugal even though the House of Braganza may never regain its throne.

THE DEMOCRATIC VICTORIES.

The New York election has an extraordinary interest because ex-President Roosevelt's participation in the campaign, and the result will be a disappointment to his friends.

There had been a drift away from the Republican party for some time owing to the legislative scandals. Though there was the usual bipartisan combination of corruptionists, the Republicans were the majority party, corruption was proved specifically against prominent Republican legislators, and it was impossible to make a big party asset of the record of Governor Hughes when the record of the party was so badly stained. The glory belonged to the man rather than to the party, which had to bear the burden of a discredited machine.

Colonel Roosevelt faced the situation with characteristic boldness, beat the Old Guard at Saratoga, sought to stem the tide by proclaiming the purification of the party, which, as he described it, had turned its rascals out. But there was disaffection still to be overcome as well as strong opposition.

The state was influenced, like its neighbors, by the outcry against the tariff and high prices, and as a further offset to Roosevelt's moral campaign there was the hostility of the great financial interests to Roosevelt himself. There were old scores to be paid off, and he had added to the dislike of the interests by his radical declarations on certain questions.

The Republican candidate for governor was a capable man with a clean record, but Roosevelt became the paramount issue, and the defeat of Stimson will be hailed with great glee as the defeat of Roosevelt. The cry was, "Beat Roosevelt now and you will have him beaten for 1912," and the returns indicated that it was used with great effect.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

BACK TO RUSSIA.

Persistent Efforts Being Made By Labor Organizations.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Interest throughout Canada has been centered in the case of Larva Fedorenko, the Russian, on whose behalf the different labor organizations are pattting up such a strang fight to prevent his being taken back to Russia.

Sarva Fedorenko is a Russian revolutionist now resident in Manitoba. After the events of "Bloody Sunday" in St. Petersburg, five years ago, the Czar issued a manifesto granting "real inviolability of personal rights" to all the Russsian people. This naturally included freedom of speech. The Radicals took heart of grace and began to hold meetings. The city was still under that modified form of martial law which is known as "enforced vigilance." In spite of the Czar's decree the police raided one of these revolutionary assemblies. In the struggle that followed one of the police officers were killed, and it is said that Fedorenko and another man fired the fatal shots.

After some difficulty Fedorenko got out of the country safely. He went to Vienna, thense to Buenos Ayres, to the United States, and then to Canada. The Russian Government then made a demand for his apprehension and extradition. The man was arrested and his case heard by Chief Justice Mathers of the Manitoba High Court. He was committed on the evidence and the final determination of the case now rests with the minister of justice.

The very anxiety shown by the Russian government for the extradition of this man, as well as the facts of the case, suggest that the offence had apolitical character. It is alleged that Mr. Justice Mathers did not take evidence respecting the political aspect of the case, but whether or not this be true, it can have but little effect on the result. Habeas corpus proceedings have been taken, and the final disposition of the case rests with the minister of education Technically, perhaps, the man is guilty of murder, or of manslaughter but if it can be shown that the crime was the result of political agitation it ceases to be an extraditable offence.

For many years British soil has been the refuge of the Russian revolutionists. London has an enormous colony of Russian Liberals, most of them brilliant and forceful men who have suffered because of their opinions, and who dare not cross the Russian frontier for fear of being tortured, executed or sent to Siberia Prince Kropotkin recently published in London a pamphlet on the terror in Russia. He alleges, bringing official reports to prove his statements that in 1905 the number of persons imprisoned in Russia was 85,000. On February 1st, 1909, it hah reached 181,000. The prisons are in a disgusting condition. Brutality amongst the warders is common. Typhus rages, and one man was taken out and hanged when his temperature was 104 degrees. According to official reports 2,118 persons have been executed since the uprising of 1905, and up to November 1st, 1908, one hundred and sixty persons committed suicide It seems to be the policy of the government to take the bitterest revenge against the revolutionists for the troubles of Black Sunday.

Fedorenko's countrymen in the West are protesting abainst the proceedings to enforce his return to Russia. Organized labor in Winnipeg has become interested in his case and is supporting the protest with energy

At least the minister of justic should be thoroughly convinced tha the prisoner has not been pursued for purely political reasons before he is extraditec. Mr. Aylesworth should be just as careful not to extend Canadian toleration to the crime of murder in Russia or elsewhere.

LACROSSE IN ENGLAND.

Tends to Become the Leading Pastime There.

London, Nov. 12.—That Canada's national game, lacrosse, is fast taking a hold here as a pastime is dent by the many sporting clubs making it the predominant game.

The London Times has an interesting letter on the relative merits of English and Canadian lacrosse. It points out the enormous strides that the game has taken in popular favor in England, and prophesies that in ten years it will be a national pastime. It devotes some spaxce to a criticism of the two styles of play, and while it grants that in most respects the Canadian game is superior, some few points are noticed in which our game might be improved.

For instance, the correspondent believes that it would be worth while to imitate the swift straightforward onslaughts, which are a feature of the English style, but at the same time he notes that it is owing to just this style of play that the teams of Western Canada have shown such a marked superiority over those of the East. In regard to the English game he points out that although English game be points out that although it is full of individual brilliancy it has yet to be purged of tactical selfishness, that it is inferior to the Canadian game in midfield play and in the art of shooting, and that the Canadian players are always on the alert for any grievected developments, whereas the English players are apt to relax when the ball is not in their territory.

The writer, after a tribute to the clean and sportsmanlike methods of English players goes on to deplore the damaging effect that professionalism has had on the game in this country. He says: "In Canada the brutality and foul tactics of many—but by no means all—of the hired players have driven away the better-class (pedigree from the chief matches; very few ladies now attend these spectacles, and the popularity there of the 'smart Larrier' has been fluence of professional lacrosse is an and lately deplored by pulpit moralists, who go so far as to say that the indebasing as that of the American prize-ring. As the rules now stanc, the player who strikes an opponent with his crosse or trips him from behind deliberately is merely sent to the fence for five or ten minutes."

The correspondent suggests that if the player "could be dismissed for the rest of the game, and if his offence deserved an additional penalty, suspension for a part or the whole of the season, the worst abuses would be eliminated.

RELIC OF ARMADA.

Important Discoveries Have Been Made In Tobermory Bay.

Salvage operations at the spot where the Tuscany galleon Florencia is supposed to have been lost, in Tobermory Bay, Scotland, have led to such important finds during the past fortnight that those in charge of the operations have decided to charter a powerful suction dredger, capable of clearing the area where the majority of the undoubted relics of the Florencia have been found.

Two days before diving ceased there was recovered a fine silver lamp, of Italian pattern, quite close to where a silver candlestick was recovered previously, and where two stone cannon balls were found a few days ago. The recovery of such articles as silver lamps, silver plates and silver candlesticks bears out the story in the Spanish records, that there was on board quite a fortune in the way of sacred vessels, silver crucifixes, lamps, and candelabra belonging to the seven priests who sailed in the vessel.

In the list of the treasures carried on the Florencia were included a crown of gold, with many jewels, and the admiral's sword. The diver one day came upon the richly adorned basket-hilt of a sixteenth-century rapier. The quillons of the hilt displayed beautiful filigree work, and on the guard was a Maltese cross, with ball and crown, under which was a monogram "G.R." The guard was still further ornamented with fine imitations of flowers and other fancy work.

An authority on antiquities, at present on holiday at Tobermory, considers that the decorations of the hilt are of gold, and this opinion is strengthened by the fact that the hilt was entirely free from lime incrustations. In the records of the Clan MacLean district mention is made of the admiral's sword being on board the Florencia. The hilt found may or may not be that of the admiral's sword, but it certainly is that of some grandee, and on the Florencia there were at least two such grandees —Don Garcia Chanca and Don Fernando Bernadino.

Disappointed Brides.

"Everybody knows the story told by Charles Dickens of the lady who kept to her room and would not suffer the wedding feast to be removed from the table after the wedding was interrupted There are three or four others in which a lifelong seclusion followed a love disappointment. Two of these ladies died in the year 1778. One of them, Mary Lydia Lucrine, a maiden lady of what was then called a "genteel" fortune—I have reason to believe that the adjective meant something not exceeding $1,500 a year—lived for many years in her lodgings in Oxford street, never going outside the rooms, and never admitting the light of the sun. The other, whose name is not given in my authority, lived in Charles street, also wholly in her own rooms, and always by the light of a lamp or candle. Ten years before this in the year 1768, one Esther Claridge died in her lodgings on Tower Hill, where she had lived for thirty-five years, never once going outside her rooms. It would appear as if, in matter of love, it was thought respectable and the right thing to do, if these matters went wrong, to make retreat from the world. The mediaeval woman went into a nunnery, and there nursed a broken heart; in the last century she went upstairs, pulled down the blinds, closed the shutters and the curtains, lit a candle, and sat down in dignity to weep. Her friends came to visit her; if she was possessed of a "genteel" fortune, like Mary Lydia Lucrine, she provided tea and cake or something hot, with a glass of cordial. If, however, she had no money, she had to stay at home and to go on with the old domestic duties. In that case she speedily pieced together the fragments of the broken heart and give it perhaps none the worse for the fracture and the recovery, to another man.

Doubles' Troubles.

The extraordinary Gorse Hall murder case in England, in which the likeness of two men to each other has been commented upon, brings to mind the frequency of cases of "doubles."

On the second day of the hearing of the charges against Crippen and Miss Leneve at Bow Street there was present a well-known journalist, who had had the unpleasant experience of being mistaken by the police for the male prisoner.

One Sunday, before it became known that Crippen was on board the Montrose, bound for Canada, a sergeant and two or three constables arrived at this gentleman's house, and made it clear that, from his appearance, they suspected him of being the "doctor."

Fortunately, he was able to convince them there and then of his real identity. A handsome apology from the commissioner of police followed, and as some compensation for the inconvenience he had been put to he was granted passes to the court for himself and his wife.

Oxford Hospitality.

Oxford has traveled very far from the condition of things observed by a German explorer toward the end of the eighteenth century. He had arrived at the city at midnight and was introduced by a good Samaritan to the Mitre. Here, to his intense astonishment, he saw several gentlemen in academic dress seated round a table, each with a pot of beer in front of him. "My health," says the traveler, "was drunk in strong ale. At last, as morning drew near, one of the company exclaimed rather emphatically, 'I must read prayers this morning at All Souls'."—London Chronicle.

A Source of Comfort.

There are many sadder hearts than yours in this world of ours. Go and comfort them, and that, you will find, will comfort you.

Our Yearly Sensational Sale of Christmas Laces

The big Lace event of the year in the Annex is our Christmas Sale. We say Christmas Sale, because thousands of yards of these Laces are used for making and trimming dainty little gifts, which every woman is not only the giver, but the receiver of, and it's this Annex Lace Sale, just at this season of the year that greatly helps to make these gifts inexpensive. There are twice as many Laces for this year's sale as last and then there were thousands of yards, almost every desirable kind and pattern: torchons, washable, Clung's, Valenciennes, etc., in edgings and insertions, widths from the narrow to 4 inches. Lace values that would sell regularly all the way from 10c to 25c, for our Big Christmas Lace Sale, per yard 5c

Or 55c per dozen yards. (All new, clean goods. See Window).

2000 Yards of Heavy White Flannelette at 8½c

The greatest Flannelette bargain the Annex has yet offered its customers—You'll wonder how we can sell an extra heavy, pure bleached white Flannelette, 29 to 30 inches wide at 8½c. A quality that is actually good value at 12½c yard. Our explanation is the same as for a number of the other big leading specials. The contract for this line was placed nearly one year and a half ago right at the mill itself, and the goods were shipped direct to us from the looms. We have 2000 yards for Wednesday that we will sell only in 5 and 10 yard lengths at only per yard 8½c

A positive limit of not more than 20 yards to one customer.

(See Window)

RECIPROCITY.

As the opening of the session of Parliament draws near the feeling of dissatisfaction over the government flirting with the United States over the question of reciprocity becomes more pronounced. United States politicians are not attempting on their part to hide their feelings; for instance, Mr. Eugene Foss, the Democratic candidate for the governorship of Massachusetts, spoke at Taunton the other evening and assured the people that they wanted reciprocity with Canada, not only that they might secure free raw materials and food stuffs, but that the investment of $300,000,000 by United States manufacturers in erecting branches in Canada might be avoided.

No one will deny that the reasons given by Mr. Foss are excellent ones—from the point of view of Uncle Sam. Every dollar spent by a United States firm in the erection of branch plants in Canada means the loss of employment to United States workers. There can be little doubt about that. It also supplies the main reason why Canada should not enter in the slightest degree diminish the existing incentive that is bringing United States capital and skilled labor into this country.

At the present time Canada is only at the beginning of this influx, for the growth of the Canadian market makes the field more and more inviting. In addition, a reciprocal arrangement which would interrupt this tide would be unfair to the millions of United States capital already invested in Canada on the assurance that existing conditions would be maintained.

Curling Club Organizes.

A general meeting of the Curling Club will be held in the Dominion Bank Chambers on Monday evening, Nov. 21st at 8 p.m., in order to receive the report of the membership committee and for the transaction of other business. As large an attendance as possible is requested.

Mr. S. J. Cowan, formerly on the staff of the Toronto [illegible], has been made managing editor of the Prince Rupert Optimist.

Gives Out a Warning

C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, says the Farmer's Sun, has drawn attention to the fact that whereas ten years ago the rural population was about 60 per cent. of the whole population of the Province of Ontario, it is now only about 40 per cent. Between 1898 and 1908, the rural population decreased 69,000, while the population of the cities and towns increased 306,818. The city increase was clearly not to a great extent due to migration from the land as we are very often told. If the whole rural decrease had migrated to the cities and towns, and not out of the Province, as we well knew it did, there would still remain an urban increase of 237,818, which could only be accounted for by immigration. It is probably fair to estimate the urban increase by immigration during the ten years referred to at not less than 275,000.

These phenomena of rural decrease and urban increase are not difficult to explain. The settlement of the West by people who quickly produced wealth, and brought wealth with them, and the large expenditure in the construction of Western railways, have enormously stimulated the manufactures of Ontario and set a crowd of Russian Jews, Italians, Macedonians, Greeks and others moving out to our cities and towns in response to the demand for labor. It has also drawn labor from the land. At the same time the burdens of protection, limited markets, and the loss of labor have set going an emigration of farmers to the United States and the Northwest. Agriculture in Ontario has been thereby so greatly enfeebled that farm production is appreciably stimulated by a long period of high prices. The cost of living keeps increasing and as a result wages go up and consequently the cost of manufactured goods goes higher and higher. The result is to constantly increase the difficulties of the Ontario farmer. Labor becomes unattainable and he is unable by increasing his production to take advantage of high prices, or force them down. He emigrates or drags on in discontented drudgery. This state of affairs would ere this have reached a crisis were it not for the Northwest. The same conditions however, which oppress the Ontario farmer are also operative in the Northwest, and the same results are there inevitable. That they are already effective is, we are sure, evidenced by the organization of the farmers of the Northwest to press for reciprocity and tariff reform.

Protection ought to take heed and yield up a large measure of its privileges before they are rudely torn away. The farmer's endurance will come to an end in time, and when it does the protected interest will be exposed to the full force of foreign competition, which many unwisely created, will be unable to resist. The Sun has been assured by a leading public man of the West that within ten years the wheat production there will reach six hundred millions of bushels. If so, and if present conditions of tariff and market are maintained, Toronto will be a lion mark. If the day of readjustment, if not retribution, then arrives, enormous city, far above the half million we be sure that Toronto will not be found to be a city built on a foundation of sand?

FAT MEN AND THIN.

The kingdom of discontent is at our doors. Its everyday name is Park Ridge.

All the men out there are dissatisfied with themselves. The fat want to be thin and the thin want to be fat—except the thin that want to be thinner and the fat that want to be fatter. Besides, there are the moderns, who all want to be different.

The women have banded together to help the men to a better state of mind—and of body. For the next month wives, mothers, landladies, housekeepers and plain cooks will help the males toward their respective and varied desires. Possibly, in some instances, the desires of the men are really the preference of the women.

But in many cases the motives, whether dominantly masculine or feminine, are hard to grasp. It may be easy to understand Why Mr. M., who weighs 205, should want to lose, but not so easy to understand why Mr. S., who weighs 215, should want to gain. It is possible to see why Mr. V., at 156½, should wish to plump up; but why, then, should Mr. B., at 150, wish to bant? And it seems to us that Mr. T., who turns the scales at 183 and still wishes to gain, is imposing on his mother. Also that Mr. B., who weighs only 163, yet wishes to lose, is overexacting with his wife—or his wife with him.

What a situation! What display! What a drama! What a mix-up of cross-purposes, thwarted ambitions and unattained ideals!

You will get more enjoyment out of your exertions and will have better results to show for them. And you will emerge from the scrimmage in better shape.

Begin now.

C.P.R. Purchases Right of Way.

The C.P.R. have purchased the right of way for their new line from Orillia to Lindsay, and are making arrangements to commence construcing the same at once. The engineering staff have taken up their residence in a house on the Portage Road about 1½ miles east of Gamebridge, where the railway crosses the Trent canal. Beaverton, with all its advantages would welcome the C.P.R., but under present conditions will be denied this privilege.

Mr. Fred Peaks, the well-known horseman of Campbellford, was in the city on Saturday. He registered at the Snowden House.

JOHN FINLAY, EX-M.P., DEAD.

Formerly Represented East Peterborough in Commons.

Norwood, Ont., Nov. 14.—John Finlay, ex-M.P., died at his home here yesterday morning. The late Mr. Finlay was the founder of the Norwood Wheel and Bending Works, which he established in 1866, and through his business connection was known from coast to coast. He was reeve of Norwood for several years and County Councillor, and in 1904 was elected to the House of Commons as Liberal representative for East Peterboro. He was in his 74th year.

WON'T ASSOCIATE WITH HIM.

Average Englishman In India Looks Down Upon the Hindoo.

Very few natives are admitted to the circles of British society in India, writes Frank G. Carpenter. The average Englishman looks upon the Hindoo as of a lower race than himself, and he will not allow him to be a member of his club, or to come to his house as a guest. This is especially true of the officials of the lower classes, but less so of those who are high up in the Government, although even among these there is now and then an exception. A story is current about a well-known officer of the army who was riding on the cars in the same compartment with a cultured Hindoo. The army officer had been hunting and was tired out. During the journey he made the Hindoo gentleman get down on his knees and massage his legs from ankles to thighs. The high caste to which this man belonged was scandalized at the treatment and the action caused considerable comment. The better classes of the natives say such treatment is insulting, and they object to any difference being made between them and the British. This is one of the causes of the unrest of to-day.

Even worse than the position of the Hindoos is that of the Eurasians, or half-castes. These are the offspring of East Indian women and the various Europeans who have come here from time to time. Many are half Portuguese, others half French and others half British. There are also quarter breeds and eighth breeds, or Indian mulattoes and octoroons. But whatever the cross it is considered a disgrace by both native and foreigner. They are always well marked. The men are usually dark, and although the women are beautiful and now and then fair, you can always distinguish the Asiatic blood in their features.

These Eurasians are usually subordinate clerks. Many of them go into trade and make money, and now and then one rises to honorable distinction. But they always flock by themselves, having their own society, with customs the same as the English.

Grave of Maurice.

The Rev. John Frederick Denison Maurice, one of the most influential thinkers and social reformers of the middle of the last century, and a friend of Tennyson and Kingsley, passed away April 1, 1872, and was buried at Highgate. Yet, according to the Rev. J. Capel Hanbury, his grave cannot now be discovered.

"Some time ago," says Mr. Hanbury, writing to The Guardian, "I made a pilgrimage to Highgate cemetery to visit the grave of my reverend teacher, Professor F. D. Maurice. After considerable discussion as to the spelling of the name, the clerk gave me a ticket showing the situation and number of the grave. It was at the upper end of the cemetery, where the grass was high and the paths overgrown.

"After a long and fruitless search, thinking that my old eyes were at fault, I engaged the services of two of the workmen of the cemetery, and together we traversed the whole area indicated on my ticket. All in vain; the grave could not be found. It was poor consolation to be told by the clerk that no one ever asked where Mr. Maurice was buried, and it made me sad to think that the last earthly resting-place of a man to whom the Church of England is under such inestimably obligations should seem to be neglected and forgotten."

Commenting on the pain that will be caused to many by the fruitless search for the grave of Maurice, The Guardian recalls the inquiry directed to him by a lady, who asked, "Shall we know each other in Heaven?" to which he replied with the question, "Do we know each other on earth?" There are probably some of his friends who will attempt to rectify the lack of identification in Highgate.

Soldiers Were Stung.

At one of Britain's most important foreign forts the soldiers were once badly trapped, says a London paper in an article on the present spy scare in England.

It was known that a Teutonic spy was in the vicinity, bent on making plans, and so the sentry on a magazine, one moonlight night, kept eager watch, and soon was startled by a loud rustling in the adjacent trees. Going cautiously forward, he suddenly observed the figure of a man perched high on the bough of a tree, half hidden by the leaves.

The sentry's first impulse was to use the business-end of his bayonet; on second thought, he determined to constrain his captive to his uncomfortable perch all night. The idea was thoroughly to the taste of the relieving sentries, each of whom, during his two hours' duty, stood right under the tree, gazing exultantly at the figure aloft, and indulging in satirical remarks, anything but complimentary or consoling.

At dawn, a triumphant guard proceeded to dislodge the captive. He responded not to their taunts; he did not budge an inch. A private at once climbed aloft, and, in doing so, shook down a lifelike effigy!

By this clever ruse, the spy had effectually diverted attention whilst acquiring the information he required, and departed.

Medal for Teetotal Bishop.

The Bishop of Stepney, who has recently spent three days with the hop-pickers near Five Oak Green, Kent, during September, was presented at the mission tent with the Oaks Medal, with one bar, for having kept his total abstinence pledge for exactly one year.

No One Hurt.

"Yes," said the man who had been traveling; "I saw three trains held up in one night."

"You don't say!" exclaimed the innocent bystander. "Was any one hurt?"

"No," said the traveler; "they were held up by women in a ballroom."

WHOLE TOWNS DESERTED.

Places Where All the People Take a Vacation at the Same Time.

Persons unacquainted with the north of England and Scotland are often surprised during their visits to those countries to find whole towns deserted. Here in Canada only a few of us take our annual vacation at the same time, so that business is still carried on, but over their various weeks or fortnights are set aside for rest, when business practically stops.

In Lancashire these holidays are known as wakes, and beginning from about the middle of June one town after another takes its holiday, until early September sees the end. Liverpool and Manchester are about the only towns of importance that do not follow the custom, as they are too large to shut down in this manner.

Every town has its holiday fund, which in each case amounts to many thousands, Oldham saving between $750,000 and $1,000,000 for its outing, while Blackburn operatives have more than once saved some $750,000 for the same purpose. At one time these thousands of workers on holiday seldom traveled farther afield than the Isle of Man, Blackpool or the Yorkshire coast, but now many of them go to Switzerland or France—on one occasion 700 men from Burnley paraded before the President in Paris while great numbers visit all the English seaside towns.

Most of the Scottish towns take a week off in the same way. In July the visitor is often surprised at the crowded trains that pass him as he is journeying toward Edinburgh, and when he inquires why his train is an hour late he is told that traffic is very heavy as holiday week has begun. When Edinburgh's holiday is over Glasgow's turn comes, maybe, and so on until the season is over.

In the south of England there is one town that shuts down for a week. This is Swindon, the Wiltshire town that consists almost exclusively of Great Western Railway workers. Naturally when some take a holiday all must follow, so about the beginning of July some 25,000 people leave Swindon on one day, Weymouth and Weston-super-Mare usually being the favorite destination. About two dozen trains are required to carry away this holiday crowd.

King Edward's Card-Indexes.

Several persons of importance when first presented to King Edward expressed their amazement at the marvellous knowledge His Majesty possessed concerning their affairs, their achievements, and the members of their family. As people never obtained access to His Majesty without a previous appointment or invitation, the sovereign had plenty of time to order those under him to look up particulars of the "caller" and place the same before him. In this way the King became quite intimate with the affairs of the majority of the people who entered his palace.

It is not generally known that King Edward for many years ran a series of card-indexes, of the kind common in all large commercial houses. These were kept at Buckingham Palace, and when a person not attached to a royal family called upon the King, his name, together with a short account of what passed at the interview, particulars of his career and his achievements, and a short history of his family, were placed on a card and filed in the usual way. If the "caller" again visited the King, the card-index was consulted. In this way His Majesty was able to recall to mind who and what his visitor was, and prepare himself accordingly.

At several courts of Europe, including Britain, brief records of scandals affecting people are preserved, in order that the appearance at court of those compromised thereby may be avoided. The British royal records of unpleasant incidents are kept by the Lord Chamberlain's department.

People who invite the King and Queen to dinner must escort their royal guests into the dining-room first and see that they are placed in the centre of one side of the table, with the principal guests on both sides of them. It is considered etiquette for people to address the King as "Sir" and the Queen as "Madam."

Best Known Portrait.

In a discussion as to what is the most common and familiar portrait in the world, writes Arthur Loring Bruce, one man was sure Raphael's Sistine Madonna was the best known portrait in the world. Another was all for Leonardo's Mona Lisa. Still another contended that no likeness was so universally known as that of King Edward on the coins of Great Britain. The sphinx was mentioned and the Venus of Milo. The discussion was growing warmer when a mild and callow youth chirped up with:

"You are all wrong! All of you! The best known portrait in the world is the queen of spades."

He then proceeded to prove what, it seems, is common knowledge among the connoisseurs, namely, that the queen of spades is a bona fide likeness of the late Queen Anne of Britain. It seems that somewhere about 1710 the English and European stationers fixed on the image of the then Queen of England as a suitable one to inscribe on their playing cards. For 200 years or more her face has looked out at us, not altogether unpleasantly particularly in bezique—from the depths of the pack. How much longer, we wonder, will her physiognomy be shuffled down the corridors of time?

A Carlyle Snub.

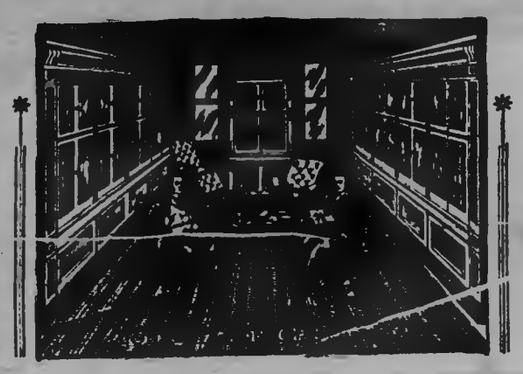
Carlyle had an inveterate hatred for Darwinism, which he described as the "gorilla damnification of humanity." Leonard Huxley in his life of his father recalls an incident that happened shortly before Carlyle's death. "My father," he writes, "saw him walking slowly and alone down the opposite side of the street and, touched by his solitary appearance, crossed over and spoke to him. The old man looked at him and merely remarking, 'You're Huxley, aren't you, the man that says we are all descended from the monkey?' and went on his way."

NOT BELLE ELMORE.

Alix, Alta., Nov. 14.—The truth of the situation regarding the location of Belle Elmore in this town was revealed today, when the identity of the woman supposed to be Crippen's wife became known. The woman was asked her name, and proved her identity to the satisfaction of the authorities. She was a victim of fainting spells, and this gave rise to the theory that she was Belle Elmore.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

WE REPAIR WEAK MEN



ONE SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS. Every case submitted to us receives the personal attention of our Medical Staff, who consider the symptoms, complications and chronicity, and then decide as to the disease and curability. Specific remedies are then prescribed for the case and are compounded by our own chemist in our own Laboratory. Such appropriate treatment cannot fail to cure, as specific medicines are selected to cure the symptoms that trouble you. We have no cure-all medicines like most specialists use, who send the same medicines to all patients alike and cure none. We have treated patients throughout Canada for over twenty years and can refer to any bank as to our responsibility.

The open season for the killing of deer closes to-morrow, 15th instant. It is said that fewer men killed this year than ever before.

Barrie's Petition.

The Local Option petition submitted to the Barrie Municipal Council had attached to it 702 signatures. Both sides are now getting ready for the struggle, which promises to be a hot one.

An Open Winter.

Dick McBride, president of the Lime Juice Club, told the Times, the other day that this winter will be open. His chief argument is that the rabbits are still brown in color and the swamps are full of water.

Dropped Dead in Lindsay.

Miss Thorn, a well-known young lady from Reaboro, dropped dead while entering the Foy shoe store, Lindsay, on Saturday afternoon. She was apparently in the best of health. Heart disease was the cause.

They Should Contribute.

Lindsay Public Library Board receive an annual contribution from the County Council of Victoria, on the ground that residents of the county have the privilege of the library, and therefore should help pay expenses of maintaining the building. Should not Peterborough do likewise?

Funeral of Mrs. (Dr.) Gardiner.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock the funeral of Emily Eliza Gardiner, relict of the late Dr. C. H. Gardiner will be held from the residence of Mrs. John Strain, 70 Robinson street, to Little Lake cemetery. The late Mrs. Gardiner died on Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Strain, as mentioned above, at the age of 73 years. The deceased has resided with Mrs. Strain for a number of years, after coming here from Bannockburn. She was of the old U.E. Loyalist stock. One brother, Mr. Marshall Browne of Picton, is the only survivor of the family, who, with her daughter and grandson, Mr. Arthur Wort, are left to mourn her loss.

Evidence Seems Against Beal.

At yesterday's session of the police court, Frank Beal was again up for trial, after a week's remand. It will be remembered that Beal, a week ago was charged with theft. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Basil Hall for the defence. It was claimed that when he left the White House for the Grand Hotel, a coat and vest two razors and some small change went with him. Mr. White of the White House, in the witness box, said he had missed nothing from the hotel. Leslie McKeen, a boarder at the White House, said he had missed a coat and vest, which he recognized in court. Robt. Anson, a roomer at the White House, missed two razors, which it was alleged were in possession of the prisoner. A local pawn broker testified to prisoner having sold him the two razors produced in court. Other evidence seemed to point against the accussed. A further remand of a week was asked for and granted.

Cobourg Against Pro. Hockey.

Cobourg Star: Port Hope has the professional hockey bug, and talk of going into a league with Belleville and other lake front towns. Professional hockey may be all right in cities, but when it strikes a town the size of Port Hope they might as well pull the rink down as it puts a black eye on hockey for all time to come. Port Hope has had its share of professional lacrosse and baseball, and both these games are but memories there now. Cobourg is counted on for the league, but we cannot see it from here.

SOCIETY EVENTS

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

Mr. B. Ashton Lillie of Norwood, was in the city yesterday.

Inspector A. E. Odell of Cobourg, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Martin, Ida, for a few days this week.

Miss Geraldine King, Oshawa, is the guest of Mrs. J. M. Reid, Downie street.

Mr. Arthur Blade, Jr., who has been farming near Frobisher, Alta., is in the city, and will remain until the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Milburn, of Perth, are in the city, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Stevens, George street.

Mrs. Shepard, secretary of the Y.W.C.A., Edmonton, spent Sunday in Peterborough, with her aunt, Mrs. W. C. Austin, 548 Weller street.

Miss Mabel Crothers, daughter of Rev. Dr. Crothers, St. Catharines, is the guest of Mrs. A. W. Cressman, Brock street.

Messrs. McMurdo and Walker, in Gospel Hall, seem to be doing a grand work in their evangelistic endeavor. Their audiences are increasing.

Mr. Fred Weir of Keene, is taking a course at the Peterborough Business College. Whilst in the city Mr. Weir will reside at 650 George St.

Among the guests registered at the National Hotel, are Messrs. J. Callender of Guelph, F. C. Jewett of Campbellford, W. S. Price and E. G. Spaulding, Toronto.

Among the numerous guests who registered yesterday at the Oriental Hotel, was Mr. A. H. Gilvray of Toronto.

Hon. J. R. Stratton has sent his groom, Mr. J. Breen to New York City to take in the horse show, and incidentally gain pointers for that local horse fancier.

Mrs. Trull, wife of Mr. Cameron Trull, local manager of the Canada Metallic Range & Stove Co., George street, has arrived in the city, where she will hereafter reside.

Yesterday afternoon the funeral of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Tillock, 477 Bolivar street, was held to the Little Lake cemetery. The bereaved parents will have the sympathy of their many friends.

Miss Peck, sister of Mr. C. A. Peck barrister, leaves for Vancouver on Thursday, where she will remain indefinitely the guest of her brother, Mr. John Peck, formerly of Peterboro. Miss Peck will be greatly missed by her many friends in Peterboro.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Last night the school girls' gymnasium class was held in the Y.W.C.A.

Miss Steinhoff's cookery class at Central School was well attended last night.

The general topic of public conversation yesterday was the splendid showing made by the charitable citizens of Peterborough on tag day.

The city commissioner of New York City is going to investigate the number of cases of rotten eggs sold, and put into cakes, &c., in that metropolis. At the price eggs are sold in Peterborough, the whiff of even an ancient hen fruit, is becoming a luxury.

It is fortunate that the large amount raised by tags on Saturday was for so popular and so commendable an object, as yesterday The Times heard of at least five different institutions, presumably of highest merit, that are intending to try a similar scheme for raising money.

LAND VAST IN WEALTH

TOUR OF HUDSON BAY COUNTRY IS AN EYE-OPENER.

Governor-General Treads Paths Limited to Indians and Wild Game, But Finds Navigation of Northern Sea Practicable For the Transportation of Grain and Ore — Development Work Certain In Near Future.

Nothing in the period of Earl Grey's Governor-Generalship of the Dominion of Canada has been more spectacular or more indicative of his interest in the vast extent of territory which he serves than the journey to and across Hudson Bay, which he has just accomplished.

By canoe and portage, whaleboat and sailing vessel Earl Grey traveled as a voyager of the old adventurous days over the same trails, packed hard by the moccasined feet of 100 years, in the same manner as did Hearne, the explorer, or Mackenzie the dauntless, or many another of the Hudson Bay company's pioneers of 200 and 300 years ago. It was a land at a standstill His Excellency passed through.

The country had never been explored from any point of view other than that of the hunter after fur peltries until Earl Grey and his companions passed through. Although its rivers have been the highroads of commerce for many years, little information other than the amount of the season's fur catch has been sifted from the country.

And this is most natural. For while Canada as a whole has been advancing rapidly, this district has been marking time. Wedged in between the great wheat acres of the south, ice-blown Hudson Bay to the north, the mixed farming country of the Saskatchewan to the west and the mining regions of new Ontario to the eastward, this vast and almost inaccessible area has held sullenly aloof from the white man and is tracked only by Indians and game.

Until viceroyalty appeared it was a terra incognita, a desert within an oasis. Now the magic wand of power and prestige waves over the country, and it becomes a land of gold, of wheat and of many riches.

Members of the party also bring back word of what the outside world has ever suspected to be the case—that it is a huntsman's and fisherman's paradise, a limitless holiday ground for millions of people. They also tell tales of meeting men—men of the frontier—miners and prospectors, who have staked out claims in quartz and sand. One old veteran on Pipestone Lake showed them mica, and the party itself discovered petroleum without having to be shown.

But the wealth of the country is of little use unless some means can be employed to get it out to the civilized markets of the world, and it is most interesting and encouraging to all Canadians to hear what Earl Grey and his companions have to say upon the possibility of the Hudson Bay route as an outlet for the western harvest and the products of the Keewatin and Ungava.

For 178 years Hudson Bay has been navigated by traders and whalers continuously with the exception of one year. Still scientists speak dubiously of the possibility of making use of Hudson Bay for commercial purposes, and old and wily navigators smile caustically and shake their heads when they are told within a decade the northern route will duplicate the St. Lawrence trade.

Ships have frequented the bay for three hundred years and more, and scarcely a ship has experienced serious trouble, although the majority of them have been sailing vessels without auxiliary power to keep them moving through the ice. There are no artificial aids to navigation in the bay, no detailed or accurate charts being available, no currents, no magnetism carefully worked out.

Earl Grey has had compiled a list, a very incomplete list, but none the less valuable, of the most experienced and intelligent of the American and Scotch whaling masters who have been accustomed to navigate the straits each year. From these the opinion appears to be unanimous that during the autumn and summer months at any rate should drift ice occur in these parts, open water, suitable for the passage of steamers, can always be found between it and the shores.

Earl Grey has put an end to another misbelief. Hudson Bay never has and never will be frozen over in winter. He has this on the authority of Indians, Eskimos, trappers and traders who, either themselves or their ancestors, have inhabited the shores of the bay for centuries. The bay may sometimes be more or less covered with floating ice, but its great depth and the strength of its currents make its surface proof against frost.

Premier's One Reason for Suicide.

When the Royal Naval Club dinner is held in London next month to commemorate the Battle of Trafalgar, Sir George Reid, the High Commissioner for Australia, will be the guest of the evening. Physically he is short, and was once described as "round as a barrel." He is easy-going, witty, and loves a joke. "If I was your wife," said a rough woman once at a political meeting, "I'd poison you." "My dear madam, if I was your husband," retorted Sir George, "I'd give you the trouble; I'd commit suicide."

For five years he was Premier of New South Wales, and during that period he made himself notable for his uncompromising attitude upon Free Trade. It was his proud boast on many a public platform that "I have taken a million of taxation off the stomachs and backs of the people." This statement was once challenged by a ragged individual at a mass meeting who cried out, "That's nothing!" Sir George then put down this incarnate encouragement of free imports by the gibe: "Look at him, gentlemen, look at him; and yet a million's nothing to him." The hall was set rocking with laughter.

Republicans and Democrats Waiting for a Statement From the Ex-President.

New York, Nov. 14.—Mr. Roosevelt's lost fight in New York seem to have had such a telling effect on the ex-president that he refuses to talk. The Republicans stand aghast waiting for a statement.

After many years of sitting in the outer darkness, the Democratic party of the United States sees the light again, and is filled with hope and joy. It has made remarkable gains in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Ohio and the middle West and will control the lower house of the next congress. Whether it will justify the confidence that has been reposed in it remains to be seen. The country needs more than one sufficient political organization, and it has turned to the Democrats now because the Republicans have been demoralized by too long a tenure of power.

The break in the control the latter exercised was due in the first place to the arrogance of the standpat leaders, who persistently defied public sentiment. These men were very unpopular before the struggle over tariff began, and that struggle increased the enmity that was felt towards them. We cannot estimate the effect of factional fighting on the elections at this time, but it is certain that the progressive Republicans read the public mind aright and took the course that was dictated by sound statesmanship.

While the standpatters were standing pat and glorying in the tariff bill that they had manufactured, the bill was being roundly denounced as unjust all over the land. It was thought that it was a bill of special privileges, one that benefitted the few at the expense of the many, and it became an important factor in the discussions that were raised over prices. Every housewife is talking high prices in a decidedly unfriendly mood, and the Democrats have found it easy to make party capital out of this fact. How far the tariff really has affected prices it would be difficult to say, but the feeling was that it might have exercised considerable influence, and also that it was far from fulfilling the Republican promises of a downward revision.

The discontent due to particular causes was probably intensified by a desire for a change on the principle that variety is the spice of life. This is indicated by the general result.

Baked $5 Bill.

Yesterday morning a lady living in the south end of the city, sent her little girl, seven years old to a nearby corner grocery or butcher shop. She gave the child a crisp $5 bill to pay for the goods ordered, giving the little one instructions to be very careful with the bill and also with the change on her return. As the little girl was on her way to the store she had the misfortune to drop the $5 bill. More fortunately the money blew into a muddy mess of particularly objectionable high smelling filth. The child, with tears streaming from her eyes and chest palpitating with heart broken sobs, handed the be-fouled bill to her mother. The latter, after comforting the child, carefully washed the bill under the kitchen water tap. She then placed it to dry on the central shelf of the kitchen oven. Misfortunes never come singly. An elder daughter, not noticing the $5 bill shut the oven door. The front door bell rang. The family welcomed a caller and a long chat ensued in the parlor. On return to the kitchen a smell of burnt paper assailed their nostrils. With a horrified gasp, the lady of the house opened the oven door and found a nice little shrivvelled mass of burnt $5 bill.

Lemieux Act Growing in the Public Favor

MINISTER OF LABOR ISSUES AN INTERESTING ANNUAL REPORT.

Application Received to Extend the Act—Other Countries are Seeking Information From Canada.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—The first report of the Department of Labor since it has been under the undivided attention of a minister has just been issued. The number of disputes dealt with under the Lemieux Act was thirty, and the total references since its enactment eighty-two. As an evidence of the growth of favorable sentiment towards this measure, the report states that applications have been received by the minister for the extension of the Act to industries other than those to which it now relates.

Inquiries continue to reach the Department almost daily from different parts of the world for the fullest information as to the operation of the Act, showing how ineffective existing legislation on the subject in most countries is conceived to be. Bills modelled closely on the lines of the Canadian Act have been introduced in the legislatures of Massachusetts and Wisconsin.

The chief disputes arbitrated under the Act last year were: railways 12, coal mining 9, and freight handlers 2. Only in four cases was there a failure to end the disputes. The total number of disputes in 1908 and 1909 was 60 each, as compared with 104 in 1901, 123 in 1902, 160 in 1903, 103 in 1904, 87 in 1905, 139 in 1906 and 151 in 1907.

During the year 1909 there were reported to the department 1,279 fatal and 2,718 serious non-fatal industrial accidents. This is an increase of 7 fatal and 441 non-fatal accidents over the previous year. 283 fatalities occurred in the railway service, 256 in agriculture, 160 in mining and 130 in lumbering.

An interesting chapter of the report contains a review of the special report on wholesale prices 1890-1909.

One hundred and forty-eight wage schedules for insertion in public contracts were furnished by the department. The total number of fair wage schedules prepared since the inception of the policy is 1,750, of which almost one-half have been for the Department of Railways and Canals, and over one-third for the Department of Public Works.

GIRLS MUST GIVE UP HOBBLE SKIRT

(Special to The Times.)

Atlantic City, N.J., Nov. 15.—Hobble skirts today went under the ban in Atlantic City—at least in stores and offices where young women are employed.

Declaring that it is a mathematical fact that a girl in a hobble can take a step only half as long as an ordinary skirt, and that therefore her efficiency as a clerk is reduced just half, department store owners and other employers today issued an edict against the hobble during working hours.

The girls haven't decided yet whether they will give up the hobble skirts or their jobs.

LOCAL BOARD OF TRADE MAY ASK THAT CONSTITUTION OF PROV. BOARD BE AMENDED

Ontario Associated Boards of Trade Recognized as a Good Thing ---Messrs. Hodgson and Hagerman Speak on Technical Education—Local Board to Meet Again Next Tuesday

The Peterborough Board of Trade met last night. There were present: Chairman Gillespie, Peter Campbell, Ald. W. H. Bradburn, D. W. Dumble, W. G. Ackerman, R. Pinchin, Robt. Ruddy, F. D. Kerr, D. O'Connell, R. M. Roy, E. C. Shriegley, W. R. Morris, R. F. Downie, Mr. Hagerman, J. E. Hodgson, J. H. McClennan, F. H. Dobbin.

Secretary T. Q. Quartermaine read the minutes of the preceding meeting which were confirmed as read.

The main object of the meeting was to consider the proposition that Peterborough Board of Trade become affiliated with the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, recently organized in Toronto, and appoint delegates to that board.

Chairman Ald. Gillespie gave a brief review of the recent meeting of representatives of local boards of Trade held in Toronto, when it was decided to form a provincial organization to be known as the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade. Mr. W. J. Gage of Toronto, has been appointed chairman protem of the new organization, and a constitution prepared and adopted, the tenets of which Chairman Gillespie read to the local board in session last night. This constitution is subject to amendment at any future meeting of the new organization, as also is the present appointed staff of officials.

Chairman Gillespie here went on to define his views of objects of a Board of Trade, and emphasized the need for active co-operation in an effort to increase the local board's membership. He said:

"GENTLEMEN:—

"As you are probably aware the membership of the Peterborough Board of Trade does not exceed 70 members, and for a town of the industrial activity of Peterborough, this reflects an altogether surprising lack of interest in an organization that if enthusiastically supported, can be of great benefit not only to the manufacturing interests, but to all the component parts of the community. We all admit that there are numerous questions which are of vital importance to Peterborough, but which owing to lack of initiative on the part of any group of individuals, have not been given the prominence or study they deserve.

"A Board of Trade which is at all representative of the whole body of citizens, is a most logical source from which questions of public interest and matters of civic necessity should eminate and the governing body of any town could use the Board of Trade as a means of feeling the public sentiment on any question under discussion if it wished to do so, and the Board of Trade, through its various committees could be the means of intimating to the council civic legislation of a desirable character. It is a matter of common knowledge that the average bylaw is neither understood thoroughly nor as a matter of fact does there seem to be a disposition on the part of the general bodies of citizens to study and analyze the average bylaw.

"I think you will all agree with me that the Board of Trade need not confine its interests absolutely to questions of trade, but could very properly direct its attention to all questions of public and civic interest, for when matters have been analyzed all municipal acts have a direct bearing for good or the reverse on all the interests, business or otherwise.

"The Board of Trade, through having no lack of qualification or numbers can view any question with the the widest possible vision. For instance, we recently have witnessed considerable agitation in the public press regarding a policy Peterborough should adopt. This is a question in which the Board of Trade can very beneficially interest itself, and through open discussion can determine upon the merits and demerits of such a measure and I am sure that you will agree with me, that there is hardly any question that comes up in which the Board of Trade as a whole, and the members individually are not directly interested.

"To be efficient, the board should embrace among its members, representatives from all classes of the community, professional, industrial, commercial, trading, etc., and it appears to me that in a city the size of ours that 70 members is altogether a disproportionately small representation, and I would like to propose that we make a determined effort to bring the membership up to 200 members. This should be by no means a difficult task. I have here a list which includes, the manufacturing and jobbing, the retail and the professional people who are not members of the Board of Trade. There are 33 manufacturing concerns who for one reason or another are not represented in this body, 120 retail stores and 74 gentlemen belonging to the profession, which certainly should be interested in Board of Trade work.

"I would therefore like to suggest that a committee be formed and a large committee to deal with the question of increasing the membership. If the proper enthusiasm could be stimulated among the members, it should not be a difficult matter for each member to bring in two others. However the method of increasing the membership I think could be left very properly to the committee that you appoint for this purpose.

"Another reason that I neglected to mention for the bringing of the membership up to the 200 mark, is that we should endeavor to place ourselves in a position to be as prominent a figure in the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade as possible.

"I would like some gentleman to express his views on the subject that I have just dealt with."

Mr. D. W. Dumble thought the organization of a Provincial Board of Trade a move in the right direction. Such an organization would present the local board's consensus of opinion on broad questions as the opinion of the country as a whole. It will give weight to the operations of local boards on matters of Provincial interest. The constitution of this organization, however, should not be amendment regarding the proposed voting power of a local board being restricted to the number of its representatives based on the strength of its organization. For instance questions may arise when the unanimous adoption of a resolution regarding broad measures by a local board should have proper weight in the action of the Provincial Association, and such local board's influence not be limited to the number of representatives sent to Toronto.

Mr. O'Connell expressed his concurrence in Mr. Dumble's opinion. Many questions of Provincial interest require the united action of local boards through a central body, such as a Provincial Board of Trade.

According to the membership of the local Board of Trade, Peterborough, with its roll of 70, is entitled to five representatives on the Provincial organization. With a membership of 200 Peterborough would be privileged to send eight representatives to the central body.

Mr. F. D. Kerr enquired if the representatives, who might be called to Toronto quite frequently would be expected to pay their own expenses.

The chairman thought that such expenses should be paid by the local board.

Treasurer Peter Campbell, here offered that the present state of Peterborough Board's funds would not permit of such an expenditure. Two dollars a member per year from 70 members certainly would not permit of the board undertaking the maintenance of its representatives at Toronto, when called there in attendance at Provincial meetings.

Industrial Commissioner Duggan replied that is the more reason for increasing our membership.

Mr. F. D. Kerr characterized local Boards of Trade as disorganized bodies, generally speaking, and he thought the country somewhat overgoverned already. To give the Provincial Board of Trade the status of a mouthpiece in the controlling of the affairs of the Province would be clothing it with false weight. The Board of Trade of Toronto is very large and would be able to meet there readily in full strength on any question, and outweigh the views of other representatives of the Province. The Peterborough Board of Trade, if active and energetic, could be very useful in local affairs. But he could not see that any beneficial result would accrue from disorganized local bodies sending representatives to Toronto, and voicing their opinions as the views of the whole Province. As to the expense in connection with the proposition, he offered that such money could better be spent at home on matters of local import than invested in the maintenance of representatives at the Provincial meetings.

Mr. O'Connell did not agree with Mr. Kerr. He said that great Provincial questions will have to be dealt with at Toronto by a Provincial Board of Trade, or not dealt with at all. He did not take the expense seriously and thought it would not be necessary to send five representatives to Toronto, but one or two only.

Mr. Dumble contended that Mr. Kerr was taking a wrong view of the question. The Provincial would not deal with local matters, but broad measures only. Still he thought the

Mr. Roosevelt on the Recent Elections

MAKES HIS FIRST COMMENT ON THE RECENT BLOW TO REPUBLICANS.

Fight for Progressive, Popular Government Will Go On to a Triumphant Conclusion.

New York, Nov. 15. — Theodore Roosevelt makes his first comment on the recent elections in the forthcoming issue in the Outlook:

"On every hand, personally and by correspondents, I have been asked to make a statement regarding the election. So far as I am concerned, I have nothing whatever to add to or to take away from the declaration of the principles which I have made in the Osawatomie speech and elsewhere east and west, during the past three months. The fight for progressive popular government has merely begun, and will certainly go on to a triumphial conclusion in spite of initial checks, and irrespective of the personal success or failure of individual leaders.

HUNTERS GOT BACK.

Eagle Lake Hunt Club Home Last Night With Only One Deer.

Every November Mr. Geo. Fitzgerald's carriage shop at the corner of Brock and Water streets, is the cynosure of the eyes of a large part of the city. When the Eagle Lake Hunt Club returns from their annual outing it is customary to see from six or seven to ten deer. The Eagle Lake Hunters got back last night with two wagons containing eight canoes and camp outfit, and, sad to relate, in view of past memories one deer and two deer skins. The party got three deer of which they ate or gave away two. Mr. Fitzgerald says that their unusual shortage of game was due to shantymen all round their camping place. This frightened the deer away. Whilst the party did not get their usual number of deer, they all, to a man, showed the improvement that a few days' roughing it in the northland always effects. The party report that partridges are plentiful, but they did not have the time for such game.

Another Big Local Option Campaign is in Progress in Province of Ontario

ON MONDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1911, ABOUT 90 MUNICIPALITIES WILL VOTE ON QUESTION.

Contests Are in Progress in Both the Extreme Eastern and Western Parts of the Province.

Another great Local Option Campaign is in progress in the Province of Ontario.

On Monday, January 2nd, 1911, between 80 and 90 municipalities will vote upon the question of Local Prohibition and the inevitable result would seem to be the still further weakening of the Liquor Traffic and strengthening the Temperance Forces.

This year, contests are on in both the extreme Eastern and Western parts of the Province. The town of Amherstburg in Essex County, and the town of Lancaster in Glengarry County will both vote, together with many other places scattered in between.

Eastern Ontario has more than its share of contests. Every municipality in the County of Glengarry is into the fight, including the town of Alexandria, the villages of Lancaster and Maxville, and the townships of Kenyon, Lochiel and Lancaster.

Just over the border the village of Vankleek Hill in Prescott County and the township of Roxborough in Stormont County are also voting.

Other important eastern points in which the battle will be fought are the towns of Arnprior, Perth, Smiths Falls, Napanee, Gananoque, and the villages of Merrickville, Newburg, and Newcastle.

In the Northern part of the Province considerable progress has already been made, and if the campaigns now on are successful, it will mean the entire cleaning up of large areas. Among other places voting are the towns of Barrie, Bracebridge, Huntsville, Burks Falls, Beaverton and Sutton.

There will not be much doing in the Northwestern part of the Province, the only fights being in the villages of Port Elgin and Paisley, and the township of Albermarle.

The city of Guelph is, however, the centre of a hot fight. One of the strongest and best organizations in the Province is that of the Citizens' Committee in Guelph, and the campaign is being systematically carried on along practical lines. Present indications are that Guelph will swing into the dry column in January.

Just near Guelph, voting will take place in Guelph Puslinch townships, Erin and Drayton villages.

Dufferin County has only three licenses, these are in the village of Grand Valley, which place is looked upon by both parties as a strategic point, and will be the scene of a hard fought battle.

Places marked * are incorporated Towns and Villages.

In Western Ontario the most interesting group of contests is that of the township of Aldborough with the villages of Rodney, West Lorne, Wardsville and the town of Bothwell. If these places are successful it will mean a big white spot in the map of Elgin County.

The hottest place in the Province, however, is the County of Welland. Here a County Convention was held last spring, at which it was decided to bring on a fight in every municipality in the county as far as possible with the result that ten municipalities will vote in January, including the towns of Welland, Thorold, Port Colborne, and Bridgeburg, with the townships of Thorold, Crowland, Humberstone, Stamford, Willoughby, and Bertie.

The striking feature of the campaign in the fewness of the attempts to repeal Local Option. Last year there were 111 municipalities in which repeal contests were possible, but in only twelve was the matter brought to a vote and only two By-laws were repealed. This year there are 128 municipalities in which Local Option By-laws has been in force for three years or more, and where repeal contests might be brought on. If the law were really a dismal failure as its opponents prophesied it would be, it might naturally be supposed that at the first opportunity the people would get rid of it. But this year out 128 possible places repealing By-laws will be submitted to only about six. These are as follows:

Anenster Township.
Colborne Township.
Howick Township.
Beverley Township.
Goulbourn Township.
McKellar Township.

With the thorough organization that the Temperance forces seem to have, and the aggressive spirit that is characterizing the movement, the probability is a considerable addition to the dry area of the Province of Ontario after May next.

Says Son of H. H. Roger, Oil Magnate—Thinks War Will Come Before Canal is Finished.

(Special to The Times.)

New York, Nov. 15.—Considerable comment was heard in military circles today over the statement made last night by H. H. Rogers, son of the late Standard Oil magnate, H. H. Rogers, that Japan will provoke a war with and whip the United States before the opening of the Panama Canal.

Rogers, a captain of the National Guard, has been in Europe, studying military conditions. He said all foreign officers believe war with Japan was sure to come, and that the United States would be badly beaten. Europe, he said, had a high regard for our navy, but regarded our army as a joke.

"What we need," said Rogers, "is compulsory military service, forcing young men to serve three years. He is a poor American, indeed, who is not willing to give up three years to safeguarding his country."

TROOPS TO CHECK CHINESE MOB

(Special to The Times.)

Hong Kong, Nov. 15.—Word has been received here that the missionaries connected with the American Presbyterian mission, which was recently attacked by Chinese at Leinchow, are safe.

The mob which destroyed the girls' school, the church, and the residence connected with the mission, is said to have numbered thousands.

The troops, which were hurried from Canton to the scene of the trouble, are expected to arrive at Lienchow soon.

GOVERNOR CAMPBELL FACED WITH A GRAVE SITUATION—TO STOP MEXICANS.

Enemies Are Taking Advantage of Wave of Sentiment Against the United States.

Austin, Texas, Nov. 15.—Governor Campbell will call out the State troops as a result of a long distance message from the sheriff of Edwards county, announcing that armed Mexicans are reported to be marching on Rock Springs because of the recent lynching.

He got into communication with the State Rangers at once and ordered the sheriff to organize a posse to stop the Mexicans.

A SERIOUS SITUATION.

Austin, Texas, Nov. 15.—A serious military situation faces Texas today as the result of the anti-Mexican outbreak in Edwards county and the alarming report that many of the members of the National Guard have threatened to disobey an order to assemble.

Members of the militia have been dissatisfied since the conviction of Sergeant Manley, in Dallas. Manley was charged with running his bayonet through a spectator while President Taft was there a year ago, and after receiving a severe sentence many of his comrades resigned. The friends of Manley declared that the whole body of State troops would quit.

SWEAR IN POSSES.

Governor Campbell received long distance telephone reports today from sheriffs of various counties in the south. He sent word to El Paso, Presidio, Brewster, Valverde, Kinney and other boarder counties to be ready on a moment's notice to swear in posses in cases of outbreaks. Word came from the border county that many big ranches had discharged their Mexican employee, fearing violence.

FLOURISHED ARMS.

At Del Rio it was reported that several Mexicans had flourished arms and threatened to shoot up the town.

TEAMSTER MAY DIE.

Serious Accident at Hastings on G. T.R. Yesterday.

Yesterday morning, a serious accident occurred at Hastings, at the G.T.R. crossing, when a man named King, who has a wife and two children, was struck by a train on that road. The train striking the man is that running between Peterborough and Belleville. The injured man was a teamster employed in unloading a car of cement. King is injured seriously, his scalp being disfigured by a cut ten inches long. It is feared that his skull is also fractured badly. Doctors Wade and Edmondson, in attendance on King, hold out little hope for his recovery.

New York Canadian Club.

New York, Nov. 15. With former Vice President Fairbanks heading the list of speakers, the annual banquet of the Canadian Club of New York at the Hotel Astor to night promises to be one of the most notable functions of its kind to be given in the metropolis this winter. More than the usual amount of public interest is manifested in the affair from the fact that a modement is to be launched at the banquet for the celebration in 1914 of the completion of 100 years of peace between Great Britain and the United States.

In addition to Mr. Fairbanks the scheduled speakers include Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, former governor Guild of Massachusetts, Dr. J. A. Macdonald of Toronto, Hon. A. C. Bell of Nova Scotia, and Hon. William Lyon McKenzie, Minister of Labor of Canada.

Miss Comer to Wed Canadian.

Montgomery, Alta., Nov. 15.—Many guests from out of town are arriving here to attend the wedding of Miss Eva Comer, daughter of Governor and Mrs. Comer, and Edward Drummond Fraser. Mr. Fraser is a prominent business man of Toronto, Ont. The wedding is to take place tomorrow night at the governor's mansion in this city.

The Farmers' Institute Meetings and Progam

Mr. W. Collins, the indefatiguable secretary of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute, has issued circulars relating to the winter sessions of that most estimable body. The first meeting is to be held in Ennismore town hall on November 30th, at 1.30 and at 7 p.m. Other meetings will be held at Lakefield, on Thursday, December 1st, at 1.30 and 7.30.

RACE AGAINST DEATH.

Son of Millionaire Manufacturer Is Trying to Reach His Father's Bedside.

Atlantic City, Nov. 14.—Wilson Potter's race against death from far away Alaska to Atlantic City to reach the bedside of his father, Colonel Thomas Potter, Jr., millionaire oilcloth manufacturer of Philadelphia, who is putting up a brave fight with a fatal illness, at his home here, will probably be successful. While reports from the sick room declare the Old National Guardsman's condition critical and he is very weak his physicians are confident that he will be conscious and able to greet his son.

Wilson is due to arrive here tomorrow or Sunday. Located in White Horse, Alaska, on October 28, after Indians and mounted police had searched the wilds for weeks, young Potter immediately started for home when apprised of his father's serious condition. At that time it was thought that Colonel Potter would hardly survive to see his only boy, but when news reached him of Wilson's start for Atlantic City, his condition became somewhat improved.

The son missed his boat at Skagway by three hours and was forced to wait several days for the next steamer. Two days ago he wired home from Vancouver and is now approaching Atlantic City as fast as special trains can carry him.

THE MORNING TIMES

The only morning daily newspaper published between Toronto and Ottawa, and is largely read throughout Eastern Ontario.

The Times will be sent to subscribers in the district at 25 cents per month, and to outside points at $3 per year, strictly in advance.

Strangers visiting Peterborough are cordially invited to make their headquarters at the office of the Morning and Weekly Times, where they will be furnished with writing materials if needed.

The Times is a member of the Associated Press, and receives news each morning up to four o'clock.

SECURING LOCAL INDUSTRIES.

The Times is in receipt of a letter in which the writer finds fault with the Council for creating the office of "Industrial Commissioner." Our correspondent charges that the money is being "worse than wasted," for everybody, including the members of the Council, is leaving the matter of securing new industries to the Commissioner, with the result that there is "nothing doing." Perhaps the Commissioner may feel inclined to raise the public into his confidence far enough to let them know if he has anything in view in the shape of an industry or two.

HARDLY FAIR.

It is said that the Canadian representatives at the recent reciprocity pow wow at Ottawa will be bound by an agreement that may be arrived at, while the American delegates will not be so bound as the united States Senate will have to pass upon the measure. This is unfair at the start and know one knows how much more so it may be at the finish.

THE DISLOYAL NATIONALISTS.

The Quebec Nationalists refuse to help the Empire in case of war with foreign countries with either Canadian troops or the Canadian navy. They would, however, not object to British assistance in the event of the invasion of the Dominion by a foreign power. "Consistency thou art a jewel!"

POWER FOR EASTERN ONTARIO.

When the municipalities of Eastern Ontario get together in the matter of power, the Hydro-Electric Commission will supply them, says Hon. Adam Beck, chairman of the commission. "If any of the eastern municipalities, including Brockville, have any doubt, they can easily put us to test by accepting the offer of the commission to supply power based on the estimated cost," says Mr. Beck. "Offers have been repeatedly made to the eastern municipalities based on the supply to be secured from a company operating on the Trent River, while the last estimate was based on an option for 15,000 horse power which the commission secured from the New York and Ontario Power Company which has a right to develop at Waddington, N.Y. The principle underlying our whole policy is that power shall be available to all at cost, but it is not feasible unless there is co-operation among the municipalities in any one district. This has not yet been adopted by the municipalities in the eastern districts of the province."

SEEKING A HEART OF GOLD.

A work, assisted by a grant from the Dominion Government, is now proceeding near Dawson City, Yukon, which may result in one of the richest gold discoveries of modern times, says the Ottawa Journal. In the proverb of the placer camp, "gold is where you find it," meaning that hardly any laws of probability exist as to the location where gold may be sought. Or perhaps this is still more truly expressed in a humorous adaption of the miner's saying, "gold is where you don't find it."

Although the Klondyke was, and is, a placer camp of unequalled riches no "mother lode" that is no originating central gold deposit was ever found. But in examining the lay of the six hundred square miles of country in which the gold bearing streams are located, a curious fact was discovered. The eight or ten principal gold rivers and creeks everyone take their rise in a certain small gill, and centre out from it as the spokes of a wheel leave the hub. But curious to say no gold was found on this hill itself.

Now miners and government have combined to dig through the quarter mile heart of this dome a tunnel, the theory having been advanced that in the centre of this hill there lies or there once reposed a great deposit of rich gold, which in the course of ages and through violent earth changes, became deeply buried.

There are three alternatives. The gold may have existed in this hill, but now be all washed down in the creeks, the gold may still be there, but so deeply buried as to prevent all human discovery; and the gold may still be there, and be uncovered by the present extensive operations.

The best mining experts in the country believe that in the present operations there is at least a fair chance of another great Yukon gold discovery. The interest in such, if made, will be general rather than particular, for already every inch of the big central dome and the surrounding creeks as well is staked by men who long have anticipated the present operations. Thus, however great the find, there is no chance for another world stampede to the Northern Canadian goldfields.

SEEKS THE DIPLODOCUS.

South African Doctor Says He Is Sure It Is Not Extinct.

If Charles Brooks, explorer, traveler, scientist and hunter of Johannesburg, South Africa, is not an apostle of the late Baron Munchausen or of Dr. Lemuel Gulliver, "ship's surgeon and late captain of many ships," the diplodocus, the parodactyl and other prehistoric animals or their descendants still may be roaming the earth.

Mr. Brooks has written the British Government asking that an expedition explore the Rhodesian swamps along the southern borders of the Sahara desert, where, he is convinced, animals are yet alive that are the descendants of those now known to naturalists only as fossils; also, he says, a strange tribe of "copper colored people" inhabit the interior of the desert.

Brooks tells of reports regarding great animals which inhabit the swamps, which never have been explored by Europeans and are shunned by the natives. The latter, however, have seen or thought they saw vast animals beside which the elephant "looks like a small cat."

"Having seen the picture of the eighty foot diplodocus now in the Paris Museum of Natural History," says the letter, "it brings back to my mind many stories I heard from natives and pygmies while hunting on the southern border of the great Sahara desert regarding monsters which are still in existence; also of a copper colored race of people who are living in the interior of the desert near a large lake.

"The animals were described as being so large that I ridiculed the idea and put it down to a stretch of the imagination or a desire to induce me to go in search of both animals and people. Since seeing Carl Hagenbeck's report of what he had heard from the same source I am convinced that the monsters described are still in existence, and it has proved an incentive to me to renew my acquaintance with the interior.

"The desert may still prove of immense value to whichever nation has sufficient go to get there first and spend money exploring it. I think Hagenbeck was rather misinformed as to the region occupied by the monsters referred to with the exception of one, as I have been all over northern Rhodesia. My own information, with the one exception, pointed to the creatures being inhabitants of or of the surroundings of the lakes of the interior of the desert. That the Rhodesian swamps exist there is ample proof.

"The descriptions I received differ slightly from those given to Hagenbeck, but this may be due to my being able to speak and understand the native languages. There is absolutely no doubt about the bloodthirsty savages, as I have been in contact with them myself, and the only marvel is how we ever managed to escape with our lives.

"The animals described to me are, first, one like an elephant, but of enormous size, the elephant appearing like a small cat by the side of the other, the second corresponds in every detail to the pictures one sees in the Bushmen's caves throughout Africa of the unicorn, and the third what we conceive the dragon to be like.

"This latter was in the swamps of what is now northern Rhodesia or on the southeastern border of the Congo."

Brooks declares he is very anxious to explore the country and to prove the truth or otherwise of the stories which he has heard and which also have been reported by other hunters and explorers.

Peer's Collection of Rare Coins.

The Earl of Ellesmere, is a novelist of considerable ability, having published, under the signature of Charles Granville — his two middle names— quite a number of stories. Most of them have a racing interest, their author being one of the keenest turf lovers. Blessed with a fine sense of humor, Lord Ellesmere is an excellent raconteur.

One of his best stories concerns a small race meeting which is held annually in one of the Midland towns. A number of jockeys and horses had lined up for the start of a steeplechase, but a delay occurred owing to a tall, raw-boned beast obstinately refusing to yield to the importunities of the starter. The patience of that gentleman was pretty well exhausted. "Bring up that horse," he shouted, "bring him up; or you'll jolly well get into trouble if you don't!" The rider of the stupid animal, a local coal or a carman, yelled back, "I can't help it. This here's been a cab horse, and he won't move till the door shuts and there ain't no door." Lord Ellesmere possesses a fine collection of British coins, some specimens of which are so rare as not even to be found in the British Museum. The collection of pictures in his magnificent town residence, Bridgwater House, is world famous.

A Wet Harvest Relic.

A curious token has been found at Barton, inscribed "Tunstead and Hopping, 1912. One Halfpenny. Payable at the Corporation House." This was the year of the wet harvest in England, the worst ever known. It rained incessantly all September, October and during most of November, and November 29 farmers were carting barley, a sharp wind frost prevailing. Wheat was 63 shillings a coomb, and so bad was it in quality that dough made from the flour resembled slime. Every Monday morning the overseers and church wardens met at the parish churches to devise means to provide employment and relieve the starving poor.—London standard.

Likes English Life.

Queen Victoria tried hard when first she went to Spain, says The Bystander, to live an English life, and even now, as Christmastide comes round, attempts, with trees, plum-puddings, holly and the like, to establish an English Christmas in the Spanish Court. Every morning, in place of the Latin coffee and roll, a solid English breakfast is served to her majesty, and she also has afternoon tea in English fashion.

PARIS IN FEAR OF BIG FLOOD.

Terrific Rainstorm Causes Alarm — Seine Overflows the Low Lying Districts.

Paris, Nov. 14.—A terrific rain storm that struck Paris and its environs early today upset all the calculations of the weather experts and caused fear of a recurrence of the flood of last January.

Troops were immediately ordered out to fight the ravages of the water, and within a short time 5,000 were at work under the direction of M. Faure, minister of public works. Cavitgies in the quays are being blocked with cement. Ten thousand more men are ready to aid in the work if needed.

The overflow of the Seine was so sudden as to take many residents in surprise. At the Pont Royal the Seine today has approximately ten feet above normal.

The flood is one of the most mysterious in the history of the city, although the low-lying district of the city by the Seine continued rising rapidly today.

The worst suffering is in the suburbs. The danger zone broadened gradually today.

A Paper Organization.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—"Buck" Irvings League appears to be merely a paper organization. Several towns mentioned on the circuit have denounced the organization as follows:

R. M. Glover, Peterborough: "There is no likelihood of a professional team being established in Peterborough whatever."

George F. Stott, Cobourg: "They need not count on Cobourg, either for the professional or Armstrong's new league. We are satisfied where we are, in the O.H.A."

Miss Isabel J. Smith has returned from an extended professional visit to Campbellford, Ont.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

Orillia Considers Scheme of Government by a Commission

Orillia Packet: At the meeting of the Town Council on Monday evening, a resolution was passed requesting His Worship to arrange for a conference between the Town Council, Board of Trade, the ex-Mayors, of the town and representatives of the press, with a view to considering the advisability of adopting immediately a system of administration of municipal affairs by a Commission appointed by the Council for placing the water, power and light development under the care and control of a commission elected by the people. The conference will be held Friday evening. The resolution was introduced by Councillor Frost, who said that it was a fact patent to all that the present system of administration of the town's affairs was a failure. It was a failure, first, he feared, because of the lack of sympathy between the chairman of the various committees and the engineer. It was a failure also, because the burden of municipal work in Orillia was so heavy it was almost an impossibility to get men to undertake it. It was out of the question for the average man to devote to public affairs time necessary for managing such a large business as Orillia now had. He said "the average man." It had been a matter of astonishment that Mayor Goffat should be able to give so much time to public affairs. But then, His Worship was in the fur business. (Laughter). The municipal corporation had, itself, the largest investment of any business in town. The electric light plant and waterworks plant alone represented about half a million dollars. He believed that a marked improvement could be brought about by the adoption of either of the two plans referred to in his resolution. With the function of the Council confined to legislation, and the executive work undertaken by the commission, it should be able to get men to go into the Council who could not be induced to do so under existing circumstances. He instanced Guelph, Red Deer, and Edmonton, as places which had made a success of government by commission. While he had no doubt that the Council themselves could evolve a plan for the commission, he did not believe that they would lose prestige in any way by conferring so important a matter with men outside the Council, who were interested and who had had experience in handling municipal affairs.

Mayor Goffat said that as a result of his experience of the municipal affairs, and of his investigation into the subject, he had become convinced that government by commission was the only plan whereby the town could hope to get its affairs well administered. He himself had made a proposal to the Ontario Government for legislation along that line. He had suggested that provision should be made for the election of a commission composed of three men, of whom one should retire each year, thus ensuring that two of the members be always men of experience. Under the present law, this could not be done. The commissioners must be elected for two year terms. He had also asked the Provincial Secretary to pass legislation whereby the municipality might be permitted to lay aside a portion of the profits from municipal enterprises each year as a renewal and contingencies fund by providing that it could not be drawn upon except with the consent of the Railway and Municipal Board. If this had been done in the past it would have been a very nice thing for Orillia at the present juncture to be able to draw upon such a fund for the money required to renew the transformers at the Ragged Rapids. The Provincial Secretary had promised favorable consideration, but so far no action has been taken. However, he thought it a good idea for Orillia to consider what could be done, and would have pleasure in calling the proposed conference.

TOLSTOI WILL NOT GO HOME.

Moving Picture Photographers Greatly Distressed the Aged Novelist.

Moscow, Nov. 14.—Count Tolstoi, the self-exiled novelist and philosopher in the sanctuary of the Szamoro dinski monastery at Optina Pustina, today spurned the pleas of his wife and refused to return to his home.

Pathetic appeal was made by his daughter Alexandria, who followed her father to the monastery, but the aged count refused to yield.

Countess Tolstoi at her home in Yasnaya Poliana is in a state of collapse. She declared today that Tolstoi's mind had been wrecked by the machinations of the Russian government and that she would follow him and make a last plea to her husband. When the news of this was taken to the count, who is busily engaged upon his new book, with the help of a typist, he said that there was no use of his wife's following him.

AGED RECLUSE CONTENTED.

"I am happy and I cannot see why others should mourn when my happiness should give happiness to my friends," said the aged recluse.

"My life has been made miserable for me by perpetual guests, perpetual visits and visitors. I could not walk abroad upon my estate or in the villages without being annoyed by moving picture photographers. They have no respect for my feelings, and it distressed me beyond measure. I have lived for 82 years upon earth and have tried to do my duty as a Christian and a citizen. I feel it my duty towards myself to maintain the step I have taken.

STILL LOVES HIS WIFE.

"It is true that I have refused to communicate with my wife, but I do not love her the less. My daughter Alexandria came to me and wept upon my hands, but I told her gently of my continued determination to live the ascetic life I have taken up. It is right that I should do this. I seek peace and quiet, but I have done all I could for humanity in the past. It is in justice to myself that I have retired."

It has been reported lately that Count Tolstoi even exaggerated his own radical views towards duty for humanity and that he sought to quarrel with his wife because she had raised rentns and sought cheaper labor for the estate.

Faller details of the flight of the aged novelist and philanthropist were learned today following the revelation of his whereabouts.

Count Tolstoi rode to Optina Pustina in a third-class railroad carriage accompanied by his physician. From there he walked six and one-half miles to the monastery; which is a combined convent. There are 500 nuns in the convent near the monastery, among them Tolstoi's favorite sister, Maria, who has been there for a number of years.

The count's daughter, Alexandria, and his typist, suspecting the missing philosopher, journey to Optina Pustina and found him in the monastery.

TORONTO MAN IN SERIOUS CASE.

Edward Finlayson and Emma Ocomb Guilty of Conspiring to Abduct.

Whitby, Nov. 14.—An abduction case which has caused much interest in Whitby and Oshawa with features extending to Toronto, was aired here Saturday before his honor Judge McCrimmon. The result may be serious for two of the parties implicated. Edward Finlayson, an insurance agent of Toronto, a married man, and Emma Ocamb, a woman well-known to the Toronto police, were found guilty of conspiring to abduct a young girl, Edna Frink of Oshawa, who will not be sixteen years of age till December next.

The offence took place in August last. The Whitby police raided the Chinese laundry here one night in August and in the building were found Edna Frink, Geo. Paradis of Oshawa, and the two Chinese of the laundry. Paradis and the girl had been smoking opium and were stupid. Paradis, the evidence showed, had brought the girl from Toronto in an auto.

The investigation of the charge of frequenting an opium joint brought out the facts that Edna Frink had left her home ostensibly to work as a domestic in Whitby, but really to go to Toronto with Mrs. Ocamb, who had been visiting at the Paradis home in Oshawa. Ed Finlayson had visited the Frink home and had arranged the details with Edna. Upon the arrival in Toronto of the girl and her escort they were met by Finlayson. All three went to a Toronto hotel, where the two women remained a day or two. Then a room was secured in a house on George street where Edna Frink remained for some days, being frequently visited by Finlayson.

When Edna arrived in Toronto she wore short skirts. She was soon supplied with a longer dress. While in the city Finlayson and the girl visited a Chinese opium joint on Queen street. Here Paradis entered upon the scene and brought the girl to Whitby.

These facts were all put in evidence at the trial.

Col. Farewell, K.C., County Crown attorney, conducted the prosecution, while Mr. T. C. Robinette, K.C., defended the three prisoners, Finlayson and Mrs. Ocamb were found guilty on the charge of conspiring to abduct, and Paradis was acquitted.

TO QUIT U.S. BECAUSE "TEDDY" WAS REJECTED.

Admirer of Roosevelt, Disgusted By Overthrow of His Hero Proposes to Get Out of Country.

Orange, N.J., Nov. 14.—Disgusted at last Tuesday's apparent repudiation of Col. Roosevelt, Wintrop E. Scarritt, wealthy resident of this place, today put on the market his magnificent home, and announced his intention of leaving the country. Scarritt inserted the following advertisement in the New York newspapers:

"Disgusted Republican offers his beautiful country house to some victorious democrat, and intends to leave a land that turns down teddy. "For terms and detailed description, address U. Toby, 44 Munn Ave. Orange, N.J."

Scarritt declares that he was in England at the funeral of King Edward, and saw Roosevelt, when he was hailed and acclaimed on all sides as the aroused voice and conscience of the American people. To return to the United States, he declares, and find that this prophet like others, "is not without honor save in his own country," was too much.

SAYS WIFE WOULD AID CRIPPEN.

Detroit Man Claims to Have Seen Belle Elmore in Chicago.

Philadelphia, Nov. 14.—Francis Tracey Tobin, the lawyer who last week, declared that Belle Elmore, for whose murder Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen is awaiting execution in London, was alive, to-day announced that he had received a letter from a Detroit man whose name he declined to make public, stating that Crippen's wife was living under an assumed name in a Chicago boarding house; that she had admitted that she deserted Crippen because he treated her cruelly, and that she was willing to return to him if he would promise to be kind to her.

The writer, who asserted that he had seen Belle Elmore, quoted her statements as follows:

"I am ashamed to let the London authorities know that I am living. I know my friends and all the world will hate me. My face will be in all the newspapers.

"The only way that I will give in and go back to live with him is on provision that he will treat me well.

"I will save my husband's life."

Attorney Tobin said that he and other friends of Crippen had engaged detectives to find the doctor's wife and force her to leave her hiding place.

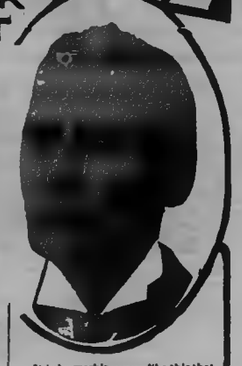
A MODERN MIRACLE

FACTS SHOWS HOW ZAM-BUK CURES ARE PERMANENT

1. He had Eczema for 25 years.
2. His hands were so bad he had to wear gloves day and night.
3. Doctors said he could never be cured.
4. For 25 years he tried for cure in vain.
5. Then he tried ZAM-BUK.
6. ZAM-BUK cured him.
7. TO-DAY, three years after his cure, he says: "I AM STILL CURED—there has been no return."

Mr. T. M. Marsh of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, has had this wonderful experience of Zam-Buk. Mr. Marsh has lived in Montreal for over 30 years, many of them at his present address. He is well known and is willing to satisfy any enquirer as to the genuineness of his cure. He suffered 25 years from eczema in the hands and had to wear gloves day and night, the itching was so terrible when the air got to the sores. Doctors said there was no cure. Three years ago Zam-Buk cured him. Interviewed a few weeks ago he said:—

"From the day I was cured by Zam-Buk to the present moment I have had no trace of the eczema and feel sure it will never return. When I think of the marvellous cure Zam-Buk worked in my case I am more and more impressed by the value of this great household balm. I have had letters of enquiry from all over Canada, and am glad to personally corroborate the published facts of my cure."



It is by working cures like this that Zam-Buk has won for itself a world-wide reputation. Unequalled for ulcers, abscesses, piles, blood poison, inflamed eyes, cold cracks, chapped hands, babies' eruptions, varicose ulcers, burns, cuts, etc. All druggists and stores at 50c box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

LAID AT REST

With Military Honors — Funeral of Samuel C. Sharpe.

Yesterday afternoon a solemn cortege passed down George street, one of the saddest and one that awakens the emotions possibly more than does the funeral of any adult, viz., the last journey of a man who has, for many years served his King and country, under the Union Jack. At 2.30 yesterday afternoon representatives of every branch of the local troops met in front of the house on College street, where the late Staff Sergt., Samuel C. Sharpe died Sunday morning, to pay the last sad respects to a comrade in arms. The local Oddfellows, representing both Otonabee and Peterboro Lodges were present in goodly numbers, the brethern of the triple links attending the funeral in cabs.

At the house, Rev. Mr. Couch, Pastor of George St. Methodist Church, conducted a short service. The pall bearers were Staff Sergt. Cotterell of the 57th, Staff Sergt. Matchett of the 57th, representing the I.O.O.F.; Sergt. Matchett and Sergt. Halpin representing the 57th Regiment and Sergt. Batten and Quartermaster Sergt. Collins, representing the 24th Battery. Col. Sergt. Smith was in charge of the funeral parade, whilst Col. Sergt. Soucie was in charge of the firing squad of 20 men of the Regiment. The firing party was in charge of Sergt. Major Edwards. Major Mills was in command.

At the grave Rev. J. C. Davidson, Chaplain of the 57th Regiment, read the service. After three volleys, "retreat," "first post," "last post" had been fired over the grave the Oddfellows paid their last respects to a departed brother in the usual way.

The Dragoons were represented by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt., Major Medd, Capt. Hall, Lieut. Cleghorn and Lieut. Johnston, whilst Major Young officially represented the 24th Battery.

THE FUNERAL CORTEGE.

The line of march of the funeral cortege, which was one of the largest and most impressive ever seen in Peterborough, was as follows: The firing squad, twenty strong of the 57th Regiment; bugler; the brass band of the 57th Regiment,, who, in full force, played the Dead March from Saul, as the solemn procession wended its way down George street; the Bugle Band, with drums draped in crepe; hack filled with floral emblems, sent by personal, society, regimental and other friends; the 24th Battery in uniform, with gun carriage bearing the last mortal remains of the departed, the coffin being draped about with the Union Jack; a large deputation from the 57th Regiment, in which the deceased served his country for nearly a quarter of a century; a deputation from the 24th Field Battery; officers of the different local troops, including Rev. J. C. Davidson, chaplain of the 57th Regiment; about twenty or more members of the former Volunteer Fire Brigade, under leadership of Sergt. Wilt Motheral, to which the deceased belonged for many years; members of the family in hacks, and a procession of hacks and other conveyances which extended the length of many blocks.

Stoves for Sale.

On account of putting in a steam heating plant in The Times' building, we have a number of stoves for sale at bargain prices. First come, first served.

Laid at Rest.

The funeral of the late John Finlay, ex-M.P., took place in Norwood yesterday afternoon, several attending from Peterborough. The remains were followed to the grave by a large number of people.

Fine Wall Map.

There has just been issued from the Times' job rooms, a fine new wall map of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham. The map has long been needed, and as a result is selling rapidly.

Scow Loads of Potatoes.

Mr. W. J. Edminson, the hustling Harwood merchant, shipped another scow load of potatoes to Peterboro by steamer Monarch on Monday. The potatoes sold for 75c bag.

Steamer Monarch Busy.

The Otonabee Navigation Company's steamer Monarch has had a busy season of it, and is still at work. Yesterday she took a scow of lumber to Rice Lake, and will return to-morrow with freight.

Oh What a Difference West!

At a meeting of the Guelph Junction Railway Board yesterday, the treasurer reported a balance on hand of $22,185.81, the amount to come from the September quarter, $9,365.37. Compare this with a city not a thousand miles from, say, Bridgenorth, and that old song "Oh what a difference in the morning," might be changed to "Oh what a difference a few miles West!"

New Stove Store Now Open.

Mr. J. W. Pethick and Mrs. Pethick of Toronto, have arrived in the city and are located at 195 London St. Mr. Petbick is local manager for the Canada Malleable Steel Range Co., of Oshawa, and has already opened a store for the purpose of display and sale at 331 George St. In the store are to be seen cook stoves and ranges and gas stoves of all makes and sizes, and all guaranteed to perform their respective duties for which they are sold.

Looking Out for Swindler.

The police of the county are on the lookout for a young swindler, who gave his name as "Mr. Foy," son of Rev. Dr. Foy, of Armagh, Ireland, and who was successful in carrying off considerable jewelry from the Rev. J. A. Lackay, of Chelsea; a sum of money from Rev. Mr. Boyce, of Wakefield, and some prominent gentlemen in Ottawa. He is thought to have come west on C.P.R. and may be in Peterborough.

Local Turf Club Much Alive.

Possibly as enthusiastic a sporting organization, and one that has shown, in the past, it cannot be downed by seemingly unsurmountable obstacles, is the Peterborough Turf Club. At their meeting in the office of Mr. G. W. Hatton, it was decided without a negative vote, to hold a winter meet on the local track, and also to hold matinees. Dr. Johnston ably filled the chair, and other members present were Messrs. G. W. Hatton, Fred Jones, Martin Connors Herb. Kendry, Wm. Whitton, Jas. Suther, and Nat Nicholls, Lakefield.

Fruit Trees.

If you intend planting trees next spring you had better place your order early on account of the big demand for nursery stock. We are the largest growers of Peach, Apple, Plum and Cherry trees, also Berry Bushes and Ornamental Stock, in Canada. We make a specialty of Peach and Apple trees. Come and see us, or write for catalogue Brown Bros. Co., Browns' Nurseries, Welland Co., Ont.

Varsity and R.M.C. Here Saturday.

It is expected that Varsity's second team and Royal Military College will play off here Saturday for the Intercollegiate Intermediate championship. Those interested yesterday communicated with Dr. McPherson, and were assured by that gentleman that the grounds could be had, and in good condition for the match on Saturday. Peter Campbell of this city, will probably play for Varsity. The Toronto Globe states that the above match will be played here on the date noted.

The Ontario Bank.

The Peterborough shareholders of the defunct Ontario Bank will be interested in learning that a meeting is to take place this week for the purpose of considering the result of the judgment of the Privy Council, and to decide upon future action if there is to be any. The shareholders are not disposed to sit quietly down and respond to the double liability call for $800,000, made by the liquidators.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

A smoker in honor of Lt.-Col. J. T. I. Halliday, M.D., will be held at the officers' quarters at the armories on Thursday.

The new Bell Telephone directories will be distributed to subscribers of the Bell telephone this week. The Bell Co., with their proverbial enterprise, have improved on the last issued directory.

The Ketchecum Lake Hunt Club has returned bringing with them the full legal allowance of deer. The venison they ate while out hunting is not included in the count of their deer.

As the bugler blew the usual call in such circumstances, as the military funeral was about to start from the residence of the late Sergt-Sharpe, the horses dragging the gun carriage became restive and frightened. Fortunately the "Battery boys" got the animals under control.

A girl in Detroit yesterday, ransacked the house where she worked, tried to suicide by turning on gas in the kitchen range, to make it look as though a burglar had killed her. Why all this trouble. She could have come to Peterborough and accomplished her purpose easily by listening to the gas expended in the speeches of some of the city fathers.

SHE QUIT.

But It Was a Hard Pull.

It is hard to believe that coffee will put a person in such a condition as it did an Ohio woman. She tells her own story.

"I did not believe coffee caused my trouble, and frequently said I liked it so well I would not, and could not quit drinking it, but I was a miserable sufferer from heart trouble and nervous prostration for four years.

"I was scarcely able to be around, had no energy and did not care for anything. Was emaciated and had a constant pain around my heart until I thought could not endure it.

"Frequently I had nervous chills and the least excitement would drive sleep away, and any little noise would upset me terribly. I was gradually getting worse until finally one time it came over me and I asked myself what's the use of being sick all the time and buying medicine so that I could indulge myself in coffee?

"So I thought I would see if I could quit drinking coffee and got some Postum to help me quit. I made it strictly according to directions and I want to tell you, that change was the greatest step in my life. It was easy to quit coffee because I had the Postum which I now like better than the old coffee.

"One by one the old troubles left, until now I am in splendid health, nerves steady, heart all right and the pain all gone. Never have any more nervous chills, don't take any medicine, can do all my housework and have done a great deal beside."

BOARD OF TRADE

constitution should be more fully considered before definitely endorsed, and before the local board affiliates with the new organization. Under the provision of the present constitution Toronto could swamp the whole Province by its voting power and its numerical influence.

Mr. O'Connell moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn,—That a committee be named to consider the constitution of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, and report any suggested changes at a meeting to be called for next Tuesday night.—Carried.

On motion of Ald. Bradburn, President Gillespie, Messrs. O'Connell and Dumble were named on this committee, with power to add to its numbers.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

Mr. J. E. Hodgson of the Collegiate Institute, and Mr. Hagerman, of the Normal School, were present in the interests of technical education.

Mr. Hodgson gave a very interesting and exhaustive address on the subject. In part he said technical education gives man the scientific side to aid him in his practical work; and it is not limited to offering advantages to the workman, but also to the manager and his office staff, when instructed in shop arithimetic, decimals, bookkeeping, percentage, a knowledge of raw materials and percentage. The practical man needs instruction in mechanical drawing and patternmaking especially, and an ability to follow plans and put them into effect. Mechanical training includes education in tool, lathe and bench work, to say nothing of a knowledge of electricity, which is fast becoming the most important factor in the industrial world. We are only at the beginning of the electrical era, which has a very much larger range than at present in practical use. Then there is the science of mechanics. The whole country is behind in chemical industry, while the field along the line of applied chemistry is tremendously wide in the face of Canada's vast mineral resources. This field, however, is gradually opening and one should educate young men as to how they can apply chemicals to industry. To get the best results from managers, foremen and mechanics, we must give them technical education as a working asset.

Mr. Hodgson concluded by naming ten subjects that might be taught at nights—two hours every week—making a total of 800 hours' instruction the year at an instructor's salary of $1 an hour. To this might be added $200 for expenses, which would offer the technical education that Peterborough is now in shape to give at the reasonable sum of $1000 a year.

Mr. Hagerman of the Normal school, also gave a very intelligent address on manual training. To be brief, he characterized Germans as foremost in the world today in technical education. And they are the most industriously efficient race on this earth. The secret of their success in this branch of education is that they do not take the workshop to the school, but adjust school conditions to meet the requirements of shop and factory. Manual training in public schools has got to be educational first. At the Normal school we instruct in model and bench work but we have no lathes. Mr. Hagerman considered that lathes should be installed in all elementary schools to familiarize students with the use of machinery. In conclusion he offered a list of technical works which he advised being purchased for the public library.

On motion of Mr. Dumble a hearty vote of thanks was extended the two visitors for their interesting and instructive addresses.

The board adjourned again to meet again next Tuesday evening.

JUDGE BECK MAY RESIGN.

Former Local Citizen in the Limelight of Politics Out West.

Referring to a former local citizen the Lethbridge Daily Herald of Nov. 11th, says:—"It is current gossip in Edmonton that Mr. Justice N. D. Beck will resign his seat on the Supreme Court Bench. Rumor has it that Mr. Justice Beck will again resume his legal practice."

The Lethbridge Herald, in a full page article describes how Judge Beck differs with the government regarding the Great Waterways Commission's report.

Indian Runner Says Ship Sank with 80 Souls

No Definite Word from the Long-Missing Wolverine---Indian Says Vessel Went Down in Lake Winnipeg

Selkirk, Man., Nov. 16.—The steamer Wolverine, with a crew of fourteen and a passenger list of sixty-six, is believed to be lost in Lake Winnipeg. No trace can be found of the vessel.

A native runner brought the report here today that the vessel had foundered, and that possibly all on board had perished. The runner declared that it was possible for some of the survivors to have taken refuge in some of the small islands on the lake, if the ship had really gone down. In this event the survivors would not be able to leave the islands until the lake froze over.

Woodmen from the lake region declare that if the ship foundered and any of those on board escaped to islands in their neighborhood of the disaster, they would die of starvation before they could make their way to land.

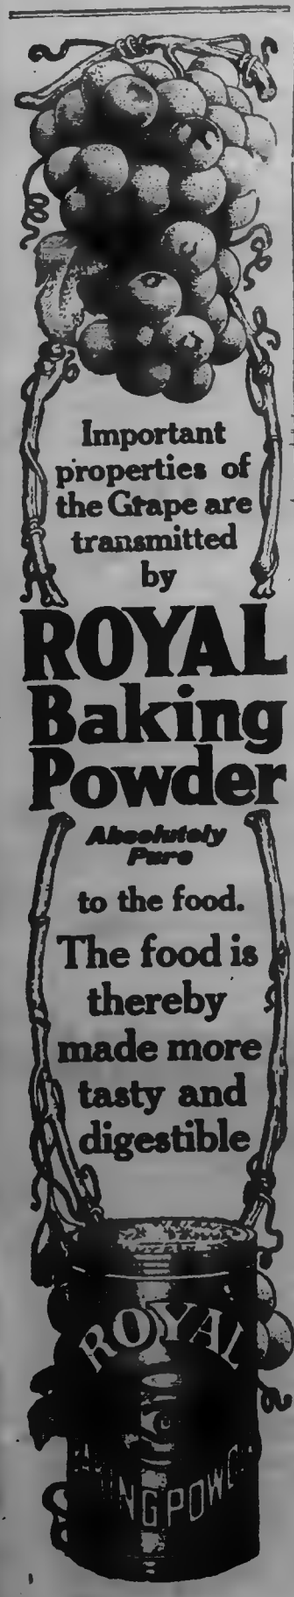
The runner brought no details of the disaster.

WOMAN IS KNOWN HERE.

Mrs. B. B. Jones, Shot in King St., Toronto Restaurant, Has Sister Here.

In our issue of Tuesday we gave a full report of the tragic occurrence in a King street restaurant, Toronto, whereby James Shaw shot two of the waitresses, both of whom are in the hospital in that city. Now, one of Shaw's victims was a former Peterborough woman, Mrs. B. Brooks Jones, who formerly lived here with her sister, Mrs. David Jones, 199 Perry street.

Mrs. Jones of Perry street, states the woman lived here from childhood until about two or three years ago, when she went to Toronto and secured employment in the restaurant where she was shot. Owing to ill-health she returned to Peterborough, and this last time had only been in Toronto four months. While here she was employed in the Lock Works, and had a great many friends in this city. Mrs. Jones of this city, is the only near relative of the young woman, their parents having died some years ago. Both sisters married men by the same name, that of Jones, this of course being a singular coincidence.



ROCHESTER HAS MYSTERIOUS CASE

GEORGE A. SCHUCHART, WEALTHY GROCER MURDERED IN HIS STORE.

Three Men Under Arrest—Cash Drawer Pulled Out, But No Money Taken—Neighbors Show No Interest.

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 16. — Although the police have three men in custody as suspects in the case of George A. Schuchart, aged 50, who was shot down in his grocery store in this city, about ten o'clock last night, they are in reality at sea. Schuchart was closing the store, while his wife was preparing a luncheon for him in their apartments upstairs. She heard the shots, ran to the kitchen, jumped through the window to the roof, and called to her mother, who lived next door. She then went back and ran downstairs. On the way down she met a neighbor, who told her Mr. Schuchart was lying on the sidewalk, and that he had a fit. She told him of the shooting. The neighbor and another man carried the grocer upstairs, and he died, just as the priest concluded administering the last rites of the Church.

Although the police were quickly on the scene, they found only a gray wool cap and a blue bandanna handkerchief. The store was in confusion, the cash drawer being pulled out, while evicences of a struggle were to be seen on every side. What puzzles the police most is the strange indifference of the neighborhood, a respectable American one, as to the crime. No one seemed surprised.

A SLIGHT CLUE ONLY.

One slight clue is given by a man who cares for furnaces, who told of a stranger whom he met in a nearby saloon, and with whom he had several drinks. The man went with him while he cared for several furnaces, and left him just before the shooting, walking towards the grocery. The shooting came within a few minutes, yet the stranger had utterly disappeared. There are rumors of a woman in the case and the fact that there was no robbery of the cash drawer, although it was open, and that a large sum of money remained untouched in the man's pockets, when it was generally a known fact that he carried large sums, is given as supporting this theory.

The three men in custody were arrested shortly after 3 o'clock, as they were about to take a train at the New York Central station for Genava. They gave their names as Patrick Lynons, Benjamin Roach, and Charles Murphy. Each is about twenty-five years of age, and claims to live in Geneva. Lyons is said to be a professional burglar, out of Auburn State Prison only about a month.

Two of the three shots fired by the murderer struck Schuehart. One just grazed his right side, the other entered the left side.

CROSSEN CAR WORKS WILL REMAIN IN COBOURG.

Cobourg, Nov. 16.—There is no truth in the rumor that the Crossen Car Works will be removed to Winnipeg. That is simply a street canard. No one has bought the industry. Mr. W. J. Crossen, president of the company, states that he knows nothing about the reported removal, and that the works will be operated here.

VICTIM OF MURDER A SON OF OTTAWA MAN.

Seattle, Wn., Nov. 16.—Ernest Welch, alias Tommy Walsh, the longshoreman, who died from a beating he said was administered by a gang of thugs Saturday night, is the son of Professor Thomas Welch, of Ottawa, Ont., according to the dead man's wife, Mrs. Margaret Welch. She says that Welch was born in Liverpool, and at an early age ran away to sea. He did not communicate with his parents, Mrs. Welch relates, until ten years ago, when he was found by his father, who wrote him.

GILBERT'S MAJORITY IS CUT DOWN TO 71.

Quebec, Nov. 16.—A despatch from Drummondville says that the recount of the ballot boxes in the election of Drummond and Arthabaska resulted in the reducing of Mr. Gilbert's majority to 71, and three polls are still missing, the assistant returning officers having failed to make some essential contestations.

The official majority had been announced at over two hundred.

The vote is now so close that there is a bare possibility of Gilbert not retaining the seat.

THE DOMINION PARLIAMENT OPENS ITS THIRD SESSION

MR. JOHN ARMSTRONG IN DYING CONDITION.

Removed to His Home in Toronto From Montreal—May Not Live Until End of Week.

Montreal, Nov. 16.—In a dying condition, John Armstrong, secretary of the Ontario Labor Bureau, was removed to his home in Toronto last night. It is not expected that he will live to the end of the week. For the past three weeks he has been in Montreal under treatment at L. Hotel Dieu, and later the guest of J. O'Neil, one of the managers of the T. Eaton Company. The doctors pronounced his case hopeless. is sister, Mrs. J. Elliott, of Brantford, and his neice came to take him home.

MISS WILKES' HORSES CAPTURE MANY PRIZES.

New York, Nov. 16.—Miss Katherine L. Wilkes, of Galt, Ontario, a sister of Matthew Wilkes, who married the daughter of Hettie Green, was a most conspicuous bidder for prizes in the trotting classes shown at the National Horse Show today.

She divided the honors with Horatin Bain, of Poughkeepsie, receiving a blue, three reds and a white ribbon, while the Bain farm got three blues and a red.

A GOOD SPORTSWOMAN.

Miss Wilkes, who is an enthusiastic horse-woman, has the distinction of being the only woman riding over the grand circuit, her only rival, Lotta Crabtree, having practically retired last year. She watched the work of the judges from a position along the ringside, and when the decisions went against her horse, accepted her defeat with the philosophy of a good sportsman.

"Pretty good, better luck next time," she remarked to her escort, as her thoroughbreds were led away.

Her first prize was in class 4, three year-old stallions, with Jim Todd, a graceful bay bred on her own stock farm. Gent, shown by Miss Charlotte E. Ward, of Rome, Ga., was given second prize.

A BROKEN ENGINE.

Fortunate Outcome of Serious Accident at Jackson Park Yesterday.

When the G.T.R. flyer that leaves at 7.10, got to Jackson Park yesterday morning, travelling at a fair rate of speed, the axle of the front driving wheels of the engine broke. The fracture occurred outside the frame on the right side of the engine, allowing the right front driving wheel to run wild and as a consequence serious trouble followed. The driving shaft was wrenched off and other parts of the gearing were badly broken. A spoke was also broken out of the rear driving wheel.

Had the train been travelling at a high rate of speed, it is hard to prophesy what the consequences might have been. Fortunately the shaft went downwards, through the ties, into the roadbed. The damaged engine was brought back to the local engine house.

CHAUFFEUR HAS DISAPPEARED

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 16.—A chauffeur, who has been in the employ of John O. Scheuck, the millionaire packer, whose wife is accused of poisoning him, has disappeared mysteriously.

Steps were taken by the police today to ascertain his whereabouts as he is expected to be an important witness in the case.

Lundy Wilson, the missing man, has been the personal chauffeur of Mrs. Scheuk, since her husband bought her a magnificent touring car. A short time ago, the police say he admitted that Mrs. Scheuk had told him that it would be to his advantage if he should drive over a cliff with her husband in the machine.

THE PRO. HOCKEY PLAYERS REBEL

DECLARE THEY WILL GET TOGETHER AND FORM ANOTHER LEAGUE—CLAIM THE SALARY LIMIT ABSURD.

Ottawa Will Try and Have the $5,000 Limit for Ten Men Rescinded at Next Meeting—More Money in Shantying.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—Despite the fact that the National Hockey Association at last Saturday's meeting recommended its adoption, the opinion now prevails in the capital, that the five thousand dollars salary limit is due to cause a heap of trouble before matters are finally adjusted.

The constitution allows each team to carry ten men, which means that each player cannot receive much more than $500. On the average they may get this, but no more.

Now, Renfrew and Ottawa paid last season, respectively $12,000 and $15,000 How are they going to operate a successful team on $5000 per? Renfrew cannot hope to get the Patricks Miller or Taylor, on that basis, and Ottawa would hardly have the nerve to offer Stuart, Walsh, Kerr, or Smaill $500 each.

Some of the Ottawa officers are in favor of a salary limit, but others are opposed, and at the next meeting of the league, the clause may be rescinded. Members of the Ottawa team seem to regard the salary limit as a big joke.

"No, I'm not going to play hockey at all this winter," laughling replied Bruce Stuart, when questioned last night as to his intentions. "I am going up the bush for the winter, there's more money in shantying."

Another member of the Ottawa team declared that the players would get together, and form a new league of their own.

Scientific Party All Eaten by Cannibals

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 16.—The fate of the twelve members of the Austrian scientific party which landed from the ship Albatross in the Solomon Islands, had been cleared up by the discovery that they fell victims of cannibals. Every man in the party was eaten.

This discovery, unraveling a fourteen-year mystery, was made by Dr. Northcott Deck, of the South Sea Evangelical Mission.

Dr. Deck was told of the fate of the scientists by natives, who later took him to a secluded spot and showed him human bones—the remains of barbaric feasts.

The Albatross expedition was headed by Baron Von Norbeck. Others in the party were Lieut. Budick, Midshipman de Beaufort and nine sailors.

Invading Army Has Not Been Located

EDWARDS COUNTY IS AN ARMED CAMP OF SOLDIERS.

Two Thousand Men are Ready and On the Alert for the Mexicans.

Rock Springs, Texas, Nov. 16. — Although the invading army of three hundred Mexicans, reported to be on the way here to avenge the burning of Antonio Rodriguez, could not be located by range riders early today, this county is an armed camp with 2,000 men armed and on the alert. The sale of drink has been stopped, and no firearms will be sold to Mexicans.

Rangers arrived here today despite the protests made to Governor Campbell that the National Guardsmen and the rangers would "only be in the way." The Texan army here is armed to the teeth and each man knows how to handle his weapon.

Ranch hands, who were sent towards Val Verde County, 100 miles away, to get some trace of the supposed approaching army of Mexicans, returned today, declaring that the Mexicans had either never crossed the Rio Grande or had become alarmed and turned back.

A MOTLEY MOB.

The Mexican mob was composed of various Queros and adventurers picked up around Las Vecas, Ciudad, Diaz, and other Mexican points. This report came from Del Rio where Americans saw a body of Mexicans. It is believed now that the report was gradually exaggerated until the band of Mexicans, in all likelihood bent upon peaceful pursuits of their own, became an "invading army."

All of the romantic setting of an frontier tale of adventure was to be found in Edwards County today. Ranchers gave their men a holiday and the cowboys rode into town all ostentatiously displaying guns of the calibre of small cannon. The arrival of the rangers added further to the picturesque setting.

The rangers were inclined to be skeptical, and criticized Governor Campbell for sending them upon what they termed a "wild goose chase."

Over the long distance telephone today Sheriff John S. Robinson, of Val Verde County, where the Mexican army was supposed to have crossed the border, said he could find no trace of the supposed invaders.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

MANY IMPORTANT MATTERS TO COME BEFORE THE HOUSE.

The Government Program Will Not Be as Extensive as Usual—Tariff and Banking Act to Be Given Attention.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 17.—The third session of the eleventh parliament of Canada will be opened today by Lord Grey. The occasion will be marked with the usual ceremonial. The customary military escort will accompany the Governor-General from Rideau Hall to the parliament buildings and return. As his excellency enters the senate chamber there will be booming of guns from Nepean Point. A brilliant attendance of society will listen to the delivery of the speech from the throne. The latter will contain among other things, the announcement that reciprocity negotiations have been entered into the United States and during the session a bill will be put through legalizing the work of the negotiations.

The government programme of business does not promise to be so extensive as usual this session. In addition to possible action in regard to the tariff the important measures to be laid before parliament will include a bill to revise the Banking Act, a bill providing for more adequate governmental supervision of the manufacture and sale of explosives, a proposal for government control of terminal elevators, a bill looking to the conservation of the forests, and several minor measures left over from last session.

Numerous questions of transportation will doubtless come up for discussion and action. These will include the question of the government's policy in regard to the construction and operation of the Hudson Bay railway, the deepening of the Welland canal, the carrying out of the government's policy of constructing a 35 foot channel in the St. Lawrence up to Montreal and a provision for the proposed international tribunal for the control of railway rates in international traffic.

The much-discussed question of the extension of the boundaries of Manitoba, Quebec and Ontario may be brought up for final action, providing the interested provinces reach an agreement in the matter.

Private legislation promises to be particularly extensive with reference to railway projects.

The session is given additional interest by the probability that it will be the last before another general election. The opposition, therefore, may be expected to prolong it to a considerable extent with a view of getting campaign material. Adjournment will probably be reached by the end of April, which will be sufficiently early to permit Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other members of the ministry to attend the imperial conference to be held in London next May and the coronation ceremonies in June.

DENTAL CAMPAIGN IN SCHOOLS.

Surprising Results in Examination of Teeth of School Children.

Toronto, Nov. 18.- The dental campaign for good teeth and clean mouths in Toronto public schools got off to a good start yesterday morning, and the discoveries made by the examining dentists were startling to say the least.

"Simply alarming," said Dr. A. Webster, who with Dr. C. A. Kennedy, is supervising the work. In 30 children whose mouths were examined in the first hour and a half at Elizabeth street school yesterday morning, only one child had normal powers of mastication. One boy pronounced to possess as good a mouthful of teeth as was found all morning had eight cavities in them. The child had eighteen cavities in his 20 temporary teeth. A little girl's teeth were so bad that she could not close her mouth, while a six-year-old lad had not a sound tooth in his head.

Modernization of Turkey.

Constantinople, Nov. 17.- The government is planning to put through a notable programme of political, educational and economic reforms at the session of the Turkish parliament which assembles to-morrow. Among other things the parliament will be asked to give its approval to several important concessions recently given to English and American capitalists for the construction of railroads, telephone systems and other public utilities in both the European and Asiatic dominions of the Sultan.

Double Murderer Will Hang.

Montreal, Nov. 17.—All arrangements have been completed at the Montreal jail for the execution tomorrow of Timothy Candy, the Englishman who shot and killed Constables Fortin and O'Connell on May 6th, last. The double murder was committed while the constables were attempting to arrest Candy for the theft of some boots and shoes he had stolen from a factory where he was employed as a watchman. The condemned man, who had not been in the country a great while when the crime was committed, has a wife and children in England.

King George Summons Privy Council To Meet

HAS NOT BOUGHT COBOURG WORKS

WILLIAM MACKENZIE KNOWS NOTHING OF IT—DENIES MONTREAL REPORT.

The Report That Crossing Car Works Will Move to Winnipeg is Denied at Cobourg.

Montreal, Nov. 16.—Mr. Nat Currie, president of the Canada Car Co. announced last night that the Crossen Car Works at Cobourg had been purchased by a syndicate composed of Lazard Freres, Wm. Mackenzie, and W. M. Aitkins. The report that the works will move to Winnipeg has been denied.

When this despatch was shown to Mr. William Mackenzie, president of the Canadian Northern Railway Company, he emphatically denied that he was one of the syndicate said to have purchased the Crossen Car Works at Cobourg.

"I myself know nothing of the deal, and have taken no part in it," he told a press representative. "As for the others I do not know. I am repeatedly approached in these matters, but I invariably turn them down. I own no car manufacturing company.

WON'T GO TO WINNIPEG.

Cobourg, Nov. 16.—It has been expected for some time that a reconstruction of the Crossen Car shops here would take place at some date not far distant, but the removal of the shops from Cobourg is not expected. Nothing has been announced here as to any change in proprietorship, and Mr. Crossen yesterday denied any change.

LITTLE BOY'S LIFE WAS CRUSHED OUT

DAVID GOLDBERG, AGED FOUR, SLIPPED IN FRONT OF SLOW-MOVING TROLLEY.

He Was Running Across Road—His Father Fainted, and Mother Became Hysterical—Fatality Near Home.

Toronto, Nov. 15 -David Goldberg the four-year-old son of Simon Goldberg, printer at 157 Queen street west, was crushed to death under the wheels of an east-bound Queen street car almost in front of his father's office at 12.45 today.

He had been on the north side of the street, eating an apple, and was crossing Queen to go home, when he slipped on the track in front of the approaching car. He appeared so suddenly, and lost his footing so unexpectedly, that the motorman could not stop his car in time, and the poor little victim went under the fender and the wheels.

The little lad's agonizing screams, heard as far away as Osgoode Hall, gathered an immense crowd. When the bruised and bleeding body was taken from under the car, life was extinct, the wheels having passed over the chest.

PARENTS OVERCOME.

When the mother saw her child, she shrieked wildly, ran up and down the sidewalk, and eventually was led into her husband's printing shop and residence.

"How is my boy?" asked the father.

When he was told that the boy was dead he fainted.

The body was taken from the kerb where it had been lying, and removed to a nearby doorway. Because of the grief of the parents the remains were taken to the morgue.

Dr. Rice was called to attend Mrs. Goldberg, and he found her in a serous and hysterical condition.

DENIALS ON BOTH SIDES.

Anna Gould Not Seeking Aid From Vatican—What Miss Morgan's Friend Says.

Paris, Nov. 15.—Positive denial that she seeks the aid of the Vatican to annul her previous marriage to the Count de Castellane in order that she might have a Catholic wedding ceremony performed to legalize in the eyes of the church her marriage to Prince de Sagan, was made today by the Countess Talleyrand, formerly Anna Gould. She said that she and the prince were married in the Huguenot church in London, and that she is and has always been a Protestant, and that therefore this ceremony is just as much a religious ceremony as one in a Catholic church would be.

According to the countess, her sister, Miss Helen Gould, discovered this fact and had a legal record made in the event that the marriage might ever be questioned. Discussing the rumor that Count Boni Castellane wished to have the vatican dissolve his marriage so that he might marry Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of J. P. Morgan, his former wife said:

"If there is any truth in the rumor I would suggest to Miss Morgan that she call on my sister, Miss Helen Gould, and learn something about M. de Castellane."

A TURN DOWN FOR BONI.

New York, Nov. 15.—Regarding the rumor that the Count de Castellane has petitioned the vatican to set aside his marriage to Miss Anna Gould in order that he may wed Miss Anne Morgan, Miss Elizabeth Marbury, Miss Morgan's closest friend, said today:

"Miss Morgan has no intention of becoming engaged to the count."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE INCREASE IE THE NEMBER OF PEERS IS THE PROBLEM.

Difficult for the Throne to Escape Being Involved in the Political Crisis—King Confers With the Premier.

London, Nov. 16.—The Earl of Crewe, secretary of State for India and Government leader in the House of Lords, announced to the Lords this evening that the Government would introduce the Lords' Veto Bill in the Upper House later tonight.

The impression is widespread that at the meeting with Premier Asquith and with the Privy Councillors, the King suggested that the veto bill be sent in due course to the Upper Chamber for consideration. This probably coinsided with Mr. Asquith's personal wishes.

London, Nov. 16.—King George summoned the Privy Council to meet today presumably for the purpose of obtaining the advice of the Privy Councillors regarding his course in the matter of giving Premier Asquith guarantees to increase the number of peers sufficient to support the Government in its policy of reforming the House of Lords. The summons brought together the leaders of both parties.

The cabinet also held sessions today.

CONFERS WITH PREMIER.

King George arrived in London from Sandringham today and received Premier Asquith soon after reaching the palace.

The postponement of the Government's announcement of its program and the frequent communications between the King and the Cabinet have deepened the impression that his Majesty may have refused to give guarantees of the creation of new peers under the present circumstances.

The resignation of the Cabinet appears more probable than the dissolution of Parliament. Already the action of the King is being discussed in the newspapers.

It appears difficult for the Throne to avoid being involved in the political crisis, an outcome to escape which the conference between the Government and the Opposition was arranged.

The extreme Liberal papers hint that King George has taken sides with the House of Lords.

The Daily News says that the resignation of the Cabinet would mean that a monarchical revolution had been added to the revolution of the Peers.

SENSATIONAL COMMENT.

The Morning News, in a serious review of the situation, says:

"In a survey of the theoretical possibilities of the political situation, one is compelled to take into consideration the practically inconceivable proposition that the Crown may ally itself with the House of Lords to prevent the legalizing of the people's judgment. Such a move would mean a monarchical revolution, added to the Peers' revolution, and in such an event the gravest happenings that the country has noted in centuries are to be expected.

King George arrived at London today from Sandringham.

HOW MINISTERS DIFFER.

The question which is engaging the Cabinet is whether there shall be an ungry. David Lloyd George and Winuary, David Llayd George and Winston Churchill want it now, while Mr. Asquith, Lord Crewe, and Sir Edward Grey want it in January.

London, Nov. 16.—In the House of Lords yesterday evening Lord Lansdowne sprang a surprise by calling upon the government to submit the Parliament bill (the veto measure) for the consideration and discussion of Parliament without delay. This will add to the difficulties of the Cabinet which meets tomorrow. Rumors are flying about that the House of Lords is ready to accept the Government's plan with modifications, but in several quarters, especially in Ministerial ranks, it is described as a mere bluff, or at most an attempt to postpone the election. The Parliament bill has been read once in the House of Commons

STRIKES AND PREVENTIVES.

Thoughtful men the world over are wrestling with the strike problem The threat of a great strike of locomotive engineers, following on the heels of other troubles and industrial dislocations, bring home a problem that has latterly been more acute in Europe than this country.

In France the greatest question before the government is that of preventing national paralysis through complete tie-ups of railroads and transportation systems. Drastic measures are proposed by Briand, measures that are possible, perhaps, only in a country where national defense is paramount. It is significant, however, that not radicals but conservative men of affairs are declaring that in France, at any rate, strikes of employes of public utilities ought to be absolutely prohibited by law, due provision, of course, being made for consideration and redress of real grievances.

In England statesmen are at a loss to devise means of preventing or promptly settling serious strikes, but it is hoped that general social reform and labor legislation, including insurance against sickness and unemployment, will indirectly militate against disturbance by making workmen less dissatisfied and more comfortable. In Germany comprehensive insurance legislation has not this effect, however, and even the Prussian government is helpless in the face of industrial friction and danger.

In New Zealand compulsory arbitration is, it appears, being repudiated by its former champions, union workmen, and an employers' federation has issued a statement saying that things are drifting back to the old order, that the arbitration system is impotent, and that, if labor is to remain free to ignore the law, it had better be repealed and freedom to strike and lock out specifically restored.

Acts will continue to be enacted and new devices experimented with but the ultimate appeal must always be to "the human factor." In any given situation certain things are possible, reasonable, proper, and certain other things are out of the question How to get right down to the facts, the essential issues, and bring reason and hard sense to bear on the controversy, is the vital problem. Whatever else may be needed efficient and sufficient agencies for mediation and arbitration are manifestly indispensable and likely to remain so for a long, long time. The public will encourage trade arbitration and trade agreements, but its own profound interest in peace and prosperity will lead it to set up agencies of its own, private quasi-public and governmental. Modern societies cannot afford the appalling waste and loss of great strikes.

A NOBLE GIFT.

Lord Strathcona has again showed his sterling patriotism in making a most generous donation for the encouragement of physical and military training in the schools of Canada. this is the kind of loyalty that speaks for itself.

FREE TRADERS.

Many of Them Stick to the Old Time Theories.

London, Nov. 16. That many of the Free Traders are stuck strong and fast to the theories of the old times is borne out in many of their arguments and measures which they are trying to force on the people.

The games are to be played in three periods of twenty minutes each. The schedule of games will be arranged at a meeting of the executive at Port Hope on Friday next."

Erckmann and Chatrian in one of their Alsatian romances drew a character whose toryism was superb. He used to say that the strata of society were divinely ordered— that it was necessary and right for the peasant to look up to the small proprietor, for the small proprietor to respect the squire, for the squire to bow to the nobility, for the nobility to yield homage to the king and for the king to be subject to the pope. And all this time the French "citizens" in cross belts and shakos were marching on the village. In due time the republican watch fires were built in the streets, the republican muskets were stacked and the lumbering republican guns were jolting over the stones The theories of the good old man were quenched by this overwhelming, unanswerable show of facts

The parallell between this character of fiction and the Free Trade party in Britain is singularly apt. Sir Alfred Mond, and other prominent Free Traders in Britain are olc timers. They cling to the theories of Cobden when the economic position of Britain has suffered tremendous changes. When Cobden lived British industrialism was supreme. No other nation had approached within seeing distance. British goods dominated in the world's markets. There was no danger of hurtful competition from foreign manufacturers either abroad or at home But even under those conditions Cobden did not foresee that the other nations would decline to follow Great Britain's lead. He thought that the destruction of the British tariff wall would compel or induce world-wide Free Trade. Britain at the time could afford to make the experiement. But if Cobden were alive today it may be doubtful if he would still advocate a policy which makes the United Kingdom the dumping ground of the world, strangles British industry and creates an army of unemployed. Germany and the United States have arisen since Cobden began to speak. A policy well suited for one generation may not be suited for the next. Protection grows in the world,

Sir Alfred Mond and his allies cling to the old-time cure all. What has been must be, according to their political creed. They call themselves Liberals, but their whole attitude is conservative. They cannot realize fully that the world has changed. At the same time they hear the tramp of strange hosts and make curious concessions to the new evangel. To benefit the shareholders Brunner, Mond & Co., make trade agreements and dally with other protective devices. The worthy baronet continues to talk well, however, and to flaunt his conservatism in the air.

HISTORIC LONDON STREET.

The Scene of Little Dorrit's Girlhood to Be Blotted Out.

In the obliteration of Tabard street, London will do away with a road that is a disgrace to modern civilization yet one familiarly connected with the city's history, poetry and every circumstance of greatness. In the days before the new Dover road wheeled round from the borough into the Kentish highway, Tabard street was called Kent street and was the main approach to London from anywhere in Kent, from Canterbury, from the Cinque Ports, and so one might almost say from Europe.

Up that street nearly 600 years ago rode the Black Prince, conqueror at Poictiers, bringing with him in triumph the captive French King, a pageant compared with which these 20th century shows are but half hearted pieces of make believe. Up Tabard street swarmed the peasants of Kent under Wat Tyler and later on Jack Cade and his Kentish men, pouring in from the heart of England's industry, the "Lancashire lads" of that day.

Down Tabard street some time before either of these events the Canterbury Pilgrims clattered over the stone on their way to Becket's shrine.

Yet as long ago as the 13th century the street was a haunt of depravity and poverty In Shakespeare's time it was shunned by all respectable folk. For centuries it was deplored that distinguished foreigners coming from the continent should get their first impression of London from Tabard street, and sometimes they used to be hurried through by night so that they would see as little of it as possible.

The recent resource of changing the name to something more poetic has had no effect. Vice and dirt seem to be in its very air, and since the creation of Dover road turned the stream of traffic elsewhere it has just quietly degenerated into a back slum.

Yet the very dingiest — though not the worst features of Tabard street have a romance for us to-day because of Charles Dickens. Not a hundred yards from Tabard street Little Dorrit was born. At St. George's Church round by she was married and therefore, the kindly beadle laid her to sleep with the burial register for pillow.

Even the old Marshalsea, the debtors prison, where Mr. Dorrit was so distinguished a resident where Dickens' own father was not unknown and to which Dickens himself paid many a visit as a boy is still to be traced to a far greater extent than is imagined.

One has only to dive into Angel place — the little court on the left just before one comes to St George's from London Bridge—to find the grim old walls of the Marshalsea standing as they stood a century ago. Following the old walls round by warehouses and offices flanked by grimy little paved alleys that are probably themselves Dickens survivals, one reaches the Southwark mortuary. Close by is a battered old door—once an actual door of the old Marshalsea. Here from across the alley close by the entrance to the mortuary over the wall one may catch a glimpse of the old Marshalsea belfry, practically just as it was when it rang out locking up time for Little Dorrit and her father. Coming round into St. George's churchyard one has completely encircled the famous old prison that was the world of little Dorrit's girlhood.

Royal Servants on Holiday.

The Royal servants will have a much longer holiday than usual this year. As a rule, all the servants except those required to be in personal attendance on Their Majesties would in the ordinary course of events, be relieved from duty from August to October, when they usually returned to Buckingham Palace. But, as the Court will not be in London again until February, the servants will not be required to return to the palace before then.

A certain number of the Royal servants have, of course, gone to Balmoral, but the grooms of the chambers, the pages, and the state porters, as well as a number of the female staff, have been relieved of duty for the next four or five months

Many of the late King's servants have been re-engaged in the new Royal household, but two of the most prominent have been pensioned off namely, Mr Menager, the former head chef, and Mr. Chandler, King Edward's valet. Mr. Chandler's son, it will be remembered, was recently killed in a motor-car accident.

When the Royal servants go on their holiday they must notify the Master of the Household, the Lord Chamberlain, or the Master of the Horse, according to the particular department of the household which they may be in, of their address, and they must be ready to return to duty within twenty-four hours if required to do so, unless they are specially exempted from service for a specified period.

Drumming Immigration.

All through the streets of London, especially in the Strand, one finds handsome shops, rented by various Colonial Governments, filled with most attractive exhibits of their various produce. Rhodesia is one of the latest Governments to start a shop of this kind, and there you can see not only amazing heads of maize and oats, but also beautiful furs, such as otter, the last thing you would expect to find from a tropical country; and you can buy cigarettes of Rhodesian-grown "Turkish" tobacco which compare favorably with the best weed from the Levant. This tobacco is grown near Buluwayo, where only a few years ago the wild Matabele fought and hunted.

Explore Island.

Bathurst Island has just been explored by a British Government expedition. It is situated some fifty miles from Port Darwin, Northern Australia, and has an area of 198 square miles. It is uninhabited, but it is well watered with fresh running streams, and has a fertile soil, capable of growing rice, rubber, cattle and tobacco.

LONDON, CAN.

TO QUIT U.S. BECAUSE "TEDDY" WAS REJECTED.

Orange, N.J., Nov. 14.—Disgusted at last Tuesday's apparent repudiation of Col. Roosevelt, Wintarop E. Scarritt, wealthy resident of this place, today put on the market his magnificent home, and announced his intention of leaving the country. Scarritt inserted the following advertisement in the New York newspapers.:

"Disgusted Republican offers his beautiful country house to some victorious democrat, and intends to leave a land that turns down teddy.

"For terms and detailed description, address H. Toby, 44 Maan Ave. Orange, N.J."

Scarritt declares that he was in England at the funeral of King Edward, and saw Roosevelt, when he was hailed and acclaimed on all sides as the aroused voice and conscience of the American people. To return to the United States, he declares, and find that this prophet like others, "Is not without honor save in his own country," was too much.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

BIG DROP IN PRICES OF MEAT IN U. S.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—The price of beef and pork are falling. Within the last week the price of beef has been reduced between 4 and 5 cents a pound by the meat packers. The price of pork has declined about three cents from the price of 18 and 20 cents a week ago, and wholesale meat dealers say that mutton and veal and other products of the packing houses will take a downward turn within the next few days.

"Prices of the first grades of beef have been falling for about a week," said Frank A. Froehling, "they did not go off all at once, but the packing houses have been coming down half a cent at a time until now the price of prime beef is between 4 and 5 cents lower than it was last week at this time, and that of the best grades of pork, is from 2 to 3 cents lower. This applies, of course, to the fine roast beef and steaks, for the ordinary quality has not fallen off, and I do not think it will."

AT NEW YORK ALSO.

New York, Nov. 15.—Reports from various parts of the country indicating a fall in the price of meats are reflected by similar reports from local dealers. They say the decline has already begun the wholesale price of beef having gone off on an average of 3 to 4 cents in the last week. This was regarded as significant by them since no such price cutting has been experienced in the past year.

The market men attribute the relief from high prices to the enormous corn crop.

CONFERENCE FAILED.

What Will Be the Result of the Vote of the People.

From Great Britain comes the news that the conference between the party leaders has failed, and that there will be an early dissolution. Rule for Ireland on the Redmond The Liberals will not concede Home lines; neither will they consent to remain in office by the forbearance of the Unionist party. They will go to the country in the hope of obtaining a majority so decisive as to relieve them of their embarrassments, and give them power to carry out their policies.

Two opinions are expressed as to the result. One is that the Liberals will gain many seats, and obtain the majority they require. This is upon the assumption that the people will hold the Unionists responsible for the failure of the conference and for the new election. The other is that the election will result in a practical repitition of present conditions. Nowhere do we see a prediction that the Unionists will win a decisive victory.

That there would be a natural disposition on the part of the electors to put an end to the present uncertainty by casting an overwhelming vote one way or the other. If the tide were running with the Unionists there would be a disposition to vote in that way, to turn the probability of Unionist victory into a certainty. But the tide judging by the bye-elections, seem to be running the other way. The Liberal part seems to be regarded as the stronger of the two, and the popular inclination is to make it still stronger.

What then becomes of the boasts of the tariff reformers? We were told that they were sweeping everything before them, and that the gains made in the recent elections pointed to an overwhelming victory in the near future. All they wanted was another appeal to the people, and the tottering structure of free trade would come down with a crash. Nearly a year has elapsed since the elections, and both protectionists and free traders have been carrying on an energetic campaign. Tariff reformers have not only held high hopes in England, but have claimed that Ireland is protectionist, and that the Nationalist members were with difficulty prevented from casting their votes on that side.

Yet in the cables from Great Britain we read not a word of tariff reform as the policy that is to sweep the Unionist party into power and demolish free trade. If the tariff reformers are right, Mr. Balfour is surely missing a grand opportunity in not forcing the issue of protection to the front. But he probably understands the situation. He knows that he would have been in a hopeless minority in the last election if it had not been for the agricultural constituencies, in which protection played a far smaller part than the influence of the peers and local magnates.

Some time ago the London Times made a study of the sentiment of the North of England as to the tariff, and it concluded that there was no hope of turning that great manufacturing region against the Liberal government on that question. The Springfield Republic points out that the movement inaugurated by Mr. Chamberlain drew much of its force from the stiffly unyielding attitude of foreign countries in maintaining high duties against imports from Great Britain. The movement began to weaken when the insurgent Republicans in the United States Senate began their assault upon the Payne-Aldrich bill, and every subsequent sign of the popular demand for lower duties in America has made trouble for the English tariff agitators. The Democratic landslide in the United States completed their discomfiture.

Possibly an attempt will be made to galvanize the movement into life by dragging the colonies into the contest, and representing that they are clamoring for preferential treatment in the markets of Britain. But this misrepresentation was pretty effectively met last January, and will be exposed if it is attempted agin.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your NEW METHOD TREATMENT for a serious blood disease with which I had been infected for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 6 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the NEW METHOD TREATMENT for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish.

Annette.

The vaudeville stage has developed musical comedies of great merit in short acts. Take for instance the music in Jesse Lasky's production "On the Housetop." The musical is famous. The very best song in the act is "Annette," and the New York World has secured it from Harry Von Tilzet and will publish it, words and music complete, free with next Sunday's World. Get it and try it on your piano.

G.T.R. Train Derailed.

A light Grand Trunk engine in charge of engineer Westbrook, of Lindsay, struck a bunch of cattle on a crossing in the village of Brooklin on Monday and was derailed. The accident occurred about six o'clock while the engine was on its way from Whitby to Lindsay. No person was injured, but a couple of cattle were killed and the engine was slightly damaged. The auxiliary was despatched from Lindsay and the track was quickly cleared, causing practically no delay to the regular trains.

Men Leave for the North.

Mr. E. P. Creswell, of the firm of Wm. Creswell & Son, contractors, working the Cavandish Lumber Co. limits, to-day sent twenty men out to work. From Bobcaygeon yesterday, seventeen men went out to work for the above firm, that has four different camps. Mr. Ted, Cavanagh is engaging men for this work. The firm has now about 250 men at work in the woods and about 25 teams.

Gold Medal for Oratory.

Those taking part in the coming debates at the Y.M.C.A., will have to read their subjects studiously and polish up their oratorical abilities, as a director of that commendable institution has presented a gold medal for proficiency in oratory. With a gold medal hanging, not like the sword of Damocles, over the heads, the flow of eloquence to be anticipated at the Y.M.C.A., will probably make the Mississippi river during a flood, look like a three-cent brook, when dry.

Lindsay Visitor Went Wrong.

W. H. Jackson hails from Lindsay, and has, or had, when he got to Peterborough a thirst the most bibulous individual might envy. He visited several of the local spots where cocktails, fizzes and other visions of delight, and subsequent trouble, are sold. W. H. J. got fuller than seventeen Ostermoor mattresses. The police got hold of him, and at the police court yesterday morning, he pleaded guilty to the soft impeachment of being drunk. Jackson had $2 left, and the magistrate thought it cheaper to let him buy a ticket to Lindsay than to put a boarder in Castle Nesbitt.

Concert in Lakefield.

A concert will be given in Lakefield to-morrow evening by the fine choir of St. John the Baptist Church at which the following outside talent will take part:—Miss Helen Davies, soloist, St. Paul's Church, Peterboro; Mrs. R. S. Davidson, soloist, Peterborp; Mr. R. G. Dewey, pianist, organist of St. John's Church, Peterboro; Mr. Wadsworth, elocutionist, Peterboro; St. John's Church Choir, Peterboro, assisted by local talent.

"Sweet Are the Uses of Adversity."

There is always a silver lining to every cloud. Manufacturers and citizens in general kick when the water of the Otonabee is lowered, as this means decreased power. However, the water has gone down about twenty-four inches and, in consequence a scow loaded with wood, belonging to the Peterborough Fuel & Cartage Co., at the Wolfe street wharf, can be unloaded. Some time ago the scow broke in the center, and sank at the wharf, and the wood could not be unloaded. A gang of men are now busily engaged in getting the wood off the scow.

Bars Need Not Close.

According to a recent amendment to the License Act all bar rooms are ordered to be kept closed on Christmas Day. The amendment, however, makes no provision if Christmas is observed on any other day that December 25. This year Christmas will fall on a Sunday and the holiday will be generally observed on Saturday, December 24, or Monday, December 26. In view of the fact that hotelkeepers consider that it will be unfair to them if they are compelled to close their bars on that day, the matter was brought to the notice of Mr. Eudo Saunders, chief officer of the License Department, who stated that it would not be necessary for hotelmen to close their doors on that day.

SOCIETY EVENTS

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

Mr. John King, who was probably fatally injured by the Belleville train at Hastings Tuesday morning, was brought to the city and conveyed to the Nicholls Hospital yesterday morning.

Morton—Nesbitt.

Toronto News: The marriage of Miss Ada Grace Nesbitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Nesbitt, of Nestleton, and Mr. Robert Morton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnstone Morton of Bethany, took place at half-past two this afternoon at St. Alban's church, Manvers. The Rev. J. Poston, rector of Manvers, officiated. The bride entered the church with her father to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. A. McGrath, sister of the groom. The bride was wearing white silk with lace yolk and sleeves seeded with pearls and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Her tulle veil was caught with a wreath of orange blossoms. Miss Winnifred Nesbitt, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, in pale blue silk gloria with satin. She wore a black picture hat and carried a sheaf of pink carnations. Miss Mabelle Nesbitt was a charming little flower girl in a white lingerie frock with pink sash. She wore a white embroidery hat with pink bows and carried a basket of lillies of the valley, and maiden hair fern. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. William Morton of Bethany. The groom's present to the bride was a set of furs, to the bridesmaid a pearl ring, to the flower girl a gold bracelet, and to the groomsman gold cuff links. During the signing of the register, Mrs. George Peters, of Tilford, sang "O Perfect Love." After the ceremony a reception was held at the family residence "Bloomvale." The house was nicely decorated for the occasion. The guests from a distance were Mr. Russell Nesbitt, LL.D., Mr. Harold Orr, Miss Florence Orr, of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Ward, Peterborough, and Mr. and Mrs. McDowell, Miss Laura Morton, Miss Mae McGrath, Mr. Lloyd Nesbitt, Lindsay. Mr. and Mrs. Morton left on the evening train for a short trip. The bride traveled in a tailored suit of navy blue diagonal serge with hat to match. On their return they will reside in Bethany.

A VOLCANIC BEACON.

Curious Lighthouse of the Republic of San Salvador.

The republic of San Salvador, on the Pacific side of Central America, is the only government on earth that collects lighthouse fees on account of a volcano that it owns.

The volcanic beacon is about eight miles inland from the port of Acajutla and its pillar of cloud by day and its fire sky night are visible for many miles out at sea. It erupts every seven minutes and is just as accurate as any revolving light that warns mariners in any part of the world. This volcano has been keeping up this seven minute series of eruptions ever since any one can remember. It is a favorite amusement of visiting gringoes to sit by the hour during the lazy afternoons and, watch in hand, time the eruptions until they tire of the amusement and fall asleep.

Every vessel that puts in at Acajutla—and it is quite an important port of call along that part of the coast—has to pay its lighthouse fee. There is no other lighthouse than the volcano, but that is a sufficient excuse for the government of Salvador to make a charge for its services. The explosions that accompany the eruptions sound like detonations of heavy charges of dynamite, but are not sufficient to shake the ground perceptibly more than a mile or two from the summit of the crater. At night there is a spurt of fire, a muffled report and a cloud of steam. By day only the steam is visible.—New York Press.

CONAN DOYLE WAS LATE.

The Lonely Schwarenbach Inn and a Literary Coincidence.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle once walked over the Gemmi. He was much impressed by the desolate appearance of the lonely looking Schwarenbach inn. Here, it seemed to him, was an ideal scene in which a novelist might locate a story of mystery and crime.

He proceeded to invent a story of mystery and crime suitable to the creepy environment. It was a story of murder—the murder of a long lost son just home from the wars by his own father, the needy innkeeper, who did not recognize him until after the deed was done, but had resolved to kill and rob the first lonely stranger that passed that way with money in his pocket.

"The very thing," thought Sir Arthur, and he went down the hill cheerfully revolving the morbid conception in his mind. Then a strange thing happened.

After dinner, in the hotel at Leukerbad, he picked up a volume of Maupassant's short stories and he found that the French author had not only been to the Schwarenbach inn before him but had actually located there a story practically identical with the one which he himself had just devised.—Travel and Exploration.

Prompt Punishment of a Liar.

Years ago the courthouse in San Francisco fronted the old Plaza. A trial was in progress, and counsel for the defendant was cross examining the plaintiff. An earthquake shook the chandeliers and dislodged some of the ceiling. Judge, jurors, witnesses and spectators rushed for the door; but, finding that the seismic disturbance was over, they returned.

"You can proceed with the cross examination of the witness," said the judge.

"Pardon me, your honor," said counsel for the defendant, "but after the late exhibition of the displeasure of the Almighty at the lies this witness was telling I do not care to further invoke divine wrath. I will ask him no more questions."—Los Angeles Times.

Horses in the Time of Homer.

The horses used in Homer's time were war horses. The warriors were drawn in chariots. The art of riding was known but it is alluded to as something unusual. Ulysses at the time of his shipwreck "bestrode a plank, like a horseman on a big steed." There are reasons for believing that the practice of riding was much later than that of driving, and the myth of the centaur, where, according to Shakespeare, "man is incorpsed and demi-natured with the beast," probably originated at an early period when the appearance of a man on horseback was a novel sight.

A Long Wait.

At a Denver hotel a woman went into one of the telephone booths and sat down. It is not possible to get a telephone number from the booth—the girl at the board has to call it. The girl went to the booth. "Did you want a telephone number?" she asked of the woman.

"No," replied the woman. "I'm just waiting for this elevator to go up."—Argonaut.

Very Considerate.

George—Do you see that pretty girl in the hammock? Harold—Yes. What of her? George—I saved her life last summer. Harold—Indeed! At the seashore? George—No; on the front porch. I proposed to her and she said she'd die if she married me, so I excused her.—Stray Stories.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

Sunday Visitor Went Wrong.

Yesterday Peterboro was visited by a Captain of the San Francisco Fire Brigade, by the name of Ewing. Capt. Ewing, who has been on the San Francisco Brigade for over a quarter of a century, was raised in Warkworth. He is command at the chemical station at 35th and 17th streets, in the city of the golden gates. Captain Ewing, who left Ontario 37 years ago, is a relative of Mr. Alex. Elliott of this city, and Mr. Hugh Drain of Norwood. In conversation yesterday with a Times' representative, Capt. Ewing remarked, "Your City has made prodigious strides since I was here 35 years ago. You have got a very complete little fire hall, a good live chief and a good lot of men in the brigade. Still, one thing you lack is the chemical engine. In San Francisco we have a "battery." By this I mean an attachment by which streams from one to six engines are augmented by the fire of the 'battery,' so that a building that must be removed, in a big fire, is simply knocked down by a stream of water instead of using dynamite." Capt. Ewing was emphatic in saying that Peterboro should have a chemical engine. He said that in his far western city, 70 per cent. of the fires were put out by chemicals. They use a one inch hose, and the water impregnated with chemicals, extinguishes a fire more quickly and more lastingly than several streams from hose of three times that diameter.

Chief Howard took Capt. Ewing about the city yesterday and showed him the local sights.

A Business Letter From Japan.

Yesterday Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons received a letter from a manufacturing firm in Kobe, Japan, with whom the local factory had placed a large order for bamboo goods, that to a western man, particularly a western business man, was most tangable in its Japanese-English writing. Now as any business man can easily see in Bradstreets or Dunn reports, Messrs. Turner are rated at about $150,000, still these Japanese wrote, wanting a "letter of credit" before starting to manufacture the goods ordered. The Jap writing the letter says, "We have your esteemed order already at once. Never send another order like this again, in such matters, etc." Messrs. Turner replied by referring the Jap to Bradstreets Mercantile Agency, as to the amount of their credit.

Search Afer Natural Gas May be Renewed by Mr. C. E. Dittman

Street Franchise Bylaw Will Be Submitted at January Elections, Providing Dittman Deposits $250 to Defray Costs of Such Procedure.

Mr. C. E. Dittman is evidently in earnest as to his proposition to resume drilling for natural gas in Peterborough city or county. The City's Manufacturing Committee met last evening at five o'clock, when the form of agreement for a street franchise for the conveyance of natural gas to consumers, passed a couple of months ago in Mr. Carlew's favor, was read in the presence of Mr. R. E. Leary, who was acting in Mr. Dittman's interests. Some slight amendment was agreed upon, and the committee resolved that a bylaw be submitted to the ratepayers at the January election, providing Mr. Dittman forwards a deposit of $250 to pay the expenses connected with such bylaw.

By the terms of the agreement referred to, Mr. Dittman must, as soon as possible—not later than March 11th—commence and continue boring for gas, and within one year from date of agreement spend at least $6,000 in such operations. Should drilling be abandoned or suspended for two consecutive months then the agreement will become null and void. Gas must be supplied to consumers within two years' time. The maximum charges for natural gas are fixed by agreement at 50 cents per 1000 cubic feet for domestic consumption, and 25 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for manufacturing purposes. The street franchise is for twenty years.

The Times is advised that Mr. Dittman has every reason to be successful in his search after natural gas.

BOTH ARE RECOVERING.

Victims of Monday's Shooting Affair Progressing Favorably.

Toronto, Nov. 17.—Georgina Carr and Bessie Brooks Jones, the young women, who were the victims of the Monday afternoon shooting affray in the American restaurant, 233 King street east, and for which James Shaw is now under arrest, will recover.

This morning the reports at both hospitals were encouraging, especially so in the case of Mrs. Jones, who is to St. Michael's hospital. "She is very bright and good spirited," said her nurse, "and although she is still suffering a good deal of pain, she makes light of it."

CLEMENT GORDON HURT.

Well-Known Citizen in a Bad Runaway Accident.

Yesterday at noon Mr. Clement Gordon's life was in danger as the result of a runaway. As Mr. Gordon was driving home at the noon hour, at the corner of Lake and Crescent streets, he met the repair wagon of the Street Railway Company, at which his horse took fright. The terrified animal, taking the bit in his teeth, started off at a pace that would make "Maud S." or "J.I.C." look envious. As it sped down the street, Mr. Gordon was thrown from the rig and the horse went on smashing the carriage and flying with only the shafts attached to it. Mr. Gordon was badly bruised about the head and body. Dr. McNulty was called and attended him. He will be unable to leave the house for a few days. The rig is an evident candidate for a carriage hospital.

Small Fire at Canadian General Electric Works

A fire occured in the pattern department of Peterborough's premier industry, the Canadian General Electric Company, last night, but fortunately no serious damage resulted.

A telephone alarm was sent in from the works to the fire hall at 6.40, and the brigade responded with their usual celerity. On reaching the scene much smoke was in evidence but no flames. The men quickly had two streams playing in the building, while the company's own sprinkler system was also resorted to to good advantage. After an hour of strenuous work the fire was extinguished.

The fire originated in the motor box to which there are two switches. The power switch had been left on while the operating switch was shut off, thus forming a short circuit.

The pattern department of this huge works, is situated in the west corner of the main machine building, but so thoroughly was the fire kept under control that at no time did there exist any danger of it spreading from the department in which it originated.

The damage which resulted from water only, is roughly estimated at $3,000, confined to machines and materials.

FOOT-BALLER'S BAD KNEE HEALED.

Zam-Buk Once Again the Only Cure.

Mr. H. Allinson, of 457 King street London, Ont., says: "While a member of the East Kent Division Football Team, and during a rough and exciting game of football, I fell on the hard gravel, sustaining a badly lacerated knee. This required prompt medical attendance, as sand and gravel filled the open wound, which was very painful and sore.

"For several weeks the doctor treated my injury, and it was thought to be well healed over; but no sooner had I begun to move about than the skin broke, and I suffered more than at first. For seven long weeks I was actually laid up. It then developed into a running sore and I was alarmed for fear the result might be a permanently stiff knee. The doctor's treatment failed to heal the wound, so I procured a supply of Zam-Buk.

"It was almost magical in its effect on the sore. The discharging soon ceased. The soreness and pains were banished and perseverance with Zam-Buk made the badly lacerated knee as good and firm as ever. Zam-Buk has no equal in clearing and healing open wounds, and I recommend it to all athletes and sportsmen."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, eczema, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. You are warned against harmful imitations and substitutes. See the registered name "Zam-Buk" on every package before buying.

SHOT COUSIN THEN HIMSELF.

Hunter Makes Fatal Mistake and Stricken With Grief Ends His Own Life.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 17.—Stricken with sorrow that he had shot and killed his cousin, whom he mistook for a deer in the woods near here, True Smith blew off half his head with his gun today.

Samuel Smith, aged 15 years, several of his brothers, True Smith, his cousin, and several of Bartons, all related, composed a hunting party near Dryberg, just across the Mackinaw County line. Samuel was found shot, and died fifteen minutes later. He said he had been shot by an unknown hunter. A few minutes later the same party found True Smith lying nearby. In his pocket was a note which read that he had shot himself; that the Orangemen might bury him. All believed he ended his life after finding that he had killed his cousin.

PROHIBITION IS FAST DYING OUT

DECLARES THE SECRETARY OF THE UNITED STATES BREWER'S ASSOCIATION.

Tidal Wave Has Subsided—Results of the Recent Elections Bears Out His Statements, He Claims.

New York, Nov. 17.—Prohibition is on the wane in this country, according to a confidential circular sent out to the members of the United States Brewers' Association. This statement, compiled by Hugh F. Fox, secretary of the association, reviews the results of the recent election, and characterizes them as a "sweeping victory for the liberal-minded."

According to Fox, there was a real fight with the issue between wet and dry sharply defined in Missouri, Oregon and Florida, and the drys were overwhelmingly defeated. Summing up the contests in these States, Fox says:

"Missouri—The license forces have carried the State, defeating the prohibition referendum by a majority exceeding 200,000. Leaving out the cities, the prohibs are still heavily beaten, showing that the farmer is with the liberal element.

"Oregon—State-wide prohibition is defeated by a majority of 10,000, and the unit of local option law is changed from county to city.

"Florida—The proposition to amend the present local option feature of the constitution and insert a State wide prohibition-forever feature, was defeated by 6,500. A majority of the counties of the States voted against the amendment."

Summing up the result in the nation, Fox says: "It is evident that the so-called prohibition 'tidal wave' has almost entirely subsided, and that there is little likelihood of it regaining what it has lost or gaining new ground. Concurrently, it appears no less clear that the people have resolved upon a firm administration of just laws governing the liquor traffic. The elections as a whole offer a remarkable popular endorsement of the American theory of home rule and the license system. Naturally the change of sentiment is most striking in the South, but North and West and East the influences of reaction are equally at work."

MUST FINISH WORK ON PUBLIC LIBRARY AT ONCE.

Penalties Will Be Enforced if Work Is Not Rushed—All Contracts are Over the Time Limit.

The City Property Committee have instructed the Public Library architects that if unfinished contracts are not completed in short order the time penalties will be enforced.

As to the unsightly pilasters in front of the building, Architect Belcher has advised the committee that he had written the contractors regarding this matter, but had received no reply.

The Property Committee are sufficiently warm regarding this vexed question to hold back a portion of the money due the contractors until something is done to the pilasters to affect a sightly appearance.

At Wednesday's meeting it was pointed out that all the contracts in connection with the building were six months over the time. The Library board is anxious to get into the building as soon as possible. Mr. Belcher thought that the building should be ready for occupation in a fortnight's time.

The chairman of the Property Committee, the chairman of the Library Board, and the architects were authorized to purchase the mantles and grates for the new library.

Mayor Morrow moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that the chairman of the Public Library Board and the Property Committee prepare lists of what is required for the library in the way of stacks, tables and chairs and then ask for tenders for them.

The request of R. Sheehy to have the rent of the lot he had from the city reduced was brought up. It was decided to allow Mr. Sheehy the lot at a rental of $1.50 per month, dating from the first of December.

A COMPLETE RE-ORGANIZATION OF THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY

Important Changes in House Fighting Lines Which will Increase Efficiency of Party Parliamentary Machinery

OLD OFFICES HAVE BEEN ABOLISHED AND NEW ONES INSTITUTED

AGGRESSIVE FIGHTERS AT THE HEAD OF ALL COMMITTEES—FEWER WHIPS THAN FORMERLY.

Story of How Mr. Borden Took Advantage of Free Hand in the Reorganizing of Party.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—The Ottawa Journal says that the most complete and drastic policy of re-organization the Conservative party has ever known since before Sir John Macdonald died, has just materialized.

The reconstruction has been rendered possible by the influx into the House of a splendid body of new members, particularly from the West, at the last general election.

Whips Resign.

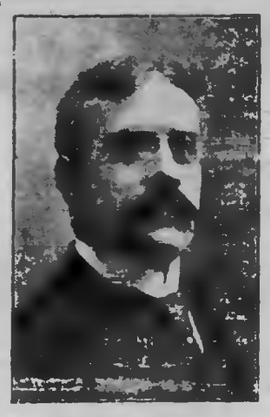
Every whip and officer of the Conservative party has tendered his resignation. This action was not taken because of alleged discord, but because the men were big enough and patriotic enough to give Mr. R. L. Borden, the Opposition leader, a free hand to make use of the valuable new element the country has placed at his command.

The number of officers has been reduced, and all the proposed appointments are ready to be placed before the Conservative caucus this evening by Mr. Borden for ratification. It is needless to say that they will be ratified.

The most important appointment is that already made public of Mr. George P. Perley, M.P., for Argenteuil, to the position of chief whip, and in a sense general organizer and manager of the party. Mr. Perley, as all in Ottawa know, is a man of outstanding ability, and the best executive judgment.

A New Office.

The English method of appointing also what is sometimes called a chief inside whip, has been initiated, but Mr. T. W. Crothers, of East Elgin, who will fill the post, will be known rather as chairman of the chairmen of committees, while performing many of the duties of an inside whip. Mr. Crothers achieved fame at the Ontario bar many years ago, and as a hard hitter and fearless exposer of wrong doing, he is not excelled by even Hon. George E. Foster. During the last two sessions he has made some notable onslaughts on the government, and on more than one question left Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his ministers with nothing to defend themselves with but their majority vote. Mr. Crothers, for all his force, is a man of marked personal magnetism and tact.



MR. R. L. BORDEN,
Opposition Leader, who will enter the Parliamentary fight of 1910-'11 with a re-organized fighting force.

Caucus Chairman.

Mr. Charles A. Magrath, of Medicine Hat, Alta., will be the permanent chairman of caucus. Mr. Magrath is becoming one of the big figures in Canadian public life. Indeed among the additions to parliament during the last few years, whether on the Liberal or the Conservative side, he may be regarded as among the most important. He is the author of a valuable treatise on immigration problems which was published last year, and which has been favorably commented upon in the United States Great Britain nd Germany.

Fewer Whips.

There will be fewer whips than formerly, the provincial arrangement having been abandoned. Amongst the former whips who resigned was Dr. Roche, of Marquette, Man., but there has been a general insistance that he should be retained. Therefore he will be the only old officer of the party who will be re-appointed. He is a Cabinet certainty when the Conservatives are returned to power, which they seem convinced will be at the next election.

Associated with Dr. Roche in the management of western affairs will be A. S. Goodeve, M.P. for Kootenay, a former provincial secretary of British Columbia, a man of whom Premier McBride brought strongly to the attention of Mr. Borden.

For the East.

John Stanfield, M.P. for Colchester N.S., will devote his attention to the maritime provinces. He is a young man who has given great promise for the future. He has managed capably his extensive business interests and had the credit of winning a famous bye-election in Nova Scotia some three or four years ago despite all the heavy artillery of the government in the field against him.

As a body of men these new officers of the Conservative party are of the highest class, and it may be said that the party will place in the field at the next election the most brilliant opposition that has ever entered the lists against a Canadian government.

Two New Silver Cups Presented to O. H. A.

Toronto, Nov. 17.—The J. Ross Robertson Challenge Trophy, emblematic of the senior championship of the Ontario Hockey Association, has at last fitting companions for the honors in the intermediate and junior serious.

Mr. Robertson has just received from London, England, two massive solid silver cups of beautiful design and workmanship, which he will at Saturday's O.H.A. meeting present to the association for the second and third series.

FINE COLLECTION.

This gives the O.H.A. the finest collection of trophies in Canada, Indeed it is very doubtful whether any sporting organization in the whole world has anything better to offer its winners either in beauty or in intrinsic value.

The original J. Ross Robertson cup was, and is, decidedly the most artistic piece of silverware ever offered in this country for annual competition. No matter how fast the O.H.A. grows this trophy will be worth the winning.

For some years the cups for the intermediate and junior series have been outgrown. They were no longer abreast of the greatest hocket body on earth, and were only valued for what they represented.

Now these two series will have the added incentive of trophies worth striving after, apart altogether from the honors of the championship. They will, of course, be as the senior cup, held for the year only by the winners, and will thus be perpetual challenge cups.

These two latest and timely donations by Mr. Robertson, were made by the same firm in London as turned odt the senior trophy, and they were the silversmiths to her majesty. The designs are Canadian through and through, with beautiful hockey scenes drawn expressly for them by our own Canadian artist, Owen Staples. The Canadian beaver and the Maple Leaf are prominent on both trophies.

THIS DATE IN HISTORY.

1777—Fort Mercer, N.J., evacuated by the British.

1844—Williams and Ketchum patented the first mowing machine.

1872—Susan B. Anthony and other women arrested in Rochester for trying to vote.

1878—The Duke of Edinburgh arrived at Halifax in the ironclad "Black Prince."

1897—Sir Oliver Mowat appointed Lieutentant-Governor of Ontario.

1905—Prince Charles of Denmark elected King of Norway.

To Promote Industrial Education.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 17.—With an attendance of many eminent specialists from Europe as well as America, the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education met in this city today for its fourth annual convention. The gathering was opened this morning with a general discussion of the demand and opportunities for girls in trades and stores. The sessions will continue three days, during which time all phases of the problem of industrial education will be exhaustively discussed.

THE OPENING OF PARLIAMENT

FINE WEATHER WITH CRISPY ATMOSPHERE MADE IDEAL CONDITIONS FOR THE OPENING.

Society Less Resplendent—Observed Half Mourning for the Late King—The Accustomed Military Display.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—Fine bright weather with the crispy atmosphere of the fall season, made ideal conditions for the assembly today of the Third session of Canada's Tenth Parliament. The members this year have not been arriving as early as usual, but there was a great influx of sessional people by today's trains.

The Capital has once more taken on the additional life and activity, political and social, which is a characteristic of the parliamentary season.

SWEARING OF ALLEGIANCE.

The accession of a new king makes necessary the swearing of allegiance by senators and members and the clerks of both houses were kept busy all morning administering to groups the requisite oath of loyality and fidelity.

The opening was attended by the accustomed military display. Accompanying his excellency Earl Grey from Government House, was a dashing escort from the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, while drawn up in front of the main building, was a guard of honor of one hundred men from the Governor General's Foot Guards from Nepean Point. The Twenty Third Field Battery thundered out a royal salute.

IN SENATE CHAMBER.

By one o'clock crowds began to gather in the precincts of the Senate chamber, and when his excellency, attended by his aides and officers of the headquarters staff in full uniform, entered, the chamber presented an enlivened spectacle. The gowns were, perhaps, not quite so elaborate by reason of the half mourning observed, but the floor and galleries were crowded with a brilliant assemblage.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

The speech from the throne outlining the sessional program was as follows:

Honorable gentlemen of the Senate: Gentlemen of the House of Commons

When I prorogued Parliament in the month of May last, I was about completing the term usually allotted to the office of governor-general but it has pleased his Majesty King George V. to continue me as his representative in Canada, and therefore it is my great pleasure again to greet you at the opening of this new session.

SHADOW OF A CALAMITY.

I meet you under the shadow of the calamity which has befalled this country and the whole British Empire, in the demise of our beloved sovereign, King Edward VII. His death is mourned, not only by his subjects the world over, but also by all civilized nations, who had learned to appreciate the many gifts and qualities which had earned for him the name of peacemaker, by which he will be known in history.

Biliousness is due to a disordered condition of the stomach. Banquetted Last Night

A banquet in honor of Lt.-Col. J. T. I. Halliday, of the 57th Regiment, was given last night in the armories, and was a very enjoyable affair. Col. Halliday is retiring from the regiment after a service of 20 years as surgeon. A very enjoyable feature of the evening was the presentation of a silver plate to the retiring officer. The presentation was made by Lieut.-Col. Stevenson. Major Clegg presided at the banquet.

British Columbia Conservatives.

Nelson, B.C., Nov. 17.—Several hundred leading Conservatives of British Columbia assembled for a conference here today to decide upon the future policy of the party, with particular reference to the measures to be brought before the coming legislative session.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Portugese Jesuits Coming to Canada

Montreal, Nov. 17.—Rev. Father Diaz, of the Society of Jesus, expelled from Portugal, arrived here yesterday with three other Portugese Jesuits, and says the only Jesuit who remained was a sick Jesuit. He believes, however, that the revolution will be a good thing for the Church in the end.

The reverend father also says that the republic, and taking an interest in public affairs, will endeavor to elect good men and control to a certain extent the legislation of the country. Unlike a good many of his confreres, Father Diaz says there is a the difference in the world between Continental and English Freemasonry the first being furiously anti-Catholic and the second quite harmless.

The Crippen Petition is Largely Signed

20,000 NAMES ATTACHED TO DOCUMENT ASKING COMMUTATION OF HIS SENTENCE.

Wealthy People Assist—The Petition Will Be Presented to Home Secretary Winston Churchill Today By Mr. Newton.

London, Nov. 17.—Twenty thousand persons, including members of wealthy and aristocratic families of England, have signed the petition which is aimed to save Dr. H. H. Crippen from execution next Wednesday, for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen.

This is the largest number of names ever attached to an English petition praying commutation of a death sentence. The bulk of the signers are English, although Dr. Crippen is an American.

Among the signers are many women and a few American residents of London.

Barrister Newton said this morning that the petition would be presented to Home Secretary Winston Church ill before night. Mr. Newton was confident that the petition would assist him greatly in saving Crippen from ignominious death upon the gallows. Apparently Crippen's lawyers have almost given up hope of producing Belle Elmore in flesh and blood. The petition recites that in view of the doubt in the evidence which convicted Dr. Crippen, he should not be put to death.

Will Run an Excursion to Peterboro' Saturday

Kingston, Nov. 17.—It has been definitely decided that the Cadets will run an excursion to Peterborough next Saturday in order that their supporters might have an opportunity to encourage them on to victory in their battle with Varsity II. for the intermediate I.C.R.F.U. championship. It is expected that between two hundred and three hundred people will take in the excursion. The Cadets, realizing that they have a hard battle before them have been practising faithfully all week and are in excellent condition. The team will be the same as played Varsity here last Saturday. The line-up will be as follows: Back, Galt; halves, K. Stewart, Robertson, Smith, quarter, Lawson; scrimmage, Irving, Young, J. Stewart; wings, Arnoldi, Sweeney Roberts, Goldie, Lewis, Gwynne.

The student body of Cadets are very grateful to Commandant Crowe for permission to accompany the team. It is only on rare occasions that such a privilege is granted.

CHOLERA ABOARD VESSEL.

Two Died on the Way Over From Palermo and Nine Others are Sick at New York.

New York, Nov. 17.—With two deaths during the voyage from what was evidently cholera, and a sick list of nine, including several cholera suspects, the steamer San Giorgio, arrived today from Naples, and Palermo, and was detained at quarantine for bacteriological examinations in the cases of the sick passengers.

The bodies of the two victims, one a child of two years, who died Nov. 12, and the other the child's mother, who died early today, were buried at sea, the woman, just before the vessel entered port.

The two fatalities were reported on the vessel as due to acute gastro enteritis, but there seems to be no doubt that they were cholera victims, although Health Officer Alvah H. Doty declined this morning to make an official announcement, preferring to await the results of the bacteriological examination. He said, however, that the symptoms described were of a suspicious character, indicating cholera, as are the symptoms of some of the sick passengers in the ship's hospital. All the cases were in the steerage. The San Giorgio left Naples Nov. 1st with 22 cabin and 221 steerage passengers. Of these last 53 were from infected districts and were held in quarantine at Naples on the steamer Marsala for five days, while 68 passed through the city from the interior, and were isolated in a building near the water. They were sent on board the steamer at anchor in the open bay. On Nov. 2nd, the San Giorgio stopped at Palermo where she embarked five cabin and 409 steerage passengers.

TO SERVE GOD.

Every Tenth Youth to Be Devoted to God.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Every tenth youth and every tenth maiden in Zion, are hereafter to be dedicated to the "Service of God," according to an announcement made by Wilbur Glenn Volvia in a sermon in the Zion City Tabernacle. They will be sent out as missionaries. Volvig says is desire is to put the Church on a business basis, and has installed a card index system to show at a glance just how each member stands in the matter of tithes. He now wants $37,000 to cancel a mortgage on Zion College building.

THEIR DOOM IS SEALED

Cordova, Alaska, Nov. 17.—A terrific storm which is sweeping the Katalla district is believed to have sealed the doom of 83 persons from the wrecked steamer Portland, who are marooned on Katalla Island.

Plans for rescue failed today because sailors refused to risk their lives in trying to carry a boat to the Island to take off the survivors.

EDITOR BROKE NECK IN FALL

HE HAD BEEN BADLY BEATEN IN SYDNEY BY MEN HE OFFENDED.

He Slandered People—Conducted Paper Similar to Eye-Opener—Had Been in Jail for Articles.

Halifax, Nov. 17.—C. Bruce McDougall, editor and publisher of the Vindicator, published at Moncton, N.B., fell from a flight of stairs in the Windsor Hotel here last night and broke his neck.

McDougall was here in connection with the defence of several newsboys arrested in Glace Bay for selling Vindicators. He was to have left for Moncton on Monday night, when on his way to the train, he was assaulted and terribly beaten by several persons, and left on the road.

HAD BEEN JAILED.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 17.—The Vindicator, published at Moncton by C. Bruce McDougall, was the last of a series of papers somewhat of the character of the Calagary Eye Opener, but perhaps not of so high a literary merit. McDougall's terrible beating at Sydney was presumably given him by some parties he had offended.

Last year McDougall published a paper called Free Speech, which libelled a number of prominent citizens in St. John, and he was sent to jail for three months. When released he started the Vindicator, which devoted itself largely to Cape Breton affairs and sold there. He was not seen in St. John.

GERMAN OFFICER GUILTY

Of Spying on British Coast Fortifications—He Must Appear When Wanted.

Winchester, Eng., Nov. 14. Lieut. Helm, of the German army, pleaded guilty, today in the Winchester Assizes to spying on the British coast fortifications at Portsmouth. The original felony charge of sketching the fortifications were not substantiated. The court ordered Lieut. Helm to secure bail to the sum of $1,250 to insure his appearance if he is called before the the tribunal for sentence. This actions was looked upon in the light of acquittal, as punishment will probably be suspended indefinitely.

MORE PLOWED FIELDS.

When his engine went back on him the other day, Aviator Hoxsey picked out a plowed field in which to fall from a height of 3,000 feet. The fact that he was merely stunned indicates an immediate need of more plowed fields.

SORE ON QUEBEC.

Look at the record of Ireland in the South African war, and examine the record of Quebec, says the Ottawa Citizen. Then consider the political condition of Ireland and contrast it with the political condition of Quebec. Is it any wonder that the English-speaking provinces of this country have a growing feeling that it is a waste of time to endeavor to placate that province and that it is no longer worth while to take it seriously?

IS PETERBOROUGH UNFORTUNATE?

Peterborough seems to be particularly unfortunate in the matter of securing industries. Lindsay, Port Hope, Belleville, Cobourg and almost all, if not all, the surrounding towns being favored. The latest gain in this respect is Ottawa which has just secured a branch of an American Automobile factory. Perhaps Peterboro is too modest?

SUNDAY FUNERALS.

A citizen required of The Times yesterday if Sunday funerals were allowed. There is no law against the burial of the dead on Sunday, but there is an understanding amongst the local clergymen that they should be discouraged as much as possible. Hence, when it comes to shuffling off this mortal evil it's advisable to select some other day than Friday, or ten chances to one, Sunday will be your funeral day.

FOR AND AGAINST SURGERY.

It is a familiar fact that surgery has been under fire in this country, that the profession has been charged with a dangerous craze for operations and that cases can be cited which give color to the complaints that are made. Much the same conditions prevail in England, and they have resulted in a controversy which will interest the American combatants.

For a prosecuting witness there is The Socialist Review, which has opened its pages to a writer who condemns the surgeons in unmeasured terms. His statistics would make them appear as a band of reckless empiricists and bluncerers. "Every practitioner knows," he declares, "that some surgeons have a mortality of 100 per cent." in operations for appendicitis." To prevent the slaughter, he suggests the registration of all hospitals and the following scheme "The names of physicians are to be given in the case of surgical operation followed by death the operating surgeon, whether in hospital or private practice, is to notify the coroner and enquiry will forthwith be held."

The London Lancet appears for the defense, ridicules the statistics and knocks the plan of prevention with great energy. It argues that though there have been mistakes with the increase of operations and the adoption of new methods there has also been substantial progress, and it gives several instructive illustrations to prove its point it speaks of the opposition to the use of anaesthetics and that the deaths are regrettable we should think of the thousands who are benefitted by this step in advance. We may modify our procedure in the means advisable, but surely there cannot be no justification for rejecting all the good to be accomplished because there was a possibility of some evil.

The coroner's jury is scouted as a device for setting ignorance above intelligence. If the patient and his friends know the risk of the operation and the chance of life if no operation be performed, and if they agree to the operation and the surgeon is willing to do it, who shall say them or him nay? The very life blood of true progress in surgery is the devising and carrying out of new operations, the employing of methods unknown before; but what would be the result if the performance of a new operation or the use of a hitherto unknown method might subject the surgeon to the ordeal of a public trial? The moral is, apparently, that you should try to be sure of your experts and discriminate as far as may be between them and the blunderers.

FLED FROM BOREDOM.

The Tale of a Purposely Interrupted Yachting Cruise.

A few seasons back a well known hostess chartered a splendid yacht for August and invited a large number of her friends for a three weeks' cruise. At first all went well, though the party was not specially well assorted, but after a few days they began to evince signs of being somewhat bored with each other's company.

The hostess marked these signs of incipient boredom, which became more plainly evident each day, and at last in despair she took counsel with one of her guests, an old and experienced yachtsman.

"What on earth shall I do to amuse these people?" she asked.

The yachtsman looked at the serene sky and calm, blue water and shook his head doubtfully.

"A storm would enliven them up a bit," he said, "but the weather looks quite settled. There is only one thing to be done. You must arrange a breakdown; the engineer will manage that all right for you. He has probably often done so before. Then you must make for the nearest port for repairs and let your guests have a run ashore. Some of them, I expect, will find an excuse for bidding you goodby and those who remain with you will get along all right together."

The hostess took her guest's advice and arrived at Toulon a day later, where nigh twenty of her guests bid her goodby.—London M. A. P.

THE PRINCE WINKED.

And Miss Alcott Was at the Other End of the Flirtation.

It seems an awful thing, but here is the circumstance on record that Louisa M. Alcott, the saintly author of "Little Women," once publicly flirted with Edward VII. The fact comes out in Mrs. Belle Mose's book, "Louisa May Alcott, Dreamer and Worker." There is a passage in the book which contains Miss Alcott's personal account of the incident. It refers to the time when the late king, then Prince of Wales, made his famous visit to this country.

"I went to Boston," Miss Alcott relates, "and I saw the Prince of Wales trot over the common with his train at review—a yellow haired laddie, very like his mother. Fanny W. and I nodded and waved as he passed and he openly winked his boyish eye at us, for Fanny with her yellow curls and wild waving looked rather rowdy, and the poor little prince wanted some fun. We laughed and thought that we had seen more distinguished by the saucy wink than by a stately bow. Boys are always jolly—even princes."

By the way, this incident occurred in 1860, when the Prince of Wales was nineteen years old and consequently quite a broth of a boy, and when Miss Alcott—we blush to record it—was twenty-eight.—New York Mail.

The Gold Dust Was There.

North America has counted as a gold producing continent only since the late forties. But it might well have done so for about 200 years. According to the London Chronicle, in the voyage round the world which began in 1719 the privateer Captain Shelvocke found in certain California valleys "a dusty black mold which, as you turn it from up to the sun, appears as if intermingled with gold dust. Though we were a little prejudiced," he adds, "against the thought that it could be possible that this metal should be so promiscuously and universally mingled with common earth, yet we endeavored to cleanse and wash the earth from some of it, and the more we did the more it appeared like gold. In order to be further satisfied I brought away some of it, which we lost in our confusion in China."

Ate Himself Thin.

A terribly emaciated man, about thirty-five years of age, was eating four meals a day, including a heavy breakfast. He was also taking milk between meals. I induced him to give up the milk between meals and to take only a cup of weak tea for breakfast. At once his weight began to increase. It is now normal. Obviously it was a case not only of ordinary mental worry, but also of worry and overwork of the millions of cell lives within him. He gave the cells and organs a rest and at once there was a storage of energy and weight.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Linked Before and After.

Having entered the church at Regensburg, in Germany, for the purpose of being married and taken his place beside the bride, a man named Wahl, who seems to have been of a somewhat nervous disposition, suddenly rushed out of the building, took a cab to the station and jumped into a moving train. We have always maintained that the bridegroom should be handcuffed to the best man until the conclusion of the ceremony. It is foolish to take unnecessary risks.—London Globe.

Happiness.

"There is an instinct in the heart of man which makes him fear a cloudless happiness. It seems to him that he owes to misfortune a tithe of his life, and that which he does not pay bears interest, is amassed and largely swells a debt which sooner or later he must acquit."

Her Long Dream.

Estelle—Ah! His proposal was just like a dream!

Agnes—Well, you ought to know, for You've been dreaming of that proposal for years.

KINGSTON CADETS AND VARSITY HAVING TROUBLES.

Toronto News: There is a grave possibility that the Varsity II.'s and R.M.C. will not meet again to play off the tie standing between the two in the intermediate series of the Intercollegiate. If such is the case the C.R.U. intermediate finals will be robbed of a great deal of interest, as there would be no college champions to meet the other league winners.

The situation is this:

Varsity absolutely refuses to play on Saturday next or a week later, as there are several high class men on the second team, who will be acting as spares for the seniors. Of course if the seniors are beaten this week the game could be played the following Saturday without difficulty but the local collegians will not consent to play on the 26th until the result of Saturday's game with the Torontos is known. If the crimson are beaten, a refusal will be forthcoming. On the other hand, it is said that the Cadets cannot go to Peterborough, where the deciding match is to be contested on a Wednesday. Varsity are willing to play next Wednesday, Hence the deadlock.

If the intermediate intercollegiate championship is not settled until the 3rd of December the winner of the interprovincial Quebec engagement will have to wait until December 18 for the final fixture.

Annette.

The vaudeville stage has developed musical comedies of great merit in short acts. Take for instance the music in Jesse Lasky's production "On the Housetop." The musical is famous. The very best song in the act is "Annette," and the New York World has secured it from Harry Von Tilzer and will publish it, words and music complete, free with next Sunday's World. Get it and try it on your piano.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST twins do your work."

NOT ANTI-BRITISH.

Bourassa Claims That He Has Been Wrongly Reported.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—Mr. Henri Bourassa denies emphatically that he is anti-British, and accuses the newspapers and certain Liberals of spreading false rumors.

In his speech at Montreal, before an audience of ten thousand people, Mr. Bourassa protested with energy against the charge that he was carrying on an anti-British campaign. Certain utterances of his friends in the Drummond and Arthabaska election might be quoted against him, but we do not know that this would be profitable. No patriotic object is to be gained by straining the point against Mr. Bourassa. We do not desire to believe that he is anti-British, or that his supporters in Quebec undoubtedly a numerous body, are anti-British It is possible that in addressing a large audience in the great city of Montreal, he speaks with a graver sense of responsibility than would influence the campaigners in a bye-election. If so, let that sense of responsibility grow, and let us seek rather to encourage its growth than to widen a possible cleavage by insisting upon a charge of disloyalty.

The resolutions adopted by the meeting declare that the result of the election in Drummond and Arthabaska is a triumph of autonomy. The inference is that the naval bill violates the principle of autonomy. In Ontario the charge is that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is an extreme advocate of autonomy; that he pushes autonomy to the point of separation from the British Empire; that the law regulating the navy is so worded as to prevent Canada from participating in the defence of the Empire. All this means that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in dealing with the question in a practical way, is actually facing the responsibility which Mr. Bourassa is beginning to perceive. He is attacked by extremists on both sides, because he has endeavored to reconcile the principle of autonomy with that of the obligation of Canada toward the Empire of which she forms part.

The resolution declares that any policy tending to impose upon Canada a share in the responsibility of defence outside the limits of Canada without a voice in Imperial affairs, is contrary to the principle of autonomy, and to the real unity of the Empire. There can be no doubt of the soundness of the principle that a country that is to participate in a war ought to have a voice in the policy which leads up to war or peace. To give Canada such a voice in a war which may arise out of some act of administration in Egypt, India, or South Africa is undoubtedly a problem of great difficulty. Nevertheless, it is an object which should never be lost sight of. It is right that in the naval law the principal of local and parliamentary control should be distinctly laid down. There may be in Great Britain ministers wise and unwise, inclined to peace or inclined to war. Although it may be difficult for them to consult with colonial ministries as to every circumstance and act which may lead up to a war, it is right that they should feel resting upon them the obligation to consider the public opinion of every part of the empire.

Autonomy is a sound principle. Where Mr. Bourassa differs with Sir Wilfrid is in his belief that the naval law violates autonomy. The intention of the law is to preserve autonomy, and at the same time to fulfill the obligations of Canada as a wealth to defence. He believe that this policy is framed upon right lines, and will become the settled policy of the people of Canada of both races.

GIVEN AN ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION AT PORTLAND BY BRITISH OFFICERS.

Many Courtesies Offered—Receive Favors Never Before Extended to Foreign Ships—The Day's Doings.

Portland, Eng., Nov. 16.—The first division of the United States battleship fleet, which includes Rear-Admiral Schroeder's flagship, the Connecticut, arrived here this morning. While warships passed the second division of the British home fleet, which was coming from Tor Bay the American passing out. Salutes were fired.

Vice-Admiral Sir William Henry May, commander of the home fleet, entertains the visiting admiral and captains on his flagship, the Dreadnought, tonight. The mayor and the corporation will give a banquet to the American officers, while a fancy ball and other entertainments for the British and American bluejackets have been arranged.

Immediately after the American battleships had been moored in the berths usually occupied by the second division of the home fleet, which left this morning for the express purpose of making room for the visitors in the overcrowded harbor, Vice-Admiral May put off in a barge to visit Rear-Admiral Schroeder. He was received at the gangway of the Connecticut by the American admiral, and the two retired to the latter's quarters. Later Rear-Admiral Schroeder returned the visit aboard the Dreadnought.

The men of the visiting fleet will be given all the privileges of the naval canteen at Portland and of the Sailors' Home in Weymouth harbor. This is a courtesy never before granted to the men of foreign ships. The naval recreation grounds have been placed at the disposal of the Americans, and rowing and sailing matches between crews of American and British seamen have been planned.

Gravesend, Eng., Nov. 16.— The battleship Minnesota, flagship of Rear-Admiral Murdock, the Idaho, Mississippi, and Vermont, comprising the third division of the American Atlantic fleet, arrived here today. Mayor Davis boarded the flagship and cordially welcomed Amiral Murdock his officers and men, on behalf of the the borough. Gravesend is gaily decorated in honor of the visitors.

GETS TWO YEARS FOR KILLING A DOCTOR.

L'Original, Nov. 17.—Blondin, the man who shot down Dr. Empey at Vars, when the latter called to treat him, was last night found guilty of manslaughter.

Blondin was this morning sentenced to two years in Kingston Penitentiary by his Lordship, Mr. Justice Britton, after Mr. Lemieux had made an appeal for clemency, saying the man was in failing health.

ARIZONA ROAD RUNNER.

A Sociable Bird That Is Said to Hate a Rattlesnake.

The road runner is one of Arizona's distinctive ornithological institutions. It is a long legged, long billed bird, slender of build and standing some ten inches high. It is not often seen in the farming districts, but is a familiar sight on the desert.

It has gained the name of road runner from its habit of taking the road in front of travelers be they on horseback or wheeled conveyance, and running swiftly or slowly, as occasion requires, showing off its neighborly spirit and running qualities. It is not uncommon for it to keep in company of the traveler for several hundred yards.

No resident of Arizona would kill a road runner. It is firmly believed that the bird is the deadly enemy of that monster of the desert, the rattlesnake. We don't know whether any of our readers ever saw a road runner kill a rattlesnake. If there is an authentic story of such a thing we would be glad to publish it. But the accepted tradition is that the road runner and the rattlesnake are deadly enemies and that the rattlesnake fears the road runner beyond anything else.

It is told that the bird drives the snake into a coil and then, darting around the serpent like lightning, pecks it to death. Whatever truth there may be in the stories of the road runner's accomplishments as a disciple of St. Patrick, it deserves the friendly protection it receives. Its quaint liability is always a diversion for the lonesome desert traveler. —Arizona Republican.

BRAINY BABY.

John Stuart Mill Was a Genius at Three Years of Age.

At three years of age John Stuart Mill began the study of Greek, with "arithmetic as an evening relaxation." At eight he began Latin, Euclid and algebra and had to act as tutor to the younger children. He was a stern and efficient tutor.

At twelve he began scholastic logic and political economy—the latter his main lifework.

At fourteen, while paying a long visit to Sir Samuel Bentham in southern France, he learned French as a relaxation from studying two or three hours before breakfast, five hours between breakfast and dinner and two or three in the evening. Being for the time master of his own hours and not subject to a stern father, he took lessons also in his spare hours in music, singing, dancing, fencing and riding, but never became proficient.

At sixteen Mill could speak in debate with adults with ease and freedom. At eighteen he contributed to the Westminster Review. At twenty-one he was made assistant in the India office and received a large salary for those days.

But Mill was bald at twenty-two. He did not marry until he was forty-five. He himself said: "I never was a boy. It is better to let nature have its own way."

The Green Flash of Sunset.

One of the most rarely witnessed of natural phenomena, but one that has often been discussed at scientific meetings and that always awakens wonder when seen, is the so called "green flash" occasionally visible at the moment of the disappearance of the sun behind a clear horizon. The observer's eye must be fixed upon the rim of the sun as it disappears in order to catch the phenomenon. One authority tells us that he has seen the green flash, although rarely, at the instant of the setting of a bright star. Among the explanations offered is one based upon the optical principle of complementary colors. If one looks at the sun and then closes the eyes a green disk will be perceived. A sensitive eye might be similarly affected by a brilliant star. —New York Herald.

He Took the Blame.

"The guilty man always gives himself away," said a detective, "for, like the chap who bought the forty-cent bathing suit, he can't hide his guilty conscience. The chap I have in mind entered the water at Atlantic City in a forty-cent suit of blue flannel. As he splashed about he was joined by a girl friend. The girl flashed her bright eyes over the tumbling expanse of sea and then with a sigh of delight she said:

"'Isn't the water blue today?'

"'It's shameful,' said the man, with a hot blush: 'it's perfectly shameful how this cheap bathing flannel runs!'"

How to Look Pleasant.

By her gracious and cordial manner the wife of a western senator has long charmed those so fortunate as to attend her delightful "functions."

On one such occasion a close friend was alluding to the hostess' graceful method of making every one feel at home. "How on earth do you manage to do it?" the friend asked.

"Oh, it's easy enough," replied the woman with the engaging manner. "As each guest approaches to shake hands I just pretend to myself that the person I am going to speak to is some one I like."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Mrs. Stratton's At Home.

A large at-home was given on Wednesday in the Hall of the Conservatory of Music, by Mrs. J. R. Stratton of Strathormond, to introduce her niece, Miss Alberta Gooding. The hall was brightened with elaborate decorations, consisting of walls tapestried with national bunting, ceiling and wall festoons of lines of varicolored electric lights. Palms were the motive of floral decorations, and an orchestra, walled in by palms, furnished the music. Several tables were massed with flowers sent to the debutante. Mrs. Stratton, assisted by her nieces received, wearing a black panne velvet gown with handsome jet garniture; diamond and pearl ornaments; very large white panne hat, faced with black velvet, with large white willow plumes and bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The debutante was charming in a gown of shell pink satin, with overdress of crystal net, trimmed with pearls, bandeau of pearls and bouquet of pink orchids and lily of the valley. The tea table was bright and beautiful floral decorations; the centrepiece was a pyramid of Richmond roses, flaming amid a setting of asparagus fern; at the corners were gold baskets of Richmond roses, looped to the centrepiece with scarlet baby ribbon, and from each trailed down over the table edges smilax set with roses in the imitation of a climbing rose vine. Mrs. T. F. Matthews and Mrs. A. H. Stratton presided over the tea and coffee urns, and were assisted in the tea room by Mrs. Claude Fox, Toronto; Misses F. Steveley, London; Iona Heintzman, Toronto; McFaul, Collingwood; Muriel Rogers and Muriel Burritt, city. In the evening a delightful dance given by Hon. Mr. and Mrs. Stratton was enjoyed to music supplied by a Toronto orchestra.

Cain—Young.

On Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock a very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's Church, Lindsay, when Miss Margaret Loretta Cain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cain, was united in marriage to Mr. Robert James Young, of Peterboro.

The nuptial mass was celebrated by Venerable Archdeacon Casey, who also performed the ceremony.

The bride was given away by her father, while the bridesmaid was Miss Minnie Cain, cousin of the bride. Mr. James Cain officiated as groomsman.

The bride was handsomely attired in a blue travelling suit and black plumed hat.

The bridesmaid was gowned in a gray taupe suit and black hat with white feather. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome set of furs and to the bridesmaid a beautiful ring with opals and amethysts and to the groom gold cuff links.

After the ceremony at the Church the happy couple drove to the residence of the bride's parents, where a wedding breakfast was partaken of and where they received the congratulations of those assembled.

The popularity of the bride was attested by the many beautiful presents she received.

Mr. and Mrs. Young left this afternoon on the C.P.R. for Toronto and points west. On their return they will reside in Peterboro, where Mr. Young conducts an implement business.

Is No Protestant.

To the Editor of The Times,—

Sir,—Whoever wrote the article signed "A Lakefield Protestant," which appeared in The Review on Wednesday, is not actuated by proper motives. It is dollars to doughnuts that he is not a Protestant, but takes his inspiration from the Church with the cross. Such events as the celebration of the anniversary of the discovery of the gunpowder plot does not please him.

A WILY ORIENTAL

Guile of a Tricky Native Snake Charmer In India.

GATHERED IN THE SERPENTS.

It Was No Trouble to Him to Lure the Reptiles Into His Basket, and the Supply Was In No Danger of Giving Out and Losing Him a Job.

Among the numerous objectionable and dangerous creatures peculiar to the orient none is more repulsive than the snake. One shudders involuntarily as one thinks of its wiggling body and vicious characteristics. During my residence in India I never felt safe from its presence. I had my closets, bed and even my bathtub searched every day lest one should be found coiled up in some corner, writes Eliza K. Van Bergen in the Christian Intelligencer.

I was always on the watch for the creatures and ever in mortal terror of treading on one. It never occurred to me to sleep without a light, and a stick was always near at hand lest I might find one unawares and be unprepared to meet it. I even looked upon my thin mosquito curtain as a slight protection, for it would at least break its fall should a snake tumble down suddenly from the ceiling.

The creatures have a decided preference for cool, damp places and often choose the bathroom and sometimes the rub for their habitation, much to the discomfort of its rightful habitue It is not unalloyed bliss to live in a place infested with serpents. With such formidable enemies, one never forgets to be cautious, nor to guard against their presence and sudden attack. It makes one alert to be in the midst of danger and adds spice to life.

Well, as I started out to say, my garden was infested with snakes, and I was persuaded to have a native charmer summoned to lure them away. His hideous occupation, weird incantations and strange pets surround the snake charmer with a peculiar fascination. His magnetism and skill are considered phenomenal in the east.

This specimen was tall and lank and had deep, cavernous eyes and an abstracted air. Some of the creatures were coiled around his wrist, which made him still more repellent. He handled them as if they were perfectly harmless. About the neck he wore a chain with a flute attached. Two other jugglers accompanied him, similarly attired, but minus the snakes. One carried a closed basket on his arm.

He stopped at a respectful distance to make his "salaam," which is the customary salute of the country. Then he approached the aloe hedge which inclosed my grounds, squatted himself tailor fashion on the grass and began to produce weird, plaintive sounds on the flute, to which music the reptiles entwined themselves around him and seemed to sway their bodies to and fro.

After some time a snake appeared, gliding slowly and stealthily out from the hedge toward the spot where it heard the enchanting music. The charmer allowed it to come quite close and to wind itself around his arm. Another followed and yet another, while the other two men stood by holding a basket ready to receive them as soon as they unwound themselves. At least a half dozen appeared and were disposed of in this manner. After being captured they appeared as if in a stupor.

Horrified with his performance, I begged him to stop and bade him leave the place. He assented and, picking up the basket, departed with the snakes, without ever ceasing to play his uncanny tune. His companions gathered up the rest of his belongings and followed him. I paid a certain sum for each snake thus dispatched.

He came repeatedly thereafter and went through the same performance, conjuring up more reptiles and disposing of them in the same way until I began to suspect some trickery. He refused to allow the snakes to be killed insisting that they were sacred and must not be put to death. It looked as if he replaced the snakes in the hedge after removing them, and thus he multiplied their number and increased his gains.

I was finally forced to have him removed by the police and threatened with punishment in order to keep him away. Nothing would persuade me to permit one of the fellows to enter my premises again.

Amply Qualified.

Proud Parent—If you would win my daughter, young man, you must prove to my satisfaction that you have fortitude, patience under discouraging circumstances, strength of character, courage, an indomitable will to succeed and, above all, an ability to bear with misfortune. Have you those qualifications? Suitor—I've known your daughter for some time, sir, and am asking you for her hand. Do you wish other assurances?

Good Cause For It.

"Good heavens! Was she hurt?"

"Not a bit of it. She was just tickled to death. They were diamonds."—Baltimore American.

LOCAL HUNTER'S FIERCE FIGHT WITH A BUCK.

Yesterday one of the finest bucks seen in Peterborough, was on exhibition in front of Mr. E. F. Mason's grocery store on George street. This buck was shot on Memesagamesing or Spider Lake, north of Parry Sound. The buck has a fine head of horns, but unfortunately Mr. Felix Brownscombe, the fortunate hunter, with his first shot, struck one of the antlers, shattering it.

Mr. E. F. Mason, one of Peterborough's most skilled veterans of the chase, out with the same party, had an exciting experience with a "spike horn" buck" he shot. On the chase after the buck in question, Mr. Mason armed with a small automatic rifle, fired at his quarry, just as the deer was approaching the shore of the lake, with a Russian-Indian-hard-to-pronounce name. His bullet seemed to have gone true as the buck, just as it started to climb from the lake to terra firma, fell back. Mr. Mason paddled at once as quickly as well trained muscles, and the craft of an experienced canoeman would allow. As he neared the buck, it arose and tried to climb the bank. Just across its course lay a big fallen log. The deer with a desperate effort tried to get its fore feet over the log on its way to safety. However, the bullet had found its billet, and the deer fell back. The huntsman, quickly jumped from his canoe, grasping the deer by one ear, he pulled his hunting knife, and proceeded to accomplish the last rites of a hunter, viz. to bleed the deer. As the knife had barely pierced the buck's hide, at its throat, the animal returned to full flight. Its front and back feet began to work like an electric motor with delirium tremens. The sharp pointed hoofs threshed everywhere and every way. Mr. Mason keeping right hold of the ear he had at first caught, quickly reached for the other caudial appendage. Fortunately a teamster was due about that time on a country road near the scene of the trouble. Mr. Mason hearing the rumble of wheels yelled lustily for aid, keeping one knee on the buck's throat, and each of his hands grasping the deer's ears. The teamster hearing Mason's cries, with a companion, came to the local man's aid. One of the rescue party grabbed the buck's front legs, and the other the deer's hind feet. The "coup de grace," was then quickly given, and the deer converted into venison.

EDUCATIONALISTS HERE.

Queen's University Alumni to Meet Here on the Second of Next Month.

The members of the Queen's Alumni of Ontario, will hold their annual meeting in this city on December 2nd. That Peterborough is honored with this meeting of so talented an assemblage of educated men, is in large part due to the good work done by Mr. E. L. Goodwill, B.A., B.C.L., a distinguished graduate of that university. Mr. Goodwill, who is possibly better known locally, through his law practice and connection, as secretary, with the Children's Aid Society, is president of Queen's Alumni Mr. Goodwill has expended every effort at his command to make the coming meeting in Peterborough a success. It is expected that President Gordon of Queen's University, will be here and address the meeting as well as several other professors of Queen's. The professors who will come from Kingston will deliver addresses on various subjects of general and educational interest. The executive are considering the matter of throwing the meetings open to graduates of other universities, living in this city.

Not Like Other Girls.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 17.—A most unusual debutante is to be introduced to Chicago society tomorrow. Miss Marguerite Sherlock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Sherlock, who in her twenty years of life has never been permitted to go to a party, never has had any young man caller and has never ventured from her home unless under the eyes of a careful chaperon, is to be introduced to society in a "coming out" party at one of the leading hotels. After this presentation Miss Sherlock, according to her mother will be free to follow her own inclination in accepting or refusing invitations.

THE CHINESE WANT THE TREATY ABROGATED.

Which Affords Great Britain a Legal Excuse for Citizens to Engage In the Opium Trade.

Washington, Nov. 16.—What is described as a monster appeal is being drawn up by the Chinese, urging Great Britain to abrogate the treaties with China which permit British interests to engage in the opium trade. Word to this effect has been received here by the International Reform League from its field secretary in Pekin. The petition, which the cablegram intimates will be a document of enormous proportions, will be submitted simultaneously to the British and Chinese governments.

There are two treaties in existence between China and Great Britain, the first being signed by the two countries in 1842, and the second, which admitted France on equal terms with England, being signed in 1858. While practically all the nations of the world have joined in a crusade on the opium traffic, it is declared that it is still far from being abolished, although it does not flourish as in the past.

It is charged that the existence of the treaties in question afford legal excuse for British and French citizens to engage in the traffic in China. It is to remove such excuse that the Chinese petition is being drawn, it is declared for presentation to the governments in London and Pekin.

United States Governor Offends the Japanese

SAYS QUESTION IS WHETHER MIKADO'S FLAG OR STARS OR STRIPES SHALL WAVE.

Pacific Coast Helpless—U.S. Should Not Leave Itself Vulnerable to Attack by Ambitious Nation.

San Francisco, Nov. 18.—The defenceless condition of the Pacific coast in the event of a sudden war, has been the keynote thus far of speeches made before the first Pacific Coast Congress, called by Governor James N. Gillette, in pursuance of a legislative resolution to discuss the urgency of merchant marine legislation, and the maintenance of a strong fleet in the Pacific.

Governor Gillette, in explaining the purpose of the congress, touched upon the opening of the Panama Canal.

"An ambitious nation faces us on the other side of the Pacific. Shall it be the flag of the Rising Sun, or the Stars and Stripes that shall float at the mast heads on the Pacific? Will Japan carry our commerce? Will Japan carry our mails?

"The Pacific Coast is in need of proper protection. There must be adequate defence for the commerce of Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and Tacoma."

Brigadier-General Chas. Morton U.S.A., retired, said that a battleship fleet should be maintained in the Pacific, and urged greater mobile land forces of cavalry, artillery and infantry.

VARSITY AND R.M.C.

BIG FOOTBALL GAME IN PETERBOROUGH TODAY.

The Royal Military College Club and Toronto Varsity to Meet on the Gridiron—Exciting Game Expected.

The Kingston Standard says that about the only local interest in football is now centred on R.M.C., who play Varsity II. in Peterboro, on Saturday for the Intermediate I.C.R. F.C. championship. Kingston's only hope for a football championship is in R.M.C., and all local enthusiasts are dead anxious to see them win. That the Soldiers will acquit themselves nobly, and that this is the feeling of their supporters is evidenced by the extensive preparations which are being made to give the Cadets the heartiest support.

The Cadets themselves are overjoyed with the permission granted them by Commandant Crowe to attend the championship game between Varsity II. and R.M.C. at Peterboro on Saturday. Not in years have the Soldiers' sporting aggregations been accompaniedby any large number of supporters on their trips and the innovation is a welcome one both with the Cadets and their city friends. A special train will be run from here on Saturday morning and the Cadets will attend in a body, accompanied by their officers and other military supporters. Hundreds of Queen's students will also go along to cheer their erstwhile rivals on to victory. The Soldiers are in the pink of condition, their prospective line-up being the same as played last Saturday. They are perfectly agreeable to have Marty Halsh, Ottawa, as referee and it is considered probable that Varsity will agree as Marty gave fine satisfaction here last week. It has been left to the Interrollegiate executive, however, to choose the officials.

The train will leave the city Grand Trunk station at nine o'clock Saturday morning and arrangements are under progress for the accommodation of the largest crowd of football excursionists of the season. The train will go by way of Belleville, and will reach Peterboro at 12.30 o'clock, returning to leave at 7.30, arriving here about 11 o'clock.

TYPHOID'S RAVAGES TWENTY ARE DEAD

TERRIBLE OUTBREAK OF THE SCOURGE IN ORONO.

Many Places in This Neighborhood Affected—A Virulent Type of the Disease.

Such an epidemic of typhoid fever from a single cause as the terribly fatal one that is supposed to have originated from drinking polluted water at a hotel in Orono village on the days of Clark township Fall Fair on September 15 and 16 has never been known to prevail in one district in Canada before.

From information that has come to hand from outside places—Hamilton, Peterboro, Port Hope, Cobourg, Bowmanville, Newcastle, Oshawa, Pontypool, Garden Hill, Leskard, Kirby and several country sections—the infection has been doing its work and twenty cases, it is reported, have ended fatally, four of these having occurred within a few days. Two of them took place in Nicholls Hospital, Peterboro—Cecil Perrin, Pontypool, aged 30 years, and George W Bigelow, Kirby, aged 35 years; the other being Miss Ethel Irene Arch of Orono village, who died in the General Hospital, Oshawa, and James Ward, farmer, who died a few days before. Several cases are still in a problematical stage and the greatest anxiety is felt by friends owing to the large percentage of deaths that have already occurred.

The members of Bowmanville musical organization, the Dominion Organ & Piano Co. Band, who played at the Fair, have suffered greatly. Six of them contracted the fever, two of whom—William H. Tucker and Isaac Hobbs—have died, the former leaving a wife and four sons to mourn his decease. Some of the others are not well as yet.

The proprietress of the hotel has moved out of the building, her children having contracted the fever, too. The well said to have been infected has been filled in, and everything done to restore the wholesome and sanitary condition of the village.

BANDSMAN MILLER RECEIVES HIS LONG SERVICE MEDAL.

An interesting event took place at the armories Thursday night when Bandsman Fred Miller, son of Lieut.-Col. Miller, was presented with the long service medal signifying that he had served twenty years in the Canadian militia. The presentation was made by Lt.-Col. Stevenson, commanding officer of the regiment, who referred in terms of highest praise to Bandsman Miller's services to the regiment.

Lt.-Col. Halliday took advantage of the occasion to express his appreciation of the 57th Band During all their trips they had felt proud of their band, and of the fact that the regiment had a band second to few if any of the regiments in the Dominion

A Compliment to Our City

The following letter was yesterday received by Chief Howard from the Inspector of the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Co., which pays a strong compliment to the city in general and to Chief Howard in particular. The letter read as follows:—

Toronto, Nov. 17, 1910.

W. A. Howard, Esq., Chief of Fire Department, Peterboro, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Your paper read before the convention of Fire Chiefs in Toronto on "The Advantages of a Clean Town or City From a Fire Standpoint and How to Accomplish same," made instructive reading, and I congratulate you on having been the first, as far as I know, to bring this important subject so prominently before your fellow fire chiefs of Ontario. I have had occasion many times during the past year to point out to the Mayors of a number of towns in Ontario that I have visited, what the members of the police and fire department of Peterboro have accomplished during the past two years in keeping your city free from the accumulation of rubbish, etc.

Peterboro is now considered generally as one of the cleanest cities in Ontario, and it must be a source of gratification to the fire department and members of the police force that they have been able to obtain such good results along this line by their mutual corporation.

Yours truly,
A. C. STEPHENSON,
Inspector.

This letter should encourage the merchants and other citizens to greater efforts, as such recommends by the big insurance companies mean cheaper insurance for every resident of Peterboro.

A Naughty Colt.

While driving his motor car near Orillia recently, Henry Ball had a rather unusual experience. As he rode along he noticed a two-year-old colt. To the tooting of the horn the colt paid no attention. It remained on the highway quite unperturbed. When the machine got within reach, the animal let go its heels into one of the lamps, smashing it to smithereens. Then it cantered off laughing to itself at the damage it had done.

NATIONALISTS WILL CONTEST EVERY SEAT IN PROV. OF QUEBEC

BOURASSA'S FIGHTING YOUNG LIEUTENANT IS IN CITY OF TORONTO.

Develop the Empire But By Building Up Canada—Wants No Navy—Will Remain in Quebec and Fight the Gouin Government.

Toronto News.

"A. L.—Montmagny."

That's the inscription on his grip—Armand Lavergne.

The easy-mannered, well-educated young man, with short dark hair, thin on the top of a lofty brow, and a fair moustache, slightly larger than the average R.M.C. cadet's—and looking like their's—as if it had never been cut, a rather delicate and aristocratic face, that might belong to the leisurely-worked scion of a wealthy Parisian; a slight but well knit body, in height about 5 feet 9 or 10 inches, with a ever-ready smile that is friendly but firm; Armand Lavergne, as he stood in his room at the King Edward this morning had not the look of the long haired fierce visaged fire-eater that he has been pictured during and since that memorable campaign of Drummond-Arthabaska of which the young French-Canadian assumed the political organization, and carried to a remarkable success.

The picture of a headlong, headstrong, fanatic was not assisted any when he lightly threw himself into a chair, crossed his legs and lit a cigarette.

ONLY THIRTY.

What strikes one, next to his ease of manner and intellectual look, is his youth—for the part he has already played in Canadian affairs. Even there one is apt to be deceived, he might be 35; he is 30. And yet it is over six years since he entered the House of Commons in a by-election, a pet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

He speaks English fairly readily. Father Fallon, now become famous as Bishop of London, taught him his first English, when at the age of 17, he entered Ottawa College.

Armand Lavergne has come to Ontario to explain the position of the Nationalists to English-speaking people, and he affirmed they were "not as bad as they had been painted." He will speak in all the Provinces whenever opportunity offers, for he has a policy that he claims is not for Quebec alone, but all Canada—a national one.

All questions, he affirms, should be decided as will result for the best development of Canada. As Canada is a part of the Empire—and he means to keep it as such—he claims that herein the Nationalists are the best Imperialists.

TO REMAIN IN QUEBEC.

The Nationalists propose—in the Quebec Legislature—to continue their struggle against the Gouin ministry, along economic lines, and Mr. Lavergne says he expects to remain there until they accomplish their purpose, for which, temporarily at least they are allied with the Conservatives.

WILL CONTEST EVERY SEAT.

Mr. Bourassa, who he stated today is about to leave for France to recover his health, would probably enter the Federal contest and run candidates in every constituency, fighting the Laurier men on the naval question—and on graft, alienation of the public domain and other corrupt practices, which made Sir the leader and his lieutenant leave the Federal House, after an ineffectual protest.

OTHER PROVINCES AS WELL.

The Nationalist campaign will broaden out, however, and extend, if opportunity offers, to other provinces, and it is quite possible candidates will be placed in French-Canadian and even some English ridings.

"The main object of the Nationalist policy is a better understanding between the English and the French," said Mr. Lavergne, in a well modulated, almost soft voice.

"The thing we want is that the two races and two languages should be on an equal footing. That is the spirit on which Confederation was founded."

"THE RED YEAR."

The Times has secured from the British and Colonial Press Service the exclusive rights for Peterborough to Louis Tracey's great story, "The Red Year." The opening chapters of this masterpiece of modern fiction will be published in the course of the next few weeks and readers of The Times are assurred of one of Tracey's best stories.

Louis Tracey is a writer known throughout the English speaking world as one of the best story tellers of today, and in the "Red Year," he sustains the reputation he gained when his "Wings of the Morning" was first given to the public.

In this more recent tale the author introduces the reader to the stirring times of the Indian Mutiny and around the charming English girl Winnifred Mayne, he has woven a love story that grips one. The thrilling episodes that mark the progress of the mutiny are enhanced in interest by the mysteries of religious fanaticism and altogether Tracey keeps the reader expectant from beginning to end. His charm of diction completes the virtue of the "Red Year," as a story to which The Times will have pleasure in introducing its readers.

Mrs. Schenk's Chauffeur was Visiting in Toronto

STOPPED WITH A FRIEND—IS NOW VISITING IN MONTREAL CITY.

Will Probably Stay in Canada Until After the Schenk Case Has Blown Over.

Toronto, Nov. 18.—Lundy Wilson, chauffeur for Mrs. Schenk, who is now in Wheeling, W. Va., jail, charged with administering poison to her millionaire husband, was in Toronto yesterday morning. Today he is in Montreal, and it is probable that he will remain in Canada until the Schenk case has blown over.

The chauffeur was first coupled with the woman's name after the arrest, but it was shown that her more serious infatuation was for a clerk in Wheeling. The State now wants him as a witness to declare, it is stated, that Mrs. Schenk had offered him $1,000 to drive the auto over a cliff with Schenk, or to administer to him when opportunity offered, a poisoned pill.

The News will this afternoon place in the possession of the police of Toronto the following letter:

Editor of the News:

Sir,—Relative to your statement in tonight's News that the police are anxious to find the whereabouts of the missing chauffeur of John G. Schenk, of Wheeling, W. Va., the writer of this note saw Landy Wilson off this morning to Montreal by 9.02 train, and according to him he is going to stay with friends in that city meanwhile. You can use this information as you think suitable.

Faithfully Yours,
T. H. W.

The writer's name is signed in full but withheld from the public at present.

WOMEN CAUSE LONDON RIOTS

THREE HUNDRED AND FIFTY MAKE AN ATTACK ON HOUSE OF PARLIAMENT.

Mounted Police Rode Among the Disturbers—A Dozen or So Were Taken Into Custody In the Early Stages.

London, Nov. 18.—Near riots have been in progress in and about the Parliament Buildings today, as the result of the activity of the suffragettes.

Three hundred and fifty of the more militant made a concerted attack upon the police guard in an effort to enter the structure. They were dispersed as gently as possible, but renewed the attack time and again. Enormous crowds, many in sympathy with the women, gathered and assisted them in their efforts to force their way through the police.

Finally the authorities ordered the summon additional guards and a cordon was thrown all about the vicinity. This, instead of disheartening the workers, seemed to give them fresh courage, and they rushed the guard in a mass bringing football tactics into play.

The police managed to drive them back without any more damage than a slight disarrangement of costumes. Six of the leaders have been arrested.

Finally the althorities ordered the mounted police to the scene. They forced their horses into the crowd, and after a great deal of trouble succeeded in clearing the space about the building.

Dozens of women were knocked down and cut and bruised during the rioting, but none were seriously hurt.

HOODLUMS ATTACK WOMEN

Later in the day the row developed a serious aspect as the result of the advent on the scene of hundreds of hoodlums, who attacked the women. In several instances they actually tore the clothing from the back of the suffragettes and group fighting followed, which made it necessary for the police to use stern methods and to make many arrests.

Many sailors from the American squadron, were interested spectators of the methods of the advocates of equal suffrage.

Norwood Liquor Case Enlarged.

Larry Killorne appeared before County Magistrate Edmison at Norwood on Thursday charged with a violation of the Liquor License Act. The case was not concluded, the defence asking for an adjournment. Mr. G. N. Gordon for the crown, stated that he was not aware that the prosecution was going to prove the case through an agent, and therefore was not prepared. The evidence of Inspector Williams and Provincial Inspector Airriess was taken. The case was enlarged till next Thursday at 1 o'clock at the court house

A PRESENTATION

And Banquet to Lieut.-Col. Halliday at the Armories.

Possibly no presentation to a local citizen attracted more general attention than did the gift of a handsomely engraved piece of plate, to Lieut.-Col. Dr. Halliday on Thursday night at the armories banquet. Colonel Stevenson in part said that he compared Dr. Halliday with the family physician who is with us when we come into the world, looks after our early days and when we have reached man's estate, stands between us, and the ills that trouble us. He felt that he could safely refer to Lt.-Col. Halliday as the family physician of the 57th Regiment. For twenty years he had inspired the officers and members of the regiment by his genial conduct. As president of the Mess Committee, Lt.-Col. Halliday had been of invaluable assistance. As a mark of the respect and esteem of the officers he asked Lt.-Col. Halliday to accept the piece of plate and assured him that its weight was caused by its being loaded down with the good wishes of the officers.

Dr. Halliday responded in fitting terms, assuring his brother officers of the regiment of his appreciation of the warm ties that bound them. The non-commissioned officers and privates of the 57th had always been and will be his friends.

NOTICE TO FAT WOMEN.

A Detroit physician says that the cheapest and safest mixture that a fat woman who wants to get thin can use is ½ ounce Marmola (get it in the original ½ ounce package), 1 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 4½ ounces Peppermint Water. The proper amount to take is a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

These ingredients may be obtained from any druggist at small cost, and make a combination that is not only excellent as a fat reducer, being able, it is claimed, to take off a pound a day without causing wrinkles, but it is also a splendid help to the system as a whole, regulating the stomach and bowels (where the fat person's troubles begin), and clearing the skin of pimples and blotches. No exercise is required to help the remedy in its work, and best of all, no dieting is necessary while taking it—you can eat what you like.

THE LATE GEORGE TAYLOR.

Sad Death of a Former Popular Peterborough Young Man.

Mr. George Taylor, son of Mr. Wm. Taylor of the custom house, passed away at his home in Toronto at 7.15 on Thursday evening, after a short illness from pneumonia. Deceased was well and popularly known in this city, having lived here nearly all his boyhood days. He was 43 years of age at the time of his death. His parents and two sisters arrived at his home just five minutes after he passed away. He was married twenty-one years ago to Charity Maud Decker of this city, who with three sons survive him. The sons are Ernest Hilbert, Curtis and Willie, of Toronto. He also leaves his sorrowing parents, three sisters and one brother. The sisters are Mrs. Walter Stocker, Mrs. S. Mitchell and Mrs. Thos. Byers of this city. The brother is Rev. Herbert Taylor, pastor of Zion Presbyterian Church, of Bonapart, Iowa.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, 753 Bathurst St., Toronto, at 3 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, to Toronto cemetery.

The Times extends its sincerest sympathy to the bereaved family, in the irreparable loss which they have sustained.

JAPAN'S NEW WAR CRAFT

London, Nov. 18.—Japan is going to increase her navy. An order for a huge armored cruiser of the Dreadnought type has been placed with the Vickers-Maxim English shipbuilding firm, it was learned today.

The war craft will be of the latest sea-fighting type, and will cost $12,500,000.

COUNT TOLSTOI'S FIGHT FOR LIFE

TODAY BELIEVED TO BE THE TURNING POINT IN CASE OF NOTED NOVELIST.

He Lies in a Log Cabin—Although Ill and Weak the Countess Demands to Be at Her Husband's Bedside.

Astapova, Russia, Nov. 18.—Count Tolstoi passed a critical night and it is announced from his bedside by the attending physicians this morning that today would likely be the turning point in the case. He would either start upon the road to recovery or sink beyond all hope.

The first bulletin from the bedside today stated that Tolstoi's temperature was 99.1, a slight drop from the high fever of yesterday. The count is delirious part of the time and during periods of delirium mutters passages from its books.

ALARMS THE DOCTORS.

Tolstoi's heart action is alarming the doctors. His pulse is weak. Although ill and weak, Countess Tolstoi demands that she be allowed to stay at her husband's bedside.

The weather here is intensely cold and the season late. The station master's house, in which Tolstoi lies is a one storey log cabin. The visitors, who have come here are unable to secure accommodation.

A BETTER SET OF BELLS DESIRED

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—Some statement seems to be called for in regard to present condition of the chimes project. Through the wide generosity of some fifteen hundred present and past citizens, we have now a subscription list of a little over $5,100, of which $4,400 stands to the credit of the fund in the bank. With this sum we could purchase at once, and install a chime of ten good bells. This would be quite sufficient for church purposes, and be a good ordinary chime of about the same character as several in Ontario and better than others.

But in the public interest we are unwilling to order any ordinary chime unless compelled to do so. Our Peterborough bells will be unique as given by the community generally, and one of the objects accordingly will be to play those national and other airs which unite us a community and thereby to foster patriotism and national and civic sentiment. This feature, which under the circumstances seems so very important, will require eleven bells at least, while one or two more would be a valuable addition.

In the early stages of this big movement it was not necessary, nor was it possible to set the exact sum required, and even now it is impossible to calculate exactly the cost of the tower work and incidentals, but as far as we can see, $5,000 will obtain and install eleven bells from 3,000 or 2,500 lbs. up to 5,500 or 5,270 lbs, according to the different tenders. We have no funds or guarantee on which to fall back, so either we must order a chime which would be a disappointment to many as not having the required range, or the order must be delayed until further support be forthcoming.

If the required sum seems large, we have to realize that it is no larger than the case in other cities which have obtained this boon. Though the cost has been quickly forgotten, the great public asset remains.

In Cobourg $5,000 was paid in connection with a much smaller chime. In Petrolia over $6,000 and in Stratford $9,000 for chime and clock. In these and most cases the cost has been borne by a comparative few, in Petrolia and Woodstock by one patriotic citizen. Now that we Peterborough people are doing this thing in such a united and happy fashion, is it not well that we should at least attempt the very best that is possible.

The committee are carefully scanning the situation and if the limit of public support is shown to have been reached they will expend the money already so generously given as well as they can, even though the results be below the mark set. In the meantime we are making no uncomfortable appeal, but merely state the present position, on the chance that some other public spirited citizens may add to and render more effective what their fellow citizens have already done.

The bulk of this great work having been accomplished, there is certainly a striking opportunity now to finish it in such a way that instead of being anything ordinary, it will distinguish our city and be a pride and joy to all citizens.

Yours faithfully,
J. C. Davidson.

MAN WHO SHOT DEAD TWO CONSTABLES DIES ON THE GALLOWS.

Many Watched From Windows and Roofs, Including 100 Women and Children.

Montreal, Nov. 18. The law was today avenged for the murder on May 6th of Night Constables O'Connell and Fortner, at the hands of Timothy Candy, when at 7.58 o'clock the double murderer was hanged in the yard of the Montreal jail.

Maintaining a wonderful composure Candy faced death without a tremor, marching coolly to the scaffold at the rear of the jail, mounting the steps unassisted, and never flinching as the black cap was thrust over his head and the noose tightened around his neck before the quick swing into eternity.

The hangman's identity was kept a secret, but it was known that he was a Toronto man recommended by Radcliffe, and it was stated that his name was Ellis.

CROWDS ON THE ROOF

The last grim chapter in the two fold murder was without incident, the hanging taking place before but a hundred spectators, who shivered in the jail yard, and close on five hundred people, who crowded roofs, windows, and every available spot in the vicinity from which there could be caught a fleeting glimpse of the enactment of the law's vengeance. The morbid attraction had appealed not only to men, but among those who from outside the jail yard witnessed the hanging were at least one hundred women and children. At almost every window through which a view of the jail yard could be obtained there could be seen the faces of women and children of tender years, while from many of the windows there protruded the heads and shoulders of those who were anxious not to miss a single movement in the grim event. Inside the yard the spectators were clustered around the rope which separated the gallows enclosure and pathway, along which was lined a cordon of jail guards, armed with rifles.

AN UNEASY SLEEP.

After tossing about on his cot in the death cell during the early hours of the night, the condemned man dropped into a fitful slumber early this morning, but was awakened long before the hour for execution. Just at daylight he was visited by his spiritual adviser, Rev. Father Donovan, the jail chaplain, who administered the last rites of the church. Just before eight o'clock Hangman Ellis appeared at the cell door, and without a spoken word the condemned man knew that the last chapter of the tragedy had opened, and rising to his feet, awaited the executioner's approach. Candy's hands were deftly pinioned by a strap behind his back, and then the solemn scene of the execution started.

WAS DEADLY PALE.

Candy, clad in a dark colored coat a collarless shirt, and shapeless trousers of a light brown color, was deathly pale, but held his head high and gazed calmly around the yard as he emerged from the jail, his eyes glancing at the gathering which lined the route to the gallows, and then seeking the sky.

Turning at the corner of the jail he saw for the first time the dark red scaffold with the knotted rope swaying slightly in the breeze, and ascended the steps unassisted, took his place on the trap door at the direction of the hangman. Candy betrayed no outward emotion, his head was still thrown back and his eyes gazed straight ahead. There was not a tremor discernible as the executioner quickly placed over the condemned man's head and shoulders the large black bag, and then adjusted the rope outside it, tightening the knot under Canady's left ear.

Turning from this Hangman Ellis glanced about and as Rev. Father Donovan reverently removed the cap which covered his head, there was a snap, the trap door dropped away beneath Candy's feet, and his body shot downward, stopping with a jerk as the end of the rope was reached while the scaffold creaked. The body rebounded slightly, and then swayed slowly from side to side, the head falling forward as the knot shifted around to the back of Candy's neck. There was no movement in Candy's fingers.

Immediately after Hangman Ellis stepped down from the scaffold and hastened beneath, and removed the straps, first from the feet and then from the wrists. In ten minutes and five seconds after the bolt had been drawn Candy was pronounced dead.

MANUEL IN ENGLAND.

Young Manuel of Portugal has dropped from one throne into another. After he had sickened with a start in Portugal he was almost at once sent to sleep again in England.

He has put up with the Duke of Orleans in Worcestershire. The Duke claims the French throne. Once a king, always a king. A king out of a job must wait in state until another job is given him.

In Worcestershire the French claimant maintains a court. Servants in royal livery attend him. Titled persons do him homage. Portraits of Bourbon ancestors adorn the walls. The lilies of France ornament everything from the gilded gates to the cups and saucers. It is the realm of Make Believe.

Here poor young Manuel finds still a veil between himself and the workaday world. The worst of his situation is that he, too, has become a claimant and may never be anything else. To be put in a false position at 20 and to have to hold it through life is the worst of fates. There seems little likelihood that Manuel, from what we know of him and of royal handicaps in general, will ever extricate himself from his fantastic dilemma. His play-acting relative, in offering him asylum, has done him but a dubious service.

A SCHOOL OF RAILROADING.

The University of Illinois plans to develop its school of railroading into the greatest in the world—an idea that befits the country with the largest railroad mileage and the state with the largest proportion of the mileage. The scheme has the active good will and encouragement of many high railroad officials, and there is a strong prospect that the lines will co-operate with the university in an endeavor to get, at the next session of the legislature, an appropriation for an additional buildings and equipment.

Safe operation and capable administration are assuredly desiderata. A more comprehensive grasp on both departments of the business can probably be got in a well-organized and well-conducted school than among the hazards of the switchyard or through the dry office routine of some circumscribed department. Such a union of practical and academic forces as came together the other day at Urbana should produce results advantageous both to the railroads and to the country at large.

SUNDAY CARS.

The Times received an anonymous letter advocating a Sunday street car service for Peterboro. The writer should not be afraid or ashamed to sign his name to his literary effort, if he belives in what he writes about. Peterboro is hardly ripe for such an innovation.

JUDGE BECOMES ACTOR.

A Cincinnati judge is going to quit the bench to star in a play which he has written. In resigning his official position he seems to be acting unwisely. By remaining a judge he might, if people throw things at him, fine them for contempt of court.

CANADA BEING PEOPLED.

The number of immigrants arriving in Canada during the first four months of the fiscal year totalled 155,549, as compared with 90,249 for the same months of the year previous. Immigration from the United States increased from 40,267 to 54,699.

A YANKEE YARN OF THE USUAL CALIBRE.

Story of How Sailors From Battleship Mississippi Woke Up Old London.

New York, Nov. 17.—A special cable to a New York news service today says: Stand old England suffered a mild shock today. While it has always been accepted as a tradition in the service that "nothing is too good for the American seamen," London is having that fact driven home in a manner that is the least embarrassing for the sailors from the American battleship Mississippi, who have been touring the city.

The Mississippi is a "lucky ship." Her boat crews win races and her scrappers win prize fights, with an uninterrupted success that has become monotonous. The result is that the ship's safes are usually well jammed with coin of the realm, and when the liberty party from the big warship went ashore yesterday every man of them had a roll. They steered a straight course for London.

Bands of them today engaged big "rubbernecks" motor cars from the fons of which they viewed the sights of the metropolis and tossed coins to the street sweepers and the unemployed who clutter along the thoroughfares. Soon crowds of howling beggars were following the vehicles. Traffic was blocked along Fleet street and the Strand, and the police for a time were unable to control the situation.

It finally became necessary to demand that the seamen desist the noise explaining that if they kept the thing up actual rioting would result. Baffled in this mode of fun, the seamen began hiring smaller vehicles. The more stylish the outfit they could find, the better they seemed to like it. The city had never seen anything like it before, and the ancient American motto: "Spending money like a sailor," has now been adopted by Pondoners as indicating the acme of extravagance.

The American sailors are being accorded every hospitality by the various patriotic societies and an effort is being made to return the courtesies extended to the British seamen who participated in the visits of Prince Louis of Battenberg and Admiral Seymour to New York.

ROAR OF BIG GUNS.

The Effect Upon the Nerves and the Sense of Hearing.

One of the penalties attendant on firing off big guns is deafness. So sure is this penalty to be exacted that, it is asserted, no man can go through a long series of gunnery practice without having his hearing affected. A stranger on deck who hears a big gun speak for the first time will not soon forget the stunning report.

One gun is enough to startle a stranger, but the shattering effect of the whole armament when in action together can hardly be conceived. The strain upon nerves and senses when the rending concussion takes place is terrible.

There is not a great difference between the effect of the big guns and that of the smaller pieces, strange as it may seem. If the visitor places himself beside one of the smaller guns and then listens to the roar of the big one, the sound will not appear much louder than that of the gun by his side. The extra distance to the muzzle of the big piece discounts the sound. The only apparent difference between the two will be that the smaller piece has a sharper, higher pitched tone, and that the big guns speak with a more bellowing roar.

If one watches the firing of the gun the crash has not such a startling effect as when it comes unexpectedly. Loud as it is, nature has prepared the watcher to resist the shock which he knows is impending.—Exchange.

ROMAN ARENAS.

They Were Not Mere Rings as Those of the Modern Circus.

The arenas of ancient Rome were not, as some people suppose, mere rings or ovals, such as may be seen in the modern circus. They were broken up and varied in character according to the nature of the fighting to be done or to the caprices of those in authority.

On one occasion an arena might resemble the Numidian desert, on another the garden of Hesperides, thick set with groves of trees and rising mounds, while again it pictured the great rocks and caves of Thrace.

With these surroundings the combatants advanced, retreated, encircled their adversaries or kept wild beasts at bay as occasion offered or as their courage or fear suggested. Men combated not only with the more common brutes, but with such monsters as elephants, rhinoceroses, hippopotamuses and crocodiles.

On other occasions flocks of game, such as deer and war ostriches, were abandoned to the multitude, and in some cases the arenas could be turned into lakes, filled with monsters of the deep, and upon the surface of which naval engagements took place.—London Saturday Review.

Hints to Swimmers.

An expert swimmer is authority for the assertion that a vast majority of the drowning casualties which are attributed to cramps are in all probability the result of cardiac exhaustion. Nearly all experienced swimmers, he says, know that cramps when in the water are of comparatively infrequent occurrence. It is commonly in the calf of the leg, and the swimmer by lying quietly upon his back without undue alarm and stretching out the leg may overcome this somewhat painful involuntary muscular contraction. The exertion of swimming, however, is fully equal to the exertion of running, with the additional tax upon the system of a gradual lowering of the bodily temperature. It is one thing to know how to swim and quite another to be in a physical condition to do the swimming.—London Globe.

The Most Important Thing.

Commander Peary, at one of the numerous Washington dinners following his triumphant return from the pole, got the better of a senator in a war of wits.

"What is the good of your discovery?" the senator said. "I'll wager that you didn't find a single important thing at the north pole."

"Oh, yes, I did," said the explorer. "I found one very, very important thing."

"Humph! What was that?" the senator grunted.

"The way back home again," was the reply.

Hate All Around.

The famous English chief justice Holt and his wife hated each other to the limit, and when she fell dangerously ill he was so delighted that he became disgracefully tipsy. But his wife was equal to the emergency and sent for the great Dr. Radcliffe, who hated Holt, and therefore out of spite when the case was presented to him came with great promptness and saved her life.—Westminster Gazette.

Old Enough to Notice.

"Are your papa and mamma at home?" asked the caller.

"No," replied little Marguerita. "One of them may be here, but they never are both at home at the same time."

Told Him.

"What's that boy yelling at?" asked the farmer of his son.

"Why," chuckled the boy, "he's just yelling at the top of his voice."

Sometimes Gets Embroidered.

Scandal is the one thing that never gets worn out at the edges by being passed around.—Chicago Record-Herald.

He is happiest who renders the greatest number happy.—Desmains.

A Superfluous Explanation.

A few days ago two young ladies connected with St. John's Church, went on a mission of mercy to visit an English immigrant family that is in destitute circumstances. Whilst talking with the family visited, a friend of said family called. Every feature and every fold of her gown, not to mention the length of the latter, at its north side, proclaimed a recent importation from the shores of Albion. After a general conversation had ensued, the visitor remarked "You know h'Im H'English, myself. Hits very kind of you lidies to call here, but I thought h'I'd let you know h'Im h'an h'Englishwoman, myself." The charitable visitors had a quiet smile, and after leaving, agreed that the "H's" scattered all over the floor sufficiently explained the nationality of the lady visitor referred to.

Annette.

The vaudeville stage has developed musical comedies of great merit in short acts. Take for instance the music in Jesse Laskey's production "On the Housetop." The musical is famous. The very best song in the act is "Annette," and the New York World has secured it from Harry Von Tilzer and will publish it, words and music complete, free with next Sunday's World. Get it and try it on your piano.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Enter by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect house worth $300.00.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power, that leaves the wash white, sweet, wholesome.

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.

"Let the GOLD DUST Twins do your work."

Lord Minto Soon to Leave India.

Calcutta, Nov. 19.—Notwithstanding the undeniable state of unrest prevalent among the masses of India at the present time, the near approach of the date fixed for the Earl of Minto to relinquish his office of viceroy has brought forth many popular expressions of appreciation of his services and regrets at his departure. Lord Hardinge of Penshurst, the new viceroy, is expected to reach Calcutta Monday. Lord Minto will make over the seals of office on the following day, and with lady Minto and lady Eileen Elliot will leave for England immediately afterwards.

Where Willis Pianos Are Made

The Willis Factory near Montreal equipped with the latest up-to date facilities for the manufacture of high grade musical instruments.

No less than three enlargements of this piano factory have been made during the past three years to keep pace with the large sale of

STUDY THE POOR AFTER COTILLONS.

Concerts and Dances to Attract Rich for Consideration of Social Problems.

New York, Nov. 18.—Sandwiched in between concerts and cotillons at at the Plaza Hotel, the ne plus ultra of New York hostelries, the Public Good Society plans this winter to bring about "a great brotherhood and sisterhood of rich and poor."

The plan is admittedly daring, but Mme Alma Webster-Powell, founder and president of this newest ethical uplift movement, declared today that it was wholly practicable. Mme. Webster-Powell only recently forged to the front as the creator of a new bifurcated skirt for women, hyphenated somewhat after the order of her own name.

The rich won't take their study of sociological conditions straight, Mme Webster-Powell says. For this reason she will draw them together by means of the concert and cotillons and teach political economy and public hygiene in between.

"Our rich class is a child in its understanding of public and social needs," she declares. "The wealthy half of the world has no future. It is from the 'East Side' of humanity that the brains, the imagination, the ambition of the future is to come. The only hope for the rich lies in their union with the poor."

The Public Good Society will not work for private philanthropy, but will strive towards its Utopia by means of legislative reforms. Mme. Webster-Powell is particularly desirous of increasing the number of marriages between rich men and poor girls.

"No man," she says, "unless he is very young or very old, ever marries a woman for her looks. Sentimental novelists to the contrary, what a man wants in a wife is brains and character. The homely women of my acquaintance have made the best matches.

Anybody who has brains will be eligible to membership in the new society.

FEW CHANGES IN TARIFF.

Made By Australian Parliament — New Mail Service Between There and Canada.

Melbourne, Nov. 17.—The Minister of Customs has introduced in the Federal Parliament a tariff schedule rectifying the anomalies which have been found inconvenient by departmental officers, but practically leaving untouched any general revision of the tariff. New duties alter fifty items, including protectionist increases on robes, several classes of paper boards, paper bags, boxes and a dozen other minor articles of similar nature.

Parliament will endorse the entire schedule within a few days.

The Australian Labor Parliament is deeply interested in the forthcoming Imperial conference. Andrew Fisher will represent the Commonwealth, and it is certain that he will be no party to forcing food taxation on the British workingman. He frankly accepts protection as a policy for Australia.

A NEW MAIL ROUTE.

Brisbane, Nov. 17.—The protests of Brisbane commercial men against any mail service between Australia and Canada, excluding Brisbane, have borne fruit, and to the recommendation from Canada for a service via Auckland, the Commonwealth replied that Brisbane must be the port of call. The Cabinet is now considering a direct Australian service, independent of New Zealand.

The bill to provide Bible reading in the State schools of Queensland has been passed by the State Parliament.

Melbourne, Nov. 17.—Attorney-General Hughes, referring to the Naval Defence bill, stated the Government does not intend to take any contribution from the Imperial Government.

OLD ENGLISH BOXERS.

Hired to Prevent Trouble at George IV.'s Coronation.

Boxing was introduced into England in the earlier part of the eighteenth century, its first practitioner being John Broughton, who kept a booth for exhibitions in Tottenham Court road, London, and rules were drawn up Aug. 10, 1743. The vogue was due to the decline of sword combat exhibitions in the reign of George I. Broughton himself was the first who stood in the position of champion, a distinction which he held for eighteen years, but eventually he was knocked out by a butcher named Slack. Broughton was a great pet of the Duke of Cumberland, who took the pugilist with him to Berlin, when he declared himself ready to take on the entire regiment of grenadier guards there "if he were only allowed a breakfast between each two battles."

The English fighter Tom Cribb once secured a very remarkable engagement. Just before the coronation of George IV. certain sympathizers with Queen Caroline bragged that on the day of the ceremonial they would make matters warm in the neighborhood of Westminster abbey, and this reached the ears of the earl marshal. That high functionary sought an interview with the pugilist "Gentleman" Jackson, who taught Lord Byron to box.

Jackson got together some two dozen bruisers. Besides Cribb, the band included John Gully, in turn fighting man, racing man, colliery proprietor and member of parliament. They were attired as king's pages and gathered about the abbey doors. There was no trouble.—Chicago News.

REINDEER IN LAPLAND.

They Furnish the People With Shelter, Clothing and Food.

Some people have said that the reindeer of the northern regions is to the inhabitants of those countries what the horse, cow and sheep together are to the dwellers in southern lands, and very probably they are right. What would the Laplander be were he deprived of his favorite? How could he travel without his pair of reindeer harnessed to his sledge?

The reindeer has large black hoofs, behind which are false or secondary hoofs; the result is that when running they make a clattering sound, which may be heard a good distance away. The reindeer has much endurance and takes a long journey without seeming tired, though it is only about four and a half feet in height and not very strong. Its horns are long and slender, with branched, rounded antlers, but they are not much used in combat, like those of some other deer.

The largest reindeer are found where the weather is coldest, and their color is lighter. Usually it is brown and white, but in the case of old animals the hair is sometimes quite white. From the skin of the reindeer the Lapianders get not only their clothes, but also bedding and tents; the milk is drunk and made into cheese and the flesh is also good to eat, the tongue and haunches being particularly liked. Pemmican, an important article of food, is made by pouring fat over the pounded meat and mixing them well together.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Leech as a Barometer.

A leech confined in a glass jar of water will prove an excellent weather prophet. If the weather is to continue fine the leech lies motionless at the bottom of the vial and rolled together in a spiral form. If it is to rain, either before or after noon, it is found to have crept up to the top of its lodging and there remains till the weather is settled. If we are to have wind the prisoner wriggles through his liquid habitation with amazing swiftness and seldom rests till it begins to blow hard. If a remarkable storm of thunder and rain is to succeed the leech gives itself up to violent throes and convulsive motions. In frost, as in clear summer weather, it lies constantly at the bottom, and in snow, as in rainy weather, it pitches its dwelling on the very mouth of the jar.

African Grosbeaks.

The social grosbeaks of South Africa live in large societies. They select a tree of considerable size and literally cover it with a grass roof, under which their common dwelling is constructed. The roof serves the double purpose of keeping off the heat and the rain, and 400 or 500 pairs of birds are known to have the same shelter. The nests in this aerial dwelling are built in regular streets and closely resemble rows of tenement houses.

A Financial Genius.

"He is a financial genius. In a restaurant the other day he spilled a cup of coffee over a fellow's gray trousers."

"And got out of paying for them, eh?"

"Why, he talked the other fellow into paying for the coffee."

The Man Behind the Message.

The value of a thing depends largely upon who says it. Words may be bullets, but character must be the powder at the back of them to give them projectile force. The man behind the message is as important as the man behind the gun.

A Successful Local Man Revists City

Mr. Archie Brown, an old Peterboro boy, but now conducting a large printing business in Chicago, with Mrs. Brown, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Brown gave The Times a friendly call. This is one of the old Peterboro boys who has certainly made good in Uncle Sam's domains. Some years ago Mr. Brown was in charge of a printing office in St. Louis, Mo., when he had seven hundred men under his control. Talking with the Times yesterday, Mr. Brown remarked, "I have given up job work, I'm now using the good matter, settled under my hat, to make money."

Local Option in Lindsay.

A convention of the temperance workers of Victoria and Haliburton was held on Wednesday in Lindsay, in the council chamber, with a good attendance of delegates present. When organization was completed for Local Option campaign in county municipalities. A mass meeting was held in the evening at which addresses were delivered by prominent speakers.

Apples are Soaring.

Apple prices are still soaring these days and McIntosh reds and northern spies, Nos. 1 and 2, are selling today at $6 and $8 per barrel. This is another advance of $1.00 per barrel during the week. Even the ordinary No. 3 stock, which generally sells around $1 and $1.25, is now bringing $3 per barrel. The strength in the market is due to the short crops, and to heavy local demand. Dealers say it is difficult to secure all the fameuse and McIntosh reds needed, and spies are extremely scarce. Spies sell at $4 and $4.50 per barrel.

Local Hunters Got Back.

The hunting party which went to Shawanaga Lake, and who have returned, camped about thirty miles north of Parry Sound. The party was composed of the following: Messrs. C. Gladman, Dixon Best, Sam Ray, C. Curtis, John Bradley, Albert Curtis, Martin McFadden, Norman Bradley, John Bennett, Peter Kerr, David Evans, Art Morrow, of Parry Sound; Geo. Metcalfe, James Metheral, Larry Steele, Lakefield; Douglas and Baptie, the cook. Every man got a deer. During the party's outing Messrs. Metcalf and N. Bradley, whilst out on a bear hunt, were lost for a day.

Albert Hutt for Castle Nesbitt.

Yesterday morning, the cadi at the local seat of daily justice was busy. Before him was brought Albert Hutt, who appeared on the 11th inst., charged with stealing a watch from the house of Rich. O'Rourke, where the prisoner was boarding. Mr. Basil Hall appeared for the defendant and explained to his worship how it was that Hutt did not retain the watch, but this "did not go," the magistrate saying that Hutt had boarded with the people until he had run a bill of $60, and in addition to their good treatment stole a watch. The result was that Hutt will be a guest at Castle Nesbitt, and become acquainted with the business end of a buck saw for ninety days to come.

A Rhodes' Scholar.

N. S. Macdonell, who graduated in Arts from Queen's in 1907, and who went to Oxford as a Rhodes scholar, distinguished himself alike in the class room and on the campus. In the annual report of the Rhodes' scholarships for 1909-10, it is stated that Mr. Macdonell, who attended Queen's College at Oxford, took final honors, second class, in literae humaniores, and that he proceeded to the degree of B.A., for which he had qualified. Mr. Macdonell is a son of the late Rev. Dr. D. J. Macdonell, formerly pastor of St. Andrew's Church in this city.

THOUGHTS OF A BUSY FELLOW

On Past, Current and Coming Events of Local and General Import.

Blondin, the famous tight-rope walker, reappeared at the Crystal Palace, England, on October 19, 1877, 33 years ago today—after an absence of two years.

The following account of an extraordinary feat on a rope is a verbatim extract from a paper read before the Society of Antiquaries: "When the King (Edward VI.) was advanced almost to St. George's Church, in Paul's Churchyard (continues the order of the procession), there was a rope as great as the cable of a ship, stretched in length, from the battlements of Paul's Churchyard, and with a great anchor at one end, fastened a little before Mr. Dean of Paul's house gate; and when his majesty approached near the same, there came a man, a stranger, being a native of Arragon, lying on a rope, his head forward, casting his arms and legs abroad, running on his breast on the rope, from the battlements to the ground, as if it had been an arrow out of a bow, and stayed on the ground; then he came to the king's majesty and kissed his foot, and so, after certain words to his highness, departed from him again, and went upwards upon the rope till he was come over the midst of the Churchyard, where he, having a rope about him, played certain mysteries on the rope, as tumbling and casting one leg from another; then took he the rope and tied it to the cable, and tied himself by the right leg a little beneath the wrist of the foot, and hung by the one leg a certain space, and after recovered himself up again with the said rope, and unknit the knot and came down again, which stayed his majesty with all the train a good space of time."

The Blondin of Queen Victoria's time was also a Frenchman, born in Arragon.

WAGES AND LIVING.

The rates of wages in Peterborough County and adjoining districts twenty years ago were for miners $1.25 a day, and $1.00 for laborers. Many laborers in Peterborough town were glad of 100 cents a day, some got $1.25. Skilled labor ranged from $1.50 to in a few exceptional cases $2.50. Miners today get at least $2.50, while laborers' pay ranges from $1.75 to $2.00. Skilled mechanics are getting from $2.25 to $3.00, and in some exceptional cases $4.00 a day. The city pays a man $600 a year to look after the city hall. But after all is said and done, what's the good of the increase? By the time a man pays any old price a farmer or his better half chooses to ask for eggs, butter and fowl, to say nothing of from $10 to $25 for his wife's exaggeratory hat, he has to count his nickles before indulging in a sherbert and so forth.

THE BLOOMING ENGLISH OF IT.

The writer was asked this week to explain the difference between real London (Eng.) English and Canadian. Well, there really is no difference, but that of accent and the application of words. For instance, a recent arrival was asked to translate the following lines to a sparrow into London English:—

A charming little sparrow
Lived up a pretty spout.
There came a heavy rainstorm
And washed the sparrow out.
But when the blessed sun
Dried up the summer rain.
The pretty little sparrow
Went up the spout again.

The Londoner's translation was as follows:

There was a bloody sparrow
Lived up a blooming spout.
There came a blasted rainstorm
And washed the sparrow out
But when the blooming sun
Dried up the blasted rain.
The bloody little sparrow
Went up the spout again.

OUR MINERAL RESOURCES.

Mr. J. E. Hodgson, of the Collegiate Institute, in his able address before the Board of Trade on Tuesday evening, referred intelligently to Ontario's mineral resources. And as it is reported that vast mineral wealth abounds in Peterborough County and contingent thereto, it may be interesting to note the following results of analysis made by Dr. Chapman twenty years ago:—

The townships of Snowdon, Galway and Glamargan, in the County of Haliburton, about 40 miles northeast of Lindsay, contain several valuable deposits of iron ore.

Lots 25, 26 and 27 in the 4th concession, Snowdon, on the south side of Burnt River, contain several outcrops of magnetite extending about three-quarters of a mile. This ore is on high ground, overlooking the river and railway track, and most conveniently situated for mining by drifts or tunnels run into the hillside, the mine cars running by gravity to the shipping platforms or pockets at the railroad.

The following analysis show these ores to be very low in phosphorous:

Metalic Iron	Phosphorous	Sulphur	Silica	Titanium
61.48	0.01	0.16	...	No.
62.	Trace	0.025	1.7	No.
62.57	0.025	Trace	...	No.
63.	Trace	0.025	3.1	No.

Concerning analysis No. 1. Dr. Chapman said: "A fine grained, magnetic ore from the Howland mine, lot 26, in 4th concession, Snowdon. The ore near the surface is very pyritous, but becomes almost free from pyrites in descending. The sample was taken from a depth of 81 feet from the surface. A second shaft has been sunk on another part of the deposit to a depth of about 30 feet. The deposit is apparently an elongated stock-formed mass of large extent. It has been opened over a length of about 80 feet."

The railway passes through lot 20 in 1st concession, Snowdon, on which are several outcrops of magnetite, one of them cross-cutting the Monck road, where it was first discovered. Prof. Chapman analyzed a surface sample and found it to contain metallic iron, 60.18; phosphorous, 0.08; sulphur, 0.04; titanic acid, 0.73. He describes it as a black, magnetic, fine-grained ore, somewhat porous in texture. The deposit is apparently a stock-formed mass of large size, as shown by recent borings and excavations. Another analysis is given, showing metallic iron, 61.02; phosphorous, 0.052; and still others have shown metallic iron as high as 65 per cent.

This district is about 200 miles from Buffalo, N.Y., to which point the ores could be delivered very cheaply in returning coal cars. Moreover, these deposits are not much more than 100 miles from Midland, Ontario, whence ore could be shipped by boat to Chicago in returning grain vessels. Limestone suitable for flux is found in close proximity to the ores, and there is abundance of hardwood suitable for charcoal. There is also brown hematite in the neighborhood, yielding 45 to 48 per cent. metallic iron, which would mix well with the magnetic ores in a charcoal furnace.

In Minden, the township lying north of Snowdon, there are large quantities of magnetic ores containing a considerable amount of titanium. A black, granular, strongly magnetic ore from near Lake Kushog showed by Dr. Chapman's analysis the following results: metallic iron, 51.56; titanium, 15.64; Sulphur, 0.17; phosphoric acid, trace; siliceous rock matter, 4.08.

As it is generally conceded that access to the markets of the United States would render practicable the mining of Canada's minerals on a large scale, it is to be hoped that our mining interests are not lost sight of in any policy for reciprocity with our neighbors to the south under consideration.

THE RIGHT KIND OF MEN.

Canada is getting a good class of immigrants from Great Britain now—the men we want—many of them experienced farmers. Mr. Geo. Howson, Peterborough's energetic and capable emigration agent, has been kept busy the past year placing new arrivals from the mother country, and has met with gratifying success. In many instances he has found good positions—mostly on farms—for intending emigrants, even before they left home. Last Wednesday evening two young English farmers reached Peterborough, direct from Bristol, called upon Mr. Howson, presented their credentials, and at 8 o'clock next morning, were off to farms a few miles outside the city, where positions awaited them. Mr. Howson says he has no difficulty whatever in placing young Britishers, with but a slight knowledge of farming, with farmers in this and contingent counties. And those totally unskilled in agriculture, but willing and able to work are readily sought after.

Canada needs settlers and farm laborers—thousands of them;—but we have no use for the penniless and fastidious chappie with an exaggerated accent, who can't bear the thought of work, don't cher know—it's so beastly low!

THE SIGN BYLAW.

The city has a good sign bylaw which should be lived up to. If the council is going to amend the city's protective bylaws to suit all comers, better rescind them altogether. The building bylaw has been infringed by permission many times, and now we have a citizen coming back to council repeatedly for permission to erect an extremely heavy illuminated sign, that will project 12 feet from his building over the heads of pedestrians. 'Tis true he is willing to pay a fee and assume all liability in case of accident. However it is not liability citizens require, but protection. Besides, once established the precedent of amending a bylaw for any one particular citizen's benefit, then others will follow, and many of them. The illuminated sign bylaw is either a good or a bad measure; if the latter, then abolish it altogether. But this bylaw was adopted after very careful consideration, and comparison with similar bylaws elsewhere. Up to now it has been conformed to by all erectors of electric signs, and it is difficult to conceive why the city fathers' valuable time should be taken up by persistent requests from Grafton & Co., for privileges heretofore not granted to merchants on George street. Let the bylaw stand by all means.

SOCIETY EVENTS

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

Mr. E. W. Dawson registered yesterday at the National.

Mr. H. F. Andrews of Norwood, was a guest at the White House yesterday.

Mr. R. A. Dickson of Toronto, was a guest at the Oriental yesterday.

Mr. A. B. Colville of Campbellford, registered at the Hotel National yesterday.

G. F. Blackwell, Esq., of Lindsay, was a guest yesterday at the Snowden House.

Mr. F. Crandell of High River, Alta., is a guest at the Snowden House.

Master Victor LaBar of Toronto, is visiting his aunt and uncle on Louis street.

Mr. Russell Finlay, son of Mrs. Wm. Finlay, Queen street, Norwood, is ill with typhoid fever in Chicago.

Mrs. M. F. Casey and little son, Frances, who has been visiting her parents, Stewart street, have returned to their home in Syracuse, N.Y.

Master Cecil Lebar has returned home after undergoing treatment at the Sick Children's Hospital Toronto.

A quiet wedding took place Wednesday morning at St. John's church Lakefield, when Miss Sylvia Agnes, youngest daughter of Mr. R. C. Strickland, was united in marriage to Mr. Edward Cassan of Campbellford, son of Mr. E. S. Cassan and grandson of Capt. M. S. Cassan. Rev. F. J. Sawers officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Cassan will spend their honeymoon in Toronto, and other points and will reside in the West.

There is little danger from a cold or from an attack of the grip except when followed by pneumonia, and this never happens when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. This remedy has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds and grip and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. For sale by all dealers.

Meat to Be Lower.

It will be welcome news to the housewives and householders to learn that it is likely that there will be a considerable reduction in the price of meat. Within the past few days prices on cured meats have dropped two and three cents a pound in Toronto and elsewhere, and it is expected that before next week there will be a reduction in beef and pork.

Mrs. Bowman Opens a Grocery.

Mrs. W. H. Bowman, who formerly operated the New Oxford Hotel, on Simcoe street, and who by the recent reduction of local hotel licenses, was practically put out of business, has demonstrated the pluck that has carried her along during many past years, by securing, and now conducting a grocery store at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer street. Mrs. Bowman is a woman with many friends in the city, who will not only congratulate her on her pluck and enterprise, but affirm that opinion by giving her a share of their trade in that line.

A Great Crisis in Canadian Affairs

Mr. J. Hamden Burnham Delivers an Address on "Church and State," on Saturday Night.

On Saturday evening Mr. J. Hamden Burnham gave an address in the Conservative Club rooms before a large audience, on the present political situation of the Dominion, dealing with the attitude of the Roman Catholic Church in this connection. Mr. Burnham said:

I think I have some degree of knowledge of the history of Canada, but not in anything I have read is there even an approach to the present crisis in our Canadian affairs. Sir Wilfrid Laurier acquiesces boldly in the doctrine that the Church is superior to the State in everything. If tomorrow his church told him that he was steering in the wrong direction politically, he would put about and do as (what he terms himself to be) "a loyal and fervent Catholic" should. While every man has a perfect right to profess any religion he sees fit to profess, he must stop short of preaching or acting treason to the State, if we are to preserve our liberties. What are tariffs, navies' treaties, or political opinions in comparision to liberty. For my own part, I will vote for no man, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Borden, or anybody else, who does not make it clear, that no one set of religious people shall govern, by divine right, any other set in regard to their opinions, whether religious or political. Recent events both here and at the vatican, disclose a state of affairs that must alarm all people who are not asleep or hopelessly steeped in political partyism. The pope has said (Catholic Register, Sept. 29th, 1910) "He (Pope Leo XIII) censured a form of democracy which goes so far in its perversity as to attribute sovereignty to the people." And then Father Vaughan, the distinguished Jesuit says (Catholic Record, October 20th, 1910) "I tell you there is no army in the world so thoroughly organized, so ready for service, so absolutely reliable, as the Catholic Church." &c.

And then to make it still plainer, Mr. Bourassa said at the Eucharistic Congress, with Sir Wilfrid Laurier beside him on the same platform. "Canadian statesmen have assured the representatives of the head of the Catholic Church, that here in Canada the State bows to the supreme authority of the Church." Surely this then is the real issue. Our leaders have acknowledged the supremacy of the Catholic hierarchy over the State. Who then are our real leaders? Have we not a right to ask ourselves this question? Is this new move of the Church not an auger to popular liberty? Or have we decided to look in future for guidance to this great and powerful ecclesiastical organization?

Was it not easy for our chief and leading representatives to contradict all rumors by saying which side they are on, that of the hierarchy or that of the people? They have declared, you say Yes some of them have spoke and the Church has been assured of their "loyal and fervent" submission. And when we use the word "submission" it is well to remember that submission is the word the Church itself employs. It means a great deal.

Short speeches were also made by others present after which the meeting broke up.

MUMMIFIED BODY FOUND.

Experts Says It Is That of a Boy Who Died About Twenty Years Ago.

Liverpool, Nov. 19.—A mummified human body, apparently that of a boy about 14 years of age, has been discovered at Nottingham under astounding circumstances.

About twelve months ago, Mrs. Thomas Shawcroft purchased a small grocery business in Station street, Nottingham. The previous tenant (a woman) asked her to allow a parcel in a cupboard in the shop to remain there a few days, and begged her to take great care of it.

The woman did not return, but nothing was done until yesterday, when Mr. Shawcroft decided to satisfy his curiosity. Placing the parcel on the hearthrug, he untied the string by the light of a candle, and was startled to find that it contained a mummified body.

Dr. S. Tresswider was called in, and he advised Mr. Shawcroft to communicate with the police.

A subsequent examination of the remains revealed the fact that they were those of a boy, who it is surmised, must have died about 20 years ago.

The Nottingham police are satisfied that the case does not involve any crime. The remains were in the possession of a man named Keeton for some years, and were supposed to have been acquired from a medical practitioner, by whom they had been preserved.

FOURTH ANNIVERSARY.

Special Service Next Sunday in Springville Presbyterian Church.

Next Sunday, Rev. Dr. Marsh, pastor of the Springville Presbyterian church, will hold the fourth anniversary of his incumbency.

During Rev. Dr. Marsh's pastorate over one hundred young people have joined the church. Rev. J. D. Morrow, of Dale Presbyterian church, Toronto, will be the special preacher and will deliver sermons morning and evening. The young men will have charge of the evening service. On the following Monday the annual congregational social will be held. Miss Tesky of Toronto, one of the cleverest of our Canadian elocutionists, and a pupil of Mr. Owen Smily, Miss Margaret Bryce, of Keene, soloist, and Miss Julia Choate, of the Conservatory of Music, Peterborough violinist, are some of those who will take part in the program.

SIGNPOSTS FOR AIRMAN.

Whitewashed Figures to Be Laid in French Village.

Paris, Nov. 19.—For the benefit of aeronauts an elaborate system of mapping out the country has been adopted. Whitewashed figures, 60 feet square, are to be laid down at every village, chateau and landmark. These will indicate to the airman his position. The first figure will give the number of kilometers north or south of Paris, while the second will represent the difference east or west of the Paris meridian. By consulting a chart the aerial navigator will find detailed information concerning the locality over which he is flying.

Figures of the size adopted are easily discernible in clear weather from the top of the Eiffel tower, a height of nearly 1000 feet. The first aerial route to be marked out will be from Paris to Chalons camp, one of the most popular with airmen.

TURKEY IS READY TO INVADE PERSIA---GERMANY IS JOYOUS

Sunday was Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Birthday

Canada's Premier is 69 Years of Age

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 19.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian Premier, will tomorrow enter upon his seventieth year. Many of his friends and colleagues anticipated the anniversary by offering him their hearty congratulations today. Sir Wilfrid is in excellent health, although it is now almost forty years since he entered public life as a member of the Quebec Assembly and fourteen years since he took the reigns of Canadian government at a most critical time.

PRESS OF BERLIN ADVISES THE GOVERNMENT TO TAKE A HAND IN IMBROGLIO IN THE EAST AND TROUBLE MAY RESULT.

Turkish Government is Considering the Immediate Despatch into Persia of Troops Equivalent in Strength to the Russian and British Forces There.

Berlin, Nov. 21.—The most remarkable feature today in connection with the Anti-British press campaign arising from recent British action in Persia and from the Turco-Persian appeal for protection to the Kaiser is a statement in the Cologne Gazette, a semi-official organ.

The journal publishes a telegram from Constantinople announcing that the Turkish government is considering the immediate dispaton into Persia of troops equivalent in strength to the Russian and British forces there.

The immediate object of such an incursion, the Cologne Gazette states would be the protection of Turkish subjects. Another consideration is that Turkish Mohammedan interests "cannot tolerate the partition of Persia by Great Britain and Russia.

BERLIN IS JOYOUS.

Enthusiastic satisfaction is expressed on all sides in the Press that the Turks and Persians have finally come to realize the purity of German motives and the corresponding malevolence of British policy.

Krupp's Berlin organ, the Neueste Nachrichten, regrets that the Kaiser does not forthwith progess to gratify the hopes which the Constantinople Mohammedans pin on "the truest protector of Islam." The Nachrichten says: "We shall do well not to turn the Constantinople petitioners away too coldly out of regard for English susceptibilities. The encouragement the Kaiser addressed to the 350,000,000 Mohammedans when he stood at the grave of Saladin was spoken in the presence of the German foreign secretary. The German foreign office therefore assumes responsibility for that utterance just as it did for the Kruger telegram and the Kaiser's visit to Tangier."

The Conservative Post, says: "It is time Germany left off apologizing and denying. Let her resort soon, and often to deeds. If besides negotiating the Turkish loan, Germany will now actively support the Mohammedans, it will create a stupendous impression throughout the world and silence our detractors for a long time to come."

AN UNDERLYING PRINCIPLE.

The Magdeburger Zeitung, a prominent national liberal organ, says: "The Persian question involves the underlying principle about which Germany and England irreconcilably differ, namely, whether the map of the world should continue to be cut up with Germany left out. Sunday's Mohammedan meeting supported the German view as against the English.

The radical Berliner Tageblatt says: "German influence in Constantinople was never so strong as at present, but also it has never been so formidably menaced as it is by the pending Anglo-Russian schemes in the Orient."

Statistics of Local Farmers' Institutes.

During the year 1909 the Farmers' Institute of East Peterboro had a membership of 88. During the six months ending June 30th, 1910, the membership was 114. Eight meetings were held in the year ending June 30th, 1910, with a total attendance of 1871. The members fees amounted $27.25, grants $45.00, excursions $39.50, miscellaneous $1.75.

The year wound up with a balance of $30.84 on hand. East Peterboro Institute at the 30th June, 1910, had 168 members, with a total attendance of 925, and a cash balance of $68.34.

Suffolk Wages War on Plague of Rats

London, Nov. 19.—The people of the peaceful district of Suffolk are in a state of panic, threatened by the dreadful plague, the "black death," which once killed off nearly one-fourth of the population of England.

A number of people have died from the mysterious disease and as bacteriological analysis made by government experts have shown that thousands of rats, cats and rabbits are infected with the plague and the very touch of them dangerous, a war of extermination is being waged against them, and the whole of East Suffolk is now a battlefield where rat catchers with their allies, the ferret-wage war on the entire rat tribe.

The victims are estimated to number at least 10,000 a day, and unless the rats swim the river Stour in a body, as rats once swam the Rhine there is no hope for any of them.

AMERICANS BUY UP LAND.

Thirty-five Thousand Acres Purchased at Calgary Sale in One Day.

Calgary, Alta., Nov. 19.—That the hunger for farm land on the part of Americans is, if anything, on the increase, is shown by the fact that when a large area of non-irrigated land situated in the central section of the irrigation block, was yesterday thrown on the market, 56 sections, over 35,000 acres, were purchased during the day.

J. A. Weaver and associates, from Des Moines, Iowa, purchased 5000 acres; J. H. Wheeler and associates from Illinois, puchased 6008 acres; a New York Syndicate purchased 20,000 acres, and individuals increased this by 4000. All parties will develop this land in the spring; the syndicates on a large scale with the aid of modern steam machinery.

FIND STONE AGE SKELETONS.

Prehistoric Remains of Man and Woman Uncovered in England.

London, Nov. 19.—A remarkable discovery of the skeletons of a man and a woman belonging to the stone age, which antiquarians consider of priceless value, had been made by men who were laying a conduit near the line of the bed of the river Ivel. They were examined by Dr. Waddell, a well-known antiquary, who at once gave it as his opinion that they belonged to the Neolithe period and are of great importance to the world of science.

The male is believed to have been a chieftain, and he must have been a man of magnificent physique, as the skeleton measures 6 foot 6 inches, while the head is massive. The woman was laid at right angles to the man, with her feet resting against the side of his body. Apparently when her lord died she had been slain and buried with him, according to prehistoric custom. Both skeletons are complete and in a good state of preservation, due to the nature of the soil. Their ultimate resting place will in all probability be the British Museum.

Injured Teamster Now Convalescent.

Enquiries made at Nicholl's Hospital yesterday developed the pleasing intelligence that Mr. John King, the teamster hurt by a G.T.R. train at Hastings, on the 15th inst., is rapidly recovering. As expressed by the lady kindly furnishing the information, "Mr. King is doing splendidly, and is now up and walking about." It will be remembered that King, a teamster was getting a load of cement and was struck by the train so that a gash ten inches long was cut in his scalp. It was feared at the time that there was little hope for his recovery.

When you have a cold get a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will soon fix you up all right and will ward off any tendency towards pneumonia. This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. Sold by all dealers.

PEOPLE MUST BEAR BURDEN

London, Nov. 19.—From all the speeches made by the various Liberal English statesmen, one gets a very strong impression, how important it is to the present Liberal government to ease the minds on the naval question, and counteract the eternal unrest emanating from Conservative circles, mainly in the form of prophecies that in a certain number of years the German navy will be "at least as strong as the British, and that, when this happens England's naval supremacy will end forever." But beyond this impression the speeches of the English Cabinet ministers do not contain much, there are plenty of smooth and high sounding phrases, which, anybody may approve, but they carefully avoid a discussion of the question.

It cannot be concealed that the Conservatives position is logically stronger than they say. "If we want to compete with Germany, we must spend much more money on our armaments." While Campbell Bannerman was at the head of the Liberal Government he tried to cut the Gordian knot by a German-English agreement limiting the naval armaments, but the attempt ended in a failure. The result must then be one of two alternatives. Either England must give up the idea of competing, or take up the German challenge. The Conservatives have chosen the latter, while the Liberal Government is vacillating in face of the problem - it dared not give up the race with Germany, because it fears this would mean signing its own political death sentence, but on the other side, it is afraid of placing upon the shoulders of the people, the enormous burdens which a real race of naval supremacy with Germany must necessarily mean. It is easy to understand and sympathize with the Liberal Government in this dilemma, but one must admit its weakness.

The only thing which will and must put an end to the building of war ships is the inability of the people to bear the burdens. At the present time the official German press is full of praise of the chancellor, who is able to present a budget that balances. The new indirect taxes imposed upon the German people have evidently had the hoped for effect. But in strong contrast to this the German opposition press points to the increased naval demands to be legid before the Reichstag. The German people are sighing under heavy burdens, an increase in the prices of the necessaries of life, which makes it almost impossible for the workingman and even the middle classes to buy meat, a

R.M.C. Captured the Canadian Inter-collegiate Intermediate Championship

ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON BY DEFEATING VARSITY II. 6—2, AT RIVERSIDE PARK.

The Home-and-Home Tie Was Broken Here—R.M.C. Got Off With the Lead—A Hard Struggle From Start to Finish—About 150 Accompanied the Kingston Team.

After accumulating an aggregate score of 18 points each in their home and home games at Toronto and Kingston, Varsity II., and R.M.C. played off for the Intercollegiate Intermediate championship at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon. The weather was ideal, with the exception of a light breeze, which did not seriously affect the punting. The ground was hard, though a trifle greasy in spots, where the light snow fall of the previous night had melted. Both teams brought along their squad of supporters, a train from Kingston conveying about one hundred and fifty Cadet enthusiasts.

The play was hard and fast throughout, both sides showing signs of splendid training. The betting was slightly in favor of the R.M.C.

THE LINE-UP.

The line-up was practically the same as in the two previous encounters.

Varsity—Full back, Frith; halfbacks, Mackenzie, Ramsay (Capt.) Wood, quarter, Campbell; scrimmage, Curtis, Ferris, Gardner; inside wing, Taylor, Sifton; middle wing, Dawson, Tripp; outside wing, Macdougall, Reid.

R.M.C.—Full back, Galt; half backs, Stuart, Robinson, Smith; quarter, Lawson scrimmage, Pearson, Younge, J. C. Stewart; inside wing, Storms, Arnaldi; middle wing, Goldie, Roberts, outside wing, Gwynne, Lewis.

Referee—W. McMaster, Montreal.

Umpire—Russell Brittonf Gananoque.

FIRST QUARTER.

Varsity won the toss, and chose to kick with the wind and against the sun. Cadets made a fake kick-off, and gained 4 yards on the first down. On the next down they made their yards, and on a high punt reached Varsity's 10-yard line. Frith caught the next punt behind his own line and safely ran it out. Varsity rallied, and Cadets were downed by Taylor on their 29-yard line, and pushed 5 yards further down the field. R.M.C. gained 20 yards on an onside kick, but a moment later the Toronto seconds scored and bucked for yards. Dawson made a neat tackle of a Kingston half back, and the ball was scrimmaged at R.M.C. 20 yard line.

Ramsey kicked and Gardiner downed the Cadet half a couple of yards in front of the Kingston goal post. R.M.C. recovered and a couple of costly fumbles by Frith and Ramsay brought the play to Varsity's 20-yard line, with Cadets in possession.

A drop was attempted, but Frith caught it and ran it out of the danger zone. Cadets held it for two downs, and lost the ball in a mix-up on the third. But Frith's long punt went into touch, and the ball once more belonged to R.M.C. Gwynne secured the ball on a fumble at mid-field, and ran it to within 5 yards of Varsity's line before he was brought down by Mackenzie. On the second down, Robertson kicked to the head-line for Cadet's first point.

SECOND QUARTER.

Ramsay was injured, causing a 2-minute delay. Varsity got possession of the ball on interference, gained a few yards, and kicked into touch. Cadets repeated this performance, and, on Varsity's first down, and a series of passes from Campbell to Ramsay to Mackenzie to Frita, gained 15 yards. McDougall added a few more by a heavy charge through R.M.C.'s broken scrimmage. Varsity worked up, and has possession 5 yards from Cadets' line. They attempted onside kick to Mackenzie, went into touch, and the Kingston boys got possession. They made their yards on the first down, and Frith caught the punt, but was downed at mid-field. Jeff Taylor made a plunging diagonal run, gaining 5 yards. Duff Wood secured a high pass from Frith in a sensational manner. Mackenzie made a beautiful 35 yard punt while being tackled. Galt caught Frith's punt, and made a spectacular 30-yard run before being skilfully tackled by Ramsay at Varsity 30-yard line. Mackenzie caught the ensuing punt on his own line, and kicked it to mid-field where Varsity secured on a Cadet fumble. Mackenzie took pass from the scrimmage, and plouged through for 20 yards. Taylor was hurt in a massed play, and had to be resuscitated.

Half-time: R.M.C. 1, Varsity 0.

THIRD QUARTER.

McKenzie kicked off for Varsity, and Cadets scrimmaged at their own 20-yard line. They lost 5 yards on the second down. Frith recovered a misjudged catch, and was tackled at mudfield. At this point Taylor's injured ankle forced him to leave the game and his place was taken by McLennan. Cadets got the ball and plunged through Varsity's line on the second down, but kicked to Frith on the third.

R.M.C. regained possession on an offside, and made their yards. Robertson kicked to Varsity's dead line for Cadet's second point. The Kingstonians slowly but surely bucked up the field towards Varsity's line and Robertson added another dead line kick. Varsity 0, R.M.C. 3.

Cadets once more kicked for yards, and Stuart made a nice diagonal run before he was brought down. Robertson again kicked, and Ramsay was forced to rouge. Frith fumbled a punt, and Cadets kicked over. Varsity was lucky to drop on the loose ball, and R.M.C.'s score advanced another point. Frith misjudged a hard punt behind his own line, but was able to pass to Ramsay, who rouged. R.M.C., 6; Varsity, 0.

McKenzie drove a long punt down the field, and the Kingston full back was brought down at his own 10-yard line. A buck and an exchange of punts, gave R.M.C. another ten yard Cadets again charged through, and the quarter ended with Varsity in possession at mid-field. Three-quarter time, R.M.C., 6; Varsity 0.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Ramsay and Frith made a neat combination run. Frith punted and Cadets were downed. Pete Campbell made a spectacular 20-yard run, and was tackled at R.M.C. 10-yard line. But the blue and white lost the ball on an offside. Mackenzie caught the punt, pretended to return it, and attempted a run, but was nailed before he could get away. J. C. Stewart was injured, causing a delay, but resumed play.

With eight minutes to play Cadets twice in rapid succession bucked for yards at mid-field, Varsity secured and regained the ground, Macdougall fell on the ball at Cadet's 20-yard line. Frith kicked a high one over, and Varsity secured their first point, a touch in goal. Pete Campbell tried to dive through the scrimmage, but was checked. Varsity secured on a fumble at Cadets' 10-yard line, and on the kick, the Kingston half back was forced to rouge.

Varsity forced the play, and Frith ran the ball up to 10 yards from mid-field on a pass from Ramsay. Campbell made a pass from scrimmage to Woods, who passed to Frith. The latter was tackled before he could get well away. The whistle sounded with the ball at Cadet's 20-yard line. Final score:

R.M.C. 6, Varsity 2.

The victorious Cadets were carried from the field by their enthusiastic supporters.

Better Hotel Accommodation.

The hotel difficulty in three municipalities which have passed local option by-laws will again be the subjects of discussuin at the annual meeting of the Commercial Traveller's Association in Toronto next month. At a general meeting of the association on Saturday night, W. H. Scott gave notice of a motion that the association call upon the government to undertake the inspection of hotels in local option districts. He told that the government should either recognize it as its duty to see that there is accommodation for travellers, or impose the duty of doing so on municipalities that pass local option by-laws.

Man and His Wife Will Both Hang

De Queen, Ark., Nov. 19.—The circuit court here has returned a verdict of murder in the first degree against John Ford and his wife, who have been on trial, for the killing of William Nichols, near this place on September 30th. Both will be hanged on January 20th.

The Fords were tenants of Nichols, who was a former member of the Arkansas Legislature. The tragedy resulted from Nicholls driving across a pea patch rented by the Fords.

POST OFFICE REVENUE.

According to the annual report of the Post Office Department the people of Canada posted during the past fiscal year 456,085,000 letters, 45,104,000 postcards and 10,465,000 registered letters. In addition the mails handled 14,975,000 free letters on Government business, 87,000,000 pieces of third-class matter, and 7,000,000 packages of fourth-class matter. The increase in the number of letters and postcards handled was 35,705,000, or a little over ten per cent. The rapid expansion of the service involved and increased expenditure of $622,951, but in spite of this the total revenue of $7,958,547, was $743,710 in excess of the total expenditure.

WAR WITHOUT BULLETS.

The discovery that Britain was to equip five of her eight battleships of this year's budget with 13½ in. guns has alarmed Germany and caused a halt in her naval program. Presumably Germany will decide on guns of still greater calibre. Then we shall probably have 14 in. guns, 15 in. and probably 16 inch guns to outdo Germany. Thus the armament game of "beggar my neighbor" goes on. Where is it to end?

KING OR EMPEROR

It is to be hoped that those Imperialists who are continually pressing for the adoption of the title of Emperor by King George at his coronation, will think twice before they go much further with the propaganda. The old Saxon word "King" cannot possibly be improved. The term of "King of England" has a musical ring to it which no longer or more pompous term could possibly have, and is associated with all that is noble and memorable in English history. We have always been proud of the fact that the simple words "King of England" counted for more than the title of the proudest Emperor on earth. It is even proposed that King George be called "Emperor of the British." How that savors of Louis Napoleon's "Emperor of the French!" We all know what sort of an emperor that adventurer and demagogue was.

There are those who think that, because of the self-governing colonies, and have risen into greater relative importance, that the time has come for the entire reconstruction of the whole British constitution, placing the British Islands, Canada, Australia, etc., on a level, with an emperor at the head. At a far distant period the over-sea dominions may be raised to an equality with the British Islands; But let it be remembered that at the present we are still colonies, governed not only by the King directly, but by one of the members of the British Cabinet, that Cabinet being a committee of the House of Commons. Whatever may be our growth or our bumptious-ness, our status is unchanged at the coronation.

For reasons connected with the management of the Asiatic subject races, Lord Beaconsfield made Queen Victoria Emperor of India. King George is therefore an emperor to that extent. Let us be content with that for a while. The King might become Emperor of the Dominions beyond the Seas, though even that is dubious. But first of all let him be King of England.

MAY RECONCILE COUNT

Bishop Tamboff to Visit Tolstoi, Whose Condition Is All But Hopeless.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 19.—In order to avoid the scandal of his probably refusing Christian burial, a final effort is to be made to reconcile Count Leo Tolstoi to the Greek Catholic Church.

With this end in view, Bishop Tamboff left today for Astapova, where the world-famous author is dying in the hut of a railroad trackman. If Tolstoi will consent to a reconciliation with the Church, it is declared the sentence of excommunication and anathema, that followed his writing of "Resurrection" will be rescinded.

Bishop Tamboff's departure followed a meeting of the holy synod yesterday, at which it was decided to relax at least the severity which the Church has maintained towards Tolstoi. Antonius, Metropolitan of St. Petersburg, and presiding officer of the synod, also sent the count a salutation message telling that he had prayed constantly for his reconciliation with the Church ever since the breach came.

Tolstoi's condition today is regarded as all but hopeless. He spent a sleepless night last night. Although he slept some today, his heart was very weak. His temperature is 99.

DOCTOR CRIPPEN'S FATHER

Los Angeles, Nov. 19.—Broken hearted, Myron Crippen, father of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, condemned to die in London, for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, is believed to be dying here. Mr. Crippen is 83 years old, and has been failing rapidly of late, as the result of the constant worry over his son. Physicians who called last night think that pneumonia is developing. His condition is grave, and the physicians fear the father may die before the son.

Later—The aged man has passed away.

LOW CASTE MANGS.

Hindus Not Only Despise Them, They Fear and Hate Them.

By his fellow Hindu the Mang, one of the lowest of all Indian castes, is not only despised, but even feared and hated. A writer in the Times of India says: "To be cruel is to be 'Mang hearted;' to fly into a passion may be expressed in Marathe idiom as having a Mang within one. When on the occasion of an eclipse fears are awakened for the safety of the sun or moon, it is the Mang whose help is sought. He goes among the people claiming their propitiatory gifts, saying: 'Give your gifts that the grasp may be removed. For are not Rahu and Ketu, the enemies who have laid evil hands on the heavenly bodies, themselves Mangs?' Similarly, to their recognized relation with 'dark' worship and with subterranean and demoniac influences is to be traced the making of offerings to Mang women on Dasera day and the sinister fact that there are few great buildings erected in pre-British days in this part of India that have not, whether they be temples or forts or palaces—Mang victims built into their foundations.

"The peculiar place that these popular superstitions have given to the Mang community is seen especially in the ceremonies that are sometimes performed for the removal of disease. Frequently when some one has fallen ill a Joshi is consulted and explains the illness as due to the influence of some evil spirit. The one effective prescription in such a case is to call a Mang and give him a dinner. This is not by any means an act of friendliness toward a despised community, but has as its object apparently the propitiation of the demoniac power and the removal of the source of the disease from the sick man to its proper habitation.

"With this end in view practices of sympathetic magic, which can be paralleled in the folk lore of many peoples, are employed. Portions of the finger nails or, it may be, fragments of hair of the invalid are secretly mixed with the food to be given to the Mang, or before the sugar water of which he is to partake is given to him the sick man must see his face in it. In this way the evil is supposed to be passed back to where it properly belongs and the disease removed.

STAGE REALISM.

Why Jefferson Didn't Have a Dog Schneider In the Flesh.

It was the privilege of the writer years ago to attend a reception at which Joseph Jefferson spoke on the drama. His treatment of the subject was interesting, the utterance of a man who knew the art of which he spoke. But the most interesting part of the hour came after the completion of the formal address, when an opportunity was given to the audience to ask any questions they wished of Mr. Jefferson. Soon the familiar topic was introduced, the effect of the modern elaboration and realism in stage setting. Mr. Jefferson at once rose to the question. He spoke somewhat rapidly, with a quaint humor and sympathetic charm that were irresistible. He characterized the modern fashion of stage setting as "a tribute to the weakness of the human imagination." "I am often asked," he went on, "why I do not have a real dog Schneider. But if I did none of you would be satisfied. You would go home saying, 'Well, Schneider never looked like that dog!' You love Schneider because you have made him out of a piece of your own heart. And then," meditatively, "if I had a real Schneider some one in the gallery would probably whistle to him at the critical moment, and he would bark and spoil the play, while if he knew his part perfectly and did just what Schneider ought to do"—pausing and with his delightful smile—"Schneider would be the hero and not Rip!" Then, with a twinkle of the eye, he summed up the whole matter with the quiet remark, "Realism with a tail to wag in the wrong place is a dangerous thing."—New York Post.

Dobbling de Crabs.

In the service of a Baltimore family is an old negro cook known as Aunt Sally, and not the least of her achievements is the preparation of sea food.

In the kitchen one day Aunt Sally's nephew, a nine-year-old lad from a point where crabs are seldom seen, was watching in breathless interest the old lady's dwelling of a dish of such crustaceans.

"Aunty," asked he after much reflection upon this mysterious point, "does debbil crabs come from de debbil?"

"No, chile," promptly responded Aunt Sally, "but dey is de debbil to make."—St. Louis Republic.

The President's Oath.

The oath of office taken by the incoming president of the United States is the shortest and the simplest required of any ruler on earth. It is prescribed by the constitution and is as follows:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and, to the best of my ability, protect, preserve and defend the constitution of the United States."

Her Cooking.

The Doctor—How is your appetite?
The Patient—Wretched. The best meal my wife cooks doesn't tempt me.
The Doctor—Um—er—er—do you ever try a meal in a restaurant?—Chillicothe Herald.

RALPH JOHNSTONE MAKES THE THIRTY-SEVENTH VICTIM OF AVIATION.

Held Altitude Record—Intrepid Young Birdman Was Most Reckless Flyer—Both Legs and His Neck Broken By the Fall.

Denver, Col., Nov. 18.—Preparations were made today to ship the body of Ralph Johnstone, the aviator who fell to death from an altitude of 900 feet yesterday, to his home in Kansas City. Word was received from Johnstone's widow in New York today that she was leaving for Kansas City.

The death of Johnstone, the holder of the world's altitude record, was the most tragic in the American annals of aviation. With full knowledge of the danger of flying in the rarified air here, he took his machine high into the air, and went through a number of daring evolutions.

Scarcely a vestige of the aviator's machine remained at Overland Park today. It had been wrecked and carried away by morbid minded souvenir hunters. Johnstone's body lay in a undertaking establishment in a state of mutilation. Both his legs and neck were broken, all of his ribs were fractured and the thigh bones were forced through the flesh.

Johnstone was the thirty-seventh victim of aviation. He was a Wright pupil and one of the most reckless of the younger school of flyers.

Arch Hoxsey, another Wright pupil was his bitterest rival for flying honors and this couple furnished many of the thrills during the International Aviation tournament in New York by trying to outdo each other.

Mr. Russell Finlay, son of Mrs. Wm. Finlay, Queen street, Norwood, is ill with typhoid fever in Chicago.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Enter by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect house worth $300.00.

FISH TRUST.

Are Depleting the Waters of New Brunswick of Small Fish.

Charlotte, N.B., Nov. 18.—Capitalists, in the Province of New Brunswick, and particularly in the County of Charlotte, who have formed a fish trust, are rapidly depleting the waters of the smaller fish, which are sold as sardines.

Off Maine, but in reality a part of Charlotte County, New Brunswick, is the little island of Grand Manan, whose coasts have been for years the scene of Canadian and United States sardine fisheries. It is not far from that tiny bit of an island known as Pepe's Folly, which Canada recently surrendered to Uncle Sam for certain fishing rights. But while Pepe's Folly is a little more than a rock, and known only to the public through the determination of its single inhabitant to vote in both New Brunswick and Maine elections, Grand Manan has an area of one hundred square miles and is an important summer resort.

In commercial life, however, it is valued chiefly as the locality in which sardines are netted. Even the most innocent consumer, of course, has long been aware that sardines usec hereabouts do not come from Sardina; not many of them at any rate. While that island in the Mediterranean was the original home of the fishermen who caught the original sardines, almost any kind of a small herring is a sardine nowadays, and packing is done in almost every quarter of the world. There are 32,000 Sardine fishermen in France, and 15,000 people are employed in the country's canning factories. But their product reaches Canada in only small consignments. Be it also known that when a Canadian dines upon the succulent sardine, the "pure olive oil" in which it is packed is usually either peanut or cottonseed, almost invariably the latter.

But the fact remain that most people cannot tell the difference between a real sardine and the Canadian article, the catching and packing of which employs a large number of New Brunswickers. They are not rich people. Fish trusts have flourished and grown financially fat, but the men who do the work, the fishers themselves, have seldom developed into capitalists. Fishing has been a hazardous and unremunerative task since the beginning of things, and now the sardine fishermen of New Brunswick are faced with a winter of famine because they find that there are no sardines to be caught, to be caught. For them it is a tragedy but for Canada it may prove a needed lesson.

The long and short of it is that the "sardines" which are caught off the Maine-New Brunswick coast are nothing more than the young of the herring. The absence of these yearlings in 1910 is an indication of the depletion of the supply of full-grown fish in the years to come. It is time for New Brunswick to consider, indeed, whether the sardine fisheries should not be prohibited altogether. It would mean that those who now make their living from that source would have to find other employment. But under present conditions the yearly slaughter of the small herrings threatens to exhaust the supply in coast waters. The fish should be allowed to reach maturity and multiply-If the tasty sardine is costing Canada its herring fishing it is bought at too dear a price.

STRIKERS NEAR STARVATION.

Garment Workers Kept Alive By Daily Collection Made by Strike Sympathisers.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Further riots were feated in the strike of the garment workers today as a result of the clashes between the strikers and the police yesterday. The fights followed attempts of the police to disperse crowds of pickets, who were interfering with non-union workers.

The pickets were out early today and attempted to dissuade nonunionists from going to work at the places where strikes had been declared. Heavy squads of police were guarding these places and were placed on street cars to prevent the pickets from boarding the cars and taking non-union men and women off by force.

Apparently the strike is no nearer solution than it was at the beginning. The employers declare they never will recognize the union, and the strikers are hoping, at best, for a preferential shop.

Many are on the verge of starvation, and were it not for the daily collections made by strike sympathizers would have to go without meals.

LAWYER QUITS COUNT'S CASE.

His Client Was Too Voluble—Faces Disorderly Conduct and Debt Charges.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Count Alexander von Mourke de Beaufort is to have two little sessions with the Chicago courts today and announced that he was ready except for the fact that his lawyer had quit the case because the Count had been too voluble a conversationalist.

The count had to defend himself in the Harrison Street Municipal Court on a charge of disorderly conduct as a result of a scene he is said to have made at St. Luke's Hospital where his wife, formerly Irma Killingalli daughter of a Chicago millionaire, is suffering from a broken ankle and other injuries, which some of the countess' enemies have been so unkind as to attribute to a fight with the count. Later, he had to defend a suit for $63, filed by a haberdasher for resplendent raiment. The count expects to find a new attorney at once.

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE BEFORE THE CORONATION.

But the Exact Date Has Not Yet Been Set—Cable Despatches From England.

London, Nov. 19.—In the House of Parliament Sir Edward Grey replying to a question, said he has already been in communication with the colonies in reference to the Naval bill, and it is not proposed to take further action at the present time.

The premier said the Imperial Conference would be held before coronation, but the actual date has not been fixed.

TENDING TOWARDS AMERICA.

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 15.—Frequent comparisons are made in the West Indian journals between the progress of Americans in the British West Indies. The Barbadoes Reporter says the difference is all in favor of the countries within the sphere of American influence. A similar opinion exists in Jamaica and other islands, and the drift towards America is believed to be certain if no Imperial preference is given.

SOUTH AFRICA'S CONTRIBUTIO

Cape Town, Nov. 18.—South Africa contribution to the Imperial navy amounts to £86,600.

FOOLED HIM BADLY.

How He Kicks on Letters Written in the Third Person.

In one of the Paris restaurants a party of literary men were discussing the merits of various epistolary styles. One of them, Monsieur A., made a fierce attack on letters written in the third person, such as "Monsieur X. has the honor to inform"— and so on. Another of the party defended them, maintaining that they were not only more ceremonious, but that they were more polite.

"That's a good idea!" replied Monsieur A. "The foundation of all politeness in letter writing is to express clearly what you mean to say. Now, nothing can be more ambiguous than these confounded notes in the third person. I will just tell you what happened to myself. I received from my friend D., the chief of division, a billet doux, which I will show you."

Taking the note from his pocket, Monsieur A. read as follows:

"Monsieur D., chief of division at the war office, hastens to inform his friend, Monsieur A., that he has just been named chevalier of the Legion of Honor."

"You can fancy my delight at reading this note," continued Monsieur A. "I was the happiest man in the world. I ran to an engraver and ordered him to make the flattering addition to my cards, 'Monsieur A., Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.' I ran to a mercer's and bought a piece of the richest red ribbon for my buttonhole. I ran to the houses of my friends for the pleasure of receiving their congratulations. At last I ran to my friend D.'s. As soon as I caught sight of him I threw myself into his arms. 'Ah, my dear fellow,' I exclaimed, 'you have no idea what pleasure you have given. How shall I ever thank you sufficiently?'

"'You are an excellent fellow, my worthy A., to sympathise thus with my happiness.'

"'Thank you for that expression; the decoration is mine, and the happiness is yours.'

"'How is that? Have you received the order?'

"'Certainly; have I not?'

"'No, my good friend; 'tis I who am now made chevalier.'

"'You?'

"'Yes. You deserve the honor more than I do, but, nevertheless, it has been conferred on me.'

"'But you wrote me word that I had received the cross.' I took his letter out of my pocket and showed it him. Alas! I now understood clearly what meaning I ought to assign to the ambiguous phrase. 'The deuce take you and your note,' I said to D. 'Instead of your affected and formal announcement in the third person, why could you not write to me simply and plainly, "My dear friend, I have the pleasure of informing you that I now am decore chevalier?"'"

Quakers Never "Nervous."

It is not in my memory that a professing Quaker ever came into my hands to be treated for nervousness. If the opinion I have already stated as often is correct, namely, that want of control of the emotions and the overexpression of the feelings are prime causes of nervousness, then the fact that discipline of the emotions is a lesson early and constantly taught by Friends would help to account for the infrequency of this disorder among them and add emphasis to the belief in such causation.—From "Self Help For Nervous Women," by Dr. Kearsley Mitchell.

A Remarkable Man.

John Ziska, the great Hussite leader of the fifteenth century, was one of the most remarkable men that ever lived. His life story reads like a romance. Nothing in history is more interesting, more thrilling, than the account of his heroic deeds. Though blind and always greatly outnumbered, Ziska invariably beat his enemies and established for himself a fame that will last forever. He was never beaten in a battle. His very name was a terror to his enemies. He died in 1424, while besieging Prazabialaw, at the age of sixty-four.—New York American.

Spoons.

The origin of the spoon is uncertain. It must have been invented at a very ancient date, for it is found among people that have never come into contact with civilization. The necessity of having some implement for dipping water seems to have led first to the invention of the calabash or the use of the cocoanut shell and later on to the spoon.

Didn't Know "the Uncle."

Aunt Jane—I guess Mr. Spender must be a very neat person. Edith—And what leads you to that opinion? Aunt Jane—He told your Uncle George all his clothes but those upon his back were hung up. Some men, you know, throw their things round anywhere.—Boston Transcript.

Mistook the Punctuation.

The Young Woman (surprised and indignant)—How dared you kiss me, sir! Penitent Young Man—Why, you said you'd like to see me do it. The Young Woman—But you know as well as I do that I said it with an exclamation point at the end!—Chicago Tribune.

The Accent Sarcastic.

He (at the end of a fishing story)—My word, it was a monster! Upon my word, I never saw such a fish in my life! She—I don't believe you ever did!—London Mail.

Riches are able to solder up an abundance of flaws.—Cervantes.

Address Before Canadian Club.

Lieut.-Col. F. W. MacQueen of Toronto, is to deliver a patriotic and historical address before the Canadian Club on Thursday evening, Dec. 1st. This coming lecture will be awaited with keen interest, as the colonel has delivered it before large and cultured audiences out West, by whom it was much enjoyed. A splendid musical program has been arranged for the meeting referred to. It is expected that some members of Canadian clubs outside of Peterborough will attend to hear the colonel's address.

County Councillors' Fees.

At Brockville, Ont., at their first session, the council of the United Counties passed a by-law increasing the per diem allowance of the members from $3 to $5, including travelling expenses one way. Peterborough County Councillors receive $2 per day, and mileage, which is not sufficient to pay their expenses.

Dominion Money Spent Here.

The "Blue Book" for the year ending March 31st, 1910, by the Minister of Public Works. Under the heading of expenditure we learn that during the year $33,928.31 was spent on the Peterboro armories. For "furniture and repairs" on the local post office was spent for similar purposes in the $32.92 was expended, whilst $291.00 custom house.

Jim's Cargo Was Too Heavy.

Jim Wilson was born with a thirst. One of these perennial troublesome thirsts that nothing short of a long schooner of ale or lager seems able to quench. On Friday Jim tried hard to drown that thirst. He partially succeeded, but, in his zealous endeavor Jim got a larger cargo below hatches than he could navigate with. His cargo and Jim were steered into the safe harbor of the police station. On Saturday morning his worship reasoned with Jim on the foolishness of trying to extinguish that thirst with fermented beverages. Jim was allowed one more chance.

Starting on Building Works.

Lindsay Post: Mr. D. B. Thomas is starting operations on a brick barn, 50 x 80 to be used in connection with his new factory. He has secured all the brick needed for the building in Lindsay and Peterboro. About 100,000 brick were brought here, besides a quantity of old brick.

Government Contracts Let Here.

The Dominion Government Department of Public Works has just issued its report for the year ending March 31st. Under the heading of "Contracts Let" by that Department, one learns that the contract for coal for the local post office was let to Messrs Weir & O'Brien, for $252.56. Contract for bowling alleys for the Armories was let to Messrs. Ketchum & Co., for $1,050.00. The contract for interior fittings of the Armories was let to Mr. Edmund Wand for $6,000.00. Mr. Jas. Bogue's contract for grading and sodding at the Drill Hall amounted to $4,360.00.

Death of Mrs. T. H. Darcy's Sister.

The many friends of Mrs. Thos. H. Darcy, of Burleigh Falls, will sympathize with her, over the death of her sister, Mrs. Julius Bittchopsky, of Cleveland, O., who passed away in that city on Friday last. In response to a telegram telling her of her sister's serious illness, Mrs. Darcy left for Cleveland on Friday. The deceased's maiden name was Agnes Kelly, and she was at one time a resident of Douro. Her husband predeceased her three years ago. One daughter, Miss Florence, is left to mourn her loss.

A Coincidence of Saturday's Game.

By a coincidence, noted to The Times by Mr. A. St. A. Smith of Keene, who was formerly on the local staff of the Bank of Toronto, he played football twenty years ago in this city against the R.M.C. On the R.M.C. team in that game was Col. Greenwood, until recently a resident of Lakefield since his return from South Africa. In Saturday's game here, Mr. Smith's son played in the Varsity team, while Col. Greenwood's son was present rooting for R.M.C.

A Big Consignment of Deer.

Mr. John Mervin, corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets, with his usual enterprise, on Saturday, brought into Peterborough one of the largest consignments of venison ever brought into Peterborough by one individual. There were eighteen fine deer lying on the pavement in front of Mr. Mervins store on Saturday afternoon. As venison can only be bought during 30 days, those wanting deer meat must get about as quick a move on as the deer when it hears the dogs.

A Beautiful C.P.R. Calendar.

The C.P.R. with their proverbial enterprise have issued an advance copy of their "Fleet" Calendar for 1911. This calendar, about 3 by 2 feet in size, is surrounded in the margin with Canadian maple leaves and above the figures of the various months is a very handsome colored picture showing about thirty of the magnificent steamships of that company plying on the ocean, the Great Lakes and rivers of Canada.

Cobourg Lady Dead.

Mrs. Gillhard, widow of the late Thomas Gillhard, died at her residence at Cobourg, Ont., on Wednesday at an advanced age. Mr. and Mrs. Gillhard were well-known throughout the district. He gave $10,000 towards the erection of the new consolidated public school at Cobourg, and built the Gillhard memorial chapel in the Cobourg Union Cemetery, and left a number of bequests to churches and other institutions. At his death a few years ago Mrs. Gillhard was left alone, as they had no family. The deceased was an aunt of Mr. W. Saulsbury, of Toronto, formerly of this city.

Changes at Princess Theater.

Mr. Victor Loftus, on Saturday, informed The Times that immediate steps are to be taken to enlarge the Princess theater of which he is manager. The present stage is to be removed, thus abolishing vaudeville, at that house. This will enable the curtain to be placed some sixteen feet further back, and consequently allow forty or fifty more seats to be installed. As the department in Toronto has decided to strictly enforce the regulations against customers standing in the aisles, or at the rear of seats at the entrance, this change will enable the crowds at the Princess to be more easily accommodated.

SOCIETY EVENTS

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

Mr. L. N. Chapins of Brockville, is a guest at the White House.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gale of Albion, Mich., are guests at the Hotel National.

Mrs. A. S. Laing of Montreal, is in the city visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wart, 283 Rubidge street.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Thompson of Toronto, are guests of the former's brother, Mr. W. G. Thompson, George street.

Mr. Clarence Smith, of the R.N.W.M.P., Regina, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith, 30 Aberdeen avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Darcy and children, of the Park Hotel, Burleigh Falls, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Armstrong, Havelock.

Mrs. George Buchanan of Edmonton, is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith, on account of the serious illness of the latter.

The many friends of Mr. F. Haskill, will be pleased to learn that he has been restored to his old run on the Peterborough flyer. Conductor O'Neil is taking the Lindsay-Bellville train.

Miss Ruth Carlisle has returned home after spending the past six months in the Northwest, in Brandon, where she was the guest of her brother, Dr. Harold Carlisle, and in Grand Forks, N.D.

Mr. Fred Peake, the well known horseman of Campbellford, was in the city Saturday.

Mr. A. St. A. Smith, manager of the Bank of Toronto at Keene, was in the city on Saturday.

Miss May Rogers of Montreal, daughter of the late Mr. Frank Rogers, formerly manager of the Bank of Montreal, this city, accompanied the Kingston excursion to this city on Saturday.

Miss Kitty Sorby, of Montreal, is the guest of her aunt, Miss Nina Borrodaile, Water street.

Mrs. Burns wishes to express her gratitude to her many friends during her hour of trouble.

H. D. Smith, son of Mr. A. St. A. Smith of Keene, a former local citizen, played on the Varsity team on Saturday.

Mr. Edward De L. Greenwood, son of Col. Greenwood, recently of Lakefield, but now living in Toronto, accompanied the R.M.C. team here on Saturday.

Mr. Jos. Guerin, who has been employed at Juniper Island, Stony Lake, on the Government work during the past summer, has returned to the city, having resigned his job.

Among the officers who accompanied the R.M.C. team Saturday, were Major Shine, R.M.I., Capt. Blair, R.A., and Lieut. Dawson, R.E.

The Times had a pleasant call on Saturday from Mr. W. D. Willis, of Willis & Co., Limited, the well-known piano manufacturers of Montreal. Mr. Willis left for the east on the midnight.

May Proclaim Martial Law Throughout Mexico

100 REVOLUTIONISTS KILLED WHEN SOLDIERS FIRED ON THEM.

President Diaz Orders Arrest of Several Officers Who Will Be Tried By Court Martial for Treason — Outlook is Critical.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 21.—The following message was received by the Herald at 1 a.m. today:

"Armed Mexicans fought a skirmish with river guards at Del Rio. The sheriff and posse quickly organized, repulsed them. The town is greatly excited."

Mexico City, Nov. 21.—That the tense situation throughout Mexico would cause a declaration of martial law within 48 hours was the belief expressed here today by close observers of the revolutionary situation. A battle has been fought at Zacatreas, in the interior and, according to reports reaching here today, at least 100 were killed when soldiers fired into a body of revolutionists. Some estimates place the loss of life as high as 500, but these are believed to be wildly exaggerated. Rumors are current of conflicts along the border. Martial law is in force at Guerrero, and riots are said to have taken place at Alniege.

Special orders were issued today for the capture of Madero, the revolutionary leader.

SENSATIONAL CHARGE.

The sensational revelation that followers of Francesco Madero have tampered with the Mexican standing army and exacted promises of desertion from a number of the officers was made today by wholesale military arrests. These arrests, made at the direction of President Diaz, include captains, colonels and several lieutenant-colonels. More than forty army officers and enlisted men have been placed under arrest and will be tried by court-martial for treason.

The extent of the army plot is not known, but it was reported today that more arrests would follow. The Mexican fighting force is not at its best now, the country being able to muster only 26,000 men for international services. The revolutionists cleverly bided their time until they could take the government a disadvantage.

HOW HE CROSSED.

It is believed here that Madero managed to leave the United States and cross the Rio Grande into Mexico unknown to the authorities. It is estimated that the rebel force at present does not number more than 5,000, although hundreds of Mexicans all armed, are continually crossing the frontier from Texas.

The probability that martial law should be proclaimed was shown today by the distribution of soldiers to all parts of the Republic.

Gen. Villar, commander of the Mexican army in the northern district, with headquarters at Nuevo Lardeo, was ordered today to double the patrol along the Rio Grande with a view of preventing the flight of Mexicans into the United States in the event that the revolutionists try to escape into the neighboring country.

This indicated that the government considers that the revolution has failed, although there are continued reports from Guerrero and from Santa Cruz that desultory skirmishes were going on these places.

CUT TELEGRAPH WIRES.

The revolutionists have cut the telegraph wires which made direct communication impossible.

In response to the railroad's petition for troops to prevent the seizing of trains and the burning of bridges soldiers were today put aboard the trains and rurales were ordered to patrol the tracks.

It was reported today that Senor Enrique Creel, minister of Foreign Relations, had reached an agreement with the State Department at Washington relative to the refusal to allow the refugee revolutionists to flee into Texas, and that the United States Government would return all Mexicans jeopardizing the neutrality laws.

More than 1,000 arrests have been made. At least 500 have been made in Mexico City and its environs. The city was under the patrol of armed guards today, and the police were ordered to prevent political meetings.

The Minister of War has a bed placed in his office so that in emergency he can be on duty day and night. The War Minister, in the event of serious fighting, has a problem on his hands. The greatest reliance is placed upon the rurales. This hardy band consists of twelve regiments or battalions composed of 792 officers and 1,825 men. In time of invasion by a foreign force, Mexico could put nearly 80,000 men in the field, but under the military laws and existing conditions the Republic could only put a few more than a fourth of that number.

THE MILITARY STRENGTH.

The Republic is divided into ten zones for the administration of military operations. There are seven generals of division in actual service, 45 generals of brigade, 58 brigadier-generals, 753 commanding officers and 2,355 other officers.

CRAFT SWAMPED FOUR DROWNED

THE SWIFT CURRENT OF ST. MARY'S RIVER PROVED TO BE TREACHEROUS.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ontf, Nov. 21.—About two o'clock on Sunday morning while attempting to negotiate the swift current of the St. Mary's River, a small boat was overturned and the party of seven which it contained were thrown into the water. Four were drowned and three rescued by a tug that put out to the rescue. The drowned are Fred Parker, aged 24, son of Mr. J. G. Parker, Wemyss street; Cecil Brown, aged 17, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, Grace street; Reginald Levi, aged 18, son of Mrs. Mary Levi, Abbott street; John Sherwood, aged 45, night ferryman; and the rescued, Clifford Dilks, aged 16; Norman Tragenza, aged 18, Alex. Biron, aged 30.

Sherwood is one of the most expert and fearless rivermen in this district, but even to the most adroit and skilful the swift-flowing current in the dead of night offers difficulties almost insuperable.

Late Saturday night Sherwood landed one party on the Canadian shore, and, though warned by those aware of the danger, to refrain from a repetition of his venturesome trip, the undaunted boatman put out once more for the Michigan side.

While waiting for another boatload Sherwood is said to have imbibed to a considerable extent, so that when long after midnight his usual quota of passengers had been obtained, his nerves were not perhaps so steady as on ordinary occasions.

In this instance, it appears— the young man being heavy—the boat was overloaded. A strong current sweeps around the pier on the Michigan side, throwing the swift waters towards the Canadian shore.

With a moderate east wind the strong swell thus made filled the boat immediately the dangerous waters were entered. Biron, who was an experienced riverman, became alarmed when a couple of waves shipped, and suggested that the boat be bailed, and a can was procured. Members of the party were engaged in bailing when two heavy swells struck the craft, filling it with water, and the boat immediately sank.

Biron, Tragenza and Dilks clung to the boat, but the others disappeared after a few moments. The cries of the three for help were heard on the Michigan shore. The Superior Steel Trust supply boat and the tug Sabin proceeded to the scene of the accident and made the rescue. The men were all exhausted, and could not have lasted much longer, as the strong current spun the boat around like a top.

It is said the barge Marquette, which had just looked through on the Michigan side may have made the swell which swamped the boat, although Biron attributes the accident to the wind and current.

DR. CRIPPEN MUST DIE ON THE GALLOWS FOR MURDER OF WIFE

"I WILL SOON BE WITH MY FATHER," SAID CRIPPEN WHEN TOLD HIS FATE.

Winston Churchill Decides Prisoner Had a Fair Trial—Condemned Man Issues a Long Statement Declaring That He Was Convicted on Inconclusive Evidence.

London, Nov. 21.—Dr. H. H. Crippen must die on the gallows Wednesday for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen. His last hope of life was swept away today when Home Secretary Winston Churchill held ineffective the petition praying commutation of Crippen's death sentence.

THOUGHTS WITH HIS FATHER.

When Crippen was informed of the Home Secretary's action, holding that he had a fair trial and that the evidence was of proper nature, he said:

"I will soon be with my father."

Barrister Arthur Newton, representing Crippen, was informed that the sentence of the court would be carried out and that Crippen would go to his doom on Wednesday.

PETITION LARGELY SIGNED.

There were 20,000 names on the petition, and after it was presented, many more persons came forward, volunteering to sign it, declared Mr Newton today.

A PROGRESSIVE RAILWAY

The C.P.R. is always in the lead. In the presence of a number of officials of the road, experiments were made last week, with an electric automatic block system, and were pronounced perfectly satisfactory by them. A number of transformers placed along the track about 1,600 feet apart, constitute the blocks. When an engine passes one of these blocks, the wheels short-circuit the track, and if an engine passes this block while there is another engine on the track, between it and the next block, the electric current acts on a system of levers in the engine and closes the throttle. The experiment was made with a locomotive equipped with the device, and proved very satisfactory. The device may be employed on the C.P.R.

Rumor that Crippen Made a Confession

London, Nov. 21.—Dr. H. H. Crippen has confessed to the Rev. Father E. M. Carville, a Roman Catholic priest, that he murdered his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen, according to reports current here.

The Rev. Father Carville refused to discuss the alleged confession. The belief of those who circulated the report was based on a long spiritual confession which the condemned man made to his spiritual adviser.

Crippen's Farewell with Miss Le Neve

MISS ETHEL CLAIRE LE NEVE VISITED CONDEMNED MAN YESTERDAY FOR THE LAST TIME.

Their Meeting Was One of the Most Emotional and Dramatic That Has Ever Been Enacted in the Grim Walls of the Prison.

London, Nov. 21.—Ethel Clare Le Neve visited Crippen in Pentonville prison today and their meeting was one of the most emotional and dramatic that has ever been enacted in the grim walls of the prison.

The young woman, for whose love Crippen was charged with killing his wife, wept and cried out hysterically as they talked.

The visit of Miss Le Neve was her fourth since her acquittal of being an accessory after the fact in the murder of Belle Elmore Crippen, and it was also her last.

WEPT HYSTERICALLY.

The girl wept hysterically through the interview and at times cried: "Oh Hawley, I believe you are innocent." Crippen was deeply moved himself, more so, the prison attendants say, than at any time since his incarceration.

When the two parted it was felt that Miss Le Neve would faint. Dr. Crippen broke down, and even the prison attendants, accustomed to grief and suffering, were moved as they looked upon the tragic scene.

Miss Le Neve had to be assisted from the prison.

The visit of the Rev. Father Carville, was of exceptional length today, although he had been ministering to Crippen for some weeks. He appeared to be greatly agitated after their meeting. Crippen, too, showed agitation.

All Russia Mourns Loss of Count Tolstoi

ATTIRED IN A PEASANT'S GARB TOLSTOI ENTERS A SWEET SLEEP.

Expression on Great Author's Face As Peaceful as That of a Child.—"The Fear of Death is Unnatural, It Is the Consciousness of Sin."

Astapova, Russia, Nov. 21.— The body of Count Leo Tolstoi, attired in the coarse blouse and heavy boots of a peasant—his garb throughout life—was today sent to his home at Yasnaya, Polyana. Telegrams of condolence from rulers, statesmen and men of affairs and the most brilliant lights of the literary world poured in all day, while loyal peasants crowded the residence at Yasnaya, Polyana and chanted prayers.

Unless an Imperial edict is issued or the Holy Synod of the Greek Catholic Church suddenly relents, Count Tolstoi will not be buried in consecrated ground and there will be no religious rites.

A PEACEFUL EXPRESSION.

The expression upon the face of the dead humanitarian is as peaceful as that of a sleeping child. Tolstoi evidently died with his feelings best interpreted by a passage from one of his books on the theme of death. "The fear of death is unnatural; it is consciousness of sin."

Countess Tolstoi is in a serious condition today as the result of the shock of her husband's death. Doctors Thachurovsky and Vsoff, the specialists from Moscow, who were called in for the final conferences over the dying Tolstoi, found it necessary to minister to Countess. Her daughter Alexandra, who nursed the Count, is now performing a like task for her mother.

It is said that a great throng will proceed to Yasnaya Polyana tomorrow, if present plans are not changed, to attend the funeral.

WIFE THERE AT THE LAST.

Count Leo Tolstoi died peacefully Sunday morning when the end came. It was recognized long before that his case was hopeless, and at 5 o'clock in the morning after the countess had been summoned and the other members of the family had gathered in an adjoining room, the physicians issued a bulletin announcing that the activity of the heart had almost ceased, and that Tolstoi's condition was extremely critical. Several of the physicians were greatly overcome by the approaching death of Russia's great writer.

His heart beat its last apparently without a clear moment to enable him to say farewell or cast a parting look upon his wife and children. The countess all day long was unceasing in her pitiful imploring of one doctor after another to gain entrance where Tolstoi lay. After the first cardiac attack Dr. Thtchurovsky promised that he would announce her presence to Tolstoi at a favorable opportunity.

The second attack came just after a two hours' sleep. The members of the family were hurriedly summoned. The condition of the patient, however, was so grave that he was put to sleep again by injections of morphine, as the only means of deferring the end. The family were then admitted for a few moments to the bed side.

Another attack occurred about three o'clock. The family gathered again. The countess was with difficulty prevailed upon to retire. Later when the end came, in addition to the countess, four sons and three daughters were present.

"NOW COMES DEATH."

Six doctors in attendance, two of them being heart specialists who had been summoned from Moscow on Friday. Their presence drew a characteristic remark from the patient on Saturday, when he was recovering from the second of the three violent cardiac attacks which preceded his last coherent words, although he lived several hours after uttering them. When he recovered from a previous attack he took the hand of his eldest daughter, Latiana, who was beside his bed, and said:

"Now comes death. That's all."

A PATHETIC SCENE.

Throughout the heartbreaking night a motley crowd, made up of the most varied elements imaginable, pressed around the low hut where Leo Tolstoi lay dying. There were distant relatives of the aged author, Tolstoians, villagers, and many churchmen, among them the Abbot Varsofonius, who did not lose hope until the end of seeing Tolstoi and extending to him the olive branch on behalf of the Church. All alike stood spellbound, knowing that a matchless personality was departing. As the Sunday dawn dispelled the foggy raw November night, virtually the whole population of Astapova was there. Then a voice from the hut came quietly: "Leo Nicholaevich is dead." There was a moment of silence. Then every head was bared, and the crowd was rent with sobs. One called out: "His heart was burst by his unbounded love for humanity."

and this and similar phrases ran from mouth to mouth through the weeping Russians gathered there

A PEACEFUL FACE.

Shortly after death the body was clothed in the black shirt and other monk garments which Tolstoi habitually wore. The expression of the face was peaceful and natural. The villagers decked the death room with pine boughs, and afterwards the residents of the neighborhood of all classes and ages and many from a distance walked past the bier. A majority of these mourners were peasants and school children.

The circumstances of Tolstoi's death were exceedingly tragic. Disliking luxury he left his wife heart-broken, that he might end his life as a recluse. His wife first sought suicide, and then tried to discover his whereabouts, but when successful she would not force herself on his presence against his expressed wishes. Then when word of his critical illness on his journey reached her, she rushed to his side only to be denied admittance till the great man was unable to identify her.

WOMAN IS MADE MAYOR OF TOWN

INVITED BY MALE MEMBERS SHE WILL OCCUPY CHAIR IN CORONATION YEAR.

She Has Been a Member of the Town Council for Three Years— Her Ideals are High.

London, Nov. 22.—Oldham will be the only town in England to have a woman mayor during the municipal year.

Mrs. C. E. Lees, of Werneth Park, yesterday accepted the invitation of the Liberal majority of the Oldham town council to take the mayoral chair for the coronation year.

She has been a member of the council for three years as the Liberal representative of one of the wards of the borough, and her value as a member of the corporation is recognized generally. She has been an assiduous and valuable member of the free library and art gallery, parks and education committees.

Mrs. Lees has a long career of private benevolence and an intimate connection with public charities and Philantrophy. Oldham owes much to her for the encouragement and help which she has given to such movements as the "beautiful Oldham" crusade and the garden suburb scheme.

Her daughter, Miss Lees, is a member of the board of guardians and is following her mother's public spirited example.

Mrs. Lees, who is a widow of a wealthy Oldham manufacturer, says: "Through no effort on my part wealth came to me, and I have considered it my bounden duty, as well as a pleasure, to expend some of it for the good of the town where much of it was made."

"There are thousands of women employed as weavers and spinners in the Oldham mills, and I regard it as only right that there should be a woman to represent them. That was my idea in joining the council three years ago. The conditions under which the women work are satisfactory, and they get very good wages, but there is a good deal of social work to be done. The health of the community generally has to be carefully looked after, and the health committee has a good deal to do.

"I have been a member of the education committee since the passing of the act of 1902. I am a member of the court of governors of the Victoria University, Manchester, and I am interested in the Manchester College of Music. I am very much interested in finding outdoor recreation for the people—a thing so much needed in a crowded town like this."

WILL MEET SOUSA.

Mr. Gliddon requests the members of the 57th Regiment Band to meet in the band hall tonight at 7.30, in uniform, to receive John Philip Sousa and his band who will arrive about 7.35, by special G.T.R. train at the Grand Trunk station.

LOCAL ARTIST WINS.

Mr. Louis Mendel has Pictures Accepted by Fine Arts Society, London, England.

Mr. Louis Mendel scores again. At the recent salon held in the Fine Arts' Society gallery on New Bond street, London, Eng., Peterborough was represented in a very artistic display of photographic art. Four portraits sent by Mr. Louis Mendel to this salon were all accepted, which is equivalent to the winning of prizes.

Mr. Mendel appreciates this recognition more than any of the gold medals he had won previously. The recent exhibition, held in London, was the finest in the world. Only work of the highest order in a strictly artistic sense found acceptance at the London salon. Mr. Mendel is to be congratulated on the distinction he has won, both for himself, and for Peterborough.

BEERHOUSE FOR EVERY 34.

No Need to Travel Far for Drink in King Albert's Country.

Antwerp, Nov. 22.—Statistics just published show that there are in Belgium 211,617 estaminets, or places where drink is sold, averaging one such place to every 34 inhabitants.

Every year 200,000 cases of illness are occasioned by excess of drink, 20,000 of which result in death. There are from 600,000 to 800,000 beggars, brought to that state from intemperance.

Fifty per cent. of the suicides and 75 per cent. of the cases of imprisonment can be attributed to alcohol.

In 25 years the consumption of alcohol has increased 54 per cent.

The record for estaminets is held by the small hamlet of Sivry, with 2800 inhabitants, there being 163, all doing excellent business, or an average of one to every 16 inhabitants.

Manufacturers Ask Investigation of United Company of America.

Quebec, Nov. 22.—A Montreal attorney representing a large number of Canadian boot and shoe manufacturers, is endeavoring to secure an investigation of the operations of the United Shoe Machinery Company, a New Jersey corporation controlled by American capital. It is alleged that the company is a combine that comes within the prohibition of the recently enacted combines investigation act Application for an investigation under the terms of the act has been made to Judge Cannon. The petitioners claim that the United Shoe Machinery Company virtually controls the shoe trade of Canada.

Prominent Canadians to Speak.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 22.—The Canadian Club of Boston has completed elaborate arrangements for its annual banquet at the Parker House to-night. Sir James Grant of Ottawa, James Brierly of Montreal, C. R. McCullough of Hamilton, J. F. Mackay of Toronto, H. S. Evans of Winnipeg and a number of other prominent Canadians are among the scheduled speakers.

Mrs. Doxey Charged With Bigamy.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 22.—Mrs. Dora E. Doxey, who in a sensational trial here some time ago was acquitted of the murder of William J. Erder, is to be placed on trial at Clayton this week on a charge of bigamy. She is charged with marrying Erder when she was the wife of Dr. Loren B. Doxey. Since her acquittal on the murders charge Mrs. Doxey has spent most of the time in a sanitarium.

ONTARIO BANK STOCKHOLDERS.

The decision of the privy council in regard to the Ontario Bank which holds that the stockholders are liable for an amount double the value of their shares, and that the agreement with the Bank of Montreal was a valid one, hits the stockholders as a hard blow. By this decision the shareholders of the Ontario Bank will have to make good the claims of the Bank of Montreal, which took over the business of the defunct bank. These claims amount to over a million and a half dollars. Of course there are assets to meet part of this but these fall $776,000 short of meeting the liabilities. The stockholders will therefore have to pay that amount. This will mean about $50 for each share of stock held.

There are several lessons to be learned from this, says the Ottawa Journal. One of them is that there is a fatal weakness in our Canadian Banking system. That weakness is the want of protection to stockholders. It is all very well to say that the stockholders have themselves to blame that they took the risk of putting their money into bank stock and that they must take the consequences. But it must be remembered that the government gives charters to these banks and exacts from them sworn statements as to their financial condition. The public relies upon these statements. The government in the case of the Ontario Bank, allowed itself to be imposed upon by false returns. Is there no responsibility upon the government in that case? Should not the government have provided some safe guards, some means of testing the accuracy of these statements? We might just as well have no statements sent to the government, if they can be falsified at will by any dishonest bank manager who has no check placed upon him.

This Ontario Bank failure proves the absolute necessity for government inspection by inspectors stationed permanently at the head office of every bank in the Dominion with ample powers to verify the statements sent to the government. It is not at the branch offices that inspection is needed. The banks themselves look after the inspection of the branch offices and they take very good care that the defalcations of subordinates are promptly discovered he made successful, then bank inspection at the branches can be made successful. If bank inspection at the head office by a permanent government official can be made still more successful.

The failure of the Ontario Bank has done more to weaken public confidence in our Canadian banks than any other happening in recent years. Upon the government will rest the blame for another bank failure in Canada, if it does not amend the law so as to provide for adequate government inspection.

LIBERTY RUNNING MAD.

The raid of the suffragettes on the British House of Commons yesterday is another evidence of the folly of womanhood running mad. So long as the vote seeking women of Britain persist in such frantic unbecoming attempts it is difficult to understand how they can expect the franchise they desire.

In the earlier periods of English history men fought for their rights and fought hard, they beheaded kings and banished princes, but the methods of their rebellious tactics were in keeping with their masculine disposition. When women so lessen their womanhood and dignity as to "rush" parliament, to openly insult Cabinet Ministers, to horsewhip their victims and chain themselves to grills in order to be in the House, they exceed all that is decent and honorable in their sex. It is doubtful if there are any in Britain outside the suffragettes themselves who would like to be governed by such an element even were they to force Parliament to give them the right to vote.

TRUNK MURDER MYSTERY.

New York's Best Detectives Looking for William Lewis, the Missing Waiter.

New York, Nov. 21.—The trunk murder mystery was as deep as ever today despite the fact that the best detectives of the city had been at work on the case for more than 36 hours. Unless Wm. Lewis, the missing waiter is found, the case will be another of New York's unsolved mysteries.

A strange feature was brought out today when the police again searched the cellar at the home of James Meagher, where the victim was found. They came upon another trunk almost the exact counterpart of the one in which the body was found.

LOOKING FOR CHAMBERMAID.

The detectives are spending considerable time in an effort to find Miss Margaret Winton, a chambermaid, who is said to have been acquainted with Lewis. The woman, who would now be about 38 years of age, formerly worked, it is said, in the Croisic Apartments at 26th street and Madison square. She left there several years ago, however, and nothing has been heard of her since.

Working on the theory that the man suffocated to death was first made unconscious with drugs, Prof. John McAllister, of Bellevue Medical College, today began making a chemical analysis of the remains.

The most important clue that has developed since the result of the autopsy was made known, has been the finding of a tag on the trunk that was overlooked at first.

A TARCOOLER FUNERAL.

Wood Was Scare, but They Managed to Rig Up a Coffin.

In some of the mining districts of South Australia there is a great scarcity of wood. Consequently, if you are so foolish as to die there you must not expect to have a coffin, but must be content to be wrapped in a sack before being deposited in Mother Earth.

However, when a certain very prominent resident of a mining camp died the other people of the settlement—by the way, it was called Tarcooler, though coolness was unknown and Tarhotter would have been a more suitable name—determined that he should be buried in style. So they set about getting a coffin. They made one of a sort, placed a lid on it and laid it (with the deceased inside) in an empty tent for the night.

Next morning the lid of the coffin was missing. It was afterward found that it had been stolen to make the tailboard of a butcher's cart.

However, in spite of this trifling loss the funeral was conducted with great solemnity. The coffin was much admired. It had been made out of the boxes in which the dynamite was sent to the mines. Some people might have considered that the obsequies were marred by the fact that the coffin bore in large letters on one side the legend "Keep dry," and on the other "Blow away from boilers," but that did not trouble the simple minds of the Tarcoolians.—London Tit-Bits.

WORSE THAN WAR.

Infernal Regions of the Buddhists and Mohammedans.

The infernal regions of Buddhism are horrible. They comprise a great hell and 136 lesser hells. In these hells, according to the sculptures of the Buddhist temples, men are ground to powder and their dust turned into ants and fleas and spiders. They are pestled in a mortar. The hungry eat red-hot iron balls. The thirsty drink molten iron.

Islamism says of the infernal regions: "They who believe not shall have garments of fire fitted for them. Boiling water shall be poured on their heads and on their skins, and they shall be beaten with maces of iron."

In the Scandinavian mythology, the mythology of Odin and Thor, we are told that "in Nastrond there is a vast and direful structure, with doors that face the north. It is formed entirely of the backs of serpents, wattled together like wickerwork. But the serpents' heads are turned toward the inside of the hall, and they continually send forth floods of venom, in which wade all those who commit murder or forswear themselves."

Her First Poem.

She was one of those soft eyed maidens, sweetly innocent, shy and gentle. She was unaccustomed to newspaper offices, but, being ambitious, she managed to find enough courage to try winning an editor's sympathy, sympathy to be expressed by the acceptance of her poem.

"I have here," she said demurely, "a little verse I've composed. I really don't know what you'll think of it. You may not like it at all, but it's my first—that is, the first I've ever written for a newspaper—and I'd be very pleased indeed if you honestly thought it was good."

The editor kept at his work, now and then scowling, but not at the young woman especially.

"It's about a maiden tripping o'er the lea," she continued.

"What was the trouble?" asked the man behind the paper. "Couldn't she lift her feet?"—Philadelphia Times.

Slightly Mixed.

He wasn't good at conundrums, but when his turn came to ask one at a little social party he thought he could remember a good one he had heard. It was the old riddle:

"Why is a woman like the ivy?"

The answer, of course, is the gallant explanation:

"Because the more you're ruined the closer she sticks."

But he got it mixed and asked:

"Why is the ivy like a woman?"

None of the ladies present could give an appropriate reply, so he himself ventured this maladroit solution:

"Because the closer it clings the more you're ruined."

Spoiled It For Him.

Mr. Clarke's butler had asked for a night off, for the purpose, as he explained, of attending a ball in the village. The next day Mr. Clarke asked him how he had enjoyed himself.

"Oh, pretty good, sir, thank you," was the response. "It would have been better if it hadn't a-been for the women. I can't abide women at a ball."—New York Press.

A Beautiful Thought.

A little girl absorbed in gazing at the starry skies being asked of what she was thinking said, "I was thinking if the wrong side of heaven is so glorious what must the right side be!"

A Threat.

Immature Conductor (to clarinet player)—See here, Mr. Schlag, why don't you follow my beat? Virtuoso clarinet (solemnly)—If you don't beat owid I will!—Puck.

A Surprise.

Gertie—I want to give my sweetheart a surprise on his birthday. Can you suggest something? Arabel—Well, you might tell him your age.

Bad men excuse their faults, good men will leave them.—Johnson.

THREW BOMBS.

Galveston, Texas, Nov. 19.—Details of the fighting at Pueblo, Mexico, were received here today making it evident that the battle fought between the revolutionists and police was more serious than the government would have revealed. Bombs were thrown by women from the roofs and balconies of houses among the police and rurales. The hardy rurales showed great bravery by attacking the houses in the face of a rain of lead.

Even young children took part in the fighting, lying alongside their elders upon the galleries loading the weapons.

The revolutionists showed unerring aim and the officers killed were shot either in the forehead or through the heart.

British Columbia Conservatives.

Nelson, B.C., Nov. 17.—Several hundred leading Conservatives of British Columbia assembled for a conference here today to decide upon the future policy of the party, with particular reference to the measures to be brought before the coming legislative session.

Mr. L. N. Chapine of Brockville, is a guest at the White House.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Enter by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect house worth $300.00.

BIRD S ——— NOTE.

English Naturalist Secures Nightingale's Melody for Gramaphone.

During the coming winter the nightingale's song will be heard on the gramophone. After many attempts, Mr. Oliver G. Pike, F.Z.S., F.R.P.S., of England, has succeeded in recording the song which will be heard in various lecture halls throughout the country.

Mr Pike, who lives near the famous woods of Winchmore Hill, which rare birds frequent, is an enthusiastic naturalist, the youngest lecturer in the country on birds and bird life, and the author of eight books, all illustrated by photographs taken by himself in all parts of the British Isles.

Quite recently he formed one of a small party which journeyed to the lonely island of St Kilda to make observations on the habits of the sea birds nesting in the island and on the adjacent rocks.

"I have had some amusing experiences," said Mr. Pike, "owing to my youthful appearance. At one hall in Manchester, where I was to deliver a lecture, I gave my slides to the lantern operator, who then asked me if Mr. Pike was coming along.

"Quite recently I have succeeded in devising means of taking bioscope pictures of wild birds in the true colors of nature.

"Yes, I have had some narrow escapes with my bioscope. Not long ago I was photographing a group of gannets near the top of a large rock 600 feet high.

"I was just on the edge of a cliff, about 500 feet up, had got my bioscope in position, and had taken a length of film, when I heard a shout above me.

"Looking up I found that two climbers about seventy feet above me had accidentally dislodged a large boulder, which seemed to be coming straight for me down the slope to the point where I stood with the machine.

"I could neither move myself nor the machine. Although only a second or two coming, it seemed an age to me. To my great relief it struck another piece of rock just above me, and this turned its path a few inches from where I stood.

"In another case I was trying to photograph a raven's nest on a steep Welsh inland cliff. Just as I was putting the camera in its position it became dislodged, and I saw it bounding down the cliff side. It fell about fifty feet and then disappeared over the ledge. Descending, I looked over, and there to my delight I saw it caught in a bush, and subsequently found it so little damaged that I was able to use it later.

"I was once attacked by tramps while on a lonely road. One threw a stone at the camera, but hit me on the head instead, knocking me senseless. I found afterwards that he was making off with the camera when a man came up and seized him.

"Sometimes on these explorations I get home rather late. Two years ago I was arrested by a detective as a fowl thief. This was a huge joke, because by showing them some of my pictures I was able to prove that I 'took' birds, but only with the camera."

Mr. Pike's interest in birds began when he was a little boy, who started taking photographs of them instead of taking their nests. Since then he has photographed hundreds of rare birds, including the bussard, in their native wilds, away from their nests, and has also invented a special camera now in use among naturalists not only in this country, but all over the world.

Largely, if not chiefly, through his efforts, some of the rarest breeding birds in these islands have been protected.

Author Dizzy's "Life."

A notable event of the autumn publishing season will be the appearance of the long-expected "Life of Beaconsfield," which was to have been edited by Lord Rosebery, by Mr. George Wyndham, by Mr. Lucien Wolf, and by the late Lord Rowton. The actual editor is Mr. William Flavelle Monypenny, a distinguished journalist, who has had to wade through no fewer than forty-three packing-cases containing "Dizzy's" correspondence and papers, and even now, after many years, only the first volume of the book is in the press.

Mr. Monypenny has done responsible editorial work for The Spectator, The Johannesburg Star and The London Times. While editing The Star, his criticisms of Boer methods before the war caused such anger in official circles that one day an irate Dutchman burst into his sanctum and began to whack him. Mr. Monypenny had his spectacles broken before he knew what was happening, but, recovering from his surprise, he began to give his visitor as good as he gave, and something over. The affair ended by Mr. Monypenny kicking his assailant downstairs and out into the middle of President street. Dizzy's biographer afterwards served with distinction in the Imperial Light Horse through the siege of Ladysmith.

"Comin' Thro' the Rye."

An autobiography which is being looked forward to with much interest is that of Miss Helen Mathers (Mrs. Henry Reeves), which is announced for the autumn. It will be published under the curious title of "Phil and I"—Phil being Miss Mather's son, who died last year. The famous authoress was greatly attached to her son, who was wont to assist his mother with her books, and after his death she decided not to write another novel. "Comin' Thro' the Rye" is generally regarded as her best story, concerning the popularity of which she once received a striking tribute from Thomas Hardy. The great Wessex novelist once told her that wherever he went he was always sure of finding two books—the Bible and "Comin' Thro' the Rye."

The Workers.

In the civilized countries of the world 60 per cent. of persons over ten years of age have to work for a living.

Easy to Close.

The public entrance doors of the great building of the Bank of England are so finely balanced that a clerk by pressing a knob under his desk can close them instantly.

Cents and Nickels.

Cents, being of small value, are carelessly handled and are lost in such great numbers that the United States treasury has to work hard to maintain the supply. The profit to the government on their manufacture is large, however, inasmuch as the blanks for them are purchased for $1 a thousand from a firm that produces them by contract. Blanks for nickels are obtained in the same way, costing Uncle Sam only a cent and a half apiece.

A VOLCANIC BEACON.

Curious Lighthouse of the Republic of San Salvador.

The republic of San Salvador, on the Pacific side of Central America, is the only government on earth that collects lighthouse fees on account of a volcano that it owns.

The volcanic beacon is about eight miles inland from the port of Acajutla and its pillar of cloud by day and its fire sky sight are visible for many miles out at sea. It erupts every seven minutes and is just as accurate as any revolving light that warns mariners in any part of the world. This volcano has been keeping up this seven minute series of eruptions ever since any one can remember. It is a favorite amusement of visiting gringoes to sit by the hour during the lazy afternoons and, watch in hand, time the eruptions until they tire of the amusement and fall asleep.

Every vessel that puts in at Acajutla—and it is quite an important port of call along that part of the coast—has to pay its lighthouse fee. There is no other lighthouse than the volcano, but that is a sufficient excuse for the government of Salvador to make a charge for its services. The explosions that accompany the eruptions sound like detonations of heavy charges of dynamite, but are not sufficient to make the ground perceptibly more than a mile or two from the summit of the crater. At night there is a spurt of fire, a muffled report and a cloud of steam. By day only the steam is visible.—New York Press.

CONAN DOYLE WAS LATE.

The Lonely Schwarenbach Inn and a Literary Coincidence.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle once walked over the Gemmi. He was much impressed by the desolate appearance of the lonely looking Schwarenbach inn. There, it seemed to him, was an ideal scene in which a novelist might locate a story of mystery and crime.

He proceeded to invent a story of mystery and crime suitable to the creepy environment. It was a story of murder—the murder of a long lost son just home from the wars by his own father, the needy innkeeper, who did not recognize him until after the deed was done, but had resolved to kill and rob the first lonely stranger that passed that way with money in his pocket.

"The very thing," thought Sir Arthur, and he went down the hill cheerfully revolving the morbid conception in his mind. Then a strange thing happened.

After dinner, in the hotel at Leukerbad, he picked up a volume of Maupassant's short stories and he found that the French author had not only been to the Schwarenbach inn before him, but had actually located there a story practically identical with the one which he himself had just devised.—Travel and Exploration.

Prompt Punishment of a Liar.

Years ago the courthouse in San Francisco fronted the old Plaza. A trial was in progress, and counsel for the defendant was cross examining the plaintiff. An earthquake shook the chandeliers and dislodged some of the ceiling. Judge, jurors, witnesses and spectators rushed for the door; but, finding that the seismic disturbance was over, they returned.

"You can proceed with the cross examination of the witness," said the judge.

"Pardon me, your honor," said counsel for the defendant, "but after the late exhibition of the displeasure of the Almighty at the lies this witness was telling I do not care to further invoke divine wrath. I will ask him no more questions."—Los Angeles Times.

Horses in the Time of Homer.

The horses used in Homer's time were war horses. The warriors were drawn in chariots. The art of riding was known, but it is alluded to as something unusual. Ulysses at the time of his shipwreck "bestrode a plank, like a horseman on a big steed." There are reasons for believing that the practice of riding was much later than that of driving, and the myth of the centaur, where, according to Shakespeare, "man is incorpsed and demingured with the beast," probably originated at an early period when the appearance of a man on horseback was a novel sight.

A Long Wait.

At a Denver hotel a woman went into one of the telephone booths and sat down. It is not possible to get a telephone number from the booth—the girl at the board has to call it. The girl went to the booth. "Did you want a telephone number?" she asked of the woman.

"No," replied the woman, "I'm just waiting for this elevator to go up."—Argonaut.

Very Considerate.

George—Do you see that pretty girl in the hammock? Harold—Yes. What of her? George—I saved her life last summer. Harold—Indeed! At the seashore? George—No; on the front porch. I proposed to her and she said she'd die if she married me, so I excused her.—Stray Stories.

Grapes and Peaches.

The grape has more sugar in it than any other fruit, nearly fifteen parts in a hundred being sugar. The peach has least, only 1½ per cent.

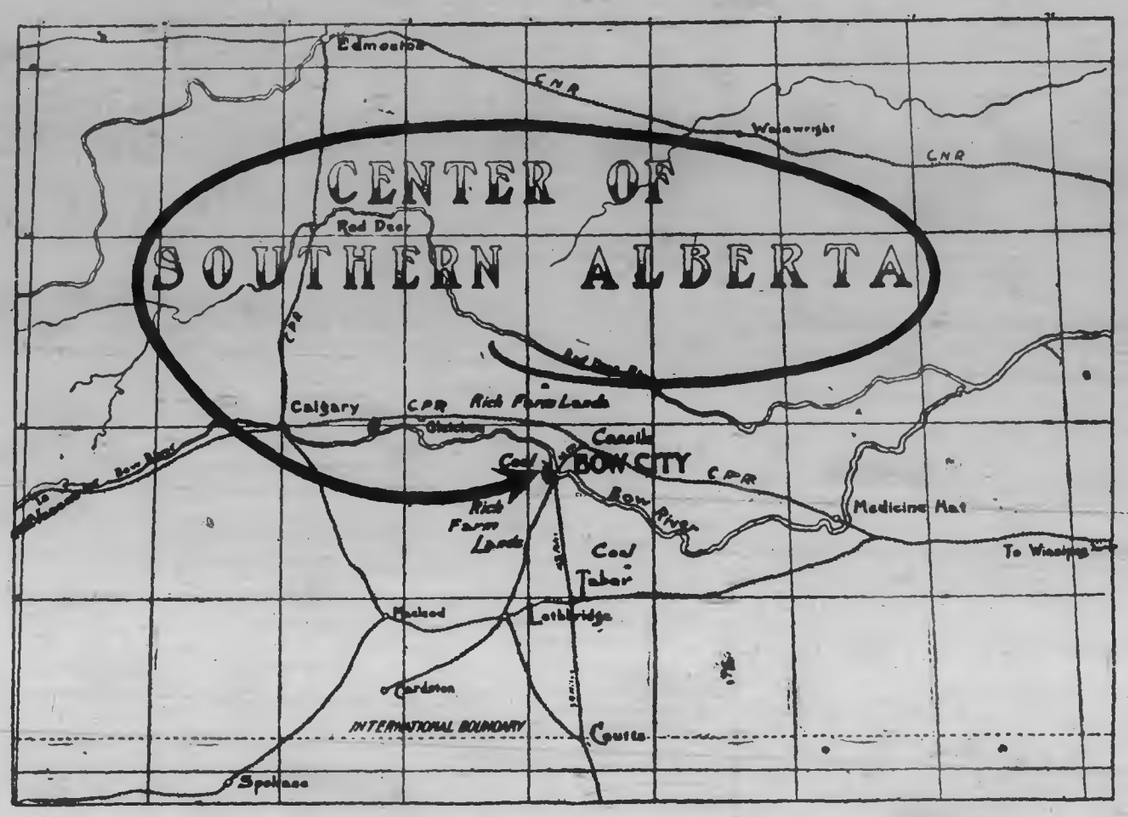
Turkish Methods.

In Turkey nothing can be done without a bribe, but with a bribe, if it be only big enough, anything can be done, except, perhaps, the publication of correct news in a Turkish paper.

Wings of a Gnat.

The wings of a gnat vibrate at the rate of 15,000 times a second, this observation having been recorded through the use of an ingenious musical instrument.

"GIVE YOUR SON A DEED"



If, by way of illustration, you will review the history of the men in your town who have made money out of real estate, you will find that in each and every instance their profits were made from real estate acquired at ground floor prices.

More money can be made by those who acquire a realty interest in a town at its inception per dollar invested than from investments made after a period of years.

Do you know that you can purchase with $5 cash a full sized residential lot in Bow City, Alberta

the logical location for a great city, a city which is destined to be known, the world over, as a market place annually for hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain, grown on the vast irrigated fields surrounding Bow City, a shipping point for coal from the great Bow Centre Collieries, and a purchasing depot for hundreds of prosperous farmers resident throughout Southern Alberta.

To-day is your opportunity to acquire an interest in Bow City at the ground floor price.

It will be too late six months hence, to apply for a lot in Bow City at the present prices and on such easy terms as are offered you in this advertisement.

Why not follow Russell Sage's advice given in a letter published some years ago to the fathers in the Western States:—

"Buy your son a lot in a town being the "centre of a great agricultural country—when "he comes of age that lot will be worth consid-"erable money and will provide a handsome "stake for him in life; it is at least most sub-"stantial life insurance—sure and certain."

Buy your son a $50 lot in Bow City, the coming metropolis of the western prairies. In a very short time he can re-sell the same at a big increase, which money he will find advantageous in business pursuits or in a college course.

Bow City, the centre of the great granary of Southern Albert has a future concerning which no sane business man or banker has any doubt.

When you are assured of the success of the city, when you have proven to you beyond the shadow of a doubt that Bow City will, in the very near future, be one of the most active, one of the most progressive towns on the Western prairies, you should not hesitate to acquire at least one $50 residential lot, when same is on sale on such easy terms as 10 per cent cash and the balance 10 per cent per month until paid—a deed at any time.

Bow City is in the heart of a famous irrigated farming belt whose farmers are assured of a crop every year. They are prosperous and their prosperity will naturally enhance the value of Bow City real estate.

The great coal mines of Bow City will furnish work for 1,000 to 1,500 miners daily, these miners will constitute a substantial basis for a successful city.

The present owners of Bow City have decided that no licenses shall be issued for the sale of spirituous liquors; they intend that this great mining and agricultural centre shall be free from any traffic in intoxicating drinks—it will be a clean city.

Bow City is the headquarters of a railway which taps a territory unparalleled for richness in crops and natural resources.

The Sale of Bow City Lots opened but a few days ag

If you are desirous of acquiring a $50 residential lot close in you should lose no time in making application by wire direct to the General Agents of the townsite, or to the nearest sub-agent.

Do not delay by sending your apulication by mail.

Wire at once your reservation for one or more lots

On receipt of wire your name will be placed on the closest-in unsold lot or lots and same will be held in your name, allowing you sufficient time for your cash payment, mailed same day you wire, to travel from your home to the head office.

You may find it to your advantage, if you are desirous of securing a business opening, or a business lot, to write for copy of the plans, booklets and descriptive matter concerning Bow City, all of which may be had on application, free of charge.

SEEKING A HEART OF GOLD.

A work, assisted by a grant from the Dominion Government, is now proceeding near Dawson City, Yukon, which may result in one of the richest gold discoveries of modern times, says the Ottawa Journal. In the proverb of the placer camp, "gold is where you find it," meaning that hardly any laws of probability exist as to the location where gold may be sought. Or perhaps this is still more truly expressed in a humorous adaption of the miner's saying, "gold is where you don't find it."

Although the Klondyke was, and is, a placer camp of unequalled riches no "mother lode" that is no originating central gold deposit was ever found. But in examining the lay of the six hundred square miles of country in which the gold bearing streams are located, a curious fact was discovered. The eight or ten principal gold rivers and creeks everyone take their rise in a certain small grill, and centre out from it as the spokes of a wheel leave the hub. But curious to say, no gold was found on this hill itself.

Now miners and government have combined to dig through the quarter mile heart of this dome a tunnel, the theory having been advanced that in the centre of this hill there lies, or there once reposed a great deposit of rich gold, which in the course of ages and through violent earth changes, became deeply buried.

There are three alternatives. The gold may have existed in this hill, but now be all washed down in the creeks; the gold may still be there, but so deeply buried as to prevent all human discovery; and the gold may still be there, and be uncovered by the present extensive operations.

The best mining experts in the country believe that in the present operations there is at least a fair chance of another great Yukon gold discovery. The interest in such, if made, will be general rather than particular, for already every inch of the big wisely. By remaining a judge he central dome and the surrounding creeks as well is staked by men whether them for contempt of court. long have anticipated the present operations. Thus, however great the find, there is no chance for another world stampede to the Northern Canadian goldfields.

A SCHOOL OF RAILROADING.

The University of Illinois plans to develop its school of railroading into the greatest in the world—an idea that boths the country with the largest railroad mileage and the state with the largest proportion of the mileage. The scheme has the active good will and encouragement of many high railroad officials, and there is a strong prospect that the lines will co-operate with the university in an endeavar to get, at the next session of the legislature, an appropriation for an additional buildings and equipment.

Safe operation and capable administration are assuredly desiderata. A more comprehensive grasp on both departments of the business can probably be got in a well-organized and well-conducted school than among the hazards of the switchyard or through the dry office routine of some circumscribed department. Such a union of practical and academic forces as came together the other day at Urbana should produce results advantageous both to the railroads and to the country at large.

SUNDAY CARS.

The Times received an anonymous letter advocating a Sunday street car service for Peterboro. The writer should not be afraid or ashamed to sign his name to his literary effort, if he belives in what he writes about. Peterboro is hardly ripe for such an innovation.

RELIC OF ARMADA.

Important Discoveries Have Been Made In Tobermory Bay.

Salvage operations at the spot where the Tuscany galleon Florencia is supposed to have been lost, in Tobermory Bay, Scotland, have led to such important finds during the past fortnight that those in charge of the operations have decided to charter a powerful suction dredger, capable of clearing the area where the majority of the undoubted relics of the Florencia have been found.

Two days before diving ceased there was recovered a fine silver lamp, of Italian pattern, quite close to where a silver candlestick was recovered previously, and where two stone cannon balls were found a few days ago. The recovery of such articles as silver lamps, silver plates and silver candlesticks bears out the story in the Spanish records, that there was on board quite a fortune in the way of sacred vessels, silver crucifixes, lamps, and candelabra belonging to the seven priests who sailed in the vessel.

In the list of the treasures carried on the Florencia were included a crown of gold, with many jewels, and the admiral's sword. The diver one day came upon the richly adorned basket-hilt of a sixteenth-century rapier. The quillons of the hilt displayed beautiful filigree work, and on the guard was a Maltese cross, with ball and crown, under which was a monogram "G.R." The guard was still further ornamented with fine imitations of flowers and other fancy work.

An authority on antiquities, at present on holiday at Tobermory, considers that the decorations of the hilt are of gold, and this opinion is strengthened by the fact that the hilt was entirely free from lime incrustations. In the records of the Clan MacLean district mention is made of the admiral's sword being on board the Florencia. The hilt found may or may not be that of the admiral's sword, but it certainly is that of some grandee, and on the Florencia there were at least two such grandees Don Garcia Chanez and Don Fernando Bernadino.

The Leech as a Barometer.

A leech confined in a glass jar of water will prove an excellent weather prophet. If the weather is to continue fine the leech lies motionless at the bottom of the vial and rolled together in a spiral form. If it is to rain, either before or after noon, it is found to have crept up to the top of its lodging and there remains till the weather is settled. If we are to have wind the prisoner wriggles through his limpid habitation with amazing swiftness and seldom rests till it begins to blow hard. If a remarkable storm of thunder and rain is to succeed the leech gives itself up to violent throes and convulsive motions. In frost, as in clear summer weather, it lies constantly at the bottom, and in snow, as in rainy weather, it pitches its dwelling on the very mouth of the jar.

STRIKERS NEAR STARVATION.

Garment Workers Kept Alive By Daily Collection Made by Strike Sympathizers.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Further riots were feared in the strike of the garment workers today as a result of the clashes between the strikers and the police yesterday. The fights followed attempts of the police to disperse crowds of pickets, who were interfering with non-union workers.

The pickets were out early today and attempted to dissuade non-unionists from going to work at the places where strikes had been declared. Heavy squads of police were guarding these places and were placed on street cars to prevent the pickets from boarding the cars and taking non-union men and women off by force.

Apparently the strike is no nearer solution than it was at the beginning. The employers declare they never will recognize the union, and the strikers are hoping, at best, for a preferential shop.

Many are on the verge of starvation, and were it not for the daily collections made by strike sympathizers would have to go without meals.

LAWYER QUITS COUNT'S CASE.

His Client Was Too Voluble—Faces Disorderly Conduct and Debt Charges.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Count Alexander von Mourke de Beaufort is to have two little sessions with the Chicago courts today and announced that he was ready except for the fact that his lawyer had quit the case because the Count had been too voluble a conversationalist.

The count had to defend himself in the Harrison Street Municipal Court on a charge of disorderly conduct as a result of a scene he is said to have made at St. Luke's Hospital where his wife, formerly Irma Killingalli daughter of a Chicago millionaire, is suffering from a broken ankle and other injuries, which some of the countess' enemies have been so unkind as to attribute to a fight with the count. Later, he had to defend a suit for $63, filed by a haberdasher for resplendent raiment. The count expects to find a new attorney at once.

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE BEFORE THE CORONATION.

But the Exact Date Has Not Yet Been Set—Cable Despatches From England.

London, Nov. 19.—In the House of Parliament Sir Edward Grey replying to a question, said he has already been in communication with the colonies in reference to the Naval bill, and it is not proposed to take further action at the present time.

The premier said the Imperial Conference would be held before coronation, but the actual date has not been fixed.

TENDING TOWARDS AMERICA.

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 15.—Frequent comparisons are made in the West Indian journals between the progress of Americans in the British West Indies. The Barbadoes Reporter says the difference is all in favor of the countries within the sphere of American influence. A similar opinion exists in Jamaica and other islands, and the drift towards America is believed to be certain if no Imperial preference is given.

SOUTH AFRICA'S CONTRIBUTION

Cape Town, Nov. 18.—South Africa contribution to the Imperial navy amounts to £86,600.

WEALTHY PAUPERS.

Some Persons Live In Workhouses From Choice.

We have often been told that the idea of going into a workhouse is so repugnant to poor people that they prefer to eke out a miserable existence, in squalor and misery, on a few shillings a week, rather than spend their days in a place where they are at least assured of a comfortable bed, enough to eat, and clean clothing.

And yet there are folk possessing savings amounting to between $500 and $1,000, who have preferred to live in the "House" rather than in a home of their own. For what reason, whether for miserly motives or because they like the comforts of workhouse life, it is impossible to say; but the fact remains, according to a recent report of the Bethnal Green Board of Guardians, that a number of people with money preferred the "House" to liberty.

It was discovered, for instance, that the wife of a glassblower had a banking account of over $600, $500 of which was subsequently awarded to the guardians and the balance to the husband.

Another case was that of an inmate of seventy-five—formerly a soldier in the American Civil War—who was found to be the owner of an army pension from the American Government of $150, a British Government annuity of $150, $700 in a building society, and $100 in Turkish bonds. Of this the guadians exacted $7 weekly for the cost of maintenance, and the balance was handed over to the relatives on the old man's death.

Another case was that of a fish-stall holder of sixty-one, who was admitted on account of destitution, and was found to have $200 in a penny bank.

That the "House" is popular with a number of elderly folk, who, did they desire it, could live in comfort in homes of their own, is borne out by several striking cases. An old lady of sixty-eight was admitted into the workhouse in July, 1905, with $100 in the Postoffice bank and $900 invested in Government stock (three per cent. local loans). She also owned a house at Greenwich let at $2.75 per week.

"Mrs. G——," says the report, "has remained in the 'House' since her admission, and declines to leave. She is allowed 50 cent a week pocket-money, and is a member of a local circulating library. . . She wears her jewelry, which is exceedingly good, and appears perfectly happy" Apparently there is no accounting for tastes of his kind.—Tit-Bits.

Payn's Sad Guess.

Although an editor is expected to know everything, and although his store of miscellaneous information is usually large, yet there are some things of which he—if he is an average editor has never heard. Such, evidently, was the case with James Payn, the well-known novelist, when he was editor of The Cornhill. Says a writer in McClure's:

One day an unannounced caller who had managed to evade the porter downstairs opened Payn's door. His hair was long and his clothes were shabby and untidy. He had a roll of papers in his hand. Payn, surmising a poet and an epic several thousand lines long looked up.

"Well, sir?"

"I've brought you something about sarcoma and carcinoma."

"We are overcrowded with poetry—couldn't accept another line, not if it were by Milton."

"Poetry?" the caller flashed. "Do you know anything about sarcoma and carcinoma?"

"Italian lovers, aren't they?" said Payn, imperturbably.

The caller retreated, with a withering glance at the editor. Under the same roof as The Cornhill was the office of a medical and surgical journal, and it was this that the caller sought for the disposal of a treatise on those cancerous growths with the euphonious names, which with a layman's ignorance Payn ascribed to poetry.

The Busiest Man In London.

It is said of Lord Esher, who has been criticizing the Territorials, that he works harder than any man in London. Certainly "Reggie Brett," as he is known to many devoted friends of his Eton days, has few idle moments. Mr. W. T. Stead describes him as a man of original genius. "He is not a soldier," he says, "but he has reformed the army; nor a sailor, but he has done more than almost any landsman to keep up the first line of our defence." He has written much, too. It may be remembered that, together with Mr. Arthur Benson, he edited Queen Victoria's letters, and he possesses a wonderful collection of Court swords, from the days of Queen Elizabeth to the present day. Lady Esher shares her husband's literary tastes, and has written a great deal of verse.

The Papermaker's Mistake.

The discovery of blotting paper was the result of an accident. Some time in the last century an operative in mills in Berkshire omitted to put the size into his pulp. When the paper was rolled it was deemed useless, and the unfortunate workman received his conge. Some days afterward, when they were about to throw the paper away, some one discovered its power of absorption and tried it with some written matter. The old sand box which up to that time had been used for drying ink was discarded, and the workman was reinstated and rewarded for his negligence. We may add that in comparatively recent years millers in outlaw places sprinkled flour over their accounts to dry the ink, but we suppose at this period the flour dredge has gone the way of the sandbox.—London Globe.

The Bishop's Retort.

The parishioners of a certain parish which possesses a very fine and ancient church were eager to reconstruct and embellish the edifice. The wardens wrote to the bishop on the subject. "There are but two things to be done in St. Gregory's," wrote the bishop in reply. "Let the sexton keep it clean and the parson keep it full."—London Graphic.

BRITISH ELECTIONS.

The Liberals Have Been Active and Preparing for Appeal to People.

London, Nov. 21.—That the Government has not been sleeping, but have long been preparing for a general appeal to the people is quite evident.

Lord Lansdowne seems to have checked the design of British Liberalit to snatch a premature verdict from the country. If the cable correspondents are well informed, the Government had decided to precipitate a general election. The Unionists, pending the result of the constitutional conference, were comparatively inactive and unorganized. The Liberal managers, however, seem to have been alert and the moment the failure of the conference was announced they began energetic preparations for an appeal to the constituencies. The clear object was to commit the Unionists to an unequivocal defence of the House of Lords as now constituted and to prevent any effective presentation of a counter Unionist policy.

This movement Lord Lansdowne seems to have frustrated by a demand to have the veto bill sent up from the Commons for the Lord's consideration. The strength of the Unionist position lies in the fact that the Government has no clear right to ask the King for a dissolution. A year ago on account of the rejectionof the budget it was permitted to appeal to the country. The result was so indecisive that ever since Ministers have been at the mercy of the Labor and Irish groups. On many chief questions of domestic policy the course of the administration has been dictated by one group or the other. To ignore either would have meant the downfall of the Administration. Hence the conference of leaders to find a way out of the constitutional deadlock, and following the failure of the conference, the demand for a second dissolution of Parliament.

The true course, however, is for the government to submit its veto bill if rejected by the Upper Chamber the government may resign or may ask for a second dissolution. As however, the administration was once granted a dissolution and failed to secure a decisive majority there is strong reasons that it should resign rather than ask the King for a second appeal to the country. Certainly to demand a second dissolution before the veto measure is sent up to the Lords and before the Lords have had opportunity either to accept the bill or present an alternative policy is not to act in the spirit of the constitution and does not show proper respect either for the Throne or the country.

The position would be different perhaps if the Unionists were wholly opposed to reform of the House of Lords. But the fact is that Unionists favor reform and indeed have been more active in advancing measures of reform than the Liberal politicians.

FOR AND AGAINST SURGERY.

It is a familiar fact that surgery has been under fire in this country, that the profession has been charged with a dangerous craze for operations and that cases can be cited which give color to the complaints that are made. Much the same conditions prevail in England, and they have resulted in a controversy which will interest the American combatants.

For a prosecuting witness there is The Socialist Review, which has opened its pages to a writer who condemns the surgeons in unmeasured terms. His statistics would make them appear as a band of reckless empiricists and bungerers. "Every practitioner knows," he declares, "that some surgeons have a mortality of 100 per cent." in operations for appendicitis." To prevent the slaughter, he suggests the registration of all hospitals and the following scheme: "The names of physicians are to be given; in the case of surgical operation followed by death the operating surgeon, whether in hospital or private practice, is to notify the coroner and enquiry will forthwith be held."

The London Lancet appears for the defense, ridicules the statistics and knocks the plan of prevention with great energy. It argues that though there have been mistakes with the increase of operations and the adoption of new methods there has also been substantial progress, and it gives several instructive illustrations to prove its point. It speaks of the opposition to the use of anaesthetics and that the deaths are regrettable, we should think of the thousands who have benefitted by this step in advance. We may modify our procedure as this seems advisable, but surely there would be no justification for sacrificing all the good to be accomplished because there was a possibility of some evil.

The coroner's jury is scouted as a device for setting ignorance above intelligence.

If the patient and his friends know the risk of the operation and the chance of life if no operation be performed, and if they agree to the operation and the surgeon is willing to do it, who shall say them or him nay? The very life blood of true progress in surgery is the devising and carrying out of new operations or the employing of methods inktown before; but what would be the result if the performance of a new operation or the use of a hitherto unknown method might subject the surgeon to the ordeal of a public trial?

The moral is, apparently, that you should try to be sure of your experts and discriminate as far as may be between them and the blunderers.

JOHNSON AS AN ORATOR.

Made a Big Hit in a Negro Church for Democratic Party.

New York, Nov. 21.—Jack Johnson isn't going to orate any more in New York—at least, not under the auspices of Tammany Hall. While the one occasion during the recent election when the Tammany leaders availed themselves of Jack's golden-tongued ability was a distinct success from an oratorical point of view, yet there was one little incident so marring that the leaders decided that in future it would be better to pass up the votes he might bring them.

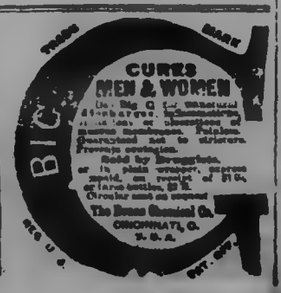
During the intermissions when Jack isn't waging pugilistic battles in Montana, driving automobile races on Long Island tracks, he resides in that port of New York known as "San Juan Hill." Right on the very crown of it is a little meeting house. It was in this meeting house that Jack made his first and last appearance as an orator under the auspices of Tammany Hall.

The house, under ordinary circumstances, is guaranteed to hold 100 people, but evidently swelling with pride over the honor that was to be conferred by Jack's presence, it managed to accommodate something like 300 on the night in question. And the meeting was a distinct success. Even if Jack had never said a word the clothes he wore would have saved the occasion from failure. He was clad in a chocolate-colored creation that no tailor would ever dare show outside a dark room. His vest was multi-colored, his hat was of the finest felt, and his spats were the "spattiest" ever seen.

But even these little thing dwindled into insignificance when Jack really began to orate. If there is such a thing as golden oratory delivered with a silver tongue, that was what Jack handed out.

Of course, the champion referred to the greatness of his race. Then he referred to the greatness of the Democratic party. And then, in his peroration there was a faint suspicion that he referred to the greatness of himself. But, be that as it may, his closing words were something as follows:

"All I ask of you, my fellow members of the negro race, is that you strive ever for the right. For fifteen years I strived hard to be right, and on last Fourth of July I am pleased to say that I last succeeded.



A Beautiful C.P.R. Calendar.

The C.P.R. with their proverbial enterprise have issued an advance copy of their "Fleet" Calendar for 1911. This calendar, about 3 by 2 feet in size, is surrounded in the margin with Canadian maple leaves and above the figures of the various months is a very handsome colored picture showing about thirty of the magnificent steamships of that company plying on the ocean, the Great Lakes and rivers of Canada.

EARL OF DENBIGH.

He Is One of the Most Prominent Roman Catholic Peers In England.

The Earl of Denbigh, a member of the influential committee formed in London for the purpose of holding a commemorative banquet on the occasion of the centenary of the Independence of Mexico, comes of one of the oldest Roman Catholic families in the country. He was chosen to be the Special Envoy at the jubilee of the late Pope Leo XIII., and two years ago was appointed by the Pope to be Chief Representative in this country of the Ancient Order of Knights of the Holy Sepulchre. His lordship has had a varied and interesting career, being a keen politician, a good all-round sportsman, and a soldier who has seen active service, for he entered the Royal Artillery thirty-two years ago, and was present at Tel-el-Kebir, where he won a medal and clasp.

His favorite sport is angling, and it was he who conceived the idea of stocking the lake at Buckingham Palace with trout. There is an interesting romance associated with Lord Denbigh's family which shows that even in the reign of James I. young ladies sometimes had wills of their own. That monarch was very anxious to arrange a marriage between the daughter and heiress of one of his favorites, Richard Preston, Viscount Dingwall, whom he had created Earl of Desmond, and George Fielding, the handsome nephew of the Duke of Buckingham. In anticipation of the marriage, Fielding was given the reversion of the Earldom of Desmond on the death of Preston. But the lady's affections were placed elsewhere, and she refused the King's choice with scorn. Her father was drowned, while crossing the Irish Sea, and the Dingwall barony went to her, while the Earldom of Desmond went to Fielding, whose son succeeded to the Denbigh Earldom, since when the Denbigh and Desmond titles have been united. It is also interesting to note that one of Lord Denbigh's ancestresses died at the advanced age of 110 through falling from an apple tree.

From Cabin Boy to Millionaire.

He is very wealthy now, but there was a day when Sir Thomas Lipton hadn't a penny. He started work as an errand boy; afterwards went to America as a cabin boy, and on arrival a hotel agent touted among the passengers. Seeing the boy forlorn and hearing he was destitute, the agent offered ten days' free board and lodging if he could bring twelve emigrants to his hotel. Young Lipton scrutinized up at once, because he had become very friendly with the emigrants through writing their letters, he being the only one in the steerage who could read and write. The emigrants were quit willing to go to the hotel, and the boy got his free board and time to look round for a berth.

Today Sir Thomas, who is going on a voyage to Ceylon in his yacht Erin is probably the greatest clubman of the world, for he is honorary member of nearly a hundred clubs in America alone, besides many dozens in Great Britain. A confirmed bachelor, Sir Thomas has been the most "Pressmarried" man in the Kingdom, rumors having been frequently afloat of his impending marriage. In this connection, he has told a very amusing story of a somewhat nasty trick that was played on a bachelor friend of his own. A lady was one day reproaching him for never having married, when her husband remarked good-humoredly: "He says he could have cut me out and married you if he had wanted to." "Indeed," she exclaimed, with some asperity, "Why didn't he do it then?" "He says," was the calm reply, "that he owed me a grudge."

Record of the Black Death.

"The black death" is the name the plague, or Asiatic cholera, used to be called by, and there is nothing more tragic in all the history of man than the record of the "black death" in Europe. In the 14th century one epidemic after another spread among the people. Twenty-five millions of human beings are believed to have perished in this single series of epidemics. Rich and poor alike were affected. In Oxford two-thirds of the student population died. In Constantinople the people died at the rate of 10,000 a day. Charms, incantations, fear, filth, ignorance and superstition fed the disease.

Curious results came of the long period of panic and of dying. The famous "dance of death," in which desperate human beings paraded and made fun of the plague, illustrating the "dance of death" with grinning skulls and skeletons, was one feature. Another, curiously enough, in England, was the tremendous rise in the cost of labor. The workmen died so fast that there were few left to do the work, and the few that could work were offered extravagant wages—although laws were passed to keep the wages down. It is said that this sudden rise in wages laid the foundation of the emancipation of working people in England.

An Abstract Idea.

At a card party at Charles Lamb's Hazlitt and Lamb's brother got into a discussion as to whether Holbein's coloring was as good as that of Van Dyck. At length they became so excited that they upset the table and seized each other by the throat. In the struggle Hazlitt got a black eye, but when the combatants were parted Hazlitt turned to Talfourd, who was offering his aid ,and said: "You need not trouble yourself, sir. I do not mind a blow, sir. Nothing affects me but an abstract idea!"

The Spencer.

Words have been added to the English language as the result of wagers. The third Lord Spencer bet that by putting off the tail part of his overcoat he could bring into fashion overcoats so short that the skirts of the undercoat would show beneath. He won his wage, and "Spencer" became the name both of that garment and of the feminine one afterward constructed in its likeness.

GOMPERS WOULD BAR NEGROES.

President of Federation of Labor Declares Men of That Race Should Not Be Permitted to Join Trade Unions.

St. Louis, Nov. 22.—President Samuel Gompers in his speech at the American Federation of Labor banquet, advocated the elimination of negroes from the labor unions of America. He said the supremacy of the Caucasian race in the unions should be maintained.

"There are 8,000,000 negroes in the United States," said Mr. Gompers, "and to my mind they cannot all be expected to understand the philosophy of human rights. I do not believe they should be permitted to join our unions, lacking as they do for the most part the very necessary knowledge of what our unions really stand for in the economic world.

"They are less than two centuries away from the barbarians of their own African land and a little less than half a century removed from the chattel slavery. I am not condemning the negro, but we cannot expect a people with all their traditions—mental, moral and social—to understand the fundamental philosophy of human rights. This is not a theory but a condition with which we have to deal."

DRAWING A TOOTH

Tushmaker's Pulling Machine Was a Wonderful Invention.

KILLED HIS FIRST PATIENT.

But That Simply Couldn't Be Helped, and the Autopsy Showed Why the Victim Lifted His Right Leg Each Time the Lever Was Turned.

Mr. Tushmaker was never regularly bred as a physician or surgeon, but he possessed naturally a strong mechanical genius and a fine appetite, and, finding his teeth of great service in gratifying the latter propensity, he concluded that he could do more good in the world and create more real happiness therein by putting the teeth of its inhabitants in good order than in any other way, so Tushmaker became a dentist.

He was the man who first invented the method of placing small cog-wheels in the back teeth for the more perfect mastication of food, and he claimed to be the original discoverer of that method of filling cavities with a kind of putty which, becoming hard directly, causes the tooth to ache so grievously that it has to be pulled, thereby giving the dentist two successive fees for the same job.

Tushmaker was one day seated in his office in the city of Boston when a stout old fellow named Byles presented himself to have a back tooth drawn. The dentist seated his patient in the chair of torture and, opening his mouth, discovered there an enormous tooth on the right hand side about as large, as he afterward expressed it, "as a small polyglot Bible." "I shall have trouble with this tooth," thought Tushmaker, but he clapped on his heaviest forceps and pulled. It didn't come. Then he tried the turnscrew, exerting his utmost strength, but the tooth wouldn't stir.

"Go away from here," said Tushmaker to Byles, "and return in a week and I'll draw that tooth for you or know the reason why." Byles got up, clapped a handkerchief to his jaw and put forth

Then the dentist went to work, and in three days he invented an instrument which he was confident would pull anything It was a combination of the lever, pulley, wheel and axle, inclined plane, wedge and screw. The castings were made and the machine put up in the office over an iron chair rendered perfectly stationary by iron rods going down into the foundations of the granite building.

In a week old Byles returned. He was clamped into the iron chair, the forceps connected with the machine attached firmly to the tooth, and Tushmaker, stationing himself in the rear, took hold of a lever four feet in length. He turned it slightly. Old Byles gave a groan and lifted his right leg. Another turn, another groan, and up went the leg again.

"What do you raise your leg for?" asked the doctor.

"I can't help it," said the patient.

"Well," rejoined Tushmaker, "that tooth is bound to come out now."

He turned the lever clear round with a sudden jerk and snapped old Byles' head clean and clear from his shoulders, leaving a space of four inches between the severed parts. They had a postmortem examination. The roots of the tooth were found extending down the right side, through the right leg and turning up in two prongs under the sole of the right foot.

"No wonder," said Tushmaker, "he raised his right leg."

The jury thought so, too, but they found the roots much decayed, and, five surgeons swearing that mortification would have ensued in a few months, Tushmaker was cleared on a verdict of "justifiable homicide."

He was a little shy of that instrument for some time afterward, but one day an old lady, feeble and flaccid, came in to have a tooth drawn, and, thinking that it would come out very easy, Tushmaker concluded, just by way of variety, to try the machine. He did so and at the first turn drew the old lady's skeleton completely and entirely from her body, leaving her a mass of quivering jelly in her chair. Tushmaker took her home in a pillowcase. She lived seven years after that, and they called her the "India rubber woman." She had suffered terribly with the rheumatism, but after this occurrence never had a pain in her bones. The dentist kept them in a glass case.

After this the machine was sold to the contractor of the Boston custom house, and it was found that a child of three years of age could, by a single turn of the screw, raise a stone weighing twenty-three tons. Smaller ones were made on the same principle and sold to the keepers of hotels and restaurants They were used for boning turkeys There is no moral to this story whatever, and it is possible that the circumstances may have become slightly exaggerated Of course there can be no doubt of the truth of the main incidents.—John Phoenix.

He Told Her.

Mr Economic—Did you write to the man who advertises to show people how to make puddings without milk and have them richer?

Mrs. Economic—Yes, and sent him a dollar.

"What did he reply?"

"One cream."

Let Go On Suspended Sentence.

It will be remembered by our readers that about a week ago Frank Beal was charged in the police court with stealing some goods from a local hotel. Beal was remanded a week for sentence, when found guilty, and yesterday appeared before the magistrate to find out what his punishment might be. The magistrate seemed to be in a lenient mood, and, after getting a promise from the prisoner that he would cut out liquor let him go on suspended sentence. As long as Beal is in the city he will have to report to Chief Thompson bi-monthly.

Instructive Picture at Royal.

The carping critics who would destroy the poor or rich man's recently introduced means of amusement can not attend moving picture shows or this kick would not be put up. At the Royal theater is a wonderful moving picture showing how Tuny fish are caught in the Mediterranean Sea. Off the coast of Messina, Sicily, are seen fishing boats out after tuny. The nets are laid in the sea, gathered in, and soon the dorsal fins of the tuny, that run in length from 10 to 21 feet each, are seen hauled to the schooner's side. Quickly harpoons and boat hooks are used. The huge fish, which, when canned, sell in Europe at 35 cents a pound, are hauled aboard. They are seen to struggle in the hold of the ship. The rest of the film shows the various operations by which they are landed, cooked, canned, and shipped abroad. Such an picture is an education.

T.A.S. ACTIVELY EMPLOYED.

A Minstrel Show Under Consideration—Founder of Society a Life Member.

The T.A.S. of St. Peter's seem bound to win out. Recently they added greatly to the membership of the local lodge, and now, the local organization has decided, in connection with their literary club to put on a negro minstrel show in their auditorium on the anniversary night in January. Mr. James O'Brien was appointed secretary, and Mr. Harry Quinlan, treasurer. Mr. J. W. Frewer will act as manager of the minstrel section, and Mr. J. Armstrong as musical director. Here is a strong combination to begin with, and the T.A.S. has excellent raw, and some trained material to draw on. Their first full practice will be held in the auditorium next Friday night at half-past seven. A debating club was decided upon, which will comprise Belleville, Trenton, Peterborough and Eastmoore.

Fifteen new members have been added to the membership. Rev. Father O'Sullivan of Port Hope, founder of the society, has been made a life member.

THE SOLAR SYSTEM.

Its Flight Through Space Toward the Constellation Lyra.

In what direction are you moving? If you are going toward the Battery you will answer "south;" if up Broadway you will answer "north;" toward the Hudson you will say "west," and if in the direction of the East river you will reply "east."

These answers might be correct as regards the surface of the earth, but they may be far from answering the question, for the earth is turning eastwardly at the rate of about a thousand miles an hour, which carries you in that direction very much faster than you can move over the ground.

But that rotating motion, constantly changing your direction in relation to all outside the earth, is quite subordinate to another far more rapid motion that is carrying you and the earth around the sun eastwardly on an entirely different curve at the rate of about nine miles a second, ever changing your direction in relation to the stars in a circular path 279,000,000 miles long.

Yet that isn't a key to your direction, for little you, your tiny earth and your third rate sun, with all of its planets, are traveling as a united group in one direction, differing from all those mentioned. Find the large first magnitude bluish white star Vega, in the constellation of Lyra, and you will be looking in the direction of the flight that our system is taking through space. If you will observe the stars around Vega for a few hundred years you will find that they are apparently slowly separating, while the stars at the opposite pole of the heavens are slowly drawing together. That means we are moving toward Vega and away from the opposite point. This motion is in a circle that cannot be exactly measured, but there is evidence to show that it will require 18,200,000 years for our system to complete it.

Then can you answer, "I am moving toward Vega." Perhaps so, but more likely perhaps not, for it is far from unlikely that you and your solar system, with Vega and all of the galaxy of stars that eye can see on the clearest night, are moving in the same general direction around some great common center yet unknown. Who can tell? No one now, but the possibility is presented to the human mind from what we know of the motions of the great universal clock of space that marks off the seconds of eternity.—New York Herald.

A MAN'S GLOVE.

In the Old Days It Served as Proxy For Its Owner.

In the early days everything was not regulated for the people as it is now by the government and the law courts. Europe was still young then, and people had rough and ready means of dealing with one another, of buying and selling or giving goods and property and settling disputes. A glove, as it was very close indeed to a man's hand, came in course of time to be looked upon as taking the place of the hand itself, and sometimes took the man's place and was made to represent him.

For example, to open a fair it was necessary then to have the consent and protection of the great lord in whose country it was going to be held. Those who wished to open the fair would come to the nobleman and petition him to be present. He might be very busy or bored at the idea of having to go, yet he would know that it must be opened or his people would be discontented. So he would say to the leaders of the people: "No, my trusty fellows, I can't open the fair in person, but I will send my glove to do it. You all know my glove. Nobody has one like it in the country. It is the one my lady mother embroidered for me in colored silks and silver wire, and it has a deep violet fringe. You can hang it above the entrance of your fair grounds as a sign that you are acting with my permission. If any one disputes your right or touches his master's glove I will attend to him. That's all." So the glove would travel to state to open the fair.—Westminster Gazette.

Ready With His Tongue.

James T. Brady, a prominent member of the New York bar in the last century, was noted for his ready wit. Quick as Mr. Brady was with the readiness of his race for repartee, he sometimes met his match among his own countrymen. He was once examining an unwilling witness who persistently called him Mr. O'Brady. At length, even his proverbial good nature being a little ruffled, he said to the witness: "You need not call me Mr O'Brady. I've mended my name since I came here and dropped the O." "Have ye, now?" retorted the witness. "Bon my sowl, it's a pity ye didn't mend yer manners at the same time!"

Why He Was on Time.

Beranger was one day complimented by a lady on the punctuality with which he kept his engagements. "It is a pleasure," said she, "to invite you to dinner, for you never make us wait."

"I am no longer young, madam," replied the poet, "and experience has taught me one thing—it is dangerous not to arrive at the precise hour, for the guests who are waiting for you will pass the time in discussing your faults."

Spoiled the Evening For Her.

"I suppose you had a perfectly lovely time at the dinner party last night?"

"No. Through some mistake they seated me next to my husband."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2.625 oz. of gold and 3.267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Mairs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

WARRANT FOR CONDUCTOR.

Wanted for Stealing Fares and Selling Tickets.

(From the Montreal Gazette.)

Judge Lanctot, at the request of the Crown Prosecutor, has issued a bench warrant for the arrest of E. Smith, a former sleeping car conductor in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, who at one time ran between Montreal and Vancouver, and latterly between Montreal and Toronto.

Early in October information reached the Crown authorities which led up to Smith's arrest for stealing sleeping car fares, and for stealing and selling railway tickets to various persons in Montreal and elsewhere. Smith had a preliminary hearing and was committed for trial to the Court of King's Bench, his case being set for the 10th. When called, he failed to appear, with the result that his bail was forfeited and a bench warrant issued for his arrest.

The case caused a good deal of interest in railway circles, and it is probable that other than railway people will become interested, as the name and address of quite a number of people with whom he has been doing business are known, and it is likely that before the matter is finally disposed of several of the hunters for bargains in railway transportation will be dealt with.

"It is really too bad," said a high official of the Canadian Pacific on Saturday, "that the travelling public should suggest such dishonesty to conductors. If passengers would refrain from making conductors steal from the company by offering them facilities and inducements to do so, it would be better for them in every way. We have the names of a good many men who have done this, in Montreal and other places, and they include some pretty prominent men. Morally, they are as guilty, if not more so, than the conductors whom they train to become thieves, and the practice of trying to get cheap transportation at the expense of the company and the honesty of the conductors cannot be too sharply repressed.

"In the present instance it has led to the ruin of a young man and the breaking up of his home. While we are sorry for those who suffer by it, the company must stop this business of stealing fares, and prosecution will follow every instance that is discovered."

A UNIQUE MEDAL.

F. Clarke & Son Have a Crystler's Farm Medal, Won for Valor By an Indian.

As the papers recently have contained quite an amount of reference to the centenary of the battle of Crystler's Farm, when a handful of Canadians repelled some 3000 American invaders, it is of interest to note that Messrs. Frank Clarke & Son, owns and have on exhibition a well-preserved silver medal, commemorating that victory. The medal, the size of a silver dollar, on the obverse side has a sculpture of the late Queen Victoria, with the date of 1848. On the reverse side is a group representing the Queen crowning the British general with the laurels of victory and the date 1793-1814, and the words "To the British Army." The original winner of the medal must evidently have been an Indian, as the name on the edge reads "Old Peter Pahquahjneny, Warrior." The clasp reads "Crystler's Farm."

AMERICANS BUY UP LAND.

Calgary, Alta., Nov. 19.—That the hunger for farm land on the part of Americans is, if anything, on the increase, is shown by the fact that when a large area of non-irrigated land situated in the central section of the irrigation block, was yesterday thrown on the market, 56 sections, over 35,000 acres, were purchased during the day.

J. A. Weaver and associates, from Des Moines, Iowa, purchased 5000 acres; J. H. Wheeler and associates from Illinois, puchased 6008 acres; a New York Syndicate purchased 20,000 acres, and individuals increased this by 4000. All parties will develop this land in the spring; the syndicates on a large scale with the aid of modern steam machinery.

KING OR EMPEROR.

It is to be hoped that those Imperialists who are continually pressing for the adoption of the title of Emperor by King George at his coronation, will think twice before they go much further with the propaganda. The old Saxon word "King" cannot possibly be improved. The term of "King-of-England" has a musical ring to it which no longer or more pompous term could possibly have, and is associated with all that is noble and memorable in English history. We have always been proud of the fact that the simple words "King of England" counted for more than the title of the proudest Emperor on earth. It is even proposed that King George be called "Emperor of the British." How that savors of Louis Napoleon's "Emperor of the French!" We all know what sort of an emperor that adventurer and demagogue was.

There are those who think that, because of the self-governing colonies, and have risen into greater relative importance, that the time has come for the entire reconstruction of the whole British constitution, placing the British Islands, Canada, Australia, etc., on a level, with an emperor at the head. At a far distant period the over-sea dominions may be raised to an equality with the British Islands; But let it be remembered that at the present we are still colonies, governed not only by the King directly, but by one of the members of the British Cabinet, that Cabinet being a committee of the House of Commons. Whatever may be our growth or our bumptiousness, our status is unchanged at the coronation.

For reasons connected with the management of the Asiatic subject races, Lord Beaconsfield made Queen Victoria Emperor of India. King George is therefore an emperor to that extent. Let us be content with that for a while. The King might become Emperor of the Dominions beyond the Seas, though even that is dubious. But first of all let him be King of England.

Mr. Fred M. DelaFosse Appointed Librarian

Miss Hattie M. Cahill will be Assistant Librarian ---By-Laws Governing the Public Library Adopted

The Public Library Board met last night, Chairman E. H. D. Hall presiding.

A draft form of bylaws, previously prepared to govern the new library was read and adopted after careful consideration.

A very large number of applications for the position of librarian and assistant were on file.

Mr. Fred M. DelaFosse was appointed librarian, and Miss Hattie M Cahill received the appointment of assistant librarian.

Mr. Frank Adams was appointed secretary-treasurer.

The bylaws will probably be published in the local papers.

Miss Le Neve Pleaded four Hours for Interview

MISS LE NEVE FINALLY ADMITTED TO SEE CRIPPEN FOR ANOTHER FAREWELL.

Girl Sobbed Bitterly—Fair Typist and the Man Who Killed His Wife for Her Sat at Opposite Ends of Long Table.

London, Nov. 22.—The rigid rules of Pentonville prison were broken today in response to a pathetic appeal by Ethel Claire LeNeve for another farewell interview with Dr. H. H. Crippen, who is to die tomorrow.

The girl was finally admitted to the prison at noon and Crippen was escorted from his cell to the governor's room by two warders. There the girl and the man who killed his wife for love of her, sat at opposite ends of a long table while wardens stood on each side of the condemned man.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

Following the conference which lasted for half an hour, during most of the time the girl sobbed bitterly, the official announcement was made that Crippen will be executed tomorrow morning. Miss Leneve had been notified yesterday that she would not be allowed another interview with Crippen. Nevertheless, she appeared at the prison at eight o'clock, and after pleading for four hours her request was granted.

Peterborough County Council in Session

The final session of the Peterborough County Council opened yesterday afternoon in the council chamber, with Warden Moher in the chair. The warden's opening address is as follows:

To the members of the County Council of 1910—

Gentlemen,—Permit me at this the closing session of the year to again thank you, for the honor you have conferred upon me by placing me in the chair, and for the courteous treatment I have received at the hands of each of you.

In referring to the work of the year, I am proud to state that everything has been satisfactorily carried out and I trust the matters that are yet to be dealt with will be disposed of in the same way.

Thishas been a year that has had its share of permanent work from the fact that the long talked of change in the heating system of the Court House and other buildings has been brought about, and I must congratulate the chairman of the County Property Committee on the satisfactory manner in which everything has been done and especially do I refer to the painstaking efforts of him and his committee.

Other work has been carefully looked after, and the same pains has been exercised by the Roads and Bridges Committee and the special Bridge Construction Committee.

Nogee's Creek Bridge is now completed well within the limit of estimation and the chairman has the proud satisfaction of accomplishing the building of the abutments by day work at a much smaller figure than the lowest tender. The bridge is built of steel with concrete floor, the same being a credit to the Dickson Bridge Company, who built it.

I merely refer to these matters briefly as you all will hear everything in detail from the different councillors, as their reports come in, as well as a complete report from the chairman of the County Property Committee.

Provision made by the chairman of the Finance Committee will, as far as we can see at present, be ample to carry out all expenditures for the year 1910.

There will no doubt come before you the matter of having the boiler attended to, and the providing for the $3000 for the government in lieu of the Buckhorn bridge is yet to be done, other emergencies over which we had no control, cropped up which necessitated the expenditure of our debenture proceeds. I refer to the paying for the construction of the Little Boy bridge, this county being liable for one quarter; also the placing of a septic tank at the House of Refuge, the cesspool having failed to do its work, and the rebuilding of the Lily Lake bridge besides improvements to the County buildings.

The greater part of the accounts are in, or at least enough of them, so that before the close of the session the chairman of the Finance Committee will be able to present you with a statement re the permanent work.

Again thanking you, to whom all credit is due, I trust the same harmony and progress will be characterize in completing the business of the year.

Respectfully yours.
FRANK MOHER.

MR. W. H. MOORE OFFERS VALUABLE INFORMATION ON MUNICIPAL GOV'T BY COMMISSION

An American City Saved $189,000 in One Year by Municipal Government by an Elected Commission---The Members of Peterborough's Board of Trade Should Attend in Strength When Important Measures are Under Consideration

The Board of Trade met last evening, with President Ald. Gillespie presiding.

The county reeve and councillors were present and ten members of the board with a smattering of other citizens.

The meeting was disappointingly small, in view of the importance of the question slated for discussion —"Municipal Government by Commission." However, all interested will have an opportunity of hearing this important matter re-opened on December 13th, when it is expected that the members of the Board of Trade will be present in force.

Mr. H. C. Burnett, Secretary of the American Association of Manufacturers, wrote, asking to be advised as to what kind of manufactories Peterborough would be interested in securing.

This was referred to the industrial commissioner.

THE PROVINCIAL ASSOCIATION

Mr. D. W. Dumble, chairman of the committee appointed to consider the question of this board's affiliation with the new Provincial Board, reported as follows

First,—That, we have considered the constitution of the Provincial Board, and find that cities having a membership of 300 have only eight votes, and for every additional hundred members one additional vote so that it would be impossible for the large cities to outvote the smaller Boards of Trade.

Second,—Your Committee believe that by uniting with the Provincial Board, the local boards can more effectively give effect to their views on matters of Provincial and Dominion interest.

Third.—On matters of local interest there will be perfect freedom.

Your committee therefore advise that our board unite with the Provincial Board.

This report was adopted as read.

Peterborough Board of Trade with its present membership, will be entitled to five representatives on the Provincial Board.

Dr. Morrison moved, seconded by D. W. Dumble,—That the selection of delegates to the Provincial Board of Trade be left in the hands of the council of the local Board of Trade. —Carried.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION.

Mr. W. H. Moore did not read a paper on this question, but delivered an exceeding clear, concise and able address. He prefaced an intelligent presentation of the question, from his point of view, with a warning not to be misled by the phrase "Municipal Government by Commission." Government commissions with which all are familiar, are not responsible to the people, but only to those who appoint them. They are appointive officers, and not elective, but have generally given great satisfaction. He did not think the time had arrived, nor ever will arrive, when municipalities can satisfactorily be governed by commission, in the same sense as the term is applied to government commissions. We have one commission body in Peterborough—the Water Commissioners—and they are elected by the people.

In no part of the civilized globe will people submit to be governed or ruled except by representatives whom they elect, and who are responsible to the people. 'Tis true that Washington, with a population of 300,000 and an assessed value of $250,000,000 is governed by a commission appointed by Congress; but the success of the experiment in that capitol is due to peculiar local conditions that apply to no other city in the States. Galveston, in Texas, after an era of misfortune, had government and graft, resorted to municipal government by a State appointed commission, but to six or seven months the people petitioned that that system be declared unconstitutional, and Galveston is now governed by a commission of five, ELECTED by the people themselves.

Mr. Moore here went on to explain what he considered might be a highly satisfactory method of municipal government—that in force at Des Moines, Iowa, a city 9x6 miles in geographical extent, with 90,000 inhabitants, and an assessed value of $80,000,000. The State was petitioned to legislate that cities and towns be governed by Elected Commissions, resulting in the passage of an act in concurrence with the people's demand. The cities are classified as follows: Cities of 25,000 inhabitants and upwards are designated as "first class," whilst those of 7,000 and upwards are called "second class."

First class cities are allowed a commission of five only—a mayor and four councilmen; second class cities are governed by three commissioners—a mayor and two councilmen. Such a system as the foregoing would give Peterborough—a second class city—a government of three only. And Des Moines, a city of 90,000 inhabitants, is governed by a commission of five only—one member to represent each 18,000 citizens. This act has been in force but two years last April, and the first year the Elected Commission of Des Moines effected a saving of $189,000 out of the expenses previously considered necessary and unavoidable.

The speaker here wished it distinctly understood that he was not finding fault with Peterborough's Board of Aldermen. He believed we had as good a council in Peterborough as could be found in any city of its size in Canada. Still our system of government is not as good as it might be. More economy might be effected by a commission. He could not understand the council's attitude in acquiring information as to street pavements, approving of the system, and then abandoning the scheme by reason of opposition, and next morning rolling broken stone into the roads. Had they convinced themselves of the ... pairability for and economy of the project they should have gone ahead with the work.

Turning to the Des Moines' system of government, Mr. Moore pointed out that in that city the Commissioners are elected once every two years, but there are two elections. First, there comes a primary election at which candidates for office are elected. Two times as many candidates for mayor but the two getting the highest number of votes for mayor, and the eight candidates for councilmen, and other elected respectively.

In this State of Iowa the Legislature fixes the salaries for municipal commissioners as follows:

In cities of 7,000 inhabitants and less than 10,000—The mayor receives $600 a year, each councilman, $450—told.

In cities of 10,000 and less than 15,000—The mayor receives $1,200, each councilman, $900.

In cities of 15,000 and less than 25,000—The mayor, $1500; each councilman, $1,200.

In cities of 25,000 and less than 40,000—The mayor, $2,500; each councilman, $1,800.

In cities of 40,000 and less than 60,000—The mayor, $3,000; each councilman, $2,500.

In cities of 60,000 or more inhabitants—The mayor gets $3,500; and each councilman $3,000, making a total of $15,500 for a mayor and four councilmen.

The speaker did not think that salaries based on the foregoing schedule exhorbitant in the face of Des Moines saving $189,000 in one year.

But even in Des Moines and other cities similarly governed the elected commissioners are not supreme, and their actions can be controlled by the people. There are three important features connected with this act that reserve to the people their rights of self-government.

First, the initiative: 25 per cent. of the people can force the commission to enact any measure within 30 days or submit such measure to a vote.

Second, the referendum — The commission cannot give away any franchise without the approval of the people. Any measure of importance must be advertised as open for inspection for ten days, and, on petition, must be submitted to the ratepayers before becoming law.

Third, recall: The people can recall their choice of mayor or any councilman at any time for just cause, and demand another election. This is used as a sort of thumb screw to assure good behavior.

In conclusion of an interesting and instructive address Mr. Moore suggested that our municipal government is too large, and might well be composed of a mayor and four aldermen, with authority to appoint commissions for important departments, such as the Board of Works, and the Fire, Water and Light Department, provided such commissioners are given a free hand and are responsible to the people. The mayor and aldermen should be paid equitable salaries, and until such a policy is adopted the city will not get the best service from its aldermanic board. Their terms of office should be longer than two years—three years at least, and even up to five years, with the right of "recall." Given a reasonable term men are able to look forward, plan and lay out a definite policy. In one year an alderman simply gets acquainted with his work. The secretary of this board might get in connection with other municipalities, and further an agitation for legislation for a change in the present system of municipal government.

Dr. Morrison concurred in Mr. Moore's views, and offered that Peterborough might well take a leaf out of Des Moine's book of experience. He offered that a mayor and three colleagues would effect better results than possible under existing condition.

Mr. Banks, a new member of the board, urged immediate correspondence with other Boards of Trade on this question.

Industrial Commissioner Duggan thought this matter might be more effectively taken up with the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade. Such a body would have more weight than any local boards acting independently. The Provincial Board of Trade has a committee on resolutions whose recommendation of the question in hand would assure decisive action on that body's part.

Mr. Dumble suggested that the question of municipal government by commission is too important to be acted upon hastily. The question should have fuller consideration at another meeting.

Robert Ruddy, K.C., while delighted with Mr. Moore's able address, thought that under the present system Peterborough and other municipalities are not doing so bad. The country is growing, and when a city outgrows the effectiveness of a board of aldermen like that of Peterborough, a Board of Control like that of Toronto is always available. Should Peterborough make the change suggested by Mr. Moore a large expenditure of money would be involved for salaries. The question should be discussed at a more representative meeting. He was ashamed of the apathy displayed by members of this board in not being present on so important an occasion. An effort should be made to make Peterborough's Board of Trade more representative. All trades, the physicians, lawyers and even the laboring class should be represented on its membership roll. Then the board should take an active interest in the candidates for mayor and aldermen, and endeavor to effect the election of the best possible men.

Mr. W. S. Dodd contended that the whole trouble with our present system of municipal government resulted from too frequent changes in the personelle of the Board of Aldermen. No business could be run satisfactorily were its head changed every year.

Several resolutions were here offered, resulting in the following being adopted.

Dr. Morrison moved, seconded by W. S. Dodds.—That the president and Messrs. W. H. Moore, W. D. Dumble and Industrial Commissioner Duggan be a committee to make enquiries and draft a policy along the line of discussion, and report to this board.

Subsequently Dr. Morrison's name was added to the committee.

In Saturday's issue reference will again be made to the discussion last night, especially to the opinion offered by Ald. Hicks.

Arthur Newton, Attorney for Dr. Crippen, Denies Confession Statement

DR. CRIPPEN SMOKED CIGARETTES WITH RELISH IN HIS LAST HOURS ON EARTH.

The Notorious Doctor Slept Soundly and Ate Heartily— Confession Published in London Times Was Denied By His Attorney—His Coolness Weakened.

London, Nov. 22.—Arthur Newton, attorney for Dr. Crippen, this afternoon denied the statement made by the London Evening Times, that his client had confessed.

The superintendent of the Pentonville Prison, where Crippen is to be hanged tomorrow, also denied the report that Crippen has confessed.

Following is the despatch received at 2.45 this afternoon which announced that a confession had been made.

London, Nov. 22.—Dr. H. H. Crippen has confessed that he is the murderer of Belle Elmore Crippen, his wife. This is the positive statement made in the Evening Times tonight.

The confession as printed by the Evening Times is a cold, callous account with all of the terrible details. The thrilling document gives for the first time the inner history of the whole murder, describing how poison was administered to Belle Elmore, and how, after she was dead, the body was mutilated to prevent recognition. The gruesome details, as set forth, prove Crippen to be the most cold-blooded criminal of the century.

Crippen made the confession, the Times says to secure money, part of which will defray his funeral expenses and the balance of which will be given to Ethel Le Neve, who is expected to become a mother soon. Dr. Crippen declared that he wanted to leave Miss LeNeve and their child as comfortably fixed as possible after his death.

London, Nov. 22.—The death watch was today placed upon Dr. H. H. Crippen, whose life will be taken upon the gallows at eight o'clock tomorrow morning, in expiation of the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen. Although the man lived his last few hours today in the shadow of death he was cheery and smoked cigarettes with evident relish. The rumors that Crippen had confessed persisted today, though the reports lacked any confirmation of any sort.

Hawley Harvey Crippen is today the enigma of Pentonville prison, just as he has been since his incarceration there after his conviction and sentence at Old Bailey Court. He slept soundly last night and ate heartily this morning just as [illegible] attaches expect he will sleep tonight and eat tomorrow morning.

COOLNESS HAS WEAKENED.

However, despite his iron nerve, the coolness of the little doctor has weakened since his goodbye to his former sweetheart, Ethel Clare LeNeve. His audience with the Rev. Father E. M. Carville, the Roman Catholic priest, who has been his spiritual adviser, was the longest today in the long series of meetings they have held.

The scaffold upon which Crippen will swing to death tomorrow was erected today in the prison court yard almost over the tiny plot where the bodies of the twelve men executed there in the past are buried. If he had listened intently today the condemned man might have heard the pounding of the workmen as they built the grewsome structure upon which he will meet his doom.

GRAVEYARD NEAR GALLOWS.

Although the graveyard is near the gallows Crippen will not be aware of the fact for there are no gravestones. Little tablets upon the outside prison wall bearing the initials of the dead and date of their execution are the only indication of the cemetery.

WANTS TO BE LEFT IN PEACE

A portion of Miss Le Neve's letter to Lloyd's Weekly News, in which she made the first reference to her future.

When I have related mystery, and I trust, softened the harsh judgment of my critics I desire only that I may be left in peace. The world-wide attention which the case has aroused has certainly made my future a very difficult problem. But I think I could face it with more composure if I knew that the great public understood my real position.

1,000 Men and Women Killed in the Fighting

THE REVOLUTION IN MEXICO IS SPREADING—FOUR TOWNS CAPTURED.

Republic Has Resorted to Conscription—Rigid Censorship of Despatches—Government Commanders Wires.

Monclova, Mexico, Nov. 22 (via Eagle Pass, Texas)—One thousand men were killed or wounded in the storming of Torreon, according to railroad men, arriving here from the south today, according to the reports brought here two Americans are among the dead, as twell as the mayor of Torreon. The streets were raked with cannister before the government troops yielded.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 22.—The report reached here this morning that forty revolutionists were put to death last night at Puebla.

Sabinas, Mex., Nov. 22.—The towns of Parras, in Coalhuila, Durango, Villardena, Lerdo, and San Luis Potosi, are reported to have surrendered to the revolutionists. The revolt is spreading hourly, and the coal mining fields south of here, are preparing to send men into the fray.

Eagle Pass, Texas, Nov. 22.—Three hundred Mexican revolutionists stormed the jail at Acambaro, in the State of Guanajuato, early today, freed the prisoners, and then looted the town. In the midst of their depredations they were met by troops and in the resulting fight 27 were killed and 90 wounded.

The revolutionists have fled to the mountains with the soldiers in pursuit. They carried with them a large sum of money which they secured when they looted the loan shops and municipal palace. At the latter place they seized all the country funds.

PRISONERS JOIN RANKS.

The freed prisoners joined the revolutionists and fled with them into the mountains. The looters ransacked all the houses for guns and ammunition which they carried with them.

In the street battle which raged for hours at Acambaro many dead and wounded fell in the streets. Both sides took refuge in the buildings. Arms were given to the convicts and they fought side by side with the rebels.

A Thousand Were Drowned in China

Saigon, French Indo-China, Nov. 22.—Owing to a sudden flood in the Annamese Province and in Kwang Ngai, 1,000 natives are either dead or missing. Four hundred boats are reported lost, and the death toll is expected to mount even higher.

The property loss is immense.

"I had been troubled with constipation for two years and tried all of the best physicians in Bristol, Tenn., and they could do nothing for me," writes Thomas E. Williams, Middleboro, Ky. "Two packages of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets cured me." For sale by all dealers.

LORDS ARRIVE FOR WEDDING.

British Peers Attend Big International Wedding.

New York, Nov. 23.—Admiral of the Fleet Lord Fisher of Kilverstone, G. C. B., and Rear Admiral Sir Frederick Fisher, K.C.V.O., of the British navy, were arriving passenger-to-day by the White Star Liner Baltic.

They will attend the wedding at Philadelphia on Tuesday of Miss Jane Morgan, a daughter of Randall Morgan of that city, and the Hon. Cecil V. Fisher, Lord Kilverstone's son.

Miss Morgan marries into a naval family with good grace. She is one of the few women in the world with a master mariner's license.

A Beautiful C.P.R. Calendar.

The C.P.R. with their proverbial enterprise have issued an advance copy of their "Fleet" Calendar for 1911. This calendar, about 3 by 2 feet in size, is surrounded in the margin with Canadian maple leaves and above the figures of the various months is a very handsome colored picture showing about thirty of the magnificent steamships of that company plying on the ocean, the Great Lakes and rivers of Canada.

Cobourg's New Hospital.

A campaign is on in Cobourg having for its object the erection of a new hospital. The present building has been in use since 1904. A public meeting has been held, when the question of a site was up for discussion.

Every family has need of a good reliable liniment. For sprains, bruises, soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains there is none better than Chamberlain's. Sold by all dealers.

WANTED.

Girls at the Quaker Oats.

When your feet are wet and cold, and your body chilled through and through from exposure, take a big dose of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, bathe your feet in hot water before going to bed, and you are almost certain to ward off a severe cold. For sale by all dealers.

NEW TORONTO STATION.

Splendid New Structure to Be Erected in Toronto.

Montreal, Nov. 23.—Mr. E. H. Fitzhugh, who with Mr. C. M. Hays, was in Toronto on Saturday examining the work which the Grand Trunk Company is carrying out in connection with the extension of its facilities in that city, states that the big work of grade separation now in progress between Sunnyside and Bathurst Streets will be completed by the fall of next year, and that through trains will be running over the new roadbed by that time. This work, he says, is the answer of the Company to the question as to whether it intends abandoning the waterfront at Toronto or not.

Regarding the plans for the new station, Mr. Hays himself is authority for the statement that the plans are now all completed. The only delay now is caused by waiting for the decision of the Privy Council regarding the matter of the proposed viaduct. If the Privy Council upholds the Railway Commission in this matter, construction work will probably follow right on the heels of the decision.

SHOULD TAKE LESSON.

Lindsay is likely to secure still another factory. It might be a good idea for the Council to send a deputation to Lindsay to learn the trick.

STRATEGY AND PRINCIPLE.

"Why an election?" asked the leading Tory organ of England the other day. What, in other words, is to be gained by an election, which according to all observers, cannot materially change the existing political and parliamentary situation? The liberals admit that they have no expectation of increasing their strength in the commons to any appreciable extent; the tories realize that the best they can hope for is the capture of twenty additional seats, which would still leave them in the opposition while the labourites feat heavy losses and disaster as the result of the Osborne judgment.

The situation is such that the political leaders turn to strategy and tactics rather than to issue and principles. The liberals feel that they must insist on the lords and the "veto" as the paramount issue, but it will not be easy to do this. Clever moves on the part of the tory leaders may seriously hamper them. It is a clever move for the lords to demand an opportunity to consider the liberal bill limiting their veto; it was a clever move to announce resolutions favoring an appeal to the people to settle any fundamental differences between the two houses; it was clever if hypocritical, to raise the cry of "American gold to tear up the British constitution" in connection with the return of Mr. Redmond and American support of home rule.

The tories will fight on the issues a second, or revising, chamber, and of home rule, protection, the need of the "democratic" referendum. That they will be horrified at the idea of Irish "separation" and disunion by means of any sort of home rule bill goes without saying, even though some of their moderate elements have just been flirting with "devolution" and preparing their party for a compromise, and even though everybody knows that, should they win and be dependent on Irish support as the liberals are now, they would forget their alarm and lend a willing ear to home rule suggestions of a "sane" kind.

As things stand, no one in England seems to know whither matters or parties are drifting. Will the King consent to swamp the peers if the liberals are returned to power? Will he do this even if the respective positions of the parties remain what they are in this parliament? How many concessions to democratic sentiment will the tories make in order to prevent a decisive liberal victory—or in order to snatch a victory for themselves? Nobody knows; the fast and interesting developments daily reported will answer these questions.

HINT OF BATTLE SHIP ECONOMY

There is good news for the taxpayer in the reports of the latest annual meeting of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, for the United States. The society assembled in New York the other day, was addressed by Sir William White, the eminent English naval architect. He upheld efficiency as against mere size and favored a lesser number of big guns than is now commonly called for.

He took the position that attention should be concentrated on making guns and armor more perfect and more efficient rather than on the construction of huge Dreadnoughts that might be put out of commission by a single torpedo from a submarine. He also declared that in no case was it desirable to carry more than eight big guns in a single ship though ten are common and twelve not unusual. He also favored reviving the secondary battery, which he thinks is capable even at long range, of exercising an important influence upon the result of an action.

On these points Sir William was supported by such high authorities as Rear Admiral Mahan and Capps. Thus the first glimpse of a limitation of battleship cost and the first intimation of economy in battleship armament are afforded a concerned public. They are welcome.

MUSCLES AND BRAINS.

The world will hear with interest that Johnson, the heavyweight champion, is suffering from nervous prostration. Memory is failing; the general sense of responsibility is less strong; medicine is employed to keep the big marvel at his work.

Well, even the strongest organism has its weak spot, and the weak spot goes first. In this case the weak spot appears to be the upper storey.

These are the days of brains, not brawn. In this advanced period the best endeavors of the best men are devoted not to the proper development of the muscles but to the advantageous channeling of the cortex. That is the real meaning of education, commercial or academic. And such a progress must begin early. Johnson at 32 must take his brain as it is.

A man who applied for citizenship at New York said, in reply to questions, that George Washington discovered America on July 4th. Canadians will reproach him for thus using America as a synonym or United States.

MEASURES ALTITUDES.

The Use of the Barograph on Aeroplanes and Balloons.

What the compass is to the mariner the barograph is to the aviator. The barograph is an instrument for measuring altitudes. The pressure of the air as it increases or decreases causes a delicate needle to trace a wavy line upon a cylinder which revolves by clockwork. This line indicates not only the exact height that is reached by the aviator, but also the speed at which he is traveling.

The barograph is kept in a weather proof box with a glass front, which is attached to a bar of the aeroplane or to a rope on the balloon. It is officially sealed before the aviator embarks, so there is no possibility of tampering with it, and the seal is taken off in the presence of witnesses at the end of the flight. In this way it is possible to establish absolutely and graphically the altitude which an aviator attains in his aeroplane or balloon. It is necessary for the aviator to watch the barograph constantly, as it indicates a change in the elevation almost to the foot. The sky pilot has to keep his eye on the indicator much as the man at the wheel of the seagoing ship watches his compass. Should the aeroplane or the balloon rise or fall ten or twenty feet the aviator would not be conscious of it unless he looked at the wavering needle tracing its permanent record on a chart before him. This tells him immediately of any changes in the nature of the air currents and gives him timely warning of aerial dangers.

These instruments are so delicate and so accurate, it is said, that a man might hang one of them about his neck in its glass case or carry it in his hand and climb a flight of stairs, the height of his ascent being graphically indicated by the inked needle on the machine.—New York Press.

A CAREFUL MAN.

His Indecision in the Matter of Employing a Doctor.

The parsimony of the old New Englander of the type now almost vanished was nobly exemplified in Mr Benny Huntingdon, who lived with his maiden sister in a little town in western Massachusetts. Neiher had ever spent a penny unnecessarily and when in his old age Mr Benny became crippled with "the rheumatiz" and had, as well, strange flutterings of the heart, which were unrelieved by the best recommended "yarb teas," they were greatly shocked at the suggestions and warnings of their friends and neighbors that they ought to send for a doctor. Mr. Benny refused, declared his scorn of the entire medical profession and continued to save his pennies.

But the pain grew worse. Mr. Benny was confined to his bed in great agony and overheard some of the neighbors telling his sister that he was going to die. Then he sent for an old schoolmate, a man as "careful" as himself.

"Josiah," he asked, in a low, confidential tone, "have you ever had a doctor?"

Josiah shook his head. "Dunno as I have," he answered.

Mr Benny reached out and laid a trembling hand upon his old friend's arm. "Josiah," he asked again, "did you ever hear how much one o' them doctors charges for a visit?"

Josiah looked at his suffering friend with pitying sympathy. "Well," he said, breaking it as gently as he could—"well, I have heard, Benny, that they charge as much as $2 a visit!"

"Two dollars!" Mr. Benny repeated. "Two dollars!" Then he sank back on his pillow and sighed in a voice of strangely mingled relief, regret and resignation. "Well, I dunno but I'd rather spend $5 than die!"—Youth's Companion.

The Licorice Plant.

The licorice plant resembles a rose with a single green stem, reaches a height of about three feet and bears a small purple star shaped flower. The first year's root growth resembles a loosely twisted string of tow and may run to twenty feet in length. The second year it assumes a woody substance when dry, and the third year it acquires its commercial value. The time for digging the root is the winter, when it is dried and crushed under heavy stones drawn round on it by mules, much as olives are crushed to extract their oil.

Queer Kaffir Custom.

Kaffir women will not pronounce their husband's names or even use words which contain the emphatic syllable of those names. One old woman, being taught to say the Lord's prayer, changed the word from "come" in "Thy kingdom come" to something that made nonsense, and it proved that the proper "come" word was the main syllable of her husband's name.

Proving His Contention.

"Jones is an optimist, even in the most discouraging circumstances, isn't he?"

"Why, no. His mother-in-law is slightly indisposed, and he thinks there's no hope for her recovery."

"Well, what did I tell you?"—Cleveland Leader.

Chess in Ancient Ceylon.

In ancient Ceylon the game of chess was played with local variations peculiar enough to note. The king may not castle, but he is permitted to jump like a knight till checked. The pawns are exchangeable on the last row for the pieces on whose row they stand.

Though the world may owe every man a living, only the persistent collector gets it.

PRINTS NEWSPAPER TO THROW IN THE FURNACE.

Paris, Nov. 21.—The strangest of all newspapers is being published in Paris now. "Excelsior," with a million dollars capital, is an illustrated morning newspaper, and though it has "appeared" for 58 days, complete in every department, the public has not seen a single copy of it.

"Excelsior," its publishers say, is not yet a finished product, and until everything is in smooth working order, the daily output, as composed and edited by a huge staff of men, is tossed into the furnace. It will be a paper of five columns, twenty pages, and will be fully illustrated. "Excelsior" promises to be the first genuinely modern newspaper in Paris.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Enter by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect house worth $300.00.

DESCRIBES SOCIALISM AS PHILOSOPHY OF BEER MUG.

Archbishop Glennon's Address to Federation of Labor at St. Louis —What He Said.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 22.—Socialist members of the American Federation of Labor convention here are indignant today over a denunciation of their political faith as a "philosophy of the beer mug," by Archbishop Glennon, of St. Louis, in a special address to labor men.

"I want to warn you against Christian Socialism, and Christian Science," said Archbishop Glennon. "It is said of Christian Science that it is neither Christian nor scientific. By the same token, Christian Socialism is neither Christian, as we understand it, nor Socialistic, as the Socialists understand it.

"I believe the working people should have the protection of the State against unscrupulous capitalism. But remember, there are certain rights of the individual that the State cannot take over. One of them is the right of the individual to control himself. And we utterly abhor the doctrine that the little children who bless our homes shall be wards of the State, common property.

"When some men become discontented or unable properly to provide for their families they go to the nearest saloon, and under the spell of the beer mug and wine glass, create a philosophy of class hatred. I warn you that the beer mug and wine glass are enemies of society. If the saloon stands between you and God, the saloon must go. Beware of the philosophy of the beer mug."

FREEDOM, UNION AND PROGRESS

Joe. Chamberlain Writes Balfour That He Would Like to Help in Fight.

London, Nov. 22.—Mr. Joseph Chamberlain has written to Mr. Balfour warmly approving the latter's Nottingham speech. "I wish," he writes, "my health permitted me to take my stand on the platform with you to promote the great national Imperial reforms which you have described. That I cannot do, but my best wishes go with you in your fight for freedom, union and progress."

Lord Roberts has postponed his resolution on Imperial defence in the House of Lords, so that Earl Crewe may tomorrow move the second reading of the Parliament bill. It is expected that Lord Lansdowne will take the opportunity of meeting Mr. Asquith's challenge that the Unionist proposal to reform the House of Lords is a mere spectre.

REDMOND'S AMERICAN DOLLAR.

John Redmond's 200,000 "good American dollars," are playing an increasing part in the Unionist campaign. Everywhere the Government is accused of rushing the election at the bidding of the fugited Irish leader. It is seriously suggested that a hat covered with dollar signs should be carried in derision in every constituency, kicked through the streets and burned. The Unionist press is also giving loud expression to the grumbling of tradespeople at a Christmastide election. Party politicians on both sides are evidently going into the fight with the heaviness eclipsing that of the last campaign.

KIER HARDIE'S THREATS.

Kier Hardie, at Bradford, repeated that his influence with the Labor party will be used against the Government if Mr. Asquith declined to pledge a reversal of the Osborne judgment. He said the Labor vote would decide the fate of 75 to 80 constituencies. Mr. Asquith has promised to declare the Government's decision on Tuesday or Wednesday. Mr. Bonar Law has decided to quit his safe seat in Dulwich and to fight Northwest Manchester.

LABORITES' POCKETS EMPTY.

The Labor party, however, is in a parlous plight. By a judgment of the High Court in the famous Osborne case, it has recently been decided that it is illegal for any part of the funds of trade unions to be applied to the payment of the salary or expenses of a member of parliament. As the expenses of the Labor members have hitherto been met, for the most part by levies on the various trades unions, this judgment naturally hits the Laborites hard. The Government contemplated removing this grievance, either by carrying a measure for the payment of all members of Parliament, or otherwise, but the general election coming with such suddenness has prevented them from carrying their plans into effect.

REAL BLOOD SHED IN TWO FRENCH DUELS.

Neither of the Injured Were Badly Hurt—Those Who Took Part.

Paris, Nov. 22.—Real blood was shed in two French duels today, Count Raymond de Castellane spitting Count de L'Estang's right arm, in the first duel, and Georges Casella punching his little rapier through Jean Marnold's right arm in the second affair of honor. None of the participants was seriously wounded, and honor was perfectly satisfied.

The encounter between De Castellane and De L'Estang followed a brawl in a skating rink. De L'Estang didn't like De Castellane, and during the grand parade, when the elite of French society was trying to skate and be graceful at the same time, D L'Estang tripped Count Raymond, causing him to fall with unseemly lack of dignity on the icy floor. Raymond with that fiery impetuosity of the De Castellane family that was so often manifested by Count Boni, when he slapped his wife, immediately sent his seconds to wait upon De L'Estang, and "swords and coffee" for two were arranged.

TRANSPARENT SILK.

A Japanese Product Used For Preserving Old Manuscripts.

The original manuscripts of old books and old records are exceedingly valuable and are preserved with great care, for if destroyed, of course, they cannot be replaced. They can be guarded from fire and from overmuch handling, and now an additional safeguard has been found in Japanese silk.

Its use has removed a fear existing in the minds of librarians that there was no way out of it and that the rare old manuscripts would simply have to have their day and then dry up and return to their original elements. Happily the use of a silk of extreme thinness and transparency has settled the question of the life of these manuscripts for the next two or three hundred years at least. By that time some other method may be discovered. This silk is thinner than the thinnest tissue paper, the threads being finer than spider webs. It is pasted over the manuscript so firmly that it keeps off all dust and air and yet is so transparent that it does not interfere any more with the appearance of the manuscript than would an ordinary plate of glass. It strengthens the manuscript so that the danger of handling is reduced to a minimum.

The library of congress is now engaged in examining and protecting all of its old manuscripts with this silk, and while it is an immense task it will probably be completed before long. This silk is by no means costly, and unless a person is somewhat expert in the matter of old manuscripts he would be unable to recognize the fact that silk had been used.—New York Press

PIGS IN HELMETS.

Mustard Pots at Which Paris Laughed and Berlin Scowled

A tale of a mustard pot is amusing Paris. Not long ago a French mustard maker was waited upon by a German drummer, who produced a sample of a mustard pot. It took the shape of a pig with a furious snout, a tail like a corkscrew and a poetic eye—in short, "a true German pig," as a cynic observed.

But the design did not please the French maker of mustard. "Your pig," he said, "has no common sense. If, instead of giving it a cover at once insignificant and inartistic, you had given it a helmet it would have had success."

Scenting an order, the breath of his nostrils, the German drummer asked how many pots would be ordered if the pig were provided with a helmet, and when 15,000 was named he booked the commission on the spot.

And in due time the German pigs arrived in helmets and were voted a distinct success in the cafes and restaurants of Paris. But German visitors to the gay city were not so fascinated by the design, and representations were promptly made to the foreign office against what was taken as a serious insult to the German army.

It was a sad revelation to the protestors when they learned that the offending mustard pots had been made in Germany.—Argonaut.

Vulgar Americans Abroad.

A good many of us know charming Americans and are prepared to defend the nation from the attacks of people who don't know. But there is a type of American woman who is "beyond the beyond." This writer saw three of that kind the other day. They came into the choir of Canterbury cathedral during morning service, guidebook in hand. They took no heed of the kneeling congregation or of the litany, but stared about them as though they were in a circus. When a verger, with amazing politeness and self control, firmly conducted them to seats one saw a surprised air of protest and heard—the American accent. It is inconceivable that people of any other nation could behave like that. Even the most vulgar Englishman abroad is not quite so bad. London Standard.

Yokohama.

The most flourishing treaty port in Japan is Yokohama, eighteen miles by tramway from Tokyo; population 220,000, with a foreign colony of 3,000. Only fifteen years ago it was a miserable fishing village. In 1864, ten years after Commodore Perry and his seven vessels entered the port, the first newspaper in Japan was issued in Yokohama. Then came the Tokyo-Yokohama railway in 1872 and gas at the same time. In 1880 the telegraph system was installed. Yokohama's progress in the last fifty years has been truly phenomenal.—Indianapolis News.

Mausoleum Rooms to Rent.

A company has been formed in Cincinnati to erect and rent a mausoleum. This is to be a large building where bodies may be taken by survivors who own no burial plot and who have no desire to buy one. There will be compartments in the building arranged like shelves in a library, and on these the bodies are to be placed. By an evaporating process they will be reduced to dust. It is the purpose of the undertakers of this business scheme to rent or to sell compartments of all sizes, ranging from the "single" to the "large family" size.

Named For King Edward.

A new street in a fashionable quarter of Paris is to be named after King Edward. The Rue Edouard VII. will be close to the Madeleine, and the old houses of the street will be replaced by luxurious buildings. In the center of the street a public garden will hold an equestrian statue of King Edward.

We have a vacancy in our bindery for a bright, steady, young man to learn bookbinding—one of the best trades. Apply at Times Bookstore.

Handsome County Maps.

The Times has just issued a handsome wall map of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, and also one of Victoria County. These maps are sold at $3.50 each.

Municipal Candidates.

There is likely to be a considerable number of new aspirants to civic honors this year. Already the Times has heard of the names of a few probable candidates.

The New Navigation Company.

A charter for the Peterborough and Lake Simcoe Navigation Company has been issued. The new company is capitalized at $250,000, and will operate a line of steamers between Rice Lake and Lake Simcoe.

Increase in Price of Coal.

Reports from all over the province indicates that the price of chestnut coal is due for an advance. The retailers have received notice to this effect, but as to what course will be undertaken, towards the consumer, is not at present to be stated.

Councillors Get Increase.

The members of the Council of Victoria County have voted themselves an increase in pay. They formerly got $3 per day, and they will henceforth receive $5 and mileage.

After Another Factory.

At a meeting of the Board of Trade of Lindsay last night, Mr. D. B. Thomas, of the Thomas Shoe factory made a proposition regarding another factory which Lindsay might secure.

A Bad Scare.

The Lindsay Post states that a couple of women in that town were "pulled" for keeping a fast house, and fled to pastures new. Our contemporary adds that it has secured a list of the frequenters, and it is made up of married men, young men, and mere boys. A man might as well be killed outright as scared to death. The male population of Lindsay must be somewhat sporty.

Baby Twomey's Funeral Yesterday.

The funeral of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Twomey, Ennismore, was held yesterday morning to St. Martin's cemetery in that township. The baby who was only four months old was named Catherine Geneveve Twomey. Mr. and Mrs. Twomey will have the united sympathy of their many friends, both in Ennismore township and in the city.

Mr. J. H. Burnham on Religion.

An interesting feature of next Sunday's meeting of the Guild of Good Fellowship in the Princess Theater, will be an address by Mr. J. H. Burnham. Mr. Burnham will take as his subject "A lay view of religion."

Curling Club's Opening Meeting.

At the first annual meeting, for this year, of the Peterborough Curling Club, there was a large attendance, and everything points towards a successful season ahead. The committee for the open bonspeil was as follows: W. G. Ferguson, C. S. Brown, H. F. Foote, T. Brightman, G. H. Giroux, J. H. Connal and T. E. B. Yeats. The committee for the local bonspeil are as follows: R. Cameron, L. Hall, Wm. Lang and R Neill. It was also decided to grant ladies the privilege of the rink during the morning. The Schedule Committee are T. E. B. Yeats, T. Brightman, H. F. Foote and G. H. Giroux. The time for the bonspeil to be held was not decided on.

More Money for the Chimes.

Subscriptions still come in to the chimes fund. Whilst the donations noted herein are not of the $100 each class, they, nevertheless demonstrate the interest shown in the movement. The clerks in the city post office who had not individually subscribed sent in $3. All employes of the post office have now helped in this enterprise. Mrs. Rose of Berkhamstead, England, sent $5, and a similar sum has been received from Mr. Royal Cluxton of Peoria, Ill., where Mr. Cluxton, who is an old Peterborough boy, holds an important position. Mrs. Rose also spent several years in Peterborough, as visitor for Dr. Barnardo's Home, when she was Miss Clack, and was a devoted member of St. John's congregation. A school boy, aged eleven, also sent in one dollar received as a birthday present.

SOCIETY EVENTS

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

Mr. Wm. Gallon, Apsley, is in town for a few days.

Mr. R. Pinchin is in Toronto on business.

Mr. R. A. Dickson of Toronto, was a guest at the Oriental yesterday.

Miss Florence Atwood, Lakefield, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Dela Fosse, Stewart street.

Mr. W. H. E. Graham of Lindsay, registered yesterday at the Snowden House.

Col Roland W. Gregory of St Catharines, registered yesterday at the Hotel National.

Mr. Wm. Buchanan of Orillia, and Mr. J. H. Smith of Toronto, were guests yesterday at the Snowden.

Miss Flossie Fife has returned home after spending the week end in Toronto, with her sister, Miss Lillian Fife.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Browne of Chicago, Ill., who have been visiting relatives in the city have returned home.

Mr. A. A. Brown of Silverton, Col. who is in the city on business, is the guest of Mr. Robert Harrison, Water street.

Mr. Thos. Robertson of Bethune street, city, who has been visiting with friends in Bobcaygeon and Ancona Point, has returned home.

Mrs. J. J. Flaherty and daughter of Chicago, have returned home after visiting with friends in Peterborough and Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. Lehane have returned home from attending the wedding of Mrs. J. J. Collins (nee Miss Mary Mulhearn), who is Mrs. Lehane's cousin.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Flavelle returned on Saturday from Halifax, N.S., where they have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) J. W. McMillan.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The Madrigal Club held a rehearsal last night at the Conservatory of Music.

Last night the Dante Class, raised by the exertions of Rev. H. R. Trompour, rector of All Saints' church, met at the Y.W.C.A.

Members of the 24th Field Battery are requested to meet tomorrow night in the armories for the purpose of organizing an indoor baseball league.

The County Council of Peterborough are now in session. Warden Moher's opening address is given in another column.

English tailors, for both men and women, are losing sleep over the orders concerning the velvet and make up of the peers and peeresses robes for the coming coronation. Fortunately in Peterborough we only have to worry over the price of eggs, butter, etc., and when the $4000 a year I. Com. will get a factory for this city.

Probably before many of our subscribers have read this issue, owing to the difference between our time and that of England, Crippen will have expiated the horrible crime he committed in slowly murdering his wife.

Poor Premier Asquith, of London, England, has been mobbed by a crowd of suffragettes. Why doesn't the English premier give free transportation to these women to our Western Provinces, when each and (almost) everyone of them could find a husband and settle down respectably?

Peterborough has within her walls a veteran of the South African war, who came from Sheffield, England, who was also at Khartoum and Atbara, with Lord Kitchener. This soldier, who was for twelve years a member of the Royal Warwickshire Regiment, is Mr. Thos. Checkley.

WANTED.

Girls at the Quaker Oats.

Sousa's Band Last Night.

Last night the Opera House was well filled with an appreciative audience to hear the above distinguished musical organization which has played in the principal cities of United States, Canada, England, Germany, France, Austria, Russia, Belgium, Holland, Bohemia, Denmark, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. The program was a model of artistic musical balance, and consisted of several of the loftiest compositions written by the great classical and modern masters. Soloists are the best obtainable. Miss Virginia Root, soprano, Miss Nicoline Zedeler, violinist, and Mr. Herbert L. Clarke, a virtuoso player of the first rank, who is first cornet and assistant conductor.

HALL'S BRIDGE.

The annual tea and concert at Wesley Methodist Church was a decided success. The night was an ideal one and a large crowd gathered to do justice to all the good things that were to be eaten. Some forty-five or fifty dollars was realized.

It has been announced that the Lakehurst school are giving a concert on Friday evening. We are looking forward for a good time.

Mr. Edward Pavey has moved up to the village and is living with his son-in-law, Mr. Walker.

Miss Olive Simpson of Rockcroft, passed through on Saturday en route for Toronto.

Mr. Harry Crowe spent a few days in Peterboro last week.

A large number attended Mr. B Manning's sale on Friday last. Mr. A. G. Shearer purchased a fine little team—they are dandies.

Former Citizens' Luck.

It will be remembered that Mr. Herbert Bayly and family, formerly of England, who some few years ago resided in the northwestern part of the city, removed to Alberta. They located severally on several ranches near Red Deer, in that Province. As is generally known, even if the effete east, an Alberta man, thinks nothing of "running over" to the village for supplies, or to the post office for a letter, and covering, say ninety or a hundred miles on the round trip. These former local citizens, whose post office is Stauffer, Alta., are forty miles from the nearest railway station. The Red Deer (Alta.) Advocate, received yesterday by The Times, notes that Mr. John T. Moore, president of the Alberta Central Railway, has recently been at Red Deer. As a result these former Peterborough residents, one of whom married a Peterborough girl a few months ago, will have a railroad station at Rocky Mountain House, which is within three and a half miles of the ranches occupied by these former citizens of Peterborough.

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2.625 oz. of gold and 3.267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $35,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

POET'S WIFE DEAD.

Short Synopsis of Life of Canada's Poet Laureate Who Was Known Here.

Many of our citizens remember the descriptive and touching poems of the late Mr. Archibald Lampman, one time poet laureate of Canada. Again, many of our older citizens remember Archy Lampman, son of a former rector of the Anglican church at Gore's Landing, Rice Lake, and will remember how, this, later on distinguished writer of verse, spent some years at the private school of the late Mr. F. W. Barron, (father of Mrs. A. P. Poussette of this city); how later on Lampman matriculated at Trinity College, Toronto, taking 1st scholarship, and how, after taking his degree at the University of T.C., was given a position in the Post Office Department at Ottawa. Most of the late Mr. Lampman's poems were written in Ottawa, but some of his most touching woodland descriptive verses were written whilst he was a student at Trinity. The Times was yesterday shown two group photographs containing Canada's leading poet. In one of these appear, the late Mr. Lampman, several Peterborough citizens, including the late Mr. R. S. Cook, mayor of Prince Albert, Sask. The other picture portrays him in a college group, showing Rev. Canon Davidson, Rev. Chas. Kewick, former curate of St. John's, and a present member of the local fourth estate. Those who knew Mr. Lampman will regret to learn that his widow dropped dead suddenly, yesterday afternoon, in the House of Commons, Ottawa.

The "Eighth Wonder."

To the Editor of The Times,—

Sir,—The Evening Examiner has a man on its staff who is one of the brightest stars that ever pushed a pencil and in fact the very greatest discoverer of this or any other age—Too great to be on such a job as he holds: he should be at the head of some university. Just fancy, he has discovered that people can be aroused from a sound sleep by the "Roar of the Reflection,"—wonderful!

Sir Isaac Newton, lying under an apple tree, discovered "Attraction of Gravitation," but that was a mere bagatelle compared to the "Roar of the Reflection." What great things could be accomplished by harnessing the "Roar," steam whistles, foghorns and such like musical instruments would be things of the past, and no doubt the "Roar" would be cheaper. I would advise this discoverer to get a patent out at once and go into the business, for there's millions in it.

For an explanation of the above, see the Evening Examiner's report of the fire at Logan's Blacksmith shop on Monday last.

SURELY AN OLD ONE.

At the Canadian Club banquet at New York the other day, the statement was made that annexation in Canada was as dead as a salt mackerel. Surely it is not necessary to keep on repeating this statement. Could it not be taken for granted, not only in Canada, but in the United States, that annexation is dead, and that it might very well be allowed to rest, either with or without the salt? If our speakers keep on announcing from time to time that annexation is dead, they may succeed in creating the suspicion that the danger is not all over yet. As a matter of fact annexation seems to be about as dead among sensible people in the United States as it is in Canada.

ORANGE SENTINEL DEALS IN AN UNIQUE WAY WITH NATIONALIST MOVEMENT.

"The American Union is Too Big to Be Managed Successfully," Says Father Hamon.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—The Orange Sentinel this week deals with the Nationalist movement in a somewhat original way, taking its subject from statements made by the late Premier Mercier, who advocated a French republic on the banks of the St. Lawrence. The Sentinel quotes from the books of Father Hamon and the late J. P. Tardival to show how they support the Mercier idea. The French ambition, as frankly stated by Father Hamon, is indicated by the following quotation:

"The American Union is too big to be managed successfully. It is within the range of the possible that there will be a breakup when Quebec, New Brunswick, Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and possibly Eastern Ontario will constitute a distinct republic— French and Roman Catholic, Quebec giving a spirit of character to the new republic."

Mr. Tardval's book, Pour la Patrie is summarized. This book, which in the form of a romance depicts the struggles of the New France party, its ultimate triumph and the formation of a French republic, has been distributed among the school children at the public expense. The sum of five hundred dollars was appropriated on one occasion to purchase copies of Pour la Patrie" to be given as prizes to the children in the schools of the Province. The Sentinel traces the development of nationalist sentiment to the influence which this book has had upon the French-Canadians. The Orange organ treats the ambition of the French in Canada as a fantastic dream, but holds that it is cherished by the people of the neighboring Province as their ultimate national destiny.

SIGNIFICANT LITERATURE.

This issue of the Sentinel also contains a fac simile of literature now being circulated in the Province of Quebec and the Eastern States calling for a general protective association of French-Canadians and French Americans, and it offers this as another evidence that the Hamon-Tardival ideal possesses the minds of the French people of this continent.

Black Hand Society Threatens Lindsay Man

Those of our readers acquainted with recent magazines and newspaper articles, are aware of the terrible power and intimidation practiced by the Black Hand Society. When this organization tries to exercise its blackmailing powers as near as Lindsay, it makes Peterboro men seriously think.

Mr. B. J. Gough of that town has received a threatening letter from the society. The letter written on pink programme paper in pencil, was adorned with a picture of two knives. Mr. Gough, who conducts a clothing store in Kent street, received the letter which reads as follows:

"Mr. Gough I have been sent by the president of our society to demand of you ($100.00) one hundred dollars. If you refuse all your property shall be burned. If you dare to consult the police or anybody you shall be killed by a man who has figured in many of the leading murders.

"You are to leave the money under a long, box-like covering over a switch at Santiago, which is sidings of the G.T.R., west of iron bridge, you cannot miss this for it is about three rods long at the beginning this structure you will find a tin box in which you will put the money. Make sure nobodys looking for you suffer if I don't get the $100. I give you till Monday, Nov. 6. Go out at six in the morning.

"P.s—2 make sure of the where the can is look under on south side."

The Lindsay police, assisted by a private detective from Toronto are investigating the matter. They and Mr. Gough think they know the writer of the blackmailing letter.

THE KAISER ANXIOUS OVER AUSTRIA'S NEW FLEET.

German Naval Attache to Be Appointed to Watch Its Building.

Berlin, Nov. 23.—To enable the German government more closely to follow the development of Austria's new Dreadnought fleet the German naval estimates for 1911 will for the first time provide for the stationing of a naval attache in Vienna.

Hitherto the Austrian fleet has been deemed of such minor importance that the Berlin naval attache stationed in Italy has been accredited to Austria as well, the latter being wholly secondary field of his activity. His duties have been limited to the occasional presentation of credentials at the Viennese court and to routine official calls at the Austrian ministry of marine.

The military attache has long been one of the most important members of the German embassy staff in Vienna, and the appointment o a special naval attache means that the German authorities now dignify the allied fleet with the same importance as has hitherto been bestowed upon the Austrian army.

The 1911 estimates will show an increase of, in round figures, $5,000,000 over those of 1910, bringing the total the highest in German history, to $115,425,000.

Next year ostensibly represents the "crest of the wave" so far as German naval expenditure is concerned, but the elasticity of the naval act will unquestionably permit of heavier disbursements before the "fulfillment of the act" is completed.

About half the $5,000,000 increase in 1911 is required for the maintenance of the fleet's augmented personnel, and the other half for the heavier cost of materials for new vessels and for an increased outlay on submarines.

The estimates also provide for the establishment of an extensive new target range for torpedo practice in Eckernforder bay, as well as for a new officers' mess and marine hospital in Heligoland. The only reduction from the provisions estimates is a sum of $175,000 taken off the allowance for officers' messes afloat.

"PLEASE ALLOW ME SPACE TO WALK," CRIPPEN'S FINAL WORDS

TO HANGMAN ELLIS—CRIPPEN WALKED TO GALLOWS WITH FIRM TREAD.

The Last Act in World's Most Famous Murder Case—Late Despatches Say Man Nearly Collapsed on Gallows.

London, Nov. 23.—Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen was executed in the court yard of Pentonville prison at 8.45 o'clock this morning for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen. The bolt was withdrawn precisely at that time, and the condemned prisoner was officially declared dead five minutes later. The body was cut down at 9 o'clock.

Crippen went calmly to his doom on the scaffold, wearing the stylish clothes which had been his attire during his trial. Before his execution Dr. Crippen ate a light breakfast and received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church from the Rev. Father E. M. Carville.

He had awakened early and his face was pale and drawn as he received his spiritual adviser, but he bore up until the end.

PAPER STANDS BY CONFESSION.

Shortly after Crippen's execution the official announcement was made that Crippen had died without confessing or making a statement of any kind. Despite this fact the Evening Times, a sensational London paper, conducted on the American plan, published today what it declared to be an authentic confession by Crippen, made by him to an old friend.

Denials from Solicitor Arthur Newton, Crippen's attorney, Superintendent Froest, of Scotland Yard, and the superintendent of Pentonville prison, served to discredit the statement published by the Times, although it is known that for several days before Crippen's death, Ethel Claire LeNeve had attempted to sell to various newspapers what purported to be the confession of Dr. Crippen.

FOG OVERHUNG CITY.

The morning of the day set for Dr. Crippen's execution affords the gloomiest possible setting. A dense fog overhung the city and traffic was at a standstill.

The fog enwrapped completely the walls of the prison where small groups of loungers of the lowest class, including many women, slouched silently, awaiting news from the prison.

The little physician showed no trace of agitation as he went to his death.

The condemned man walked the twenty yards from his cell to the scaffold without a faltering step. Ellis of Richdale, the executioner, declared that never in his long experience at his gruesome trade had he known so game a prisoner.

It was a bleak, foggy day, and Crippen's last glimpse of the world was not a cheerful one. Crippen's cell was situated in the rear of the center block of the prison—in the death ward. It is 15 feet long by 8 feet wide.

A LAST PRAYER.

The prisoner arose before dawn, and fell on his knees beside the plank bed. The prisoner then dressed with all the care of a man about to attend a social function.

WORE OWN CLOTHING.

The prison authorities had made an exception in the doctor's case and allowed him to wear his own clothing.

One of the wardens asked Crippen if he would have anything to eat, for it is the custom in British prisons to allowed condemned men a light breakfast of tea, toast and eggs on the morning of their execution if they desire.

"I will," replied the prisoner in a calm, low voice.

Soon the Rev. Father Carville entered his cell and the doctor seemed cheered at once.

PRIEST CHANTED A PRAYER.

The priest chanted a prayer while Crippen sat with bowed head and crossed hands. Shortly afterwards the governor of the prison and the high sheriff entered Crippen's cell and told him that all was ready for the execution.

Crippen seemed somewhat dazed with the blight of death on him, but showed no fear.

At 8.15 Executioner Ellis entered the cell with two coils of rope in his hand.

The hangman bound Crippen's arms and started to bind his ankles together.

WASTED SPACE TO WALK.

Please allow me space to walk, said the doctor. The coil about the ankles was then loosened.

A black band was then placed over the prisoner's eyes. He stood perfectly still towards the process not uttering a word. The governor of the prison took his arm and the procession started towards the gibbet in the courtyard, only a few paces away. On either side of the condemned man was the high sheriff and the deputy sheriff. The priest walked on one side intoning, "Lord receive this soul." Two wardens brought up the rear. The march of death was slow because Crippen's legs were practically hobbled and his steps were short.

BLACK CAP ON HEAD.

At the scaffold the black cap was drawn over Crippen's head. He was quickly moved to the trap. With practiced fingers, Ellis of Rochdale placed the noose around his neck.

Just before the trap fell Father Carville walked slowly to Crippen's side, placed his hand upon his shoulder, and asked in a kindly voice: "Have you nothing more to say?"

HAD NOTHING TO SAY.

Through the muffled folds of the black cloth came the calm answer: "No! thank you."

The priest stepped back, the bolt was drawn at 8.45 and Crippen's body shot through space.

Crippen's body swayed for several moments before it became still. He was declared dead at 8.59, and the body was cut down at 9 o'clock.

GIVEN SEVEN FOOT DROP.

Crippen's body only weighed 140 pounds and he was given a seven-foot drop. When the corpse was cut down the prison physicians set the inquest for two o'clock in the afternoon.

A grave was prepared in the little prison cemetery for the reception of the body. The bodies of executed convicts are buried in quicklime and not incased in coffins.

London, Nov. 23.—Crippen's mental anguish had been too great to be concealed by outward bravado, and it was a broken man whom the warders were obliged to assist up the steps to the drop, which once reached the shrinking figure all but collapsed.

The first report that Crippen had met his fate calmly was contradicted by persons who were present in the prison during the man's last hours. The doomed man passed a restless night, and appeared haggard and worn when awakened from his fitful slumber. He seemed to lose all fortitude as the end approached. A breakfast was brought into him, but he left it untouched.

His face was colorless as he was escorted bareheaded to the gallows. The gruesome work was soon done. The black cap was quickly drawn over the face, the noose adjusted and the bolt drawn.

"Death was instantaneous.

Confession is Absolutely Authentic

THE EVENING TIMES DECLARES THAT CRIPPEN'S STATEMENT IS ABSOLUTELY TRUE.

Sets Forth Ghastly Details of How He Killed His Wife—Drugs Chicago Man's Name Into the Affair.

London, Nov. 23. The Evening Times says its readers need not attach the least importance to the denials that a confession had been made.

"The one we print was made some time before the execution and is absolutely authentic. It is not affected by the fact that Crippen said nothing on the scaffold," concludes the Times.

The evening Times, besides publishing what purports to be a confession, declares that the knife which Crippen used in mutilating Belle Elmore's body was buried in the garden of the Crippen home at 39 Hilldrop crescent, North London, and will soon be found.

The Times puts these words into the mouth of Crippen. "My wife was a bad tempered woman and led me a dreadful life, of which even my most intimate friends did not know.

PATIENT WITH HER FOR YEARS.

"I was patient with her for years I strove to hide our turbulent domestic relations. However, what I said in court about her threatening to leave me for another man was true. She made that threat to me and she constantly humiliated me. I had not thought of killing the woman until I was goaded to desperation and suddenly realized my position. When the blank hopelessness of the thing dawned upon me I became desperate.

BALANCE OF CONFESSION.

The Times continuing relates the balance of the confession in the third person, at no time quoting Crippen as saying that he killed his wife.

According to the story, Belle Elmore, after returning from America, boasted to her husband that a rich man aboard the liner had offered to support her.

Crippen then demanded through his clenched teeth the name of the American, who had made love to her.

MILLER'S NAME DRAGGED IN.

The Times then dragged in the name of Bruce Miller, the Chicago man, making Belle Elmore Crippen say Crippen did not know that, while he was working hard in London, she was in America spending evening after evening in the company of her lover.

Crippen related that thereafter he ceased to live with his wife; that they maintained seperate apartments in their home. Crippen found a congenial companion in Ethel Le Neve, and sought her company frequently. In the course of time he came to love her deeply. For some weeks before January 31 last, says the Times, Crippen's mind had but one thought, and that to get rid of his wife.

At that time Belle Elmore was suffering from indigestion and was getting very stout. She complained and asked her husband to prescribe something to reduce weight. He gave her some pills sold by the American Medical Agency for which he was working. Through January he said, "she became more and more troublesome, until he finally determined to poison her. Then he bought the hyoscin and prepared the deadly pellets, similar in appearance to those she had been taking. This was after January 31.

BOAST OF LOVE CONQUESTS.

A party was given at the Crippen home on the night of January 31. After this party, Crippen said, his wife again began to boast of her love conquests. Crippen goaded to desperation, hurried to his office early on the morning of February 1 to prepare a more deadly tablet. He was determined, said the Times, that his wife should die that day. That evening when he returned home he found his wife dressing and no dinner ready.

DEAD IN AN HOUR.

The same evening he gave her a powerful dose of hyoscin. She fell into a stupor after taking it and within an hour was dead.

"Before the body was cold," the story continues, "Crippen had written a letter to the Music Hall Women's Guild, of which Belle Elmore was a member, declaring that his wife had gone to America.

"Crippen must have slept calmly in the same house with the corpse, for he said he left the house at the usual hour the next day after locking the door of Belle Elmore's chamber. He first visited Mrs. Martinetti, a friend of the family, before going to his office. After office hours he returned to remove all traces of the crime.

DRAGGED BODY IN CELLAR.

"A few days before that he had purchased a knife such as that used by doctors in performing post-mortems. He went to his wife's chamber, unlocked the door and entered. His wife's body, clad only in a night robe, lay across the bed. Crippen dragged the body into the cellar, stretching it out upon the floor. First he cut off the head, then the hands, and then the feet. Then he removed all the organs that would show the sex of the corpse. He removed the bones, carrying them to the kitchen, where he burned them in a stove.

BURNED HUMAN PORTIONS.

The Times omits none of the ghastly details. It relates how Crippen burned the portions of the body, throwing the ashes among the other refuse, which was eventually carted away by the garbage collectors.

"This gruesome task occupied Crippen for some days," it says. "He had intended to burn the entire body, but a fit of horror and remorse overcame him, and he could not complete the task.

DUG HOLE WITH SPADE.

"He buried the remainder in the cellar, digging loose the bricks with a spade and an old poker. He dug a hole, covered the body with quicklime and recovered it. He shovelled a quantity of coal over the floor, and set about to forget that such a person as Belle Elmore had ever existed.

"Shortly after this Ethel Le Neve arrived at Crippen's home, and was installed as housekeeper. Crippen was apparently secure in the thought that his deed would never be revealed.

"Crippen hid the poker and spade in the garden and burned the knife after washing them carefully.

TOLD IT ALL TO OLD FRIEND.

In concluding the Times says that the confession was made to an old friend who visited Crippen in prison. Crippen, realizing that all hope for life had passed, unburdened himself of everything.

WOMEN IN TURKEY ARE BETTER TREATED.

Than Are Those In America, Declares Mr. O. H. P. Belmont—Have No Rights.

New York, Nov. 22. That women in American receive less protection than do women and girls in turkey, is the opinion of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, leading suffragette. This is true, she says, despite the fact that there are in the United States 6,000,000 self-supporting women and girls.

It was stated at suffragette headquarters here today that Mrs. Belmont's stricture on America and its oppression of the women will be printed and circulated in every section of the country. Her speech was the big sensation of last night's rally of the Political Equality Association.

"The self-supporting women of this country," said Mrs. Belmont, "have a part in its industry and help toward the standard of culture. They are worthy of motherhood and wifehood, and are, therefore, beneficial to society. In the profession, they are found side by side with the men, and are not less efficient.

"Despite all these considerations, 36 States have laws that stake away from the mother ownership of her children. Their father may give them away and in some States will them to others than their mothers. No such conditions exist in the Far East Turkey, India and Egypt place the mother on a high plane.

"In New Jersey recently, a judge held that a husband may strike his wife, and the courts of that State hold that her home is not her own. In this State we are little better off. Only in Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado and Washington, are women real citizens."

Canadians are Reported Safe in Mexico

OTTAWA GETS WIRE FROM GOVERNMENT AGENT—DIAZ CAN SUPPRESS REVOLT.

Alarming Reports Should Be Discontinued—But There Have Been Serious Disturbances in Some Places.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—A. W. Donly, the Canadian trade commissioner at the City of Mexico, cables to the Trade and Commerce Department as follows:

"Alarming reports should be discontinued. There have been some serious disturbances in some parts but the government is fully able to cope with the situation. Anti-foreign feeling is non-existent, lives and property being absolutely safe.

Private advices received by parliamentarians interested in Canadian investments in Mexico are to the same effect as Mr. Donly's message, so that the relatives of Canadians living in Mexico can rest in security.

SOME HEAVY FIGHTING.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 23.—All is quiet at Mexico City, Puebla, Orizaba, and Pachuca. Fighting broke out again last night at Parral and fighting continues at Terreon. Heavy fighting is reported at San Ysidre, seven kilometers from Chihuahua.

A riot at Zacatacas last night was immediately quelled.

DIAZ IS UNHARMED.

Mexico City, Mexico, Nov. 23. There is no foundation for the rumor that harm has come to President Diaz through the activities of the revolutionists. Foreign Minister Creel announced today the National Executive was in good health, adding that he deplored the circulation of untruthful stories that were injurious to the republic.

Bourassa on Way to Rome to Protest to Pope

Quebec, Nov. 23.—It is said that one of the objects of Mr. Henri Bourassa's trip to Europe is to go and plead before the pope himself the alleged rights of the French-speaking population of Canada, which are considered violated by the appointment of Mgr Gauthier to the archiepiscopal seat at Ottawa and to induce the holy see to put a stop to Bishop Fallon's hostility to the learning of the French language in the Public schools of Ontario.

British Ship and Crew Lost on Her First Trip

London, Nov. 23. A steamer which foundered off the north coast of Spain on November 7th is now believed to be the British Indian liner Abbona.

The Abbona was of 3,066 tons, and was built this year.

She sailed from the Clyde November 3rd, for Rangoon, British India, arriving at Plymouth, November 5th.

This was her maiden voyage, and she carried no passengers.

The crew numbered 90, of whom 13 were whites.

MET WITH ACCIDENT.

Was Crossing Over London Street Dam and Fell Off.

Enquiries at Nicholls Hospital last night elicted the reply that George Ferguson is doing very nicely. Ferguson, it might be mentioned, on Tuesday night fell to the concrete twenty-five feet below the dam at London street, over which he was crossing. Ferguson, who lives on Concession street, was crossing the dam shortly before midnight and, in some inexplicable manner fell over. His father is employed at the power house and heard his cries. Finding his son lying hurt, Mr. Ferguson, sr. had the young man carried to the power house, and afterwards removed in the Dan Spense ambulance to Nicholls Hospital, where Dr. Eastwood attended his injuries. Ferguson had his ankle fractured in addition to being badly bruised.

LINDSAY LOOKING FOR D. B. THOMAS

CLEVELAND MAN, WHO WAS TO ERECT BIG INDUSTRY IN THAT TOWN, LEAVES SUDDENLY.

Had Started on Factory—Secured Some Concessions, and Now the People Think They Have Been Hoaxed By the Promoter.

A few weeks ago, a good looking young man who gave his name as Thomas, arrived in Lindsay, and said he was representing the D. B. Thomas Glove and Shoe Factory of Cleveland, that the firm had a warehouse in Winnipeg, and that he was looking for a site to establish a Canadian branch of the business. He had heard accounts of Lindsay, and that it was an ideal spot for his firm to locate their new big Canadian factory. Mr. Thomas even got the Lindsay Board of Trade interested by his story, that the firm he represented intended erecting a factory to employ 300 hands. Things for the future were painted in such roseate terms that the Lindsay Board of Trade welcomed the visitor with open arms. A site for the coming factory was selected by the council. Mr. Thomas opened an office in the Lindsay Post building, installed a stenographer, (incidentally it may be mentioned that he ordered eight type writers from a Peterborough firm), and, apparently, was prepared to proceed with his plans for making Lindsay a commercial center. As late as Tuesday night he appeared before the Board of Trade, in regard to the establishment of a tannery that would be necessary in connection with his shoe and glove factory.

The aftermath, however, seems to show that the rulers of Lindsay's commercial destinies were badly stung. The silver tongued agent of the big Cleveland firm (sic.) succeeded in drawing $900 from the Home Bank in that burg. The Standard Bank, it is also said, honored his paper to the tune of $550, but the manager getting suspicious, made Thomas refund. Within the past few days' investigations made, demonstrated that no such firm, as Thomas spoke of, did business in Cleveland. Thomas managed on Tuesday night to tear himself away from the scenery of the Scugog River, and took the 4.35 C.P.R. train. The president and secretary of the Board of Trade saw him as he was leaving, and urged him to remain in town, and make an explanation, but he pleaded that business called him to Toronto, and departed. Mr. McGill, manager of the Home Bank, went with him on the train as far as Ops station, and then returned. Thomas sent back word with the conductor of the evening train that he would be at the Walker House in Toronto, if wanted, but an inquiry over the 'phone failed to disclose any traces of his being there or anywhere else in Toronto. The police were set at work and descriptions have been sent out to the police in different cities asking for his arrest.

The local police have received word from Lindsay in regard to Thomas and searched both C.P.R. night trains for the fugitive without finding any trace of him.

MORE TROUBLE IN PORTUGAL.

The outcome of the revolution in Portugal seems in a way rapidly to confirm the account of it given by the News at the time of the overthrow of Manuel. It was stated then that the revolution had been achieved in Portugal by men who were anarchists and socialists, that one set of despotate adventurers had determined to play up the interests of the people as their means of obtaining force enough to expel [illegible] nasty and thus become the reins of power.

It was shown that the idea of the Portuguese being capable of organizing and sustaining a republic in the true sense was to be dismissed as chimerical and that time would soon work out the proof of the analysis of affairs given in explanation of the condition of things in that country.

But the revelation which might be expected to be withheld for a considerable time is already made and the new rulers are showing their hand in a way that leads the powers of Europe to withhold recognition and to pause before considering what is best to be done by the real controlling forces of that continent. The new chief of Portugal is a literary man, but behind him are men who are practically looting the country.

It appears that the revolutionists are sending large sums of money away into other countries to be laid up against the day of their expulsion. They perceive that their cruelty, arrogance and injustice are bound to raise up enemies and drive them from power and the more quickly they can feather their nests the better they like it.

They have arrested Franco, charged himself aspiring to the throne before with assuming access of power or of the death of King Carlos more than three years ago, and are dealing with all the better class of people in the most despotic and rapacious way, as might be expected of men who have conquered a country and set out to plunder it after the old Roman fashion.

It seems probable, then, that another revolution will soon come to pass in Portugal and a new set of men come to the top in control of affairs. Whether it will ultimately settle down in the form of republic or monarchy it is impossible to forecast with any certainty, but all things of the uncertain kind are possible with a people who are illiterate to an almost incredible degree, and who are so patient under burdens as to endure almost any government that leaves them a little something to live on, even if so extortionate that no other people would endure such heavy burdens as the Portuguese have seemed content to bear, taking the people as a whole.

HARD TO DEFINE.

Most English-speaking people are still puzzled whether the Montreal row over the French Masonic Lodge, is to be classed under the head of politics or religion.

WARRANT FOR CONDUCTOR.

Wanted for Stealing Fares and Selling Tickets.

(From the Montreal Gazette.)

Judge Lanctot, at the request of the Crown Prosecutor, has issued a bench warrant for the arrest of E. Smith, a former sleeping car conductor in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, who at one time ran between Montreal and Vancouver, and latterly between Montreal and Toronto.

Early in October information reached the Crown authorities which led up to Smith's arrest for stealing sleeping car fares, and for stealing and selling railway tickets to various persons in Montreal and elsewhere. Smith had a preliminary hearing and was committed for trial to the Court of King's Bench, his case being set for the 10th. When called, he failed to appear, with the result that his bail was forfeited and a bench warrant issued for his arrest.

The case caused a good deal of interest in railway circles, and it is probable that other than railway people will become interested, as the name and address of quite a number of people with whom he has been doing business are known, and it is likely that before the matter is finally disposed of several of the hunters for bargains in railway transportation will be dealt with.

"It is really too bad," said a high official of the Canadian Pacific on Saturday, "that the travelling public should suggest such dishonesty to conductors. If passengers would refrain from making conductors steal from the company by offering them facilities and inducements to do so, it would be better for them in every way. We have the names of a good many men who have done this, in Montreal and other places, and they include some pretty prominent men. Morally, they are as guilty, if not more so, than the conductors whom they train to become thieves, and the practice of trying to get cheap transportation at the expense of the company and the honesty of the conductors cannot be too sharply repressed.

"In the present instance it has led to the ruin of a young man and the breaking up of his home. While we are sorry for those who suffer by it, the company must stop this business of stealing fares, and prosecution will follow every instance that is discovered."

TOURISTS IN EUROPE.

Wealthy Germans Now Crowding Out the English and Americans.

That the Germans have been getting rich more or less quickly is obvious from the throngs of money spending tourists of that nationality seen everywhere in Europe. Fifteen years ago the majority of tourists were English and American. Now they are German.

Monte Carlo and the resorts on the Riviera are thronged with money spending Germans in the winter. Monte Carlo seems especially to appeal to wealthy Germans, and the majority of players at the casino tables in the season not infrequently are German. Like the American, the German spends his money easily, although perhaps he has not yet acquired that distinctly American trait of lavishly overtipping servants.

The German is a better dressed tourist today than he was fifteen years ago. Then he affected Tyrolean clothes and hats. Now he is got up to look like a sporting Englishman, wearing knickerbockers and caps of English cut. His spectacles and Baedeker prevent him from being mistaken for an Englishman.

The Germans do not seem to have discovered the fact that they have many beautiful mountain and seashore resorts of their own. The tourists you meet in the Harz mountains are more often than not English and Americans, with an occasional Frenchman and his family.

Like all other rich people, the Germans have succumbed to the automobile craze, and German automobiles are as abundant on the highroads of Europe as American and English machines. It is estimated that the number of Germans who go abroad for their summer and winter vacations increases each year by 75 per cent. German economists, however, have not yet begun to complain that Germans spend too much money in foreign climes. That may come in time.—New York Sun.

To Withstand Earthquakes.

A new method of constructing the foundations of buildings in order to prevent as much as possible earthquake shocks from being communicated to the buildings has been devised and patented by Dr. J. A. Calantarients of Scarborough. In this system the foundation, which is built in the usual manner, is faced with hard material, such as granite or iron, and upon this facing layers of talc, mica or other smooth substances are deposited, each layer being dusted with powdered talc, mica, asbestos, soapstone or sand, or mats of asbestos, etc., may be used without the plates of talc. Slabs of granite or iron placed on this prepared zone form the base of the superstructure. The object of the arrangement is in the case of an earthquake to allow the building to slide laterally. The service pipes are flexible at the point where they issue from the ground.—London Mail.

Pierpont Morgan Braves Superstition.

No. 13 has been avoided in a large proportion of the London streets, and in this particular city men appear to be quite as superstitious as other folk. There is no No. 13 in Holborn, Threadneedle street, London street or Tokenhouse yard. Other leading thoroughfares from which this number is lacking include the Strand, the Haymarket, St. James' street, Park lane and Westbourne grove. On the other hand, we find Mr. Pierpont Morgan braving the superstition by housing his priceless art treasures at 13 Prince's gate. And an intrepid manufacturer has for years carried on a prosperous business at 13 Friday street. It would be hard to devise a more bloodcurdling address than this.—London Chronicle.

An Advertising Show.

An "advertising pantomime" is in course of preparation in Berlin. This novel form of publicity is being adopted by one of the large retail establishments of the capital, which has commissioned a distinguished composer to write the music of the production. The plot deals with two poor children found starving by a fairy on Christmas eve. She proceeds to take them, in a series of scenes, through the various departments of the great shop, giving them presents. Comic characters, clowns and a ballet lend humorous relief. The pantomime will probably be produced at one of the Berlin theaters, customers at the shop receiving free tickets.

A Drawing From Memory.

Jane Erin Emmet, who married Vohn Glehn, the London painter, can do a speaking crayon drawing of anybody in less time than it takes to tell it. Once in London she met a young man in the street and never saw him again. Some years afterward his mother came to her in grief and despair. The young man had died suddenly, and there was no portrait, photograph or other likeness of him to console the family. Jane Emmet did a crayon of him from the memory of that chance meeting in the street, and it is prized by his family beyond all its other possessions.—New York Press.

Parisian Sealing Wax Code.

Paris stationers are selling boxes of colored sealing wax with instructions in the etiquette of the use of the different shades. Black is for mourning, white for marriage invitations or announcements, violet for condolence, chocolate for dinner invitations. Ox blood, although that might be as suitable for dinner notes, is for business. Young girls are to use light pink, and love letters are to be sealed with ruby. They say that there are Parisians who use the colors according to this code!

GOMPERS WOULD BAR NEGROES.

St. Louis, Nov. 22.—President Samuel Gompers in his speech at the American Federation of Labor banquet, advocated the elimination of negroes from the labor unions of America. He said the supremacy of the Caucasian race in the unions should be maintained.

"There are 8,000,000 negroes in the United States," said Mr. Gompers, "and to my mind they cannot all be expected to understand the philosophy of human rights. I do not believe they should be permitted to join our unions, lacking as they do for the most part the very necessary knowledge of what our unions really stand for in the economic world.

"They are less than two centuries away from the barbarians of their own African land and a little less than half a century removed from the chattel slavery. I am not condemning the negro, but we cannot expect a people with all their traditions—mental, moral and social—to understand the fundamental philosophy of human rights. This is not a theory but a condition with which we have to deal."

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Enter by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect house worth $300.00.

EARLY SEARCHING FOR QUARTZ IN THE YUKON.

Discoverer Tramped the Hills Until He Was Footsore and Penniless—English Syndicate Now Has Hoad.

Vancouver News Advertiser.—The source from which our rich placer gold is derived is a lively question in the earlier periods of all great placer camps, writes an old Sourdough to the News-Advertiser. It is discussed over the camp fires and many theories are advanced, some going as far as to claim that the gold was deposited in the creek beds by the ice during the glacier periods, others that it was of local origin, derived from the mother lodes or quartz veins buried somewhere beneath the surface. The latter view has proven to be true in the great placer camps of Nevada and California, and is also the case in the Klondyke, where up to the present time about $160,000,000 in placer gold has been taken out and the camp will go on producing untold millions from its quartz mines for years to come.

There are two classes of miners to be found in every large camp, one the placer miner, who contents himself with sticking to navigable waters where the means of transportation for himself and outfit is made comparatively easy, and the other is the quartz prospector, who straps his pack upon his back, consisting of a pair of blankets and some bacon and beans, and goes into the hills far from human habitation, travelling from mountain to mountain, with only the canopy of heaven as a covering until driven out in the fall by the approach of winter. The buoyant hope and persistence with which these hardy men outfit every spring are truly marvellous. They never seem to lose heart at the past season's failure to locate the mother lode. In the Yukon territory, surrounding Dawson owing to the hills being covered with a thick blanket of moss, tracing the ledge is a very difficult matter. In the face of the natural disadvantages some determined men continued their search for quartz and may have lost opportunities of becoming wealthy by placer mining, in the hope of the rich reward that would be theirs should gold bearing quartz in paying quantities be found.

It became known to a few early in the history of the camp, that the two richest placer creeks in the world' Eldorado and Bonanza, which alone have produced about $60,000,000 in gold and are still producing, did not carry "pay" above Victoria gulch on Bonanza and Gay gulch on Eldorado. The late John A. Stewart, an Irishman by birth, who mushed in over the trail in 1897, was one of the first to become impressed with the significance of the fact that ten gulches, namely, Victoria, O'Neil, Seven Pup, Gay, Oro Grande, Glacier, Twenty-Seven, Nigger Jim, Ready Bullion and Thirteen, all headed on the divide of Victoria Hill. Stewart was a man who had a thorough knowledge of quartz mining, having followed his calling of prospector in South Africa and Australia. He never became discouraged at the failure of others. Many weary miles he travelled delving and panning foot by foot in the slide rock and deep coating of moss which mantles the hillside.

Two years of labor and privation were performed and countless holes were sunk before what he so patiently sought was found, gold-bearing rock. Being entirely out of food and almost barefooted by this time, he secured employment on "33" above discovery on Bonanza where he worked until he had saved $70 with which he purchased ten pounds of powder—which at that time was $4 per pound—along with the necessary caps, fuse and hammer. The remainder of the money was invested in a sack of flour a can of baking powder and some tea. Without one cent he returned to prospect the ledge. His supplies soon becoming exhausted he confided in two friends and in their company the ledge was traced and located for 7500 feet, covering an immense body of ore. After recording the claims the party returned fully equipped with necessary tools and supplies to open up the vein, which proved without a doubt to be the largest and richest quartz find on record. Hundreds attracted by the richness of the discovery flocked to the scene, some staking ground that was worthless and some even claiming to be the original discoverers. With a druggists' mortar those men crushed and panned enough rock to pay their expenses while developing, and today the mountain which before Stewart examined it was never visited by a white man, presents a truly wonderful sight, for the gold can be seen with the naked eye.

Owing no doubt to the many hardships that Stewart endured, his constitution was weakened and when about to reap the rich reward of his labors, he was taken ill and died. So far as is known he died without kith or kin, and his interest in the rich quartz properties is being looked after by the official administrator of the Yukon territory.

After an examination by those two eminent authorities, Dr. Henry C. Miers Wynefiete, professor of mineralogy in the University of Oxford, and Professor A. P. Coleman, they declared it a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. In other that one may fully appreciate the possibilities of the rich returns on the development of the property, it is but necessary ta state that an English syndicate has taken a bond on a controlling interest at a figure approximating three-quarters of a million dollars and will spend half a million in development.

As early as 1850 placer gold diggings were found in Gold Canyon tributary to Carson River, Nevada, by immigrants from the east on their way to California, and subsequently gold washing was also conducted in Six-Mile Canyon, the next large ravine, two miles north. Year by year the gold hunters worked along up both ravines until they finally struck rich "pay" in the decomposed surface croppings of the prominent old quartz ledge crossing head of both ravines, and thus it was that the Comstock lode, which soon afterwards became famous as a gold and silver producer, was practically discovered in June, 1859, subsequently receiving its name from Henry Comstock, one of its first mining locators. The lode has added over $500,000,000 to the wealth of the world.

It was years after the discovery of the diggings in California, which caused the young and strong men from the four quarters of the globe to undertake the long, perilous trek across the plains by ox teams and other primitive means of transportation, in quest of the yellow metal, that the quartz veins were located. Quartz mining has since been one of the most prosperous industries of that state.

WON'T ASSOCIATE WITH HIM.

Average Englishman In India Looks Down Upon the Hindoo.

Very few natives are admitted to the circles of British society in India, writes Frank G. Carpenter. The average Englishman looks upon the Hindoo as of a lower race than himself, and he will not allow him to be a member of his club, or to come to his house as a guest. This is especially true of the officials of the lower classes, but less so of those who are high up in the Government, although even among these there is now and then an exception. A story is current about a well-known officer of the army who was riding on the cars in the same compartment with a cultured Hindoo. The army officer had been hunting and was tired out. During the journey he made the Hindoo gentleman get down on his knees and massage his legs from ankles to thighs. The high caste to which this man belonged was scandalized at the treatment and the action caused considerable comment. The better classes of the natives say such treatment is insulting, and they object to any difference being made between them and the British. This is one of the causes of the unrest of to-day.

Even worse than the position of the Hindoos is that of the Eurasians, or half-castes. These are the offspring of East Indian women and the various Europeans who have come here from time to time. Many are half Portuguese, others half French and others half British. There are also quarter breeds and eighth breeds, or Indian mulattoes and octoroons. But whatever the cross it is considered a disgrace by both native and foreigner. They are always well marked. The men are usually dark, and although the women are beautiful and now and then fair, you can always distinguish the Asiatic blood in their features.

These Eurasians are usually subordinate clerks. Many of them go into trade and make money, and now and then one rises to honorable distinction. But they always flock by themselves, having their own society, with customs the same as the English.

Grave of Maurice.

The Rev. John Frederick Denison Maurice, one of the most influential thinkers and social reformers of the middle of the last century, and a friend of Tennyson and Kingsley, passed away April 1, 1872, and was buried at Highgate. Yet, according to the Rev. J. Capel Hanbury, his grave cannot now be discovered.

"Some time ago," says Mr. Hanbury, writing to The Guardian, "I made a pilgrimage to Highgate cemetery to visit the grave of my reverend teacher, Professor F. D. Maurice. After considerable discussion as to the spelling of the name, the clerk gave me a ticket showing the situation and number of the grave. It was at the upper end of the cemetery, where the grass was high and the paths overgrown.

"After a long and fruitless search, thinking that my old eyes were at fault, I engaged the services of two of the workmen of the cemetery, and together we traversed the whole area indicated on my ticket. All in vain; the grave could not be found. It was poor consolation to be told by the clerk that no one ever asked where Mr. Maurice was buried, and it made me sad to think that the last earthly resting-place of a man to whom the Church of England is under such inestimable obligations should seem to be neglected and forgotten."

Commenting on the pain that will be caused to many by the fruitless search for the grave of Maurice, The Guardian recalls the inquiry directed to him by a lady, who asked, "Shall we know each other in Heaven?" to which he replied with the question: "Do we know each other on earth?" There are probably some of his friends who will attempt to rectify the lack of identification in Highgate.

Soldiers Were Stung.

At one of Britain's most important foreign forts the soldiers were once badly trapped, says a London paper in an article on the present spy scare in England.

It was known that a Teutonic spy was in the vicinity, bent on making plans, and so the sentry on a magazine, one moonlight night, kept eager watch, and soon was startled by a loud rustling in the adjacent trees. Going cautiously forward, he suddenly observed the figure of a man perched high on the bough of a tree, half hidden by the leaves.

The sentry's first impulse was to use the business-end of his bayonet; on second thought, he determined to constrain his captive to his uncomfortable perch all night. The idea was thoroughly to the taste of the relieving sentries, each of whom, during his two hours' duty, stood right under the tree, gazing exultantly at the figure aloft, and indulging in satirical remarks, anything but complimentary or consoling.

At dawn, a triumphant guard proceeded to dislodge the captive. He responded not to their taunts; he did not budge an inch. A private at last climbed aloft, and, in doing so, took down a lifelike effigy!

By this clever ruse, the spy had actually diverted attention whilst acquiring the information he required, and departed.

Bound Over to Keep the Peace.

County Magistrate George Edmunson gets to work quickly and works "right to the spot." On Tuesday the Havelock police court had before it a case of a family row. Two sons were accused of assaulting their father. The magistrate bound the young men over to keep the peace, after giving them a few well timed, but impressed words of advice

No Labor Troubles in Peterborough.

The Dominion Government Department of Labor have just issued its report for the year ending March 31st, 1910. One important item in the report, contained in a number of pages, refers to "Applications for boards of conciliation and investigation, etc." under the heading of "Industrial disputes and investigation Act." Whilst this extended list of labor troubles ranges from Nova Scotia to British Columbia, it is pleasant to note that Peterboro, a manufacturing city is not mentioned in the list. This is to be appreciated by local employers, employed, merchants, and our local citizens in general.

Weeds Should Be Exterminated.

The Ontario Government is taking up the subject of exterminating obnoxious weeds. This is a subject that might interest our local city fathers. Here in Peterboro are many vacant lots, left vacant so that the "unearned increment," the increased value imposed by the neighbors' enterprise in building on his own land, may double or treble the price paid for such vacant spots. On these vacant lots weeds of all kinds are allowed to grow and flourish like the proverbial green Bay Tree. The seed from these weeds are blown broadcast and take root in the gardens of the man next door. Some civic legislation should be passed to compel owners of vacant lots to keep the weeds cut down before they mature and go to seed.

Lindsay's Water Plant a Failure.

The good people of Lindsay seem to be in hard luck in regard to their water supply. As noted in a former issue of the Times, we noted that the recently installed "Ozone Filtration Plant," is a failure. Chairman Flavelle of that town has recently received a communication from Mr. Geo. G. Nasmith, director of laboratories Toronto, in which he stated that recently he visited Mr. Earl P. Philps, of Boston, who is probably the best American authority on ozonation and chlorination of water. Mr. Philps knows all the details in regard to the Lindsay purification plant, and he does not think it possible to satisfactorily straighten out their present system. So little ozone is being put into the water that it is practically useless as far as the ozone treatment is concerned.

Letter to The Editor

Prejudiced Against the English.

To the Editor of the Times,—

Dear Sir,—Most people are aware of the prejudice of Canadians in general against the Englishmen in their country, but I think the paragraph headed "A superfluous Explanation," in your valuable paper on Saturday morning last, more than verifies the fact. One cannot but feel surprised that "two ladies" who were supposed to be on an errand of mercy, would lend themselves to so small an act as to make sport out of ignorance of an unfortunate class of people.

Was it kind, was it charitable; these people, many of them, are the victims of environment over which they have no control, and are to be pitied rather than ridiculed, and "the two young ladies" should be thankful that they are not obliged to wear a badly hung gown, like some of their less fortunate sisters.

But with regard to the King's English, I should think there is hardly a country in the world where it is murdered worse than in this country—it is enough to make some of the old English scholars turn over in their graves. Do you know, sir, that one of the rare treats an Englishman gets in this country is to hear an "educated" Canadian address an audience. The perfect English is like balm in Gilead to him. One is inclined to wonder if the "two young ladies" have gone through a college course, if so, and we did but know it, probably their English professors have nearly had their hair standing on end with the terrible pronounciation of the language.

There is a saying, "those who live in glass houses should never throw stones," for there is a chance of them getting badly hit themselves sometime.

Thanking you for this valuable space.

Yours very truly,
AN ENGLISHWOMAN.

LEWIS VANISHED BEFORE WEDDING

NOT SEEN SINCE HE LEFT HIS LODGING HOUSE TO JOIN WAITING BRIDE.

Got Letter in Morning— Further Clues in the Strange Trunk Murder—Fiance's Friends Ask Police to Make a Search.

New York, Nov. 23.—The first tangible clue which may lead to the solution of the murder mystery uncovered Thursday night by the finding of a trunk containing the body of a man in the cellar at No. 450 West Fifty-fourth street was found. William Lewis, the missing person in the mystery, was sought by the police in the early part of 1905 when he vanished from his lodgings three hours before the time set for his wedding to a trained nurse.

In January, 1905, and for fourteen months before that time, Lewis lived in a front room on the second floor of No. 244 West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, according to a statement made by Charles R. Cloudsley, who also revealed the mysterious circumstances under which the man disappeared from his home when all plans had been arranged for his wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Cloudsley say they rented the room to Lewis in the latter part of 1903.

TRUNK CAME IN 1902.

According to the statement made to the police and district attorney by Lewis' friends, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Meagher, the trunk which contained the body of a dead man was shipped to their apartment at No. 356 West Forty-seventh street from a house in West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street some time in 1902.

"Lewis had a gold tooth which showed prominently. Whether or not he had a false set of teeth, I do not know," said Mr. Cloudsley last night "After he vanished relatives and friends of his intended bride sought him for days, but so far as I know they never obtained the slightest trace of his whereabouts. He carried nothing but a valise in which was a suit of clothes. This was in January, 1905, so far as I can remember."

To make certain of the time that Lewis left his home when about to be married Mr. Coudsley refreshed his memory by referring to a letter announcing the death of his aunt. Lewis stayed a few months after that, Mr. Cloudsley's aunt died, according to the letter, in October, 1904. The missing man in the trunk murder mystery was not known as a waiter by Mr. Cloudsley, who believed he was an accountant.

While Lewis lived in the room he rented from Cloudsley he became engaged to a young woman who lived in Fifth avenue, near One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. Two days before the time set for the wedding Lewis, according to Mr. Cloudsley sent two trunks, containing books, portraits and clothes to the home of the woman. One trunk, which was new, but does not fit the description of that in which the body was packed, was sold for $5 to a woman in the neighborhood.

A letter which Lewis received the morning of the day set for the wedding completely unnerved him," said Mrs. Cloudsley last night. "He became so nervous I had to aid him to pack his trunks. He went out at noon, but returned at about four o'clock. An hour later he took his valise and told us that he was going to be married. We wished him good luck."

MESSAGE TO BEST MAN

"The wedding is postponed," was scrawled on a note which Lewis left in his room, and which was found by his best man, who called for him at 6 o'clock that night. It was some time later that the bridal party came over here. Then the police were asked to aid in a confidential search for Lewis.

When the search had been on several weeks, his deserted finance sent a letter to the aged parents of Lewis in Ireland. It was about six months before that time that the trained nurse who had promised her hand to Lewis, journeyed to Rosscrea, County Tipperary, Ireland, where, it is said, the Lewises are one of the foremost families. She was entertained by the elder Lewis and his wife and on her return brought a number of gifts.

While Lewis was courting the nurse Mr. Cloudsley said Lewis was a regular visitor at a political club in Ninth avenue. He spent much of his time at home reading books. Lewis is described as having been precise in every detail of his dress and was particularly proud of his moustache, which he wore with a slight curl.

WORE EXPENSIVE CLOTHING.

"Good clothing houses were patronized by Lewis," said Mr. Cloudsley. "He had two trunks filled with expensive clothing when he came here. In his wardrobe was a heavy Irish tweed coat which he had remodelled. When Lewis disappeared he carried a heavy gold watch and chain. I do not know how he was provided with money."

Mr. Cloudsley declared that he could not be mistaken in the identification of Lewis as the man who lived at his home in 1904 and for months thereafter. The picture printed in the World and given to the police was positively identified by Cloudsley as that of the missing man. There were letters which Mr. Cloudsley said Lewis had shown him from his people in Ireland.

The house in which Mr. Cloudsley lives was found by a reporter for the World on a description furnished by Mr. Meagher to the police and Assistant District Attorney Roubin. For several days detectives have been hovering about the place, which is directly in the rear of the Pabst Hotel in West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street between Eighth and Ninth avenues.

Before the room in the Cloudsley apartment was occupied by Mr. Lewis Mr. Cloudsley said it was rented by a man named George Dayton and prior to that time it was used by a brother of Cloudsley. Lewis came to the place in answer to an advertisement and two weeks after he arranged for the room he moved there. After his trunks were unpacked his room was furnished with pictures, books and some ornaments which had come from Ireland

To Talk for Deep Waterway.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 24.—The annual convention of the Lakes-to-the Gulf Deep Waterway Association, which opens here tomorrow, promises to be a large, influential and highly interesting gathering. Delegates appointed by the boards of trade, chambers of commerce and similar organizations throughout a large section of the country, as well as by the governors of a number of states, are arriving on every train. President W. K. Kavanaugh and members of the executive committee met today and arranged the final details of the two days' programme.

Do You Suffer from Piles?

If so, we would ask you to enquire amongst your friends the value of Zam-Buk for this ailment! You cannot but meet with some one who has proved how excellent it is.

Mr. H. E. Hill of Shevlin, Man., writes:—"I suffered a long time with piles and tried numerous remedies, but without effect. Having tried a sample of Zam-Buk and being encouraged by the result, I persevered, using two boxes. It worked like magic, and effected a complete cure in a very short time."

Mr. James Reddy of Killaloe, Ont., says:—"I suffered greatly from piles. The pain from these—as anyone who suffers from them will know—was almost unbearable. I tried first one remedy and then another, but all without effect. Then I heard about Zam-Buk and determined to give this wonderful balm a trial. I obtained a supply and commenced with the treatment, and to my great joy, after perseverance with Zam Buk, I obtained permanent relief from the agonizing pain of the piles. Having been cured by Zam-Buk I heartily recommend the balm to all sufferers."

Zam-Buk also cures inflamed sores, eczema, scalp sores, ulcers, abscesses, cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, cuts, burns and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores sell at 50c box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse substitutes and imitations.

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2.625 oz. of gold and 3,267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Nictoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $65,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

News from the Niagara district says that canned goods are going to be greatly "boosted" in price. If the men responsible for this last raise in the price of living would only visit Peterboro, a select committee might be organized to give them a ducking in the Otonabee River, and it is to be hoped that a good muddy spot might be chosen for the ducking.

The city of St. Catharines seems by the annual report of their M.H.O. to have an alarming increase in the cases of pneumonia there. This was found to be due to faulty plumbing. Here is a pointer for Peterboro citizens. Plumbing should be carefully looked after and tested, or disease is sure to break out.

Lord Minto Soon to Leave India.

Calcutta, Nov. 19.—Notwithstanding the undeniable state of unrest prevalent among the masses of India at the present time, the near approach of the date fixed for the Earl of Minto to relinquish his office of viceroy has brought forth many popular expressions of appreciation of his services and regrets at his departure. Lord Hardinge of Penshurst, the new viceroy, is expected to reach Calcutta Monday. Lord Minto will make over the seals of office on the following day, and with lady Minto and lady Eileen Elliot will leave for England immediately afterwards.

Crippen's Courage Did Not Fail Him

WARDEN OF PRISON STATES THAT HE WENT TO SCAFFOLD BRAVELY.

Intended to Kill Himself—Search of the Bed Revealed Spectacles With Both Glasses Broken—Planned to Open Vein.

London, Nov. 24.—Ethel Claire Leneve, for love of whom Dr. H. H. Crippen killed his wife, and subsequently paid the penalty with his life, laughed merrily today when she was found at her home in London, and asked when she expected to start for America.

"That was a pretty good joke about my planning to sail on the Majestic, wasn't it?" she asked. "Well, I am going, but when it will be I don't know. I must be left with my sorrow for awhile."

She showed no traces of sorrow, however. She admitted that she will lay claim to any personal property left by Dr. Crippen. The winding up of his affairs will take some time.

PLANNED TO KILL HIMSELF

That Dr. Crippen planned to kill himself to escape hanging is the belief of the wardens at Pentonville prison today.

Warden Stone said "There is no doubt that Crippen sought suicide to escape his ignominous death. He went bravely to the scaffold after his plan was discovered, but it was only by chance that he was caught.

"Tuesday night he was very restless and his movements attracted the attention of one of the night men. An inspection showed that his spectacles were missing. A search of the bed revealed them with the glasses separated from the frame, and both glasses broken.

"We have no doubt that he planned to open a vein in his body."

London, Nov. 24.—Ethel Clare Leneve, for love of whom Dr. H. H. Crippen went yesterday to the gallows for the murder of his wife, will not come to America; at least not for several months. She did not sail yesterday as had been expected. Miss Leneve admits, however, that friends in the United States are desirous of having her with them, and that she would accept their invitation, but she added: "I am afraid I would not find the place I want in America."

Miss Leneve spent yesterday—the day her lover died—in bed. She did not feel able to rise. In discussing her own future today, Miss Leneve said:

"I am the executrix of Dr. Crippen's estate, and I must stay in England until I have settled his affairs. The property must all be disposed of and the debts paid. This may require several months. I shall probably go to the country while preliminary steps are being taken, as I do not feel fit to meet anyone here. Ultimately I shall go where I may hide my identity and be alone with my sorrow. I am afraid I can not do this in America."

Miss Leneve showed a copy of a telegram she sent to Crippen, and which she was assured was handed him half an hour before he went to the gallows. The message read:

"My living thoughts and prayers are with you. God bless you, darling."

"Signed Wifey."

Late last night Miss Leneve visited the Pentonville prison, and had a long talk with the governor. She said she was told that Dr. Crippen had not confessed, as had been reported in the Evening Times. "I loved Dr. Crippen, and I still believe he was innocent," she said.

Commission Duggan Blocks Game.

The ratepayers of Peterborough will be pleased to learn that Industrial Commissioner Duggan has been in communication with the representative or, it is only fair to say, pseudo representative of an American firm, seeking a location for a factory. Unfortunately his correspondent was Mr. D. B. Thomas, who "did up" the good people of Lindsay, on the understanding that he was going to establish a factory there to employ 300 hands, and who did up one of the banks there for several hundred dollars on the strength of his specious representations. Well, whilst this looks like a beginning, Mr. Duggan was wise enough to investigate and found out that the man was evidently a fraud. This was more than the Board of Trade in Lindsay did until too late.

MORE THAN EVER.

Increased Capacity for Mental Labor Since Leaving Off Coffee.

Many former coffee drinkers who have mental work to perform, day after day, have found a better capacity and greater endurance by using Postum instead of ordinary coffee. An Illinois woman writes:

"I had crank coffee for about twenty years, and finally had what the doctor called 'coffee heart.' I was nervous and extremely despondent; had little mental or physical strength left, had kidney trouble and constipation.

"The first noticeable benefit derived from the change from coffee to Postum was the natural action of the kidneys and bowels. In two weeks my heart was greatly improved and my nerves steady.

"Then I became less despondent, and the desire to be active again showed proof of renewed physical and mental strength.

"I am steadily gaining in physical strength and brain power. I formerly did mental work and had to give up on account of coffee, but since using Postum I am doing hard, mental labor with less fatigue than ever before."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter. A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

London Agent of New York Firm Alleged to Have Taken $125,000.

London, Nov. 24.—A. W. Finch, the London agent of Phelps Dodge and Company, of New York, was remanded for one week in the Mansion House court today, charged with having defrauded his employers of $125,000 received in payment of a consignment of copper. Finch surrendered to the police at Liverpool yesterday.

CANADIAN CLUB.

Will Be Addressed By Lieut.-Col. MacQueen on Dec. 1st.

The next meeting of the Canadian Club of Peterborough which will be held on December 1st, promises to be one of especial interest. The club has been fortunate in securing as its speaker for the evening, Lt.-Col. F. W. MacQueen of Toronto, who will deliver an historical and patriotic address, dealing with Canada. Lt.-Col. MacQueen, who is a son of the late Judge MacQueen is recognized as a most able and charming speaker, and his address is being looked forward to with a great deal of interest.

DOES THIS MEAN NO DISSOLUTION?

Premier Asquith Makes Significant Statement Regarding Veto Bill Passage.

London, Nov. 24.—In the Commons today Premier Asquith said if the peto bill passed he could not guarantee that the country would have an opportunity of discussing Home Rule for Scotland and Ireland before they were discussed in parliament.

THE WOMEN WILL GO TO PRISON

London, Nov. 24.—While three hundred Suffragettes jeered and hooted without the building and battled with the police to rush in and rescue their comrades, fifteen of the more militant members of the organization seeking votes for women were fined in the Bow Street Police Court today.

Boos and jeers met each decision of the magistrate, Sir Alfred De Rutzen, and each of the women fined declared that she would accept the alternative of imprisonment rather than pay the fine.

Ten were fined $25 or a month's imprisonment, while a penalty of $10 or a fortnight's imprisonment was imposed on the other five. They were charged with breaking the windows of cabinet ministers' houses, and pleaded guilty when arraigned.

ATTACKED BY HOODLUMS.

While their companions were fighting with the police they were attacked by hooclums from the slums, and several women were badly hurt. The "roughs' attack was so fierce that the police for a time had to turn their attention to the ruffians and beat them off before they succeeded in repelling the Suffragettes.

The condition of Augustin Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, was reported consderably improved today, though he is still suffering from the blows inflicted upon him by a mob of suffragettes

WILL TRACK DOWN COLLIER'S SLAYER

Paris, Nov. 24.—Friends of Albert C. Callier, who had been identified as the victim in the New York trunk murder, met today and started a fund that will be used to track down his slayer. He was well known by students at the Like, Colorossis and Juliens Art academies.

The meeting was presided over by Lionel Malden of Norwich, Conn.

5,300 TURKEYS ONE MAN'S GIFT.

New Yorker Will Present Police With $10,000 Worth of Birds.

New York, Nov. 25.—New York policemen were made happy today by the announcement by Commissioner Cropsey that through the generosity of an unknown donor there would be turkeys for all members of the police department in the borough of Manhattan, from the first inspector down through patrolmen, elevator men, doormen, bedmakers, matrons and chauffeurs to the official "boots." There will be distributed 5,300 turkeys, and the cost will be about $10,000 wholesale.

Cincinnati, Nov. 25.—Farmers in Kentucky have formed a pool for the sale of turkeys along the lines upon which the Burley Tobacco Society was formed. Cincinnati consumers have been told that they will have to pay more for their turkeys this year than heretofore, and that since Chicagoans are back of the pool the birds will be sent to that city if the people here do not want to pay the prices the farmers ask.

THE WINNIPEG INQUIRY.

Council Decides to Investigate at Once the Social Evil.

Winnipeg, Nov. 24.—The Moral and Social Reform Association and the Citizens' Committee were taken by surprise yesterday by the sudden determination of the City Council to proceed with the investigation into the social evil here. They asked for an adjournment until they could arrange to be represented by counsel, and could get their evidence into shape. The investigation was adjourned until this afternoon.

Mr. M. Pappas, proprietor of the Royal and Princess theaters went to Toronto on business yesterday.

MUTINEERS HAVE SEIZED THE ENTIRE BRAZILIAN NAVY

Difficult to Ascertain Just How Grave Situation is, But It is Believed to be Non-Political--Sailors Demanded Increase in Pay

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 24.—Mutineers have seized the entire Brazilian navy. The city has been in terror for twelve hours. Bombardment is expected soon and President Fonseca is reported to have fled. Army still loyal.

The above despatch to the National News Association is the first news received of the situation in Rio Janeiro. The despatch does not indicate the filing time, but from its text is supposed to have been sent before the bombardment reported earlier in the day from London.

A TWIST OF FATE.

By a strange twist of fate, Hermes da Fonseca, who was inaugurated president of Brazil on November 15, has always been a staunch supporter of naval extension plans in his country, and that his navy should revolt against his rule is regarded as strange by those who have followed the trend of affairs in Brazil.

That the taxpayers should revolt would occasion no surprise, for the new president's plans for the enlarging of the army and navy, if carried out, would cause a heavy drain on their purses.

OVERTHREW AN EMPEROR.

Pres dent Fonseca took a leading part in the overthrow of Emperor Dom Pedro in 1899.

London, Nov. 24. The entire Brazilian navy is in revolt and is bombarding the city, according to despatches just received here. The mutiny spread to all the warships this morning when negotiations between the mutineers of the Minas Geraes and the government were broken off. It is reported that President Fonseca has fled into the interior. Among the dead is Captain Baptista Neves.

MESSAGE FROM CONSUL.

Washington, Nov. 24.—The State depattment today received a despatch from Deputy Consul General Slechta, at Rio Janeiro, Brazil, saying that all the Brazilian warships in the harbor are in the hands of mutinous sailors. He furnished no details.

Desperate fighting is repairted to have taken place on the Minas Geraes. The signal for munity was given on the vessel at noon yesterday, and a conflict immediately ensued. The officers of the vessel were taken by surprise, but fought bravely at the head of ninety men, who remained loyal. The battle raged for an hour and then the loyal saiors yielded to the 250 mutineers who had killed the ship's captain in the first few minutes of fighting. The other officers were locked up in their cabins.

By this time a conflict was raging on the Sao Paulo, but this ceased when the mutineers on the Minas Geraes trained their guns on their sister ship and called upon the loyalists to surrender.

The cruiser was the next to yield under the frowning guns.

FLEET IN HARBOR.

The entire Brazilian fleet was in the harbor at the time the munity broke out, but no further effort was made to curb the munity. Peace overtures were made by representatives of the government, and at the last advices a conference was being held in an attempt to reach a compromise.

The despatches received here say nothing of any bombardment of the city.

CAPTAIN KILLED.

London, Nov. 24.—A private despatch received here this afternoon says that the captain of the Brazilian battleship Minas Geraes was killed in the mutiny at Rio Janeiro.

The despatch adds that the crews of two other warships joined the mutineers shortly after midnight this morning, capturing the two vessels and trained their guns on the city.

NO OUTBREAKS ASHORE.

London, Nov. 24.—Despatches received here today confirmed the reports of a munity at Rio Janeiro, Brazil, but stated that President Fonseca and his government had the situation well in hand, though a reign of terror existed in the capital and a condition of martial law prevailed.

Though the crews of several warships had planned to munity only one was successful in seizing its officers and turning its guns on the city. These were soon silenced, and the government made overtures to settle the mutineers' demand for increased pay. Only a few shells were fired and these did practically no damage, as they were poorly aimed, the despatches said.

Several labor agitators in the city were arrested and charged with treason. They were tried by drum-head court martial and sentenced to be shot.

A POWERFUL BATTLESHIP.

The ship reported to have been captured by the rebels was the new battleship Minas Geraes, which is one of the most powerful warships ever built for any navy. When the news that she had been seized, reached the city panic ensued, as her armament of 12 inch guns would be sufficient to batter the city to pieces, and hundreds of residents were forced to the country.

Capt. Bernier Has Been Heard From

THE VETERAN NAVIGATOR IS ENDEAVORING TO REACH HERSCHELL'S ISLAND.

All On Arctic Are Well—Attempt Will Be Made to Effect the Northwest Passage—Building Caches in Case of Accident.

Ottawa, Nov. 24.—A report was received today at the Marine Department from Capt. J. E. Bernier in Command of the Arctic, the government steamer which has gone to the Arctic regions to assert Canad an authority.

It is dated Albert Harbor, August 13, Capt. Bernier says the ship had a fair passage as far as Greenland, where a great deal of ice and fog were encountered. Cape York was sighted on July 27th and Albert Harbor was reached on August 3.

STOREHOUSE BUILT.

There the first cache or storehouse was built and this will be the rendezvous in case of any accident to the expedition. The letter continues: "We are now proceeding to Salmon River to take a few salmon before we proceed to Beechy Island, where we will build cache No. 2 close to Sir John Franklin's memorial. From there I will call at Dealy Island, Melville Island.

DEPOT AT WINTER HARBOR.

"I will establish a small depot at Winter Harbor in case our ship may be nipped by ice in McClure's Strait. At present everything seems favorable to us to perform our work. Everyone on board is well."

Capt. Bernier says he will wait no longer for Scotch whalers. They were there the first of July but reported no captures. "I will leave our letters at the station for the whalers to take home when they come here and this is the last opportunity to communicate with you until we reach Herschell's.

Good Thing for Bowmanville.

Bowmanville, Nov. 24.—The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio, have taken over the assets and goodwill of The Durham Rubber Company, and have already started to make additions to the premises. Over 300 hands will be employed.

SHUN DRINK, KAISER SAYS.

Emperor Advises Naval Cadets to Abstain for Nerves' Sake.

Flensburg, Prussia, Nov. 25.—In a temperance talk to naval cadets today Emperor William cautioned them against excessive drinking, which, he said, undermined the nerves, while the strenuous naval service of today required strong nerves. He counseled total abstinence, suggested that the young men join the Good Templars, and added that the nation, which in the future used the smallest amount of alcohol would march at the head of the column on the fields of art and war. At the opening of the new naval academy at Muerwick the emperor read an order in council laying stress upon the qualifications necessary to naval officers. The times, he said, required iron-hearted men. Character was the first essential, and character was founded upon strong moral and religious convictions.

THE LIBERALS FEAR THE RESULT IN LONDON.

Will Hold Some Fifty Meetings During Election to Stem Tide—Unionists Confident.

London, Nov. 24.—Exactly where the veto bill now stands is difficult to say. In the Lords' minutes it is placed opposite to an entry waiting for an adjourned debate on second reading. It is not believed the government will fix any date for continuing the debate.

The members of the government evidently are not of the opinion that London is safe as it arranged that they address some fifty meetings during the election in an effort to improve the Liberal position in the metropolis. The opinion is expressed that the state of the present register will be to the advantage of the Liberals in London. Had an election taken place on a new register they are confident that in the balance they would win four or five seats, but, if they now hold their own, they will be satisfied.

At the last election in some contests the Liberal majorities were very small. Conservatives feel certain that they will win some of these seats.

The Canadian Associated Press understands that the salary that the government proposes should be paid to M.P.'s is £500 a year.

ANOTHER C.P.R. FARM COLONY

Duke of Sutherland Will Acquire Some From the C.P.R.

Montreal, Nov. 24.—The Duke of Sutherland has instructed the C.P.R.'s Colonization Department to proceed at once with the preparation of a ready-made farm colony at Brooks, in the eastern section of the irrigation block in Alberta. His grace has purchased at this place an area of some 1,300 acres, which will be divided into sixteen farms of about 80 acres each.

LOCKED CHILDREN IN LIVING ROOM

Two Little Ones Smothered and Mother Goes Insane.

Kalmazoo, Mich., Nov. 24.—Edgar and Mabel Riley, six and three years old, were smothered to death in the living room of their father's hotel by an overheated stove. The mother, Mrs. Albert Riley, had locked the children in the room. When she was told of their deaths she went insane.

WILL MAKE WAR ON LONG HAT P NS

Berlin Police Call Upon Women to Cease Using These Modern "Daggers."

Berlin, Nov. 24. The police president of Berlin, in a proclamation issued today, calls upon the women to either cease using long hat pins or turn the points so that they will not be a constant menace to the traveling public. He adds that he is prepared to adopt compulsory measures if the women do not comply with the request.

NEW YORK FEARS ANOTHER STRIKE

Express Representative States Drivers May Go Out Again in December.

New York, Nov. 25.—A representative of one of the express companies of this city made it known today that in several of these, there exists apprehension that there may be another general strike of express drivers early in December.

A strike at that time would be far more serious than the last one, because of its effect on the Christmas trade.

The purpose of the next strike will be to establish unionism in every express company.

GUARD GETS THREE YEARS

For Assisting Moir and Taggart to Escape From Asylum.

Hamilton, Nov. 24.—Morteith Trapnelle, an asylum guard, was at noon today found guilty by Judge Snider of assisting in the escape of Moir and Taggart from the local asylum for the insane, and was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

DECLARES MRS. C. B. MARTIN IS NOT RESPONSIBLE.

And Does Not Realize the Gravity of the Murder Charge Brought Against Her.

New York, Nov. 24.—With the declaration of Dr. Walter Washington, an alienist, that she is insane, counsel for Mrs. Caroline B. Martin have rested their case in the hearing to prove that she should not be brought to trial charged with the murder of her daughter, Orey Snead, the East Orange bath tub victim. Dr. Washington testified he is positive that Mrs. Martin does not realize her position or her need of having counsel.

"A common illusion of insane people is to believe they are sane and the rest of the world insane," the witness said when asked to explain the fact that Mrs Martin has insisted that she is fully responsible.

"Does Mrs Martin say she is sane and the rest of the world insane?"

"I do," interrupted the woman. "I mean Essex County, New Jersey," she added.

On behalf of the State evidence will be presented to show that Mrs. Martin is legally responsible, and should be placed on trial for the alleged murder.

British Army Veterans Organize.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 25.—An organization of veterans of the British army was formed at a convention here today, marking the culmination of a movement which has been under way in Western Canada for some months past. The new organization will be known as the Imperial Veterans' Brigade and will be national in its scope.

FAMILY CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Baby Saved by Rolling Under Bureau —Rescued Crowing.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 25.—The wife of Simon Frutlin, tailor, his two small children and Mrs. J. E. Jackemay, a customer, were crushed to death by the collapse of a new concrete mercantile building at Lorraine avenue. An explosion of unknown origin is believed to have caused the disaster.

A baby, youngest of the Frutlin children was saved by the strength of a bureau under which it had rolled, which supported a weight of many pounds until rescuers found the little one, crowing and unharmed. A servant was seriously injured.

Frutlin himself was badly injured. His two apprentices and a woman and a child escaped at the first warning sound.

SUFFRAGETTES HAD THEIR KNITTING.

Plied Their Knitting in Court Today—Fifty More Were Arrested.

London, Nov. 23.—This evening the suffragettes made another attempt to force their way into the House of Commons, but were repulsed and a number of them arrested.

They also attacked the homes of Sir Edward Grey, foreign secretary, Lewis Harcourt, and Winston Spencer Churchill, the home secretary. More than fifty arrests were made.

All the women arrested yesterday during the attack on Premier Asquith were released today, except those against whom charges of assault and battery were made.

Most of the women prisoners appeared in court carrying bags containing a change of clothing, hopeful of the glory of martyrdom in jail. Some brought their knitting, and, plying their needles buisly during the proceedings, greatly amused the spectators.

Among those held was Mrs. Haverfield, daughter of Lord Abinger, who, according to the testimony introduced, had promised to bring a revolver with her on the occasion of the next suffragette demonstration.

THIS DATE IN HISTORY.

1783—New York City evacuated by the British troops.

1837—Andrew Carnegie, famous capitalist and philanthropist, born in Dunfermline.

1878—The Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise arrived at Halifax.

1890—Charles Stewart Parnell re-elected to the leadership of the Irish National Party.

1892—Sir John Thompson succeeded Sir John C. Abbott as Canadian Premier.

1905—King Haakon VII. and Queen Maud of Norway made their triumphal entry into Christiana, and were enthusiastically welcomed.

GOOD PROGRAM AT ROYAL AND PRINCESS THEATERS.

Martin and Lee have a very clever comedy and dance sketch on at the Royal. This is one of the funniest and most laughter inspelling comedies placed on the Peterborough stage in many a month. The Irishman is Irish, and the girl does a good dance act. At the Princess theater "Twa Hielan' lads," a military comedy shows two gawky Scotch lads leave the farm, and enter the army. Their experiences as raw recruits brought shouts of laughter yesterday. Mr. Loftus sang "Bonnie, My Hielan' Lassie," which appropriately accompanied the picture noted. Both picture and song will be repeated today.

Andrew Carnegie is 73.

New York, Nov. 25.—In as rugged as health as if he had passed all his years breathing the bracing mountain air of his native Scotland, Andrew Carnegie, the world-famous capitalist and philanthropist, quietly observed his seventy-third birthday anniversary today. A week ago Mr. Carnegie announced the gift of an additional $2,500,000 to the Carnegie technical institute in Pittsburg. According to the best figures obtainable the total benefactions of the great ironmaster to date amounts to nearly $175,000,000.

BOTH GIRLS ARE BETTER.

Victims of King Street Shooting Affray Able to Leave Hospital.

Toronto, Nov. 24 "They are very lucky girls."

Such was the comment made by the hospital authorities regarding Georgina Carr and Bessie Brooks Jones, the victims of the American Restaurant shooting affray. Both young women will be able to leave the hospital by tomorrow.

A peculiar feature is that Miss Carr, who was the most seriously injured has made the best progress. At one time her life was despaired of, but she suddenly rallied. The bullet penetrated her back near the hip.

James Shaw who is under arrest charged with shooting the women, will come up for his preliminary examination before Magistrate Denison on Tuesday next.

Burglars Murdered An Aged Couple

VETERAN PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR AND HIS WIFE MURDERED IN THEIR HOME.

Valuables Carried Away—Housekeeper Upstairs Was So Frightened That She Hid Under Bed Until Her Son Came.

Trenton, N.J., Nov. 24. The Rev. Andrew L. Armstrong, the 80-year-old pastor of the Presbyterian church at Dutch Neck, ten miles east of here, and his wife were murdered last night at their home by burglars.

Prosecutor Crossley and County Detective Kirkham left here for the scene of the murder this morning. It is not believed that the murderers left a clue behind.

The aged couple were shot, and it is believed they died instantly. The pastor and his wife had not retired, when the burglars entered their home at about 11 o'clock last night, and that fact probably accounts for their having been murdered.

CUSTOM TO RETIRE EARLY.

The custom of the couple to retire early probably led the burglars to expect that everybody in the house would be sleeping when they entered the place. The burglars it is believed, being detected, immediately shot the minister and his wife.

Mrs. John Sears, an aged woman, who had been for years housekeeper in the Armstrong family, was upstairs when the shooting occurred, and was so afraid that she might be shot herself that she hid under the bed until the arrival of her son, who also lived in the house, but who had been spending the evening away.

CARRIED OFF JEWELRY.

Meanwhile the burglars ransacked the house and carried away jewelry, money and other articles.

Lindsay is Waiting to Get Money Back

Lindsay, Ont., Nov. 24.—Lindsay's new boot and shoe and glove factory and tannery bubble, to employ 375 hands has "gone bust," and the fairy tale is in everybody's mouth.

As yet no trace has been found of the gentlemanly, beardless young man, who with his optimism took the town by storm, and left behind him obligations of $1,000 or more.

The story, that Thomas victimized several Lindsay people is not true. He may have tried to sell stock, but it did not go. The hole in the ground is still to be seen, the office furniture is still intact, and the laborers engaged are still awaiting the return of Thomas to pay them their heard earned wages.

ARRIVED IN STATE.

No fiction reads better than the story of the advent of the Cleveland man to Lindsay and the factory proposition. The popular saying is, "Has anybody here seen Thomas?" and the answer is in the negative.

BRIAND AND THE MAD ROYALIST

There are all kinds of fanatical extremists in the world, and the worst of them is doubtless the fanatical reactionary whose lost cause is not even seriously mentioned or considered worthy of opposition.

The members of the preposterous organization of "young" royalists who attacked the prime minister of the French Republic said that he had wished to strike at the government through the head of the ministry. As a matter of fact, he has helped the government by his crazy act. He has excited sympathy for Briand and indignation against the premier's fire-eating assailants.

Briand is an able and strong man, who knows how far France is ready to go in the direction of radicalism. His former socialist allies, of many of them, call him renegade, because he insists that national security is paramount and that the rights of labor do not include the right to tie up the transportation system of the country or the right to paralize defense and administration by anti-state strikes. The reactionaries hate him because he is so reasonable and statesmanlike that the great industrial and commercial interests trust instead of fearing him a fact which makes for the stability of republicanism and hopelessness of royalist insurrections in clubs and gilded cafes. The more frantic these opposite extremists are the greater the success of Briand's policies will be with thinking men of all classes and opinions.

A REPLY.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Exception taken to Englishwoman's criticism of two local ladies.

Editor Morning Times.

In your paper of Thursday, appeared a well worded letter signed "Englishwoman," in which the writer took exception to the article that you printed on Saturday last. Now Mr. Editor, I happened to see that Saturday article. It was about two ladies, who on a mission of charity, when taking clothing, etc., to a poor English immigrant family, were amused, when a friend of the family visited, with "English Immigrant" indelibly stamped on every feature of her countenance, and displayed by the draggled skirt trailing on the floor, explained with a cockney accent, that she was "h'English 'Erself." The item did not designate the family visited, did not even mention what part of the city they lived in. There was, in short, no possible description as to whom the people referred to were, or where they abide. There was simply a few lines containing, what I personally thought to be rather good joke, that the woman so evidently English should think it necessary to proclaim her nationality. It was just as though an Italian family had been visited by ladies on charity bent, and a friend of the family, with swarthy complexion, big ear-rings, and brightly colored shawl should have said "Signorignas, me am ca Italiano lady." The writer of that letter complains that Englishmen in other countries are not accorded a cordial welcome. To attain this desired welcome, the writer throws a slir on a couple of ladies, who, on a mission of charity, helping an English family, because they happened in the hearing of a Times reporter, to mention a rather good joke without even mentioning the identity of the party referred to. The writer questions the education of the charitable young ladies, without knowing their identity. The whole thing in a nutshell seems to be that some English men are devoid of any sense of wit and cannot understand a joke.

Was Shot By a Black Hand Fiend

Toronto, Nov. 23. What the county police believe to be a "Black Hand" outrage occurred near Islington last night at 9 o'clock when Antonio Furgioni, 1442 Dufferin street, was shot by an unknown Italian, because he refused to give $10 towards towards the help of the "brotherhood."

The unknown was collecting money from the construction gang of the C.P.R. laying a double track just to the north of Islington. The men occupy two boarding cars, and the one which was used by Furgioni and his five comrades was the second visited by the collector.

He stood to the men he was taking a collection for the help of the "brotherhood," and that each man was to pay him $10. He also said that he had collected $80 on the other car. The rest of the men were willing to pay the amount required, but Furgioni declared that he could not afford it. He said he would contribute $5, however.

"If you do not give $10 I will shoot you," said the visitor.

"I will shoot you," reiterated the collector, at the same time drawing his revolver from a coat pocket, and then seeing that Furgioni still remained obdurate he fired at him.

At the sight of the revolver the other occupants of the car hastily climbed into their bunks, while Furgioni made a rush to the stove. As he passed the man he was again fired at but was still uninjured. Quickly doing again just as his victim was dodging behind the stove the unknown hit Furgioni in the side.

As the latter dropped unconscious the visitor pocketed his revolver and walked from the door. He made no other attempt to collect money, and no trace of him can be found by the police.

Later Furgioni's comrades bound up his wounds, but were afraid to notify the authorities until this morning when the patient was brought to St. Michael's Hospital. The bullet is still embedded in his side, but an attempt will be made to remove it this afternoon.

Although it is quite plain the Italians know who the perpetrator of the outrage is they are evidently afraid to divulge his name. According to them, however, he is a young man well dressed, and of polished manners.

Furgioni is about 45 years old, and has been in Canada eight years. He has a wife and five children in Italy. His wound is not considered dangerous, unless poisoning sets in.

THE MILITIA IS WEAK.

Report Emphasises the Lack of Organization—Better System of Mobilization Required.

Ottawa, Nov. 24.—That the Canadian militia i a deficient in certain directions as regards organization, but includes excellent material, and is permeated with spirit is the gist of the report of General Sir John French, inspector-general of the Imperial forces, which has just been presented to parliament.

Prefacing his report with the declaration that a sound system of organization is the basis of all military efficiency and must be based upon a correct appreciation of the characteristics of the country, and requirements of modern war, and that success in war depends upon the harmonious working together of all the arms of the service, he is persuaded that the existing system of the Canadian militia does not fill the requirements. The proportion between the various arms of the service is not properly adjusted for one thing. The infantry and the heavy artillery seem to be in excess of the actual necessities and the field artillery, the engineers and the supplies services much too weak.

Gen. French says that under the existing arrangements whereby certain war divisions are to be formed on mobilization, troops are to be suddenly concentrated in an organization, which is so vital an element in accustomed and placed under commanders and staff who will have had no sufficient practice in handling such units.

QUICK ACTION IMPOSSIBLE.

"The state of affairs existing at the present moment as shown above," declares Gen. French, "would render a quick mobilization and prompt action, which is so vital an element in the frontier defence of Canada altogether impossible, and would effectively paralyze and frustrate any effective preliminary operation of war."

"At present it would not be possible to put the militia in the field in a fit condition to undertake active operations until after the lapse of a considerable period," is Sir John French's conclusion after considering the problem of mobilization. He says that the following subjects which do not seem to have received due attention up to the present should be taken in hand at once by the mobilization department

SOME RECOMMENDATIONS.

"War organization of transport, supply, ordnance and medical services, organization of lines of communication; arrangements for the training of drafts and reinforcements supply and training of remounts and inspection of mobilization stores. Trial peace mobilization should take place periodically; arms, clothing and equipment should be collected at regimental headquarters as rapidly as possible, points of concentration for the various units must be determined, and railway mobilization time tables must be prepared by a railway war council to be composed of the chief of the general staff and other officers and the representatives of the different railway companies.

Sir John declares that the present custom of training city corps at regimental headquarters instead of at camp should be discontinued. Petawpleased him but some of the other camps were too restricted in area and had not enough ground around them.

He is of the opinion that the system of education at the Royal Military College merits extension, and suggests that all graduates from that institution should be compelled to serve in the Canadian militia for ten years. General French recommends that officers be required to have all the necessay qualifications before they are appointed to regimental commands. Many commanding officers, who are young and energetic men, do not realize that the efficiency of the squadron or company is the essence of all sound military training.

HORSE RESERVE.

General French is of the opinion that a reserve of at least 33,000 horses would be necessary to keep the troops of the Dominion efficient for three months after the outbreak of a war. He recommends that an assistant director of remounts be added to the department of the quartermaster general, with a suitable veterinary staff to take over the registration department, arrange for the establishment of horse depots in the time of war and arrange for the transportation of horses in the event of the mobilization of the forces. The Dominion Government should give more encouragement to horse breeders than at present he says.

A report by Maj.-Gen. Sir Percy Lake, inspector-general in Canada, as to the best methods of carrying out Sir John's proposals, accompanies the other report.

SIR PERCY'S IDEAS.

Sir Percy Lake, in his report says that the adoption of Gen. French's recommendations would not involve any change in the policy of the Canadian Militia Council. The suggestions as to organization contemplate a development along the lines of the existing system, and the proposals regarding mobilization merely urge the early completion of measures already in progress. Consideration of the expense and of the supply of trained officers alone govern the question of how far Sir John French's main recommendations can at once be carried into effect. His proposals regarding horse supply, the acquisition of satisfactory training areas and the extension of the Royal Military College also involve material expenditure. His recommendations respecting the training of officers and non-commissioned officers and men, however, are, Sir Percy Lake says, matters mainly of administration, and therefore can be adopted at once.

THE SOLAR SYSTEM.

Its Flight Through Space Toward the Constellation Lyra.

In what direction are you moving? If you are going toward the Battery you will answer "south;" if up Broadway you will answer "north;" toward the Hudson you will say "west," and if in the direction of the East river you will reply "east."

These answers might be correct as regards the surface of the earth, but they may be far from answering the question, for the earth is turning eastwardly at the rate of about a thousand miles an hour, which carries you in that direction very much faster than you can move over the ground.

But that rotating motion, constantly changing your direction in relation to all outside the earth, is quite subordinate to another far more rapid motion that is carrying you and the earth around the sun eastwardly on an entirely different curve at the rate of about nine miles a second, ever changing your direction in relation to the stars in a circular path 279,000,000 miles long.

Yet that isn't a key to your direction, for little you, your tiny earth and your third rate sun, with all of its planets, are travelling as a united group in one direction, differing from all those mentioned. Find the large first magnitude bluish white star Vega, in the constellation of Lyra, and you will be looking in the direction of the flight that our system is taking through space. If you will observe the stars around Vega for a few hundred years you will find that they are apparently slowly separating, while the stars at the opposite pole of the heavens are slowly drawing together. That means we are moving toward Vega and away from the opposite point. This motion is in a circle that cannot be exactly measured, but there is evidence to show that it will require 18,200,000 years for our system to complete it.

Then can you answer, "I am moving toward Vega." Perhaps so, but more likely perhaps not, for it is far from unlikely that you and your solar system, with Vega and all of the galaxy of stars that eye can see on the clearest night, are moving in the same general direction around some great common center yet unknown. Who can tell? No one now, but the possibility is presented to the human mind from what we know of the motions of the great universal clock of space that marks off the seconds of eternity.—New York Herald.

A MAN'S GLOVE.

In the Old Days It Served as Proxy For Its Owner.

In the early days everything was not regulated for the people as it is now by the government and the law courts. Europe was still young then, and people had rough and ready means of dealing with one another, of buying and selling or giving goods and property and settling disputes. A glove, as it was very close indeed to a man's hand, came in course of time to be looked upon as taking the place of the hand itself, and sometimes took the man's place and was made to represent him

For example, to open a fair it was necessary then to have the consent and protection of the great lord in whose country it was going to be held. Those who wished to open the fair would come to the nobleman and petition him to be present. He might be very busy or bored at the idea of having to go, yet he would know that it must be opened or his people would be discontented. So he would say to the leaders of the people: "No, my trusty fellows, I can't open the fair in person, but I will send my glove to do it. You all know my glove. Nobody has one like it in the country. It is the one my lady mother embroidered for me in colored silks and silver wire, and it has a deep violet fringe. You can hang it above the entrance of your fair grounds as a sign that you are acting with my permission. If any one disputes your right or touches his master's glove I will attend to him. That's all." So the glove would travel in state to open the fair.—Westminster Gazette.

Ready With His Tongue.

James T. Brady, a prominent member of the New York bar in the last century, was noted for his ready wit. Quick as Mr. Brady was with the readiness of his race for repartee, he sometimes met his match among his own countrymen. He was once examining an unwilling witness who persistently called him Mr. O'Brady. At length, even his proverbial good nature being a little ruffled, he said to the witness: "You need not call me Mr O'Brady. I've mended my name since I came here and dropped the O." "Have ye, now?" retorted the witness. "Then my sowl, it's a pity ye didn't mend yer manners at the same time!"

Why He Was on Time.

Beranger was one day complimented by a lady on the punctuality with which he kept his engagements. "It is a pleasure," said she, "to invite you to dinner, for you never make us wait."

"I am no longer young, madam," replied the poet, "and experience has taught me one thing—it is dangerous not to arrive at the precise hour, for the guests who are waiting for you will pass the time in discussing your faults."

Spoiled the Evening For Her.

"I suppose you had a perfectly lovely time at the dinner party last night?"

"No. Through some mistake they seated me next to my husband."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Saw Many Wild Geese.

Mr. Gerald Wood, Jackson Park, has returned from a pleasant Fall outing at Burleigh Falls. During his sojourn in the wilds Mr. Wood saw quite a number of deer, not in the form of venison, but "on the hoof," and very much alive. He also reports having seen an unusually large number of wild geese, honking their way south, just below the cloud level.

Veteran Driver to Retire.

Mr. George Mimms, the veteran engineer of the Port Hope-Toronto train, passing through Peterborough is to retire on superanuation allowance. He has been forty-six years in the service of the Grand Trunk and is now sixty-five years of age. During his almost half a century of service Mr. Mimms has had few accidents.

Peterborough Water is Good.

As noted in a former issue of The Times, Dr. McPherson, Medical Health Officer, has been from time to time, making tests of the city water regularly, and under certain weather conditions. At the meeting of the Water Commissioners, Dr. MacPherson stated that the water at the present time was in excellent condition. Each sample last week did not go over the normal mark of six per cent. chlorine. At that mark or under water is not affected.

Miss C. Tougas Now Mrs. Clarke.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at Murray Street Baptist parsonage Wednesday night when Gertrude second daughter of Mr. J. Tougas, Harvey street, was united in marriage to Mr. George Clarke of Toronto. After the ceremony the young couple drove to the home of the bride, where a supper was served. The bride was the recipient of a large number of costly gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke will reside at 339 Aylmer street.

Peterborough Canoes Praised.

As has been frequently noted in the columns of The Times, Peterborough canoes have done more to advertise Peterborough throughout the civilized world than any other product of local manufacture. In the "Touring Club de France," received by the Peterborough Canoe Company, there is in it an interesting recital of a "Canoe cruise in the "Coquet." The Coquet is a Peterborough cedar rib canoe, and the writer is strong in his praise of the lightness, and tightness, and staunchness of the craft, which is described as a "veritable passe partout." The whole article pays a strong tribute to the lightness and tightness and general superiority of Peterborough made canoes.

Local Editor for Winnipeg.

Mr. Chas. F. Raymond, who for some time back, has so efficiently filled the position of editor for The Review, has severed his connection with our esteemed evening contemporary. Mr. Raymond will edit a new magazine to be started soon in Winnipeg, Man. The new magazine has not yet been christened, but the fact that it is to be issued by Mr. Al. Dennis, the well-known publisher of the Prairie City, with Mr. Raymond as Editor, and other facts known, but not yet ripe for publication ensures a sparkling bright monthly paper.

What Local Custom House Costs to Run.

The annual report of the Auditor-General of Canada has just been received by The Times. From this we learn that the salaries paid to officers of the Peterboro Custom House, are R. Hall, collector, $1800.00; Clerks T. H. Glover, $850.00; W. M. Lang, $1000.00. Examining Officer, J. Cameron, $850.00; J. F. Galvin, $850.00; A. R. Kidd, $850.00. Overtime $16.80, or a total of $6,216.80.

The incidental expenses for ink, postage, telephone, &c., amounted to $165.20. The total revenue of the port, per customs collections amounted to $197,263.40 for 1908-1909, and in the year 1909-1910 was $344,934.43, that is an increase for last year of $147,671.03, a pretty good showing.

You are not experimenting on yourself when you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a cold as that preparation has won its great reputation and extensive sales by its remarkable cures of colds, and can always be depended on. Milady's Mirror

"There would be more good looking women if all would realize how their expressions affect the lines of their faces," declared a professional masseuse. "I've just come from working over one who looks twenty years older than she should, and bonely in the bargain, all because she would permit her mouth to droop at the corners. Pouting is bad enough, but she who drops the corners of her lips when she is dissatisfied is the worst and, unfortunately for herself, makes her own punishment severe.

"Lines from the corners of the mouth down to the chin always increase an effect of age and are frightfully unbecoming. You know, women really ought to cultivate an expression of content, even when they are cross, for the improvement in their faces would make the effort worth while.

"To eradicate lines which run from lips to chin it is necessary that the fingers shall be placed behind the cheek (in the mouth, understand) to make a firm surface. If a woman puts a thumb into her mouth she will find the fingers of the same hand brought on the outside so they can rub admirably. A massage cream is to be put on the skin, and then with her fingers stiffened she is to rub round and round on the lines, working and pressing, to make the surface smooth. Of course the line will fall into prominence as soon as the rubbing stops, but if she gives this massage twice a day, for ten minutes at a time, and the rest of the time tries to look pleasant, which will lift the muscles of the lips, an improvement in her appearance is assured.

Sermon on Starving.

"Starvation is killing off the pretty women."

So said a prominent beauty specialist lately.

"Women who diet to improve their figures often work havoc with their faces where the fad is carried to extremes.

"An all fruit or hot water or butter milk diet will not agree with more than one person in a thousand, and it is wise to ascertain before commencing it that we are that one.

"Consider that the peasants and other people in foreign countries who subsist on rice or lentils or brown bread or oatmeal and who are held up to us as an example in simple living have done so all their lives. They do not take it up suddenly. Suppose they should start in to eat ten course dinners. The effect on them would be quite as disastrous as is the effect of the opposite extreme on those "fad ists" women who suddenly decide to live on a dried fig a day or a cup of hot water and a cracker. No doubt we all do eat too much, but remember Rome was not built in a day.

When Walking Upstairs.

In walking upstairs the feet should be placed squarely down on each step, heel and all, and then the work should be performed slowly and deliberately. In this way there is no strain on any particular muscle, but each one is doing its duty in a natural manner. Climbing stairs in this manner is an excellent form of exercise for the lower limbs and, provided the chest is thrown well back and the climber does not get into the habit of bending half doubled when ascending stairs, is excellent for the lungs and heart. The latter is excited to a more rapid action and the lungs get full play.

Your Eyes.

Consider their value.

Above all, don't abuse them.

Do not read or sew by a dim light.

Never use them when you are lying down.

Reading in bed sounds good, but it's ruinous.

It is absolutely absurd to "read one self asleep."

A book that would keep one awake would not put one asleep.

In reading one should try to have the light from a window from the back.

To keep the eyes strong open them every morning in clear, cool water.

To Get Rid of Pimples.

Small pimples which seem on the verge of bursting should be opened with a sterilized needle and the skin covered with a bit of cotton soaked in dioxide of hydrogen after pressure has removed all of the contents which will come out without drawing blood.

Leave this cotton (soaked in dioxide) on the opened pimple for at least ten minutes. If you are about to retire you could wring out the cotton and bind it overnight. Certainly no blood poison could come after such a sterilizing.

The Homeliest Woman.

Mlle. Polaire, the Parisian actress who has won fame as the homeliest woman in the world, with her wasp waist and big mouth and feet, has such a liking for cosmetics that even her tongue and gums are colored, while her face is made to look as white as possible. With her dark hair and eyes it is a combination curious and fascinating.

WARRANT FOR CONDUCTOR.

Wanted for Stealing Fares and Selling Tickets.

(From the Montreal Gazette.)

Judge Lanctot, at the request of the Crown Prosecutor, has issued a bench warrant for the arrest of E. Smith, a former sleeping car conductor in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, who at one time ran between Montreal and Vancouver, and latterly between Montreal and Toronto.

Early in October information reached the Crown authorities which led up to Smith's arrest for stealing sleeping car fares, and for stealing and selling railway tickets to various persons in Montreal and elsewhere. Smith had a preliminary hearing and was committed for trial to the Court of King's Bench, his case being set for the 10th. When called, he failed to appear, with the result that his bail was forfeited and a bench warrant issued for his arrest.

The case caused a good deal of interest in railway circles, and it is probable that other than railway people will become interested, as the name and address of quite a number of people with whom he has been doing business are known, and it is likely that before the matter is finally disposed of several of the hunters for bargains in railway transportation will be dealt with.

"It is really too bad," said a high official of the Canadian Pacific on Saturday, "that the travelling public should suggest such dishonesty to conductors. If passengers would refrain from making conductors steal from the company by offering them facilities and inducements to do so, it would be better for them in every way. We have the names of a good many men who have done this, in Montreal and other places, and they include some pretty prominent men. Morally, they are as guilty, if not more so, than the conductors whom they train to become thieves, and the practice of trying to get cheap transportation at the expense of the company and the honesty of the conductors cannot be too sharply repressed.

"In the present instance it has led to the ruin of a young man and the breaking up of his home. While we are sorry for those who suffer by it, the company must stop this business of stealing fares, and prosecution will follow every instance that is discovered."

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields,

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2.625 oz. of gold and 3.267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

HALF BREED MURDERED AGED CLERGYMAN AND WIFE FOR $8 AND GOLD WATCH.

Public Feeling is Acute—The Prisoner is Alleged to Have Confessed to Police After a Grilling Examination.

Trenton, N.J., Nov 25.—After a thrilling fifteen-hour examination, John Sears, a half-breed Indian and negro, suspected of the murder of the Rev. Amzi L. Armstrong and his wife, collapsed early today. It was reported early around the jail where he is confined that he had made a complete confession. The police refused to confirm this report, but will admit that he had made damaging statements, and that they would be able to make out a complete case against him.

Because of the intense feeling against Sears, and the fear of mob violence, the police are attempting to calm public opinion.

OBJECT OF MURDER.

According to the report of the confession, generally accepted as true, Sears said that he murdered the 80-year-old minister and his wife at the Presbyterian manse at Dutch Neck, nine miles east of this city, to rob them of $2 in money and a gold watch. At the end of the examination the accused man, who has been in the Armstrong family since he was two weeks old, was too weak to stand and had to be carried into his cell from the room, where Prosecutor Wm. J. Crossley and the police had questioned him without intermission since he was arrested yesterday.

SPIRIT OF MOB VENGEANCE.

The people in the community about Dutch Neck were aroused almost to a spirit of mob vengeance today. The sheriff said that extra guards would be placed in the jail tonight, although it was not believed by the police that they were needed.

The mother of the half-breed, who brought suspicion upon herself by her strenuous efforts to shield her son, insisted today upon visiting him in his cell, and carrying food to him, but the authorities prevented her.

Because of the prominence of the Rev. Mr. Armstrong and his wife, and the abiding affection in which "The Dominie, as he was known for twenty miles around, was held, hundreds of people visited the scene of the crime today and the authorities had a hard time to prevent some of them from displaying their excited anger against Sears.

During the forty-four years that Dr. Armsfrang had been pastor at Dutch Neck, he had seen generations grow up, and many of the middle-aged people about there had been christened and married by him.

"I am pleased to recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as the best thing I know of and safest remedy for coughs, colds and bronchial trouble," writes Mrs. L. B. Arnold, of Denver, Colo. "We have used it repeatedly and it has never failed to give relief." Sold by all dealers.

Lecture to Local Astronomers.

Last night Prof. A. C. Chant delivered an eloquent and instructive lecture, in the auditorium of the local Collegiate Institute, before a well attended meeting of the Peterborough Royal Astronomical Society. His address on the starry firmament was illustrated by a number of excellent limelight views, that clearly demonstrated his arguments to the audience. The local astronomers are certainly in earnest in promulgating their theories, and displaying their facts, thus making the general public of this section of Ontario, well acquainted with the mysteries of the great infinite.

Steamer Sank.

The steamer Maple Leaf, owned by the Macdonald Company, while working for the government below Hastings, on Monday, met with a mishap which will likely end her career as she ran into the ice up near Oake's Rock and pulled most of her caulking out along the water line. She started to fill and was beached and now lies on bottom. She was subsequently raised and taken to Hastings.

Their Majesties' Christmas Cards.

London, Nov. 26.—Though the custom of giving presents at the "Merry Yuletide" is said to be dying out, this is not the case with King George and Queen Mary, who are already preparing to remember not only their friends but all those who have rendered good service to them during the year. As many of the relatives and friends of their Majesties reside at points far distant from England it is necessary that the presents for them be despatched several weeks before Christmas. The King has ordered hundreds of articles to be sent to him by London tradesmen, jewelery and art dealers, and from these he will make his selections.

LONDON QUIET OVER ELECTION

NEITHER OF POLITICAL PARTIES SEEM TO HAVE GOTTEN UP STEAM YET.

Enthusiasm Is Lacking—Where Constituencies are Hopelessly Liberal or Unionist There May Be No Fight.

London, Nov. 25.—On traveling about London one sees no sign in the Metropolis of a general election.

The Liberals are confident of success in London, but the word is going out "Beware of overconfidence.

The Unionists are claiming that the working class vote in London will be more in their favor than for a long time past. Neither party seem as yet to have got steam up. The enthusiasm prior to the election a year ago is lacking now. A greater number of uncontested seats will mark the coming conflict as compared to a year ago.

Good judges on both sides are reluctant to throw away time, energy and money in fighting hopeless seats.

London is a lively hope for the Conservatives and their Metropolitan organization is determined not to be caught napping on this occasion.

Much is expected of Mr. Balfour's speech in the Albert Hall demonstration on the 29th. The Liberals are making every effort to draft some of their strongest candidates in London constituencies now represented by Unionists.

Dead Man in Cab of His Giant Engine

THREE HUNDRED PASSENGERS RODE ON TRAIN WITH DEATH AT THE THROTTLE.

Engineer Crowley Died at His Post When Train Was Running at a Speed of Forty Miles an Hour.

Racine, Wis., Nov. 25.—The lives of three hundred passengers on train No 6 on the Chicago., Milwaukee and St. Paul road, bound to Chicago, hung in the balance yesterday when Michael Crowley, engineer, was stricken with apoplexy at his post and died while the train was running forty miles an hour.

The fireman, noting that his engineer did not sound signals for a crossing, called to Crowley and receiving no answer went into the cab and faund him dead. The fireman stopped the train and backed into Corliss.

Pullman Charges High.

Chicagoi Nov. 26.—A sweeping investigation into the rates charged by the Pullman Company for sleeping car berths and parlor car seats is to be instituted by the Interstate Commerce Commission at a hearing to begin Wednesday in Chicago.

NOTICE TO FAT WOMEN.

Presumably you know ladies, that the proper caper nowadays is lines. Curves are passe. You have got to take off your fat. This must be done in one of three ways. By dieting, by exercises, or by means of Marmola Prescription Tablets. The two former will keep you busy for months and punish you severely, the latter will cost you 75 cents at the druggists. The tablets will not make any alteration in your diet necessary, and yet in all probability before you have used up one case, you will be losing from 12 to 16 ounces of fat a day. Which method do you like the best?

If you fancy this pleasant method of getting off the fat, see your druggist, instantly, or else write the Marmola Co., 1192 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Michoit, Mich., to send you a case by mail. These cases contain so generous a quantity of tablets that the treatment is very economical. It is, also, quite harmless, for the tablets are made exactly in accordance with the famous Marmola prescription.

MR. DENNISTOUN BUSY.

Former Local Barrister Takes Part in Winnipeg Municipal Affairs.

That Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, formerly senior partner of the local legal firm of Dennistoun, Peck & Kerr, on his settling in Winnipeg, would quickly command a prominent place in the Prairie City, was generally acknowledged. An investigation is being held in Winnipeg concerning the social evil there. When Mr. Justice Robson sat at the City Hall Wednesday afternoon to commence the investigation, representatives of the Moral and Social Reform Association and Citizens' Committee declared that they had been taken by surprise by the hasty action of the City Council in deciding on the investigation at short notice, asked for an adjournment until they could arrange to be represented by counsel and could get their evidence in shape. Mr. Isaac Pitblado, originally named as counsel for the Police Commission, declined to act, and Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, formerly of this city has taken his place. Several of the candidates for municipal honors on the "suppression" ticket declare that the whole investigation is designed as a farce to sidetrack the discussion during the election campaign.

LIFEBOAT WENT OUT.

But the Crew of Barge Juno Decided to Stay Aboard.

Cobourg, Nov. 15.—The steam barge Juno, with barge Sligo in tow, bound from Belleville to Toronto, loaded with crushed stone, ran back here in Wednesday's gale for shelter. The tow barge barely missed the pier, let go her anchor and dragged it and went on the beach just west of the harbor about 6 o'clock at night. The life boat crew, Capt. Rooney in command, went out to her and ran a line from the barge to the pier. The crew of the barge decided to remain aboard of her. The lifeboat crew kept watching during the night and went out again Thursday morning. The Juno is in the harbor.

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and exposure in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me. I was troubled with pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Nervous Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

More Warships Join the Rebels Government Grants All Demands

RIO DE JANEIRO HAD AN EXCITING NIGHT, MORE SHELLS BEING FIRED— REBELS HAD CONTROL.

Mutineers Showed No Signs of Surrendering and Situation Was Getting Worse—Mutiny is Over But It Was the Government That Was Beaten.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 25.—The mutiny of the fleet is over, but the end came only after an exciting night, which showed that the rebellious sailors had the upper hand. The Congress surrendered at discretion. The demands of the mutineers were all granted by the government.

The capital slept last night with the guns of its own navy trained upon it. The mutineers remained seemingly masters of the situation. Towards one o'clock this morning one of the mutinous fleet fired upon the naval arsenal.

The scout cruiser Deodora joined the battleships Minas Geraes, Sao Paulo, and Florodina, and the scout Bahia in revolt during the night.

The rebellious sailors continued a defiant attitude this morning before Congress met, and there was nothing to indicate that they would compromise or surrender, even though assured of amnesty, except in the event that the government yielded to their ultimatum of yesterday and granted an increase in pay, the abolition of corporal punishment in the navy, and the adjustment of minor grievances.

Death of Mr. John Hayes.

A former well known resident of the township of Otonabee, in the person of Mr. John Hayes, died Wednesday in Chicago. The late Mr. Hayes formerly resided on lot 25, con. 11, Otonabee, but went to the States for his health some time ago. He leaves to mourn his loss, three sisters and three brothers. The sisters are Misses Hannah and Nellie, at home, and Mrs. Daniel Kelly, of Asphodel. The brothers are: Messrs. Daniel and James, of Otonabee, and Cornelius J., of Sudbury. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 from the homestead, "Skinner Glen Farm," to the church of the Sacred Heart, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

THE CLERGY EDUCATING YOUTH AGAINST CANADA

Montreal, Nov. 25.—A lecture this evening on the Canadian navy by the Hon. C. P. B. Casgrain, before the Canadian Literary Society, will no doubt cause a good deal of comment in certain quarters. Senator Casgrain's remarks contained nothing very sensational till a gentleman asked the learned lecturer the cause of the present anti-naval agitation in this province.

"I would be ashamed," replied the senator, "to tell you all that Bourassa and Lavergne and their friends are saying throughout the province, but to give a truthful answer I will have to go further back. The truth is the French clergy are educating the youth of this province to be anti-English, making the plea that, if they lose their language, they will lose their religion. That is the whole story."

A Brutal Murder in a Lumber Camp

WILLIAM CARROLL SMASHED THE SKULL OF JOSEPH TAILLON WITH AN AXE.

Killed the Wrong Man—Slayer Intended to End Life of Harry Jones, Whom He Alleges Had Stolen His Clothes.

Blind River, Ont., Nov. 25.—Tied with ropes, William Carroll, a man of giant build, aged 66, was brought to town last night from Walsie Bros. camp by some lumbermen and was handed over to the police on a charge of murdering Joseph Taillon by chopping his head open with an axe.

HIS CLOTHING STOLEN.

Waldie's camp is located 42 miles north of Blind River. It appears that clothing had been stolen from Carrol in one of the shanties. Sarroll suspected a man named Harry Jones of having taken them. Taillon was bending over, when Carroll entered the shanty. Mistaking the stooping man for Jones, Carroll picked up an axe and saying "You'll never steal any more of my clothes," struck him with the weapon, breaking his skull open and exposing the brains.

DODGED THE BLOW.

George Ritchie, a foreman, grappled with Carroll and held him until he could be tied up with ropes. He was brought into town last night and turned over to Provincial Constable Taylor, who locked him in jail.

MADE A MISTAKE.

Carroll talks freely of his crime and says he made a mistake in killing the wrong man as he did not see his face when he was stooping over.

AE ECCENTRIC FELLOW.

Carroll has always been eccentric He says he was accused of killing "Old Bill Donnelly" on January 22, 1908, but didn't do it.

He will be brought up before Police Magistrate Williams of Thessalon for a preliminary hearing.

Miss Nettie Overend's Marriage.

Thursday afternoon a quiet wedding was solemnized by Rev. Father O'Brien, at the rectory, when Miss "Nettie" Overend became the charming bride of Mr. W. S. Price of this city. The bridesmaid was Miss Marion Overend, while Mr. H. Wadley, manager of the Brinton Carpet Company, assisted the groom. Immediately after the ceremony luncheon was served at the home of the bride, after which the happy young couple left on the 4.38 train on their honeymoon.

Judgment Reserved in Havelock Case

County Magistrate Geo. Edmison has reserved judgment for a week in the case of Larry Killorne, a Havelock hotel keeper, charged with having sold liquor illegally last October. The prosecution had their evidence in a week ago. Five witnesses were heard for the defence, who swore emphatically that no liquor was sold by the defendant on the day in question.

Biliousness is due to a disordered condition of the stomach. Chamberlain's Tablets are essentially a stomach medicine, intended especially to act on that organ; to cleanse it, strengthen it, tone and invigorate it, to regulate the liver and to banish biliousness positively and effectually. For sale by all dealers.

Wants Practice Stopped.

London, Nov. 25.—F. H. Freeland, of Ealing post office, a London suburb, has caused an advertisement to be inserted in local newspapers asking some unknown person to desist sending batches of religious tracts to his wife. He is endeavoring to discover the identity of the person.

"THE RED YEAR."

The Times has secured from the British and Colonial Press Service the exclusive rights for Peterborough to Louis Tracey's great story, "The Red Year." The opening chapters of this masterpiece of modern fiction will be published in Monday morning's edition, and readers of The Times are assured of one of Tracey's best stories.

Louis Tracey is a writer known throughout the English speaking world as one of the best story tellers of today, and in the "Red Year," he sustains the reputation he gained when his "Wings of the Morning" was first given to the public.

In this more recent tale the auth or introduces the reader to the stirring times of the Indian Mutiny and around the charming English girl Winnifred Mayne, he has woven a love story that grips one. The thrilling episodes that mark the progress of the mutiny are enhanced in interest by the mysteries of religious fanaticism and altogether Tracey keeps the reader expectant from beginning to end. His charm of diction completes the virtue of the "Red Year," as a story to which The Times will have pleasure in introducing its readers.

MINISTERS WERE ORDERED OUT

PROF. JACKSON AND REV. DR. HENDERSON MADE TO TAKE A REAR SEAT.

A Friend of Laurier—Methodist Pastor at Ottawa Feels Annoyed — Priests Not So Treated.

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—A humiliating experience befell Rev. George Jackson of Toronto, professor in Victoria College, Dr. Henderson, pastor of the leading Methodist church of Ottawa, and a party of ladies, on Monday night in the House of Parliament, when they were ordered out of a front seat in the gallery by an usher in terms that could be safely classified as discourteous.

When a reporter called at Dr. Henderson's home today for the particulars of the incident he was in bed with grippe and in a voice that could scarcely be heard, Dr. Henderson said:

"Dr. Jackson occupied my pulpit on Sunday and we arranged to go to hear the debate on the speech from the throne on Monday night. On arriving at the House we met Colonel Sam Hughes and he very courteously offered to have us shown to a front seat in the gallery. A messenger was deputed to take us to the seat, which he did. We had not been seated many minutes when an usher came to us and in a very peremptory tone of voice said, 'You ladies and gentlemen will have to get out of this seat: if is not for you.' He then left us to find a seat in the back.

"I could see that Dr. Jackson felt humiliated, and so did I, but I thought it would be wise not to say anything at the time, but I could not understand the procedure after we had been allowed the seat by a member of the House. I was at a loss to understand the situation, but when one of our ladies remarked to me, 'If you had been a Roman Catholic priest you would have been allowed to stay,' that caused me to suspect the usher had some ulterior motive for his action.

"We found a seat in the rear, but we all felt humiliated. Being a minister of one of the leading churches of the city, and a personal friend of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and many of the Cabinet ministers, I felt insulted at what happened."

"Do you intend to make any inquiries about the incident?" was asked.

"I don't know yet what to do," was the answer. "It is a well known fact that the public gallery of the House of Commons is always well sprinkled with Roman Catholic priests, and who appear to be given precedence over all others in the choice of seats in the gallery."

Last night the galleries were crowded, and two ladies were standing in the aisles, yet two priests of the Roman Catholic Church, who occupied the same places that Dr. Henderson and Dr. Jackson were compelled to vacate, were allowed to sit still undisturbed. The front seats of the galleries are often occupied by priests and nuns."

USHER WAS JUSTIFIED.

"You must understand," said Col. Hughes today, "that the front seat in the north speaker's gallery is for the wives and daughters of members and the front seat in the middle speaker's gallery is for the wives and daughters of cabinet ministers. In asking Dr. Henderson and his party to leave the seat, the usher was within his rights.

"I am, however, informed that on more than one occasion clergymen of another denomination and laymen of that denomination have occupied the seats in question. It is quite likely that I shall bring the matter before the attention of the house."

Toronto, Nov. 25.—Professor Jackson when seen by a reporter today, said:

"Dr. Henderson and I went to the House of Commons," said he, "and Colonel Sam Hughes, M.P., instructed an attendant to conduct us to the front row of the gallery. When we got there, the attendant in charge of the gallery said that as the front row was reserved for ladies, we would have to take the second row—which we did without any objections or unpleasantness of any kind.

"I did hear some one remark, however, that if we had been Catholic priests we would have been allowed to occupy the front row seats."

Pays $100 for Four Seats to See Game

"THE RED YEAR."

MR. CAWTHRA MULOCK HANDS OVER TOP NOTCH PRICE TO SEE TODAY'S GAME.

Receipts Will Be $9,000—Field and Stands Will Accommodate Over 10,000 Spectators—Grounds Will Be Slippery.

Hamilton, Nov. 25.—The record price for reserved seats for tomorrow's game between the Tigers and Varsity was established here today when Mr. Cawthra Mulock of Toronto, paid $100 for four of the choice seats in the new stand, the sale being made by a local chap who has speculated quite extensively in the tickets and has cleaned up a nice sum.

This fellow is in Toronto today with a bundle of tickets and all of them were spoken for before he left here.

STANDS ARE SAFE.

Building Inspector Anderson and a corps of assistants were busy today inspecting the temporary stands which will seat thousands of people at the big game tomorrow. "Greater precautions for the safety of the public have never been taken at the cricket grounds," said Mr. Anderson. "The stands are absolutely safe."

NIGHTINGALE MEMORIAL.

Scheme for Giving Pensions to Aged or Needy Nurses.

London, Nov. 25.—The question of the provision of a scheme for giving pensions to nurses when they are no longer able to carry on their beneficial work, either owing to increasing age or because they have not been able to save enough for a livelihood, has for some time been one of prominence with authorities in the nursing world. At the time of Florence Nightingale's death it was thought by many that the opportunity for the realization of the proposal had come. For in what better way could the memory of the illustrious pioneer of nursing be perpetuated than by enabling the thousands of those engaged in her own profession to be freed from worry and anxiety as age began to creep upon them.

With this object in view a letter was sent to the press as soon after Miss Nightingale's death as August 22 last by the lady who founded the Army and Navy Male Nurses Co operation, in which the idea of the pension fund for old hospital trained nurses was put forward. Since that time the idea has developed into what is known as the Imperial Memorial to Miss Nightingale. Its object is that of asking for national support for a fund to be raised in memory of the famous Lady of the Lamp forrendering pecuniary assistance to aged nurses. It is pointed out that, even at middle age there are few appointments open to nurses who have spent their time in public service. A nurse's career is necessarily short, as the public demand the services of a young and up-to-date woman, and this leaves small margin for even a thrifty woman to provide a pension of say, $150 a year, and near relations often claim the greater portion of her earnings.

The Imperial scheme has received very wide and influential support. Adeline Duchess of Bedford., Lord Charles Beresford, Sir William Church, Sir Anderson, Crichett, Admiral Fremantle, Sir William Gowers, M.P., Lord Claud Hamilton, Mr Lewis Harcourt, Lord Hardinge (the new Viceroy of Indian), Lord Iveagh, Sir Francesos Laking, the Bishop of London, the Duke of Manchester, the Duke and Duchess of Norfolk, the Bishop of Oxford, General Sir Reginald Pole-Carew, Lord Rothschild, Baron Alfred Rothschild, the Duke of Westminster, the archbishop of Westminster, and Field-Marsoal Sie Evelyn Wood are only a few of the patrons and vice patrons of the movement. The idea of the organizers is to make the memorial an Imperial one in the widest sense of the word. It is not only people in this country who are appealed to, but those in every part of the Empire—the oversea Dominion, India, and the Crown Colonies, and the smallest subscriptions will be welcomed. Everyone who has in any way benefitted from the kindly ministrations of a nurse in any part of the world, may, if they so wish send a donation, however small.

UNRULY WOMEN SENT TO PRISON

NINE MILITANT SUFFRAGETTES WILL SPEND NEXT TWO MONTHS IN JAIL.

Pandemonium in Court—Ringleaders Declare They Will Not Obey the Rules and Will Decline to Eat or Work.

London, Nov. 25.—The severest sentences ever imposed upon Suffragettes in England were today imposed on the three ringleaders who led mobs of women in the storming of the government offices. They were sentenced to two months at hard labor. Others were discharged and still others had their hearings postponed.

Bow street court was crowded with spectators, and when the sentences were imposed the Suffragettes among the spectators cheered and cried, "Votes for women." The three women who were sentenced took the judge's words calmly and immediately produced handbags containing a change of clothing. The "Martyrs" were led away to their cells amid a pandemonium of noise which caused the presiding magistrate to threaten to have the court room cleared by force.

WILL REFUSE TO EAT.

The three women threatened to disobey prison rules, and to refuse to eat or work.

Six more Suffragettes were arraigned this afternoon and received two months' sentences. They were found guilty of throwing stones and iron bolts through the windows of government offices and refused to make any defence.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUE IN ENGLAND.

It is impossible to keep secondary and minor issues out of an election and it is evident that the electorate of the United Kingdom will hear a great deal in the next few weeks about home rule, protection, land reform, labor legislation, and so on. But the paramount issue is, and will remain, the constitutional one—the power and function of the lords in the scheme of government. The respective leaders of the two great parties do not shrink from this issue and are not trying to dodge or obscure it.

What are the differences between them as to this issue? What is the maximum the tories are now willing to grant; what the minimum the liberals consider irreducible?

It may not be that the British peers are surrendering more than any class has ever given up since the eve of the French revolution, but they are really surrendering a great deal. Panic or not, deathbed repentance or not, the fact of their surrender is momentous. They offer to reduce by half the membership of the upper house, to abolish the hereditary principle, to introduce an elective element, to submit most disputes between the houses to a joint session, and certain essential ones to a popular referendum, and to waive all veto claims as to finance bills proper.

Two years ago such concessions as these would have staggered the stubborn tories and amazed the liberals and radicals. Two years ago no one would have denied that they were calculated to give an impetus to democracy and a severe blow to feudalism and privilege.

Today, however, the liberals scornfully reject them as vague, illusory, inadequate. They are determined to fight and risk everything in an election rather than accept the above indicated compromise. Why? Because, they say, the lords as mended would still remain permanently tory—a perpetual opposition to any liberal government. They demand a chance "to carry the lords" or an opportunity to pass legislation over and against the lords' veto. Here is Mr. Asquith's brief summary of the liberal position:

We propose such a change in the relations of the two chambers as will confine the second chamber to those subordinate functions which are admittedly appropriate to such a body and which will secure a fair even working of the two parties whichever party is in power. We ask that in future the will of the people as expressed by the house of commons shall within the lifetime of a single parliament be effectively supreme.

This, say Asquith and all his associates, is not at all revolutionary, but moderate and reasonable—so reasonable that they will take nothing less and confidently appeal to the electors.

The campaign will be short, sharp and exciting; the voters will have little time for reflection and the pondering of arguments. Their mood, emotions, instincts and impressions will determine the result of the contest.

NATIONAL NICKNAMES.

An Italian resident writes asking why the slang word "Dago" should be used when newspaper reference is made to persons of his race. Frankly speaking, we do not know why Italians should be referred to as "Dagoes," or why Chinese should be called "Chinks," or negroes "coons," or Jews "sheenies," or Englishmen "cockneys" and "sparrows," or Irishmen "Micks," or Mexicans "greasers."—Hamilton Spectator.

Canadians sometimes object to being called "Colonials." They cannot complain, however, so long as they continue to make free and oftentimes offensive use of the national nicknames enumerated by the Spectator. This fact, however, does not make the derivation of several epithets any the less interesting.

It is informing to know, for instance, that the original "dagoes" were not Italians, but Spaniards, Diego (James) being the patron saint of Spain. Various explanations are offered with regard to "Chinks." It may be simply an abbreviation of Chinese, or it may refer to the perforated coins which these people carry in long strings. "Chink," in this sense being closely related to "jingle." A negro is a "coon," because of his fondness for that animal, just as a Frenchman is known as a "Froggy." "Sheenie" is a corruption of the French "chien," a dog. "Mick" is another form of Mike. Mexicans, it is presumed are called "greasers" because that expressive term is supposed to fit them.

The derivation of the word "cockney" is a mystery. A dozen explanations of the term are given, which is wrongly applied by Canadians to Englishmen in general. Its correct usage has to do only with people born within the sound of Bow Bells, London. There are those who say that the Thames was formerly known as the Cockney. Others derive the word from "cock," connecting it thus with the fine feathers of city folk. A root meaning "to coddle" is also quoted, but none of the theories have the stamp of authority.

GO SHOPPING ALONE.

Smiles irradicated the floor-walker's face. Business had been poor, but it was picking up for that day. How did he know? Women were shopping in pairs and trios.

"They always buy so much more when they come in bunches. When a woman shops alone she buys only what she needs or can afford, and when she shops with friends she buys what she wants them to think she can afford."

Woman's World

The Strenuous Life—Old and Young Women in the Race.

MISS BOLENS—MISS ELEANOR SEARS.

Old and young, for pleasure and for profit, women are keeping shoulder to shoulder with men in their strenuous race for the successes that come from mighty effort. Whether in the field of business, philanthropy or athletic sports the race is to the swift.

For several years Miss Eleanor Sears has been accounted the most strenuous and successful of women in the all round athletic class. This favored Boston society girl handles the ribbons over thoroughbred horses with the best of the crack whips and drives her motorcar like a professional chauffeur. She sails a boat with the best of them, plays tennis and makes wonderful drives on the golf links. Probably at this moment she is having an aeroplane costume made for a "flapping" trip.

Miss Sears has all the energy that should belong to youth and health, but more remarkable still is the career of Mrs. Sarah Bolens, who, at eighty years of age, is a successful editor of a paper at Port Washington, Wis. She can generally be found in the editorial rooms of her paper, the Star, and those in the office say that she knows more than any one else about its makeup.

Mrs. Bolens is intellectually bright and entertaining. Her memories of the early editors of Wisconsin are unimpaired, and she can tell interesting anecdotes of many of them.

Stirring tales can Mrs. Bolens tell of her childhood days, when the women wore men's clothes and carried rifles. During the civil war, while her husband, father and brothers were engaged in the war of the rebellion, Sally Bolens was publishing a newspaper, and she became the official head of the Star upon the death of her husband, a position she is now filling, although in her eightieth year.

Buy Christmas Gifts Now.

This is a good month to buy Christmas presents if a wise selection is made. Silk stockings are a favorite gift to girls and can be had for less now than in December. If, however, you find lovely ones in lace effects for almost nothing, remember that lace stockings are almost unrecognized now by fashionable women, and the favorite is a sheer, thin silk with clocks or solid embroidery in self tones.

You may be tempted again to get that feather boa which is so much cheaper than any you ever saw. Perhaps you think it will be just the gift for the friend to whom you are under such obligations. A strict answer to the "Why?" would reveal that feather boas are conspicuous by their absence just now. It is the purchase for some girl who does not keep to the top notch of style, but an embarrassment to the friend who does.

In purchasing bargains for gifts go in less for personal things than for fainty pieces of china, glass, silver or antiques that are much refined. It is an excellent time to buy wedding presents if there is an appalling array of brides for the autumn.

Bits of jewelry, novel hatpins or belt buckles that are in good style now will be equally good at Christmas. The same cannot be said of neckwear and blouses. A pretty corset cover or combination and a fine nightdress will invariably make an acceptable gift.

Wise Brevities.

Abandon the "impulse of the moment" attitude. Sleep on it and you will feel different in the morning.

Truth is fragile, short lived, unobtrusive, bold and sweet to the taste.

Still Active at Ninety-Three.

New York, Nov. 25.—receiving congratulations from distinguished friends throughout America, and also from abroad, John Bigelow, who is frequently spoken of as "the first gentleman of New York," today observed his ninety-third birthday, surrounded by the members of his family, giving up a part of the day also to a general public reception. Mr. Bigelow began his public career in the forties. During the civil war he was United States Minister to France. For many years now he has taken no part in public life, but has done much literary work. In spite of his advanced years he is still in good health and does more or less work every day.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Enter by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect house worth $300.00.

HE HAS BEEN THE ONLY PRESIDENT WHO COULD KEEP ORDER IN MEXICO.

Has 700 Millions There —Vast Sum Invested in Republic—Rebel Leader an Educated Man.

Washington, Nov. 25.—The proclamation of Francisco I. Madero, signing himself as President of the Provisional Government of Mexico, centred interest today upon the attitude of the State Department toward the Diaz Government and the revolutionists, who must be recognized as at least an organized belligerent party.

Inquries made at the department were met with the assertion that officially the United States Government has no "attitude." It is merely the intention of the United States to maintain neutrality and uphold its obligations under the provisions of its treaties with Mexico, it was said. As to "sympathy," however, the position of Secretary Knox can best be inferred from the statement that there is invested in Mexico $700,000,000 of American capital. This money is placed in mines, cattle ranches, plantations, and rubber enterprises. President Diaz has, by the stern arm with which he has ruled his country, greatly favored these projects.

Up to the time of the present regime, no executive was ever able to keep order among the turbulent people of Mexico long enough to promote its industrial welfare and open its incalculable natural resources. Diaz saw that to do this, foreign capital was necessary. He has made investments for Americans an attractive proposition, and the State department as a result considers that expediency alone would demand support of Diaz.

Francisco I. Madero is a wealthy Mexican, of excellent education, and undoubtedly a man of considerable ability, but any change in the personnel of the executive officials of Mexico would not but jeopardize American interests in Mexico, say State Department officials. A change would be very apt to prove a fatal blow, particularly as one of the strongest cards played by the Liberal party, which Madero headed in the last election, was the alleged coalition between Diaz and the U.S. Government which the Liberals played before the Mexican public as treachery on the part of Diaz against Mexican interests.

OATH TAKEN BY REBELS.

Eagle Pass, Texas, Nov. 26.—Death to all Mexican revolutionists who revert to allegiance to Diaz is threatened in a manifesto in circulation today throughout all Northern Mexico, in which Francisco I. Madero is described as "Provisional President." Madero's statement is attached to oath of the rebels, which was formulated, it says, when the organizing junta of the Liberal party of Mexico determined upon the overthrow of Diaz at a meeting in St. Louis.

Revolutionists are required to swear loyalty to the Liberals in the five provisions of the oath. The oath:

1—As Mexican citizens we swear to take up arms to overthrow the hateful dictatorship of General Diaz, who oppresses us. We will not lay them down until we have obtained a provisional government, such as is guaranteed by the carrying out of the program of the Liberal party promulgated by the organizing junta of the same party in St. Louis on July 1, 1906.

2—All patriots who will take upon themselves the responsibility of leading the movement in any part of the republic must be careful not to circulate widely the manifesto inviting the people to overthrow the government.

3—It is prohibited to have anything to do or to treat with persons who could obstruct the revolution, and who does it shall be unpardonably sentenced to capital punishment by a council-of-war, which shall be organized for this purpose.

4—The chiefs of the revolutionary movement shall have the power to send out expeditions and to make appointments that they shall deem prudent for the better realization of their projects.

5—Every chief of a group shall be authorized to raise funds from the government offices and from any persons from whom they may be able to obtain it, be the means what they may.

A GREAT WASTE OF MEN AND MATERIAL, SAYS THE REV. GEORGE HANSON.

Should Be Co-operation—Tay Pay Says That Every Public Man In Canada Is In Favor of Home Rule.

London, Nov. 24.—At a meeting of the Evangelican Alliance, Atchdeacon Madden and Rev. George Hansome gave vivid descriptions of their tour of Canada. Archdeacon Madden said the Dominion is determined to have a Canadian Evangelical Alliance, and he believed the best thing to do was to fall in with the scheme put forward at Halifax and Toronto for an alliance with headquarters in Toronto, employing a traveling secretary. The whole work would be in safer hands in Canada. They would want the guidance of the parent body, but if the organization was to be a permanent one, it must be worked on Canadian soil by Canadian people for Canadian purposes.

Rev. Mr. Hanson said it seemed to him a perfect folly on the part of the churches in Canada to erect four or five churches in a single small area, when one church with one pastor would suffice. They should form a joint committee and formulate a scheme of co-operative action, which would enable them to avoid the overlapping that existed with the consequent waste of men and material.

London, Nov. 24.—At a meeting of the United Irish League, T. P. O'Connor challenged the Tories to produce a single prime minister or cabinet minister in the Canadian Provinces who does not believe that the honor and safety of the British Empire demand the concession of Home Rule.

Melbourne, Nov. 24.—Premier Murray and his colleagues in the Cabinet entertained Thomas Tait at a farewell parliamentary banquet. Cordial speeches were made disproving the rumors already repeatedly denied by the premier that Mr. Tait's retirement was hastened by reason of friction with the cabinet.

HISTORIC LONDON STREET.

The Scene of Little Dorrit's Girlhood to Be Blotted Out.

In the obliteration of Tabard street, London will do away with a road that is a disgrace to modern civilization yet one familiarly connected with the city's history, poetry and every circumstance of greatness. In the days before the new Dover road wheeled round from the borough into the Kentish highway, Tabard street was called Kent street and was the main approach to London from anywhere in Kent, from Canterbury, from the Cinque Ports, and so one might almost say from Europe.

Up that street nearly 600 years ago rode the Black Prince, conqueror at Poictiers, bringing with him in triumph the captive French King, a pageant compared with which these 20th century shows are but half hearted pieces of make believe. Up Tabard street swarmed the peasants of Kent under Wat Tyler and later on Jack Cade and his Kentish men, pouring in from the heart of England's industry, the "Lancashire lads" of that day.

Down Tabard street some time before either of these events the Canterbury Pilgrims clattered over the stone on their way to Becket's shrine.

Yet as long ago as the 13th century the street was a haunt of depravity and poverty In Shakespeare's time it was shunned by all respectable folk. For centuries it was deplored that distinguished foreigners coming from the continent should get their first impression of London from Tabard street, and sometimes they used to be hurried through by night so that they would see as little of it as possible.

The recent resource of changing the name to something more poetic has had no effect. Vice and dirt seem to be in its very air, and since the creation of Dover road turned the stream of traffic elsewhere it has just quietly degenerated into a back slum.

Yet the very dingiest — though not the worst—features of Tabard street have a romance for us to-day because of Charles Dickens. Not a hundred yards from Tabard street Little Dorrit was born. At St. George's Church hard by she was married and there, too, the kindly beadle laid her to sleep with the burial register for pillow.

Even the old Marshalsea, the debtors prison, where Mr. Dorrit was so distinguished a resident, where Dickens' own father was not unknown and to which Dickens himself paid many a visit as a boy—is still to be traced to a far greater extent than is imagined.

One has only to dive into Angel place — the little court on the left just before one comes to St. George's from London Bridge—to find the grim old walls of the Marshalsea standing as they stood a century ago. Following the old walls round by warehouses and offices flanked by grimy little paved alleys that are probably themselves Dickens survivals, one reaches the Southwark mortuary. Close by is a battered old door—once an actual door of the old Marshalsea. Here from across the alley close by the entrance to the mortuary over the wall one may catch a glimpse of the old Marshalsea belfry, practically just as it was when it rang out locking up time for Little Dorrit and her father. Coming round into St. George's churchyard one has completely encircled the famous old prison that was the world of little Dorrit's girlhood.

Royal Servants on Holiday.

The Royal servants will have a much longer holiday than usual this year. As a rule, all the servants except those required to be in personal attendance on Their Majesties would, in the ordinary course of events, be relieved from duty from August to October, when they usually returned to Buckingham Palace. But, as the Court will not be in London again until February, the servants will not be required to return to the palace before then.

A certain number of the Royal servants have, of course, gone to Balmoral, but the grooms of the chambers, the pages, and the state porters, as well as a number of the female staff, have been relieved of duty for the next four or five months.

Many of the late King's servants have been re-engaged in the new Royal household, but two of the most prominent have been pensioned off, namely, Mr. Menager, the former head chef, and Mr. Chandler, King Edward's valet. Mr. Chandler's son, it will be remembered, was recently killed in a motor-car accident.

When the Royal servants go on their holiday they must notify the Master of the Household, the Lord Chamberlain, or the Master of the Horse, according to the particular department of the household which they may be in, of their address, and they must be ready to return to duty within twenty-four hours if required to do so, unless they are specially exempted from service for a specified period.

Drumming Immigration.

All through the streets of London, especially in the Strand, one finds handsome shops, rented by various Colonial Governments, filled with most attractive exhibits of their various produce. Rhodesia is one of the latest Governments to start a shop of this kind, and there you can see not only amazing heads of maize and oats, but also beautiful furs, such as otter, the last thing you would expect to find from a tropical country; and you can buy cigarettes of Rhodesian-grown "Turkish" tobacco which compare favorably with the best weed from the Levant. This tobacco is grown near Buluwayo, where only a few years ago the wild Matabele fought and hunted.

Explore Island.

Bathurst Island has just been explored by a British Government expedition. It is situated some fifty miles from Port Darwin, Northern Australia, and has an area of 1200 square miles. It is uninhabited, but it is well watered with fresh running streams, and has a fertile soil, capable of growing rice, rubber, cotton and tobacco.

Annual Dinner.

The annual dinner of No. 6 Company, 57th Regiment, will take place on Monday evening at Hooper's.

Called to Napanee.

Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A., of Lindsay, formerly pastor of George St. Methodist Church of this city, has been invited to become the pastor of the Western Methodist Church, Napanee, for 1911.

Charlotte St. Church Sympathises.

The Charlotte street church, of which the late Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., was a member at their last meeting passed a resolution sympathizing with the family of the deceased in their bereavement, and paying a high tribute to Mr. Stevenson.

The Not-Outs Ball.

The younger generation of Peterborough's elite, described usually as the "Not Outs," are to hold a fancy dress ball at the Conservatory Music Hall. The lady chaperons are to be Mesdames T. F. Matthews, A. H. Stratton, R. W. Morris, H. D. Burritt, F. A. Aylmer, W. H. Hill, and Rupert Gliddon. Miss I. Coventry is directress and Miss J. Hawkey, hon secretary.

Peterborough Man Wins Suit.

Mr. Wm. C. Greenfield of Port Hope, claimed $161 from Mr. George L. Stevens of this city, as commission on automobiles sold in Port Hope. It was shown that the claim was not justified, and the court cut the amount down to $15.

Crossen Car Works.

Mr. Aitken sometime ago got an option on the Crossen Car Works, at Cobourg, and it is understood that the syndicate he heads, exclusively composed of Montreal magnates, has paid nearly the entire purchase price. It is believed, however, that the Crossen Car Works will continue to be operated at Cobourg as an independent concern.

Belmont Club Gives a Banquet.

The Belmont Club is certainly a live organization. Their latest semi-public function was a farewell banquet to Messrs. Gordon Miller and T. Hannah, members of the club, who are leaving the city, Mr. Miller going to Victoria, B.C., and Mr. Hannah to Chicago. An excellent repast was served by Messrs. Coleman, after which a short toast list was proposed. Mr. J. T. C. Laing presiding, Mr. Hawley Shepard, of Bay City, Mich., who is in the city, for the purpose of directing the Belmont Club Minstrels, with his wife, and Mr. W. S. Davidson, were guests of the club.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The Travelers' Life Assurance Company has opened an office here with Mr. W. S. Currie, as local inspector, and Mr. James T. Anderson as district manager.

In the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1910, the post office department paid $542.59 discount to Peterborough stamp vendors. Norwood paid $30.62 on the same account.

The Boy Scouts held a drill in the armories last night. As the baseball diamond and the lawn tennis court were in process of being marked out the boys were compelled to hold their drill in the band hall.

Some Peterborough football enthusiasts are expected to take in the big "Footer" game at Hamilton, which will, it is expected be attended today by 10,000 people at least. The game is between the Tigers and Varsity for the Rugby championship of Canada.

A New York policeman who had a foot cut off and otherwise mangled by a street car there, gets a lot of space in the press and an office job at full pay. Some other policemen lose their reputation for veracity and still hold down the job.

THOUGHTS OF A BUSY FELLOW

On Past, Current and Coming Events of Local and General Import.

WAITING FOR CHRISTMAS.

I need new shirts and need 'em badly,
The socks I have are thin and worn.
But wife declares she'll darn 'em gladly,
If I won't buy till Christmas morn.
My collars now are frayed and splitting,
Of gloves I've not a decent pair,
But she declares it wise and fitting
To wait. I may get things to wear.

My neckties all are torn and tattered,
My slippers out at toe and heel,
My fancy vest is gravy spattered,
I think it's pork or lamb or veal.
To buy such things just now, she warns me
Is simply throwing coin away,
And so though ragged stuff adorns me,
I'm hanging on till Christmas day.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION.

Notwithstanding that an agitation is developing for the government of municipalities by commission, no change in the present system can be effected for another year. So radical a form as outlined by Mr. W. H. Moore, and which is at present working so satisfactorily in Des Moines, Iowa, can only be adopted by act of legislature. There seems to be no doubt whatever but that the system in force in the State of Iowa provides for as desirable a representative Board of Commissioners—elected by the people—as the world has yet seen. But, as Mr. Moore pointed out on Tuesday evening, even that system is at present an experimental one, and from a conference between men of intelligence and experience in municipal affairs in the province there may evolve a plan for reformed municipal government immeasurably superior to that by an elected commission. And in all matters of reform that directly affects the general interests of municipalities or states, due caution should be observed before arriving at any definite conclusions.

No doubt the present system of municipal government is antiquated and does not fully meet present needs. Dr. Morrison suggests that a commission of three, one retiring each year, would give better results than a larger aldermanic board. Each succeeding council will not carry out the policy of its predecessors, he adds, necessitating increased expenditure and ofttimes costly blunders. The doctor has had experience on our municipal board, and his views are worthy of consideration.

Ald. Hicks, twice chairman of the Council's most executive committee—the Board of Works—a capable and energetic alderman, evidently leans in favor of a legislative board of representatives with an Executive Commission, or Board of Controllers, similar to Toronto's city government. And he offers that his experience teaches that the main difficulty in Peterborough's city government lies in the carrying out of details.

Whatever divergence of opinion may exist on this momentous question, one thing seems evident, and that is, we cannot consistently expect the same degree of efficiency from a city council that "gives" its services, in many cases at a sacrifice of business and home ties, as would accrue from a Paid Executive. For the past twenty years no retiring council has escaped the election cry of "New Blood Wanted," and evidently the acceptable kind of new blood has not yet been forthcoming in Peterborough, from the ratepayers point of view. Generally speaking, it is not the men who are at fault, but a system that demands the fullest degree of efficiency for the most discouraging measure of remuneration—"abuse."

The year 1911, however, will see Peterborough governed by a Mayor and twelve aldermen, as heretofore, and candidates for office and the electors should govern themselves accordingly. But there is every reason to expect a change in the city's method of government in 1912, providing Peterborough's Board of Trade and other Boards of Trade unite in fostering the agitation for a reform in municipal government as yet in an embryo state.

By the way, it would be interesting to know of what service the new pumping station will be should an injunction be issued against the city to prohibit polluting the river with sewage?

THE GLADSTONBURY THORN.

Among customs now disused, a ceremony existed at the Court of England as late as the reign of Charles II. of bringing a branch of the Gladstonbury thorn, which usually blossoms on Christmas eve, in procession and presenting it with great pomp to the King and Queen of England on Christmas morning. On the Christmas day of 1660, when the king extended his hand to take the flowering branch, he exclaimed, "Well, this is a miracle, is it?" "Yes, your Majesty," said the officer who presented it, "a miracle peculiar to England, and regarded with great veneration by the Catholics here." "How so?" said the king, "when this miracle opposes itself to the Pope?" Everyone looked astonished in the Royal circle, Papists and Protestants. "You bring me this miraculous branch on Christmas day, old style. Does it always observe the old style by which we English celebrate the Nativity in its time of flowering?" asked the king. "Always," replied the venerators of the miracle. "Then," said King Charles, "the Pope and your miracle differ not a little, for he always celebrates Christmas day ten days earlier by the calendar of new style, which has been ordained at Rome by Papal orders for nearly a century."

REJECTED ADDRESSES.

On November 21st, 1862, the ancient church of Austin Friars, in the city of London, England, was destroyed by fire, which originated it was believed, in the carelessness of some workmen employed in executing repairs. In Austin Friars (1735) Richard Gough, the antiquary, was born; and here, at No. 18, lived James Smith, one of the authors of the "Rejected Addresses." A second James Smith coming to the place, after he had been many years a resident here, produced so much confusion to both, that the last-comer waited on the author and suggested, to prevent future inconvenience, that one or the other had better leave, hinting at the same time, that he should like to stay. "No," said the wit, "I am James the First, you are James the Second; you must abdicate." James Smith wrote the following:—

EPIGRAM ON A CERTAIN DULL PREACHER.

"Whene'er your auditors to tire,
By long discourse, you choose,
The fret work leaves the Gothic spire,
And settles in the pews."

IMPORTANCE OF A MANUFACTURERS' COMMITTEE.

With Lindsay's recent experience, re industrial boom, before us, it might not be out of place to mention that if Peterborough has not secured new industries of late years, its manufacturers' committees have at least turned down more than one questionable proposition for location. Were the general public acquainted with the extraordinary inducements some promoters, and even established industries, are asking in return for locating in our midst, they would better understand the real importance of such a committee and the business acumen demanded of it. For instance, this year's manufacturers' committee was actually asked that the city guarantee the sale of a certain amount of stock as inducement for a concern, yet in an embryo state, to locate in Peterborough. The usual fixed assessment was of course, also insisted upon. Well, the committee quite properly refused to form themselves into a stock-selling company, and negotiations will probably end. And the company seem to have a good thing, too, but the stock-selling guarantee is impossible.

While not succeeding in adding to our list of substantial industries this year, the present Manufacturers' Committee is entitled to a fair measure of credit in not having been seduced by some glowing but doubtful proposition submitted to them, and in safeguarding citizens from the get-rich-quick schemes of advocates of high finance.

THE VIOLIN.

On November 24th, 1807, a fidler, near Alston Moor, England, was returning home in a snowstorm, he took shelter in a hovel, which was soon overwhelmed with snow. Next day some shepherds heard him playing in his prison, and with some difficulty relieved him from his perilous situation. The violin seems to have been brought into favor in the court of France by the arrival of Baltazarini, a great performer on the instrument, who at the head of a band of violin players, was sent from Peidmont by Marshal Brissac to Catherine de Medicis, and appointed by that princess her first valet de chambre and superintendent of music.

BROKE HER THIGH AT 100.

On November 24th, 1810, Thomasin Robinson died, aged 111 years, in Sandgate, Newcastle, Eng., where she resided ever since she was born. When upwards of 100 she had her thigh broken, but recovered perfectly.

THE ALLEGED CONFESSION OF CRIPPEN.

We should not place much credence in the alleged confession of Crippen, as published in the London "Evening" Times, a yellow journal, conducted on American lines. Had the story emanated from the London Times, England's Thunderer, every confidence might have been placed in the statement, but, coming from such a source as it did without any written guarantee of its truth, its authority is impeachable. The task of writing up such a confession, based on evidence submitted and the crown prosecutor's theory of the crime, would by no means be a difficult one for any newspaper man of average ability to undertake. Whether the alleged confession be true or not, the man was evidently guilty and has paid the penalty. Let he and the Leneve girl drop out of memory.

In connection with the Crippen case, and to show what credence can be placed in statements published by yellow journals, one report said that Crippen sold his confession to the Evening Times to raise a fund with which to pay his funeral expenses. Well, there's not much expense connected with enclosing a body in a rough box and burying it in the jail yard, in quicklime—the British custom in such cases—all at the government's expense of course.

BEER BY THE POUND.

On November 25th, 1690, a bill was passed in England imposing a duty upon malt liquors. That the Egyptians used to brew beer we know on the authority of Herodotus. Tacitus, speaking of the customs of the German tribes, refers to their great love of beer, a disposition, by-the-way, which is not wanting in their modern descendants. At Kempsey, near Worcester, some years since, was the following inn-sign:—"The Severn Trow, by William Thorn. Good ale sold by the pound." This reads like an old joke, with very little in it.

The regular monthly Board meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association will be held on Monday afternoon at 3.30.

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields,

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2,625 oz. of gold and 3,267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

Serious Loss by Fire at Nassau on Saturday

MR. BARNETT'S BARN AND CONTENTS DESTROYED BY THE FLAMES.

Loss Will Probably Be in the Neighborhood of $7,000 or $8,000 — House Was Saved.

A serious loss by fire, occurred to the north of the city on Saturday evening about eight o'clock. Mr. Barnett, who lives near Nassau found his barn to be on fire and with the neighbors tried to extinguish the flames. However, the whole season's dry straw caught fire, and the conflagration was soon beyond control. Mr. Barnett ran to the nearest telephone, and called up the fire hall at the exact moment that Chief Howard noticing the reflections of the fiery element in the evening sky, was trying by phone to locate the fire As soon as the chief saw the reflection in the north, he issued immediate orders to harness up and wait. As soon as he ascertained that the fire was beyond the city limits and too far distant from any hydrants for the hose, and, begged by the owner to come and save his residence, Chief Howard, with two of his men jumped into his fire buggy and took four "chemicals" with them. On their arrival at the scene it was found that the firemen could do nothing with the Babcocks, as the barn was fully destroyed and the danger to the house was gone. The house was singed in one or two places on the roof by flying cinders, but not materially injured. Mr. Barnett will be a heavy loser, possibly to the extent of $7,000 or $8,000. He loses a fine large barn with cement foundation, four hundred and fifty bushels of oats, twenty-one fine pigs, and his whole season's straw.

A peculair feature of this fire is its exemplification of the old adage "Its an ill wind that blows nobody good." As the chief and his men were driving out to the fire, on north Water street their progress was stopped by an overturned buggy, blocking the roadway. In the sewer, some three or five feet deep was a struggling horse, unable to extricate itself. It seems that the man who had been driving home in the buggy, became confused between a corporation lantern on the bank of gravel thrown out of the sewer and the light of an approaching car. He drove the horse right into the open sewer, and could not get it out. Chief Howard and his two men, with the owner of the horse, pulled the animal out in about two minutes. The buggy and harness were somewhat damaged, but neither the horse nor its owner seemed any the worse physically for the adventure As one of the firemen remarked, "If we did no good at the fire we certainly did a good turn for the owner of the horse. It is understood that this same man was burned out, with heavy loss at Auburn two years ago.

TRENT WATER SOURCE MAY BE INCREASED

COL. SAM HUGHES, M.P., HAS TAKEN MATTER UP.

It Looks as Though Our Waterway Will Be Greatly Improved By a Greatly Increased Supply of Water.

Col. Sam. Hughes, East Victoria's Member in the Commons, gives careful attention to all concerning his constituency and though a strong party man can be relied upon to forward the interests of his constituents and his constituency, quite regardless of parties. The Colonel spends much of his holidays in the summer through the woods and lakes of Haliburton district, and is thoroughly acquainted with existing conditions. Last week the Colonel sent the following letter to the Toronto and Ottawa authorities concerning the deflections of the waters of Hollow Lake and the adjoining height of land pleateau in Haliburton, from the natural channel via the Gull and Trent River system to the Muskoka River system.

It is respectfully submitted for consideration, investigation and action to restore the said waters to the natural channel.

1. Hollow Lake formerly emptied out at the southwest corner near Minden Bay. The waters flowed into Trout Lake thence via Sonora, not St. Nora, as incorrectly named, and little Kushog to Boskung and onward. In periods of overflow, Trout enter Boskung via Hawk and Hall Lakes also. Thence it flowed via Gull River past Minden, and onward by Elliott's Falls, Norland, Coboconk Rosedale, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon, Buckhorn, Burleigh, Lakefield, Peterboro, Hastings, Heeley's Falls, Campbellford, and Frankford to Trenton.

2. In the early days when lumbermen were the administrators in that country, the Lake Simcoe interests, wishing to obtain better flow adown Black River to Lake Couchiching blockaded the unused passage to Trout Lake, by filling up with brush mud, etc., and opened a channel to connect with Raven and Wren on the head waters of the Black River.

3. The next move made also in early days was when the Muskoka lumbermen began Hollow Lake operations. To facilitate these, they being chiefly the same men as were interested in the Black River and Lake Simcoe regions, a cutting was made at the west side of Hollow Lake, so as to permit of the flow being into Lake of Bays, or Trading Lake at Dorset, and thence via Baysville and Bracebridge to Muskoka Lakes; and the other channel was blockaded.

4. Some years ago to partially restore the natural route, but not the natural channel, Gilmour Bros. lumbermen deflected the waters of the Black River at the foot of Wren Lake in Sonora Lake, and brought their logs by a translide from Lake of Bays near Dorset, over the dividing ridge. It was then pointed out to them, what was best, easiest and natural, viz., to reopen the blockaded natural passages from Minden Fay locality into Trout, and close the artificial one into Lake of Bays and the minor one into Raven and Wren. But the Muskoka interests were dominant.

5. In the early days the superior Lumber interests of Lake Simcoe and Muskoka, were paramount in Hollow Lake region. Indeed no limits were then held by operators interested in the Gull waters; so much changes were carried out with impunity from anyone in authority. Indeed no one was then interested except those making the change.

6. But, with the disappearance of the timber, other important interests arise making the conservation of the water to its natural channels most important.

7. The Gull River route has become a great factor in development of power and in navigation. Called upon to feed the Trent Canal both ways, from Balsam Lake, the old route will thus be further deprived of the waters naturally belonging to it which are taken to Lake Simcoe side for canal purposes. Places such as Minden, Elliotts Falls, Norland, Coboconk, Rosedale, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon, Buckhorn, Burleigh, Lakefield, Peterboro, Hastings, Heeley's Falls, Campbellford, Frankford, and Trenton, will not be accorded their full flow. Thus the entire route will be undoubtedly deprived of its full natural water rights.

8. In the interests of justice, of manufacturing and of Trent Canal navigation, may I be permitted to assert that the Waters of Hollow Lake and the vast Heights of Land region around it should be restored to the natural channels via the Gull River and Trent system.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED
NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.
Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got Their New Method Treatment. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

BISHOP FALLON SUMMONED TO ECCLESIASTICAL COURT IN ROME

THE FOES OF BISHOP FALLON HAVE BEEN QUIETLY PREPARING A FORMIDABLE BRIEF.

In Respect to Bishop's Bilingual School Attitude—Laval Professor Named as Prosecutor—Base of Charges.

Ottawa, Nov. 26.—When Right Reverend M. F. Fallon, bishop of London, leaves for Rome shortly, he will carry with him a subpoena from an ecclesiastical court which is to hear charges that have been preferred against the worthy London prelate.

While it is difficult to secure facts concerning this latest phase of this now celebrated case, as those who are in the secrets of the Church will not discuss the question, nevertheless, it is known that a member of the faculty of Laval University, Quebec, has been appointed as the prosecutor. This latter functionary, it is understood, is Monseigneir Gignac, D.C.L., one of the best nformed men in Canada on Canon law, and himself the author of several valuable works on the subject of his choice.

BASE OF CHARGES.

The foes of Bishop Fallon have been quietly preparing a rather formidable brief. Of course the now celebrated letter which Provincial Secretary Hanna indited "in his best reportorial style," to his friend and desk mate, Hon Dr. R. A. Pyne, minister of education, will form the base of the accusations for which the London divince will have to answer. The "official" document which was translated for La Revue Franco-Americaine of Quebec, and later Le Devoir of Montreal, will form exhibit A.

The trial, it is hinted, will prove a sensational one. Not since the troublous times of 1896, when the Manitoba school question was to the fore, have the Roman Catholic bishops interferred in matters of politics. The creation of the office of papal ablegate at Ottawa, followed the meddling in politics indulged in by a number of bishops. The situation which has arisen as a result of the London bishop's campaign against the bilingual schools of Essex and Kent counties, has become so grevious a one that the holy see will not even entrust the conduct of this rather remarkable case to Monseigneur Stagni, the new papal ablegate.

STATUS OF KENT SCHOOLS.

Those who are behind the prosecution of the bishop are strongest in their condemnation of his allegations regarding the status of the Essex and Kent county schools. In short, they argue that the former bishop of the London diocese, the present archbishop of Toronto, is in a great measure responsible for the trouble. There was no separate schools in that section of the Province until the advent of Archbishop McEvay to the See of London. All the best schools in the exclusively French-Canadian sections were converted into separate schools, and the lay teachers were discharged. Windsor held out stubbornly against this innovation until Bishop Fallon brought about a change last fall. All this, it is contended, mititated against the success of the bilingual schools, for few people cared to undergo the ardous studies necessary to qualify themselves for this trying profession, when only the poorer schools were within their reach. In his arraignment of the system Bishop Fallon, it is urged by the prosecution, failed to place the responsibility where it belonged. There are those of the laity who are now determined to do so. Moreover, they contend that the worthy prelate did not have that knowledge of condition not have that knowledge of conditions to warrant his making so sweeping a statement. The French-Canadians are particularly incensed against Inspector Sullivan, who has many enemies in the eastern parts of the Province.

Incidentally they point to the fact that Bishop Fallon had only been installed in office three weeks when he made his sweeping condemnation to Hon. W. J. Hanna at Sarnia. This information, the bishop's prosecutors allege, could have come from no other secource than from Inspector Sullivan, whose cause the bishop was pleading before Provincial Secretary Hanna

Eleven Miners Buried Alive in a Coal Mine

(Special to The Times.)

Providence, Kentucky, Nov. 26.—Officials of the Providence Mining Company and State Mine Inspectors are still hopeful that the eleven miners imprisoned in the shaft of No. 3 by a gas explosion yesterday may be alive.

Air is being forced in the working through steam popes leading to the drills. The mine seems to have been freed from gas and preparations are being made for entering the mine.

Coming Musical Treat.

Whilst in Toronto last week Messrs. John Crane and Walter Stocker concluded arrangements whereby Peterborough will have an opportunity on Monday, April 3rd prox. to hear the magnificent Empire Choir of England, which sails in March 15, on a seven months' tour of the British Empire. They will arrive in Peterborough late on Saturday night, and will spend Sunday and Monday here. The choir consists of two hundred voices, and has been selected only after careful competition. Leaving England on March 15, they will give concerts at Montreal, Ottawa, and Kingston before coming to Peterborough. Their tour embraces Australia and New Zealand. It will be one of the biggest events musically that Peterborough has ever seen.

Fearful Loss of Life in a Big Fire Girls Leaped From Windows

DEAD AT LATEST ACCOUNTS NUMBER 28, AND TWO SCORE ARE INJURED.

Fifty Girls Were Trapped in Upper Floor of Two Storey Building at Newark, N.J.

Newark, N.J., Nov. 26.—Fifty girls were trapped this morning in the upper floor of the four storey building occupied by Louis Wolff, a manufacturer of underwear, and many of them jumped and were killed or badly injured. The fire spread with great rapidity through the building.

Practically all of the victims were young women, employes of the manufacturing concerns which occupied the building. Some were saved by jumping into life nets, but most of the killed met deaths in leaping from windows before the firemen arrived.

The death list at 2 o'clock this afternoon had been increased to twenty eight. It was said that five bodies had been found in the cellar of the ruined building.

An investigation by the police resulted in a statement that the fire originated when Miss Sadies Henson was cleaning a carbon of an incandescent lamp in the shop of the Aetna Electric Company, lamp manufacturers on the third floor. She poured gasoline into the apparatus which she was operating, and in a twinkling there was a blaze, that flared up into Miss Hemmer's face, and connected with some waste paper material.

HEROIC ACTS.

Acts of extraordinary heroism were performed by the score. Three priests from St. Patrick's Cathedral—Fathers Kernan, Dillon and Brennan—fought their way into the burning structure against the protests of persons who saw them, and gave conditional absolution to the dying. All escaped narrowly the fate of those who sought to succor. Firemen fought with each other to be allowed to enter the burning building. So fierce were the flames, however, that ladders placed against the building burned like matches and the work of rendering aid to the trapped employes was extremely hazardous.

Several of those who leaped toward the nets misjudged the distance and missed striking them, falling to the pavement. It is estimated that at least half a dozen were killed in this manner.

Some of the firemen were perhaps mortally injured by being struck by falling bodies. Nearly all of the victims were girls, employed in the box factory.

Many Immigrants Placed in Jobs.

Mr. G. W. Howson, local immigration agent has placed over five hundred immigrants this present year in positions. Since his appointment some four years ago, Mr. Howson has obtained work for over fifteen hundred new comers to Canada. The great majority of these immigrants have obtained work with farmers of the county, who consider the local office a great boon. Some of these immigrants have been failures, but by far the greater majority have been successful. A great many, after spending a year or so, on the farms in this part of the country, go to Western Canada, where greater opportunities await them. There are constant demands upon the immigration office for men.

NEARLY A FOURTH FREE FROM TAXES

THAT WAS WHY QUEBEC DECIDED THAT RELIGIOUS BODIES WOULD HAVE TO PAY.

New Orders From Europe—Quebec City Hopes to Get $8,000 More Revenue by New System.

Quebec, Nov. 26.—Many complaints have been filed with the board of assessors by the religious corporations which have been out on the assessment roll like other lay institutions. The complaints will be heard in a few days before the recorder's court, and if they are rejected, as everything seems to show, an appeal will be made to higher courts.

The total value of real property in Quebec is now $38,149,504, and out of this there is very nearly $9,000,000 of untaxed property, that is, nearly one quarter of the total, including the properties of local and Federal governments, as well as religious institutions.

The religious institutes that will be taxed are: The White Fathers of Africa, the Fathers of the Sacred Heart, the Dominicans, the Sisters de L'Esperance, the White Sisters of Africa, and the Sisters of St. Valier. Most of them are strictly contemplative, and have come to Quebec after having been chased from France, buying here from citizens properties taxed before, and which, according to an immemorial tradition, they succeeded in exempting from taxation as religious institutions. Amongst the Protestants, the old Morin College, now only a libarary, is the only institution affected by the new order of things.

TO TAX HUGE FARM.

Every religious order, whether charitable and educational or not, will be taxed on vacant lots and farms. The large farm, Merici, valued at $80,000, owned by the Ursuline Sisters in Montealm ward, will be also taxed.

It is estimated that the taxes to be collected under the new system will bring in a sum of nearly $6,000 a year. This is not the result of an anti-religious sentiment, but only a strict application of the city charter by the city legal advisers, whose attention was drawn to it by citizens who realised that the abuse of privilege by the religious orders recently arrived from France was getting too great.

SOUTHERN SPIDERS.

Peterborough Man Gives Some Interesting Particulars About Florida.

Mr. Archie McDonald, of Smith St. who has recently been engaged with other scientists in southern Florida, experimenting in the manufacture of paper out of palmetto, a description of which was given in a former issue, yesterday gave a Times' representative an idea of the insect life in that part of the Florida peninsula. Asked as to mosquitoes, Mr. McDonald said those pests were no worse or hungrier than they are here. "Well, how about insect life in general," was asked. Mr. McDonald naively replied, "Well, of course, there are other big flies that bite and then there are the big spiders." When asked by the Times, "Do you refer to the tarantulas?" "Oh, no," said Mr. MacDonald, "tarantulas don't bother you in the house. I refer to a big spider that builds its web on the ceiling, and suddenly pounces down right in front of you on the big cockroaches. You know the cockroaches are so plentiful and so big you have to put roach poison about all the time. When a roach begins to stagger from the effects of the poison one of the spiders lets himself down by a web, grabs a roach climbs back with his prey and dines, dropping the empty shell of the roach." "How big are these insects respectively? Are the spiders as big as a quarter?" "As big as a quarter?" laughed Mr. MacDonald. "My dear fellow, they are quite as big as that," holding out an extended open hand, "and the roaches are nearer as long. When the mother spider raises a brood of little spiders, the youngsters at once proceed to eat ma, leaving only her empty shell. They possibly hum the song 'What' she matter with mother? She's all right!"

Berlin Gets New Industry.

Berlin, Ont., Nov. 28.—Niagara power is now being supplied continuously in Berlin. Those using the power are well satisfied. Negotiations are in progress between the Berlin Board of Trade and a Chicago manufacturer looking to the establishment of an industry for the manufacture of engines in Berlin. One hundred hands will be employed if the industry is landed.

FIREMAN CRUSHED TO DEATH.

His Widow's First Husband Met the Same Fate Five Years Ago.

Belleville, Nov. 25.—W. G. Brown, a G.T.R. fireman, who late yesterday afternoon was caught between two cars which were being shunted in the yard here, died in the hospital at an early hour this morning. The unfortunate man sustained severe injuries in the abdomen. Brown was a married man, residing in this city, and formerly lived in Mount Forest. Mrs. Brown's former husband, Mr. George Dicks, was killed five years ago the day Brown met his death and nearby at the same place.

London, Nov. 25.—Mrs. J. Lockwood Kipling, mother of Rudyard Kipling died yesterday.

Are Trying to Gag Kaiser Wilhelm

SOCIALIST MAKES A FIERCE ONSLAUGHT ON THE EMPEROR FOR VIOLATING HIS PLEDGES.

Brings Scorn on Germany—Wild Applause Greeted Outspoken Opinions of Ledebour in Richstag.

Berlin, Nov. 27.—An attempt to "gag" Emperor William by law is to be made by the Socialist members of the Reichstag. In a bitter speech, filled with incentive, Herr Ledebour today assailed the recent utterances of the kaiser, ridiculed his pretensions of "Divine right," and said that public utterances along the line of those recently made by the monarch were not only in "bad taste, but positively irritating to all Germans who have the welfare of the nation at heart."

"What measures will the chancellor take to keep his pledges given to this Reichstag in November, 1908, by Prince Von Buelow?" demanded Ledebour. "These were given solemnly in the name of the emperor, only to be ruthlessly violated by his majesty at Koenigsberg and other places. Did the pledges mean nothing? Cannot the German people believe that promises made from the throne are intended to be kept? If this is the case, and the recent developments would seem to indicate that it is, then the time has come when legislation must be enacted that will keep the ruling monarch from making public utterances that reflect on his people.

"The speech at Koenigsberg endangered German honor, and German safety. The nation expects that the Emperor will maintain his promise of 1908 to assume an attitude of reserve in public hereafter. His recent speeches glorifying his ancestors and upholding the claim of rule by divine right were in very bad taste. They have an irritating effect on the people of Germany, and have tended to hold the German nation up to the ridicule of the world."

Herr Ledebour spoke for an hour in this strain his speech being punctuated by wild applause from the Socialist members.

SAMUEL GOMPERS WILL NOT HAVE OPPOSITION.

For the Presidency of the Federation of Labor—A Fight for the Vice-Presidents.

St. Louis, Nov. 25.—Talk of naming an opponent to Samuel Gompers as president of the American Federation of Labor has subsided.

It is understood today, however, Victor Berger or Max Hayes, the leading Socialists, will vote in the negative when the labor leader's name is proposed, so as not to make his selection unanimous, satisfying themselves with the fight they have made to oust William Huber of Indianapolis from the vice-presidency.

Huber's name will probably be the only one left from the present roster of Federation officials, the re-election of the remaining of the vice-presidents and executive board being practically assured

"I do not believe that there is any other medicine so good for whooping cough as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. Francis Turpin, Junction City, Ore. This remedy is also unsurpassed for colds and croup For sale by all dealers.

Varsity Trim Hamilton Tigers by 16 Points to 7

Hamilton, Nov. 26.—Once more the Varsity royal purple is supreme in Canadian football, and the white stands for a clear season, unsoiled by a single defeat. The Tiger black will do for the gloom of Hamilton. The score was 16 to 7 at the close. It was a great game, even if it was the worst handled crowd of years. The players at least had a chance, and the game was won on its merits. It was a team of young enthusiasts trained to the minute, and loaded with all the football knowledge there is against an aggregation of wonderful individuals with nothing like the condition and only a rudimentary knowledge of the game. It was a personal triumph for Coach Harry Griffiths, who, by the way, is a Hamilton man. Varsity were at it at the drop of the hat, and as they had done with Ottawa a year ago they put the Tigers over the ropes at the start.

From then to half time they had the best of the play until just before the opening of the second half, when Tigers came again after the rush and for a time looked dangerous. It lasted through the third quarter, when was more than was expected, but after that till toward the close, it was a procession and Varsity was playing water to Hamilton's sieve.

The vaunted Tigers' line did do things for a time, but Varsity's halves were so fast and Foulds so quick in his service that as a result there was time to spare. Gall, Maynard, and Dixon put up a wonderful line of football, and all the fumbles were behind the Tigers line. Every man was playing the game for all that was in him. Simpson, for the Tigers did wonderful service, but fumbled at times, while Moore and Kid Smith, were too sure kickers. The game went where it belonged, for even of the luck that was going the Tigers had an even break, and had they had all of it, Varsity would have been sitting in the same seat tonight

SAY HE ESCAPED FROM ASSYLUM

MAN ACCUSED OF MURDER IN ALLEGED TO HAVE GOT AWAY FROM LONDON.

Blind River, Ont., Nov. 26.—The body of Joseph Talliand, not Louis Tallon, as at first reported, who was killed by William Carroll in camp No 5 of Waldie Bros., Ltd., on Monday evening, arrived last evening and was placed in Eddy Bros. warehouse. It is expected that Coroner W. S. Burd will empannel a jury and that the inquest will be held today, but it will have to be adjourned to secure witnesses.

The victim was entirely innocent of stealing Carroll's clothes and never knew what struck him when he was attacked by Carroll.

Insanity will probably be the grounds for the defence, as it is stated there is insanity in the prisoner's family, and that the prisoner escaped from the London asylum in 1901 and made his way into these parts.

The prisoner denies all connection with the Biddulph tragedy, although he comes from that township and knew a great deal about it. He stated that the Carrolls, who achieved notoriety at that time, are not 'related to him in any way.

HEALTH AND INCOME.

Both Kept Up on Scientific Food.

Good sturdy health helps one a lot to make money.

With the loss of health one's income is liable to shrink, if not entirely dwindle away.

When a young lady has to make her own living, good health is her best asset.

"I am alone in the world," writes a Chicago girl, "dependent on my own efforts for my living. I am a clerk, and about two years ago through close application to work and a boarding house diet, I became a nervous invalid, and got so bad off it was almost impossible for me to stay in the office a half a day at a time.

"A friend suggested to me the idea of trying Grape-Nuts food which I did, making it a large part of at least two meals a day.

"To-day, I am free from braintire, dyspepsia, and all the ills of an overworked and improperly nourished brain and body. To Grape-Nuts I owe the recovery of my health, and the ability to retain my position and income."

THE NEW GRAIN ROUTE.

While in Toronto the other day Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, the President of the Canadian Pacific Railway spoke definitely about the new line from Midland (Georgian Bay) to Peterboro, the new grain route, ready for next year's crop. The grades of this new section would be so light that one train would move 50,000 bushels from the bay port to Peterboro, two trains to Smith's Falls, and one train from Smith's Falls to Montreal. The section from Peterboro to Smith's Falls would later on be improved as near as possible to the standard of the other two sections.

Ontario, he said, would have a lot of other improvements—in all likelyhood the company would soon start work on the line from Smith's Falls to Toronto through the Lake Ontario towns—Cobourg, Port Hope, Oshawa, Whitby, striking the existing line somewhere east of Toronto.

THE VETO RESOLUTION.

The veto resolutions proposed by the Asquith Government will not strike the average Canadian reader as revolutionary. The first is that the House of Lords should be debarred by law from interfering with money bills. This would be a measure of protection for the Lords, saving them from the impulses of rash or reactionary members. The attempt to burk the Lloyd-George budget had an unhappy result for the meddlers and it is not likely to be repeated, still, there would be no harm in making assurance doubly sure.

The second proposal is that if a bill other than a money bill be passed in three successive sessions by the House of Commons, it shall become law without the assent of the House of Lords. This would preserve to the House of Lords the only privilege which their reasonable friends claim, that of delaying legislation until public opinion has time to declare itself. The holding up of legislation for three years is a severe test. It would give time for public meetings, expressions of opinions in the press, and a large number of bye-elections, which under the British system have a powerful influence on the course of governments. It would not allow the House of Lords the dangerous power of forcing a dissolution, but in many cases there would be a dissolution in the ordinary course of events.

This would be all the more likely in view of the third resolution, which is that the duration of Parliament shall be reduced from seven to five years. With that change, in order to have a measure passed over the head of the Lords in one parliament, it would be necessary to have it introduced not later than the third session. The legislation, in order to pass the ordeal of three sessions, would have to be passed by a government with a fresh mandate from the people. Eleventh hour legislation could not be passed over the heads of the House of Lords.

The proposed limitation to five years also overcomes the objections that curbing the Lords would unduly increase the power of the House of Commons, and of the Government. An attempt to exercise tyranny would be checked by dissolutions at comparatively short intervals. The power of the people over parliament would be greatly increased. At the same time the dissolution would come in a regular constitutional way, not by a violent exercise of the power of the House of Lords. Agitation and disturbance, such as resulted from Lord Lansdowne's folly last year, would thus be avoided.

Kipling Seems To Do the Same.

A gentleman who has read the correspondence in The Times concerning a joke made by two local young ladies about an English woman calling, when they were visiting an English family on an errand of mercy, yesterday remarked to a Times' reporter, "The writer of that letter finding fault with your paper for printing a joke, evidently above the comprehension of the correspondent, who wrote to your paper, should remember how Rudyard Kipling went into an English barracks. This he did, under disguise of an ordinary recruit. By the time Kipling had fully posted himself on the "idiosyncrasies and peculiar methods of Speech of the British soldiers, he then wrote up his stories and verses on "Tommy Atkins," etc. Kipling used this means of learning the Cockney dialect and line of thought and he, unlike the ladies who innocently raised this controversy, did not go on a mission of charity "dona ferentes," as Virgil said, but simply to make fun of his fellow countrymen for profit through his writing later on. Of course, Kipling did not, as intimated by our informant of yesterday intend to ridicule his fellow countrymen. If, as noted, he did enter a barracks to post himself on the English accent, etc., he simply did so for self-instruction, and for the future education and amusement of his millions of readers.

THE HALLOWEEN PIE.

A Jack Horner Centerpiece For Table Decoration.

JACK HORNER PIE IN HALLOWEEN DRESS.

A Halloween party without a Jack Horner surprise pie would be Hamlet with the Dane and Ophelia and even the ghost left out, so barren would the good old day be without this standby. Made of crape paper and holding little prizes and favors, this novelty is sure to be a success with children and grownups alike. In the pie illustrated each little witch, with her bright white spotted dress and apron, red cardboard hat and tiny broom, is attached to a string at the end of which is a suitable favor. Weird red "devils" and ugly black cats are perched on the handle of the basket.

College Training For Women.

Rev. Marion Leroy Burton, the new president of Smith college, who has recently returned from a year's travel abroad, during which he studied European educational institutions at close range, is enthusiastic over the more universal demand for college training for women.

"No one can say how much greater Abraham Lincoln would have been had he had the advantages of a college education," said President Burton.

"I believe that in this modern age every boy and girl should be trained for college. It is a fallacy to assert that in many instances valuable time is lost in college. That is not and never can be true.

"The women of foreign lands are realizing more and more the value of a college training and in common with college women everywhere are progressing in the desire for better physical training, realizing that with good health comes the power to work mentally. The women on this side have their college sports just as the boys and girls are trained for college from early youth, while abroad a college course is more in the nature of an event."

Little Misses' School Clothes.

The small girl nowadays never wears the cutdowns of her older sister as she used to some seasons ago. Probably the changed conditions of things has been brought about by the cheap and smartly cut children's garments that the shops are carrying and the many stylish designs for simple and suitable clothes that the pattern people are getting out—such easy little dresses to make that any mother with even ordinary dressmaking skill can successfully turn them out.

SMART COAT AND FROCK.

The coat illustrated is one of the season's best models for everyday wear. It is of checked black and white serge, with collar and cuffs of bright red velvet braided in black.

The frock pictured is of red serge, a somewhat dressy affair, trimmed with buttons of Persian covered silk edged with red velvet. The tie is of black satin and the belt of black patent leather.

VICE LEGALIZED IN WINNIPEG.

Police Chief Himself Arranged Site for Location of the Resorts.

Winnipeg, Nov. 25.—Contrary to expectations, the first witness called before Justice Robinson, who is enquiring into the Shearer charges, was Chief of Police J. C. McRae. The chief, who entered the force in 1881, and became chief in 1887, testified that in the spring of 1909 the police commission received a letter from Police Magistrate Hon. T. M. Daly, in which the magistrate called attention to the enormous growth of the social evil since the abolishing of the former segregated district, and the difficulties attendant on the number of successful appeals against convictions after they had been secured by the police.

Hon. Mr. Daly advised that the matter be left to the discretion of the chief of police. After consideration, the police commission passed a resolution in April, 1909, leaving the matter in his hands. The chief then had a conversation with a woman named M. Woods, telling her of the result of the commission's resolution, and subsequently phoned 'a real estate man of his acquaintance, named John Beaman, and the colony was subsequently established. The chief at this stage said that the rumor that Beaman was his brother-in-law was entirely unfounded.

The chief then stated the difficulties in securing convictions, and spoke of cases where convicted keepers of resorts had been released by higher courts.

SUBMIT EVIDENCE FIRST.

At a subsequent date the commission decided by resolution that officers should present their evidence to Crown counsel before laying informations. Constables in the restricted area were instructed to arrest disorderly persons, but had no orders to interfere with keepers or inmates or houses. The change in policy was not made at his suggestion, but done by the commission, after investigation, and he concurred in it. The chief thought the law could be better enforced in a restricted area than scattered all over the city.

The chief's evidence was not concluded All the members of the police commission will be subpoenared. It is reported that several persons whose evidence is considered essential have crossed the boundary, beyond the reach of process servers.

DISEASE WAS PREVALENT.

The communication from Police Magistrate Daly which led to segregation showed that the records of his court showed immorality to be increasing in the city at an alarming rate since the closing of the Thomas street colony in 1904, especially among young girls of fourteen to seventeen, and among women not previously immoral. He had also ascertained that venereal diseases were increasing terribly, and he felt that something must be done. The chief declared that the women were not allowed to have music in the houses, and nothing distinctive to show the character of the house! Women were allowed freedom to come up town, but must behave themselves and dress quietly. The whole district was under the constant supervision of the morality officers, who had complete charge. He had never visited the district personally, and never had been in one of the houses.

FOUND BODY OF CHINESE PRINCE

He Fled to America, Died as an Unknown, and Remains Will Be Sent Home.

Denver, Nov. 25.—After a search lasting eight years, in which the aid of the United States Government was enlisted, the body of Prince Ylian Chow Gum, a leader in the Boxer uprising, has been located in the pauper section of a cemetery at Alamosa, Col.

The body was exhumed. It was clothed in Mandarin robes with yellow jacket and peacock feathered cap enclosed in a splendid coffin enblazoned with golden dragons, and yesterday it was started on its return to China, where it will be nterred in the vaults of the ruins of the Ming dynasty.

Prince Ylian fled from China after a yellow silk cord, the Chinese order to commit suicide, had been given him. He was a cousin of Emperor Kwang Su. He died of tuberculosis among some poar Chinese who did no among some poor Chinese who did not anow his identity.

RESOLUTION CARRIES IN LORDS.

Upper Chamber Adopts Lansdowne's Proposal—Front Benchers Take to the Stump.

London, Nov. 26.—After an interesting debate, characteristized by calm moderation on both sides, the House of Lords yesterday carried Lord Lansdowne's resolutions dealing with the manner of settling the differences between the two houses of parliament. The Lord Chancellor opposed the resolution for the Government. He made a point that the resolutions would derive the Crown of the only existing power by means of which the Upper House could be checked, namely the creation of peers.

The Lords decided to communicate Lord Roseberry's and Lord Lansdowne's resolutions to the House of Commons.

In taking part in the debate Baron Loreburn incidentally avowed himself strongly in favor of Home Rule for Ireland.

"We shall never," he said, "get the complete accord which is our desire with the United States unless we get rid of the Irish difficulty, nor shall we have that complete and harmonious friendship of the great self-governing colonies unless we find some such solution of the problem as is recommended by the Parliaments of Canada and Australia.

Lord Morley scornfully described the reform proposals as a schoolboy's sketch. He expressed amazement at the levity with which the Conservatives had committed themselves to vast unknown charges.

There will be a flood of oratory to day. Mr. Asquith will speak at Hull, and Lord Lansdowne at Glasgow. Most of the front bench men will also be on the platform.

Mr. John Burns, speaking at Battersea, declared that neither Lord Lansdowne's mending nor Lord Rosebery's blending would prevent the people bending the Lords to their will.

LEADERS AND LOAFERS

Lord Selborne on Brains and Muscle

"We have too many loafers of every class in England," said Lord Selborne at Winchester College, London. "Between the rich man who does nothing himself and the tramp there is really no moral distinction, excepting that one is presumably clean and the other certainly dirty." (Laughter.)

Work felf roughly into two divisions—thinking, and thinking and doing." The former was a very limited class, and a man who only thought old thoughts in worse language than was previously used was only an artistic kind of loafer.

Independence of character and defiance of public opinion, he added, were in themselves good things—not that which arose from obstinacy or sullenness of temperament, but that which came from the reasonable use of intelligence. We never got a leader of men worth having who did not as a boy defy public opinion and it was because he learnt to do that wisely and at the right time that he afterwards was not a follower but a leader.

When we got the characteristics mentioned in combination with a great intellect and a first-class education we had the greatest instrument for moving the world; when, in addition, the man was an athlete we got the paragon. Of the three—muscles, brains, and character—the greatest was character.

FRUIT IN THE OKANAGAN

The Latest Reports Say That Prospects are Excellent

It is estimated that over 500 carloads of fruit will this season be shipped from the districts surrounding Okanagan Lake, in British Columbia. From present indications, there will be over 100 carloads of peaches grown for shipping. Summerland alone estimates to ship 25 carloads of peach fruit.

The cherry crop is the best in the history of the Valley. A great number of the fruit ranches last season sowed cover crops as root protection, and its beneficial results are seemingly demonstrated in the increased yield of the orchards that were so treated, and the estimated yield of the Valley for this season. Fruit men are gradually learning more regarding conditions that influence the crop and it is almost safe to say that such precautions are being taken as will prevent the disaster which the severe weather wrought upon the orchards in many of the valleys of British Columbia a year ago. More land in the Okanagan is being brought under irrigation, and this summer is witnessing much increased plantation. Farmers in general are quite jubilant over the expectation of having a record crop.

ONE TOO MANY

Discretion is a good thing, and Reilly, the tailor, had a heap of it.

One morning Mrs. Murphy, a customer, came into the shop and found him busy with pencil and paper. She asked him what he was doing.

"Ol'm makin' a list av the min in this block that Ol kin lick."

"Hev yez got Murphy's name down?" asked she.

"Murphy heads me list."

Home flew Mrs. Murphy and broke the news to her man. He was in Reilly's shop in a jiffy.

"Me woman tells me that ye're afther makin' a memorial tablet uv the min that yez can lick, and that ye've got me at the head of it. Is that true?"

"Shure and it's true. What of it?" said Reilly.

"Ye good-for-nothin' little grasshopper, I could commit suicide on yez with me little finger. I could wipe up the flure wid yez wid me hands tied behind me."

"Are ye sure of that?" asked Reilly.

"I'm sure and more about it."

"All right, then," said Reilly, "if ye're sure of it I'll scratch ye off the list."

WRONG KIND OF COMFORT

"I'm going over to comfort Mrs. Brown," said Mrs. Jackson to her daughter Mary. "Mr. Brown hanged himself in their attic last night."

"Oh, mother, don't go! you know you always say the wrong thing."

"Yes, I'm going, Mary. I'll just talk about the weather. That's a safe enough subject."

Mrs. Jackson went over on her visit of condolence. "We have had rainy weather lately, haven't we, Mrs. Brown?" she said.

"Yes," replied the widow; "I haven't been able to get the week's wash dried."

"Oh," said Mrs. Jackson, "I shouldn't think you would have any trouble. You have such a nice attic to hang things in."

BABY'S 60-FOOT FALL

A pathetic story of a baby's tragic death was told at an inquest at Westminster Coroner's Court on the body of Lidda Olga Irene Reynier, two years old.

Mr. Reynier lives with his family at Pimlico, and the dead body of the child was found in an area near there. The child, with its parents, slept in a room on the fourth floor and it was stated that it must have got out of its cot, climbed on a chair and a writing table and out of the open window. The little girl then apparently crawled or walked along a narrow parapet past three houses and finally fell over. Inspector Reid said the child must have fallen at least 60 feet. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

PROOF OF CHARACTER

It's a poor person, indeed, who has nothing to boast of. Asked if she had any witnesses to her character, an Irish woman proudly replied that she didn't need them. "My character," she added, "can be proved by the books at all the police courts."

A SIMPLE QUESTION

In a jury trial last week, a lawyer, baiting a young country fellow, asked imperiously—"And what did you fill the cart with?" "Wi' a shovel," retorted the youth to the amusement of the court.

Stoves for Sale.

On account of putting in a steam heating plant in The Times' building, we have a number of stoves for sale at bargain prices. First come, first served.

To Learn Bookbinding.

We have a vacancy in our bindery for a bright, steady, young man to learn bookbinding—one of the best trades. Apply at Times Bookstore.

Probably Last Trip.

The steamer Monarch arrived Saturday from Rice Lake with a large number of passengers and freight. This will probably be her last trip this year.

Street Lights.

A complaint was made to the Times on Saturday regarding the lamp at the corner of Macdonnell and Water streets, which is occasionally not lighted.

Heavily Fined.

At Port Perry, on Thursday, J. Cook of Cæsarea, and A. C. Harran, this city also, appeared on a charge of keeping out duck decoys for a longer period that the law allowed, the latter being fined $8.95, and the former $13.00.

An Enjoyable Entertainment.

Superintendent T. W. Robinson and the lady visitors of the Home Department of the George Street Methodist Sunday school entertained the members at a very enjoyable at-home, in the Sunday school room. Mr. Robinson occupied the chair, and opened the proceedings with an appropriate address.

City Hockey League Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the City Hockey League will be held this evening at eight o'clock in the Oriental Hotel parlors, when the election of officers, the receiving of reports for last year and other important business will be taken up, and every club intending to enter should be represented at this gathering.

Belmont Minstrels Coming On.

The Belmont Club boys are not going to leave a thing undone in making the big minstrel production Dec. 15-16 the best ever. Everyone is working hard, and by the night of the first performance act for act, will be "letter perfect. Wm. McIlroy will adorn the center, and with Walter Davidson, Reg. Turner, Roy Fuller, George Wesley, George Clark and Holly Sheppard on the ends, fun fast and furious will be the watchword.

Queen's Alumni Dinner.

The second annual dinner of Queens University Alumni Association of Central Ontario will be held on Friday evening, Dec. 2nd, in the Hotel National of this city, meeting at seven o'clock. The very reverend Principal Gordon of Queen's University, will be the guest of the evening, and will deliver an address. It is also expected that Professors Skelton and Laird will be present. Graduates of other universities will be welcomed.

Bank Clerks are Organising.

The Bank Clerks' Association of Canada is being organized with the object of uniting all the employes of the different banks into an association for mutual benefit, protection, improvement and advancement. The promoters claim that the association has no hostile intention toward the banks, but would be of assistance in dealing with employes. One condition is that membership shall be kept secret so long as desired. The membership fee is $10, of which about $5 will be required for organization purposes. Peterboro bank clerks are to be included.

Local Letter Carriers' Wages.

In our issue of Saturday appeared a short article, taken from the auditor-general's report for the year ending March 31st, 1910. The article was taken from that part of the voluminous report referring to salaries of letter carriers. The article in question was headed "What Local Letter Carriers Get." On Saturday morning one of these gentlemen called at the office to explain that whilst the figures in the article noted were correct in the aggregate, the heading was somewhat misleading, as there is an ascending scale of wages which are increased from time to time. Again the Auditor-General's report makes no note of the deductions of salary of carriers who are laid off by illness, etc. Thus the figures we quoted whilst correct, are worthy of this explanation in justice to the local carriers.

Rev. Canon Davidson in Toronto.

Rev. J. C. Davidson, rector of St. John's church left Saturday afternoon for Toronto per the C.P.R. express. In the absence of Rev. Canon Davidson, Rev. Charles Carpenter very ably conducted the services at that church. Mr. Carpenter, who as noted in a former issue, comes from Newfoundland, and has materially succeeded in advancing the cause of Christ in Peterborough, partly through his own personality and partly by the influence of the Brotherhood of Good Fellowship, is a clear, concise and convincing speaker. His address, or sermon in St. John's church yesterday, was listened to most attentively by the large congregation present and made a marked impression on all present. The subject of his sermon was on mission work.

Bert Hunt Doing Nicely.

Enquiries made at Nicholls Hospital last night elicited the fact that Hunt, who was taken there Friday night as a result of accidents sustained in a falling elevator, was doing well. It seems that on Friday night the elevator at the Mathews' packing plant, jammed at the third storey. Bert Hunt, Wescott street, and John Feelie, his assistant, went up to release it, by trusting to the safet clutches to work, unfortunately they failed to do so, and the elevator fell at full speed to the first floor, carrying the two men with it. Feelie escaped uninjured, but Hunt had a leg broken between knee and hip. The later was taken to Nicholls' Hospital, where Dr. McCulloch attended to his injuries.

Mice Give Trouble at Fire Hall.

To the casual caller at the fire hall, one might think it was a branch home for destitute cats. Cats, big cats, little cats and kitten cats seem to pop out of every door. Yesterday a gentleman calling at the hall asked Chief Howard why and wherefore so many cats. With a smile, the chief replied, there is so much grain and feed in here for the horses that if I didn't keep an army of cats the place would be destroyed." Pointing to the electrical apparatus on the wall, beside the doors through which the horses fly to their places under the harness, the moment an alarm sounds, and which apparatus automatically opens the doors he called attention to the electric wires leading to this fixture. He explained that only yesterday the apparatus had suddenly gone out of commission. A quick examination disclosed the fact that a rat or mouse between the floors, had nibbled the insulation off these wires short-circuiting them. The damage was at once repaired, but as the chief remarked, if those mice will gnaw the wires right under the feet of six or seven cats, how much of the building would be any good soon without ant cats.

There is little danger from a cold or from an attack of the grippe except when followed by pneumonia, and this never happens when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. This remedy has won its great reputation and extensive sale by the remarkable cures of colds and grip, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. For sale by all dealers.

SOCIETY EVENTS

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

Mr. F. J. Bridge of London, was in the city on Saturday.

Mr. V. E. Freeburn of Montreal, is a guest at the Munro House.

Mr. H. T. Thompson of Toronto, registered Saturday at the National.

Mr. Thos. Smith of Blackstock, is registered at the Hotel National.

Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse, the recently appointed librarian of the new Public Library, left for Toronto on Saturday.

Sergt.-Bigg of the 24th Field Battery, left on the midnight last night for Kingston, to take a course in gunnery, and study the new guns that will shortly be supplied to the local battery.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The T.A.S. Minstrels are now right down to work and holding regular practices and rehearsals.

A meeting of the House of Refuge Committee was called for Friday evening but it did not materialize, there being no quorum.

Mr. Adam McMurdo addressed a well attended meeting in Gospel Hall yesterday afternoon. Quite a number of children were present and took great interest in the service.

Rev. J. Bennett Anderson, diocesan missionary, will commence a series of special meetings in St. Luke's church today, and will address a meeting every evening, except Saturday, during the week.

London, Ont., Nov. 25.—Sir James Whitney will address the London Canadian Club at a noonday luncheon on Thursday, Dec. 1.

A Story of the Indian Mutiny

—By—

CHAPTER I.

The Meshes of the Net

On a day in January, 1857, a sepoy was sitting by a well in the cantonment of Dum-Dum, near Calcutta. Though he wore the uniform of John Company, and his rank was the lowest in the native army, he carried on his forehead the caste-marks of the Brahmin. In a word, he was more than noble, being of sacred birth, and the Hindu officers of his regiment, if they were not heaven-born Brahmins, would grovel before him in secret, though he must obey their slightest order on parade or in the field.

To him approached a Lascar.

"Brother," said the newcomer "lend me your brass pot, so that I may drink, for I have walked far in the sun."

The sepoy started as though a snake had stung him. Lascars, the sailormen of India, were notoriously free and easy in their manners. Yet how dare it that even a low-caste mongrel of a Lascar should offer such an overt insult to a Brahmin!

"Do you know, swine-begotten, that your hog's lips would contaminate my drink?" asked he, putting the scorn of centuries into the words.

"Contaminate!" grinned the Lascar, neither frightened nor angered. "By holy Ganga, it is your lips that are contaminated, not mine. Are not the government greasing your cartridges with cow's fat? And can you load your rifle without biting the forbidden thing? Learn more about your own caste, brother, before you talk so proudly to others."

Not a great matter, this squabble between a sepoy and a Lascar, yet it set such a flame in India that rivers of blood must be shed ere it was quenched. The Brahmin's mind reeled under the shock of the retort. It was true, then, what the agents of the dethroned King of Oudh were saying in the bazaar. The Government were out on the destruction of Brahminical supremacy. He and his caste-fellows would lose all that made life worth living. But they would exact a bitter price for their fall from high state.

"Kill!" he murmured in his frenzy as he rushed away to tell his comrades the lie that made the Indian mutiny possible. "Slay and spare not! Let us avenge our wrongs so fully that no accursed Feringhi shall dare again to come hither across the Black Water!"

The lie and the message flew through India with the inconceivable speed with which such ill tidings always travels in that country. Ever north went the news that the British raj was doomed. Hindu fakirs, glow with religious zeal, Mussalman zealots, as eager for dominance in this world as for a houri-tenanted paradise in the next, carried the fiery torch of rebellion far and wide. And so the flame spread, and was fanned to red fury, though the eyes of few Englishmen could see it, while native intelligence was aghast at the supineness of their over-lords.

* * * * * * *

One evening in the month of April, a slim, straight-backed girl stood in the veranda of a bungalow at Meerut. Her slender figure, garbed in white muslin, was framed in a creeper covered arch. The fierce ardor of an Indian spring had already kissed into life a profusion of red flowers amid the mass of greenery, and, if Winifred Mayne had sought an effective setting for her own fair picture, she could not have found one better fitted to its purpose.

But she was young enough and pretty enough to pay little heed to pose or background. In fact, so much of her smooth brow as could be seen under a broad-brimmed straw hat was wrinkled in a decided frown. Happily her bright brown eyes had a glint of humor in them, for Winifred's wrath was an evanescent thing, a pallid sprite, rarely seen, and ever ready to be banished by a smile.

"There!" she said, tugging at a refractory glove. "Did you hear it? It actually shrieked as it split. And this is the second pair. I shall never again believe a word Behari Lal says. Wait till I see him. I'll give him such a talking to."

"Then I have it in my heart to envy Behari Lal," said her companion, clambering up at her from the carriage way that ran by the side of the few steps leading down from the veranda.

"Indeed! May I ask why?" she demanded.

"Because you yield him a privilege you deny to me."

"I was not aware you meant to call today. As it is, I am paying a strictly ceremonial visit. I wish I could speak Hindustani. Now, what would you say to Behari Lal in such a case?"

"I hardly know. When I buy gloves, I buy them of sufficient size. Of course you have small hands."

"Thank you. Please don't trouble to explain. And now, as you have been rude to me, I shall not take you to see Mrs. Meredith."

"But that is a kindness."

"Then you shall come, and be miserable."

"For your sake, Miss Mayne, I would face Medusa, let alone the excellent wife of our Commissary-General, but fate, in the shape of an unreasonably headstrong Arab, forbids. I have just secured a new charger and he and I have to decide this evening whether I go where he wants to go or he goes where I want to go. I wheedled him into your compound by sheer trickery. The really definite issue will be settled forthwith on the Grand Trunk Road."

"I hope you are not running any undue risk," said the girl, with a sudden note of anxiety in her voice that was sweetest music to Frank Malcolm's ears. For an instant he had a mad impulse to ask if she cared, but he crushed it ruthlessly, and his bantering reply gave no hint of the tumult in his breast. Yet he feared to meet her eyes, and was glad of a saluting sepoy who swaggered jauntily past the open gate.

"I don't expect to be deposited in the dust, if that is what you mean," he said. "But there is a fair chance that instead of carrying me back to Mee-

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields,

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2,625 oz. of gold and 3,267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Nictoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

OUR LOCAL INDIANS.

Government Report of Expenses and Expenditures on Mississauges.

In the Auditor-General of Canada's report, just issued, for the year ending March 31st, 1910, we note that under the head of Indian Trust Funds the Mississaquas of Mud Lake had a credit of $2,293.51, with interest due of $636.58, whilst the Indians of the same band at Rice Lake, had $5,470.17 and $312.40 interest due. In connection with the Rice Lake Indians, $656.20 interest was distributed during the year. $30.90 was paid for insurance; the chief got $25, the secretary $12, the sexton $40, the organist $20, constable $8, and prisoners $20. Dr. V. H. McWilliams, physician, received $185.00 and for vaccinating 40 Indians was paid $13.75. Miss Belcroft, teacher, was paid $100 and Inspection $6.

Referring to the Mud Lake Indians we learn that the chief was paid $30, sexton $30, secretary $25, organist $20, wood ranger $10, Rev. E. C. Albin $50, for medical attendance, Drs. Brown and Gilchrist $18.50; hospital attendance for George McCue $30.70; cement floors for school and church $70, inspection of concrete $15.50, the teacher, A. McCue, 6 months to June 30th, $150.00; Geo. Cook, 4 months to March 31st, $100.00; inspection $9, stationery etc., $64.00.

In his annual report, just issued, the Inspector General of the Canadian forces, notes that the reserve fund of ammunition is insufficient. If "hot air" could be used against an invading army, several of our City Fathers, could supply a stock, not only inexhaustible, but of a kind to either put the invader to sleep or impel him to make a rush to the rear with horse, food and artillery.

Local Interest in Tiger-Varsity Game.

On Saturday evening from 4 to 6 o'clock generally apparent interest was manifested throughout the city over the result of the Hamilton Tigers vs. Varsity Rugby match in the Ambitious City. Very seldom has so warm and so general an excitement been witnessed in our city over an outside match. Every few minutes young fellows, and occasionallye older ones, would rush into The Times office to enquire "How does the game stand? Is Varsity Ahead? Do you know yet whether the Tigers win or not, etc., etc.? When the final news came that Varsity had won, a crowd outside The Times office were about equally divided between tears and smiles, we mean groans and cheers, according to their individual respective sympathies or possibly, how they had placed the "long green."

The Library Bureau Firm Cet Contract For Library Fittings

Their Tender Was $1,073 and That of the Office Specialty Company $1,122--To Advertise for Blinds

The Property Committee of the City Council met last night. There were present: Mayor Morrow, Chairman Ald. Duncan and Aldermen Batten, Morgan, Graham and Bradburn.

Tenders for book stacks, chairs, desks, tables, etc., were considered. The local people could not figure on the whole equipment, excepting one, whose tender was too high for consideration.

The tenders received from outside firms were as follows:

The Library Bureau, Ottawa $1073.
The Office Specialty Co., Toronto $1122.

On motion of the mayor, seconded by Ald. Morgan, the tender of the Library Bureau firm at $1073 was accepted, the chairman of the Library Board and the chairman of the Property Committee to arrange details as to which of two styles of chairs shall be procured. This, however, cannot affect the accepted tender in point of being lower than that of the Office Specialty Co., for the same quality and line of goods.

The stacks are to be of wood. Complete equipment is guaranteed to be delivered in four weeks.

BLINDS FOR LIBRARY.

The chairman was instructed to advertise for blinds for the Public Library, and have authority to purchase same.—Carried.

The Indian Dunbar a Glorious Spectacle

WHAT WILL TAKE PLACE ON KING'S VISIT TO INDIA.

Already Preparations are Under Way for the Crowning of "Emperor and Empress" of India.

London, Nov. 28.—Official announcement was made this week that the King and Queen hope to visit India to attend the coronation durbar to be held at Delhi, January 1, 1912. Should the hope of their majesties be fulfilled they will be well repaid for the long journey to the great eastern empire, for the durbar, it is agreed by all competent judges, affords the most magnificent spectacle to be witnessed anywhere in the world. So elaborate and magnificent is the series of gorgeous scenes, making up the spectacle that an entire year is required in the work of preparation.

Within a mighty arena, outside the walls of Delhi, on the day of the great ceremony, ten thousand persons, representatives of every race, creed and color, and including every prince and potentate of India, with jewels worth millions gleaming in turban, on breast and in waistband, will assemble as special guests, and while massed bands play and the regiments stand attention, and while the sun pours down a flood of brilliant light, princes and kotentates will pass in review before their majesties or their chosen representatives making deep obeisance.

The Maharajah of Mysore, ruler of nearly 5,000,000 subjects, will be there with a gorgeous retienue of a thousand attendants. So, too, will the Gaekwar of Baroda, a most enlightened ruler, and the Nizam of Nyderabad, who holds away over the great feudatory state which occupies the larger part of the Deccan.

Their majesties, if they attend the great ceremonial, will enter Delhi seated in a golden howdah on the back of a state elephant. This elephant, known as Moula Dux and belonging to the Maharajah of Jaipur, is the largest in India, and it is worshipped by the natives as the incarnation of one of their lesser deities. One hundred elephants will follow in the train, while other elephants will raise their trunks and treumpet as the god-like beast goes by with his imperial burden.

Persons who are familiar with the elephant only in his native untrammelled coat of gray can form but a faint conception of the dignity and splendor to which he arises on occasions of great ceremony in his native land. During the two weeks of splendor at Delhi "My Lord the Elephant," will be clothes in the robes of his kingship. His tusks will be mounted with guld and jewels and his back covered with the costliest silken wrappings. Only princes of the blood will be permitted to occupy the gilded howdahs which he will bear.

While the series of pageants will extend over a period of two weeks the great day of all will be New Year's day. At noon, in the great atena, which seats thousands of persons, George V. of England will be proclaimed Emperor of India. At noon their majesties or their representatives, will enter the arena to a fan fare of trumpets and take their seats. A brilliant staff and distinguished guests will surround them. A herald, accompanied by four pursuivants, will read in a loud, clear voice, this proclamation in Hindustane: "George V. of England, has deigned to take on himself the title of Emperor of India. Even the princes and the people have it so."

Trumpets will blow and the great gathering will rise and sing "God Save the King." When the tumult dies away his majesty, or his chosen representatives will step to the front of the dais, and in an address will assure the princes and people of India that he will ever uphold their several trophies of the chase ontain rights and rule them in justice and equity.

For several days after the great ceremony Delhi will continue to be the scene of gorgeous festivities. The whole city and fort will be illuminated. Every building will be outlined in dazzling light. From the top of the ridge where one commands an excellent view of the entire city, the scene will be one of rare beauty. In the clear atmosphere of the Punjab night every lamp will be visible. Delhi will glow like a fairy city raised by a magician of the Arabian Nights

Mr. Graham and Reminisences.

Yesterday was the forty-sixth anniversary of the entry into business, at Lakefield, of Mr. Robert Graham, head of the thriving dry goods firm of that village, operated under the name of R. Graham & Son. Mr. Graham, sr., has a host of friends, both business and social in his own village, in this city, and throughout the surrounding townships and counties. Mr. Graham was in business when Mr. Sanderson, later on, school teacher, was in business opposition: when the later constructed mills were still concealed in the bosom of the future, when the late Mr. W. Casement was postmaster, and general storekeeper; when Lakefield had but one apology for an hotel; when the late Col. Strickland used to have younger sons of good English families come to Lakefield to learn farming, when the members of the Anglican church there used to worship in the funny little stone edifice, surrounded by mouldering grave stones of ancient origion, in fact, this now successful, and up to date business man, remembers during his years in trade, the growth of Lakefield from "the woods" to a hustling live little burg, to which he in no small part contributed.

Captured After Chase of 11,000 Miles

Louisville, Nov. 28.—The trial commenced today of Joseph Wendling, church sexton, who it is alleged murdered eight year old Alma Bollner, dismembered her body, and buried her in the church basement last December. Wendling was arrested after a chase of eleven thousand miles. The chain of evidence against Wendling is said to be conclusive.

Canadian Girl Charged With Murder

A House of Refuge to Take Care of Protestant Poor is a Crying Need

Roman Catholic Paupers go to the House of Providence, Whilst Protestant Unfortunates go to Jail, Says Ald. Morgan---The Mayor to Again Take This Matter Up with the H. of R. Committee

At the Committee of the Whole Council in session last night, his worship resurrected the House of Refuge question, which has laid dormant now for some time. He offered that the Special Committee on this vexed question, is anxious that some definite course of action be arrived at. The Protestant Home is looking after the Protestant poor to a certain limited extent. Quite a number of inmates are either self-supporting or are paid for by friends, while the city supports some half a dozen unfortunates. The Protestant Home Committee have proposed that if the city contributes $10,000 towards providing a suitable House of Refuge, they will add $20,000 and build a $30,000 building, and equip same. The present Protestant Home is under the control of a number of ladies and the property is vested in a few gentlemen trustees. The council should decide whether it would be better to meet the foregoing proposition, or to undertake the exclusive responsibility of building a home for the city's Protestant poor. This matter was thoroughly gone into by the Special Committee composed of himself and representatives of the present home and of the various churches some months ago. Father McColl was in favor of his church continuing the care of its own poor in the House of Providence as at present. Under such circumstances it would be necessary to submit a bylaw for the vote of Protestants only on the question of erecting a House of Refuge for Protestant inmates only, either by the city exclusively or in connection with the present Protestant Home. Then special legislation would have to be secured to permit of taxing Protestants for the care of their own poor, and Roman Catholics for the maintenance of theirs. Under present conditions his worship would not like to see the tax rate raised any higher and leaned in favor of joint action with the Protestant Home people. He insisted on an expression of opinion from council. At present, he added, the city is giving a grant of $1.50 per week for each inmate in the House of Providence and in the Protestant Home.

Ald. Morgan thought the city should act jointly with the Protestant Home authorities, who are willing to contribute $20,000 to the city's $10,000; this would be preferable to submitting a bylaw for the whole amount, $30,000. But if the latter are to run the new institution, they should become an incorporated body. Some definite action must evidently be taken quickly, for the Roman Catholics have a home for their poor, while Protestants are sending many of theirs to jail.

Ald. Metheral concurred in these views.

Ald. Buller contended that if the city is going to look after its poor, the city should erect and run a House of Refuge independent of any other board. And in fairness to all concerned, each Protestant denomination should be represented on the board of directors appointed by the council. The present committee of ladies has undoubtedly done good work, but, if the city is to have a home for the Protestant poor, such an instution should be under the city's control and not that of a private incorporated company.

Ald. Gigham agreed with Ald. Morgan that $30,000 is a big sum to raise just now; and it would be advisable to accept the proposition of the Protestant Home Board.

Ald. Bradburn offered that the Protestant Home people should be approached as to whether they are willing to become incorporated or not; and if they would agree to its board being constituted of one member from each Protestant church.

On motion of Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Buller, the mayor was authorized to meet the special committee and go into the question with them more fully with a view to early action.

FIRST POLLING WILL TAKE PLACE ON SATURDAY—MEMBERS AT WORK.

The Elections Will Continue Until Christmas—Campaign Will Be Short and Decisive—A Brief Speech By His Majesty.

London, Nov. 28. His majesty, King George V., at noon today formally dissolved the British Parliament, and turned over to the great electorate the question of veto powers of the House of Lords, which literally taps at the sound footings of the British constitution. His Majesty's speech was very brief and beyond regretting that the parties had failed to agree regarding the powers of the Upper Chamber, made no reference to the momentous question officially thrust upon Britain this day. There was a feeling reference to the death of King Edward, who last February convened the Parliament so quickly dissolved. The King spoke gratefully of the fact that the long standing fishery dispute, involving Canada, Newfoundland and the United States had been admirably settled at the Hague. The formal dissolution of parliament today was attended only by those members of the Commons whose duties necessitated their presence. Most of the members are already in their constituencies conducting campaigns, which must be short and decisive. The first pollins will take place on Saturday, but the elections will continue well on to Christmas.

Aged Physician is Charged with Crime

IS ACCUSED OF ATTEMPTING TO KILL TWO PERSONS.

One of the Most Sensational Cases On Record Before the U.S. Criminal Courts.

Santa Rosa, Cal., Nov. 30.—One of the most sensational criminal trials that has taken place here in many years is promised in the case of Dr. Willard P. Burke, who will be brought into court today to answer the charge of having attempted to murder Miss Lu Etta Smith and her eleven months old illegitimate son, of whom Dr. Burke is said to be the father.

The wealth and prominence of the accused physician, the unusual method which he is accused of employing in his alleged attempt at double murder, and the subsequent flight of the intended victim to Japan to avoid testifying at the trial are some of the remarkable elements in a case which already attracted wide attention and the trial of which will undoubtedly be followed with much interest.

Mr. Burke, who is a man well along in years, is the proprietor of a large sanitarium at Alturas, five miles north of the city. On the night of February 5th last the patients and attendants of the sanitarium were startled by a loud explosion in the sanitarium grounds. Upon investigation it was found that the explosion had occurred beside a house tent in which slept Miss Lu Etta Smith and her infant son. Further investigation showed that the explosion had undoubtedly been caused by a stick o. dynamite. The perpetrator of the outrage, however, had made a poor calculation in placing the explosive. The lives of the intended victims were spared though it was many weeks before the woman recovered from the shock.

Miss Lu Etta Smith, the intended victim, was a student at the University of California when she met Dr. Burke. Later she went to live at the sanitarium, where her child was born. The child was named Willard P. Burke Smith.

The investigation by the authorities following the explosion led to the arrest of Dr. Burke and his indictment on the charge of attempted murder. The officers claim to have ascertained that, a few days before the explosion, Dr. Burke obtained a quantity of dynamite and took it with him on his return to Santa Rosa from a visit to the Phoenix mine, near Oroville, which he owns.

One of the peculiar features of the case was the disappearance of Miss Smith when the date set for Dr. Burke's trial approached and her subsequent return. Some time after the dynamiting episode the woman left this vicinity and went to Berkeley. Subsequently she left Berkeley, and was next located in Japan. According to report she was given a sum of money sufficient to take her and her child to Japan and was promised regular remittances so long as she remained there. But it is said that the promised remittances failed to materialize and the result was that through the generosity of some Americans whom she met in Tokio she was enabled to return to California. However this may be it is certain that she placed herself in communication with the authorities here and is now in readiness to appear as the principal witness for the prosecution.

Candidates for Aldermen Must Be Nominated in the Ward They Named to Represent

The City Fathers met in Committee of the Whole last night. There were present: His Worship Mayor Morrow, and Aldermen Gillespie, Duffus, Batten, Phelan, Bradburn, Buller, Graham, Metheral, Morgan, and Duncan.

The selection of the many polling subdivisions for the coming elections, together with the proposed deputy returning officers were considered in preparation for Monday night's meeting when the bylaw governing same will be passed.

This year candidates for aldermen in each ward must be nominated in the ward for which they are named. This is in accordance with the "ward system," voted for by the people at last election. Nominations for mayor and school trustees will be received in the Council chamber as usual.

Ald. Gillespie asked that the building bylaw be amended to permit of his erecting a 22-foot addition west of his present creamery on Aylmer street, the first story to be of 14 inch brick walls and the second 9-inch. Also an ice storage frame building, metal sheeting. Ald. Gillespie explained that no danger of fire in the ice storage could be expected, as sawdust would not be used.

On motion of Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Batten, this request was granted, said buildings to be erected under the city engineer's supervision.

PUBLIC LAVATORY.

Ald. Bradburn moved, seconded by Ald. Graham,—That the matter of providing a public lavatory beneath the market building, at present under construction, be approved of by council, and the work be proceeded with by the City Trust Commissioners under the supervision of Ald. Duncan.—Carried.

LIBRARY FITTINGS.

Ald Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Metheral,—That the Property Committee be given authority to spend up to $1400 in fitting the new public library.—Carried.

Direct Results of Tag Day.

Yesterday a Times representative meeting Mr. Geo. Cochrane, agent for the local Children's Aid Society, asked that gentleman what direct effect the $1260, collected by the young ladies on "Tag Day," had had on the Shelter. In reply Mr. Cochrane said that, as a direct consequence of the generosity of our citizens, two children have been admitted, in addition to the nine there before. He added that, also, as a direct result, it is expected that nine more, from the city will be admitted (this week. These are five from one destitute family and four from another. The four are now in St. Vincent's Orphanage. Mr. Cochrane concluded by saying that whilst the ladies did nobly on tag day and exceeded expectations that $1260 does not go very far in maintaining the shelter. With the nine children expected this week, and the eleven already there, at the small sum paid to the caretaker for board, viz. $2 a week for each child, this means $42 weekly for board, which includes the caretaker's salary alone. It must be a great satisfaction to those young ladies who worked so hard and so well on tag day, that their labor have resulted in elevating eleven children from lives of poverty and misery to the care and comforts of the shelter, and possibly from a future life of vice to every chance of a prosperous future.

GAVE LAWYER A TROUNCING.

Goderich Husband Punished Barrister Who Went Driving With His Wife.

Goderich, Nov. 26.—As a sequel to the livery rig and bloody robe story, which came out at the time of the investigation into the Anderson murder, two men in this town are rather severely wounded and a complication of law suits promises to arise.

It will be rembered that on the night of the murder a livery rig was returned to the barn after being out the greater part of the night. It was discovered that it had been used by a local lawyer who had been out driving with the wife of another prominent man, then out of town.

HOME FROM WEST.

Yesterday the husband returned from Vancouver, and walked straight from the depot to the office of the lawyer. He did not succeed in punishing his man then as the police were called, but later he administered chastisement to his entire satisfaction, though he had both hands injured in the operation. Though he is still free he will have an information laid against him for assault as soon as his victim is able.

SOME PAINFUL BURNS.

After wreaking his revenge, the returned husband had his woundae tended by a physician, having his hand and bandages soaked in alcohol. Coming outside and attempting to light his pipe, the bandage caught fire and added some very painful burns to the already badly injured hand.

BLOOD POISONING FROM CUT FINGER.

Serious Condition Relieved by Zam Buk.

Mr. Jas. Davey, of 786 Ellice Avenue, Winnipeg, says: "A few months since I was cured of a poisoned finger through the timely use of Zam-Buk. I cut a deep gash across the knuckle on the first finger of the right hand, in opening a lobster can one evening. I suffered at the time with the soreness and pain, but had no idea it would become a serious wound. However, in about two days I was greatly alarmed, as my whole hand and arm to the elbow became inflamed and the finger was much discolored, showing signs of blood-poisoning. The pain was dreadful and I was forced to leave off my work and go home.

"The wound on the knuckle had been poisoned through the dust and dirt about the furnaces and boilers. I then decided to start the Zam-Buk treatment, and having first bathed the cut, I applied the healing balm. It soothed the pain almost instantly, and by the next day there was a great improvement. In a week's time, through perseverance with Zam Buk, a complete cure was brought about."

Scores of similar cases could be quoted, and the wisest precaution is to keep a box of Zam-Buk handy and apply it immediately a cut, or burn, or bruise is sustained.

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, eczema, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse imitations and substitutes.

CANADIAN CHEESE.

Statistics compiled by the Department of Trade and Commerce indicate that Canada's lead in cheese is challenged. In 1906 Canada exported cheese to the value of $24,300,000. In 1909 the figures had dropped to $20,000,000. Last year this marked recession of nearly four million dollars was overcome, the figures being $21,100,000. This variation in value of our export output of cheese may be, in part due to seasonal reasons, and in part, due to larger absorption by the home market, which, it is often remarked, does not consume as much cheese as would be consumed, if, as some claim, the pink of cheese were not selected for export, with practically the culls thrown on the home market. Other reasons given, and they are more serious, are the deterioration in quality of Canadian cheese and in the increased supply from other countries, from New Zealand, Denmark and Holland

DESERVED FATE.

No one will seriously contend that Dr. Crippen who was hanged in London on Wednesday, did not deserve his fate. He had a fair trial, and there was no circumstance brought out by the able counsel who defended him, to strengthen the plea that he did not kill his wife. The speed with which trial was carried on, and the absence of defects in the machinery of the law, which, in the United States, for example, would have kept the condemned and the country in suspense for months, if not for years, as to his ultimate fate, has greatly increased throughout the world the respect for English procedure and justice.

England, unfortunately, has not entirely emerged from a state of barbarism, and clings, like Canada and the United States, to the old law of "an eye for an eye." Crippen was a barbarian, he slew his wife in cold blood because her presence interfered with his plans, and if ever a man deserved the full limit of the law he was one. Yet, is not the time next at hand when we might consider less barbarous methods of dealing with a murderer than the brutal one of tying him to the end of a rope and casting him down a pit to break his neck. If we must cling to the barbarous killing of a human being, why not adopt a system that offers fewer objections than hanging. But why kill at all. Surely the state does not admit that the criminal class cannot be restrained to any extent necessary to protect the public. But if there must be capital punishment certainly none deserved it more than Crippen.

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

We have the testimony of many of the French-Canadian leaders in the Province that they wish their children to learn English. While we do not doubt the sincerity of their assertions it is not at all certain that what they mean by learning English is in accordance with the idea that this is an English country and that English should be the predominant language. It is not at all certain that what the French Canadians in Essex or the Eastern Counties consider a sufficiency of English is enough to fulfil the spirit of our very liberal school regulations.

There is strong circumstantial evidence to support the belief that the French-Canadians want French taught first of all in the schools attended by their children, and then after the teaching of French is fully assured they are willing to have English taught. The Education Department, however, would surely not be far wrong if it insisted that every child in the schools of the Province should be taught English from the very day of his first admission to school; it should insist that every subject on the school curriculum be taught in English, and that the language of the class room be English during the periods devoted to English reading or French grammar. To permit any other course as to make English the optional language and French the obligatory one. The Minister would certainly be taking a step towards uniform language teaching if he would alter the policy adopted by one of his predecessors in appointing inspectors for the bilingual schools.

At the present time all the Public Schools of Nipissing District, situated in French Canadian sections, are inspected by Mr. Chenay of Essex, because of his ability to speak French. A Separate school inspector resides at Mattawa, yet Separate schools a few miles from his door are inspected by the Separate school inspector of Prescott county, because the latter is a French-Canadian. In the schools of the United States are to be found hundreds o children who knew no word of English when they first enter school, but the teacher sets to work at once to teach them the language of the country. The same practice should be followed in the schools of Ontario in regard to the French Canadian children.

The language question that is now agitating the Province is not a religious question. There need be no unfriendliness towards the French Canadians in saying that if they want to live in Ontario they must accept our school courses and conform to our school laws. The people of an English province in an English country are showing no antagonism to the French language by asserting that English must remain unequivocally the language of Ontario.

HOW TO LEAD UP TO IT.

Three Examples For the Family Who May Need Either of Them.

Example 1.—Why, how are you, Mrs. Delaney? This is quite a surprise. How well you are looking! I heard a few days ago that you had come back to town. I've been intending to take a spin down and call on you. You know we have a machine now. You didn't! Yes, about a week. I want you to see it. It's a beauty.

Example 2.—Oh, how are you, Mrs. Todwilder? Isn't it strange that we should meet at a gallery exhibit? How are you enjoying the pictures? Don't you think the artist is a wonderful delineator of character? There is one down there at the end of the hall I want to show you. It is of a girl stepping out of a carriage. Some artists would have made it an automobile. That's what I told my husband the day he came through here with me. And he said he wouldn't blame the artist if he had seen ours—he's that proud of it. Oh, didn't you know that we had a new car? Yes, about ten days. Don't you like this character study of the poor old man selling newspapers?

Example 3.—Is that you, Mrs. McClain? I just called up to ask if you had heard about the special sale of chiffons they are having at McKupp's. You hadn't! Well, everything's very reasonable, and the colors are grand. Come with me and we'll go down together. Oh, I've just thought of it. I'll come around and take you in our new car. Oh, hadn't I told you? Almost a week. I know you'll love it. At 2, then Thursday. Don't mention it—delighted to have you go!—Homer Croy in Puck.

Too Kind.

"Can you tell me," said the cool looking young lady in white, confidentially approaching the young man at the soda fountain, "the most agreeable way to take castor oil?"

"Oh, yes, indeed," replied the man, his eyes brightening. "And while you are waiting," he added, "won't you have a glass of soda?"

"Oh, thank you," said the young lady as he set it down before her. The day being hot, in a few moments she had drained the glass.

"Is the prescription ready?" she asked sweetly, wiping her mouth.

The young man's eyes gleamed with benevolence. "The prescription," he said, tapping the glass, "was in here."

"Do you mean to say I've drunk it?" she screamed. "But it wasn't for me; it was for my little brother!" And she swept from the drug store.

"It's too bad," sighed the young man, "and she was one of our best customers!"

But she isn't any more. Daily the soda fountain young man watches her enter the drug store across the way, where they look before they leap.—Washington Post.

Conclusive.

Suitor—Sir, I wish to marry your daughter.

Pater—Take my advice, boy—don't.

Suitor—But why?

Pater—I've just found signs of insanity in her.

Suitor—Heavens! What makes you suspect it?

Pater—She says she wants to marry you.—Cleveland Leader.

A Prosaic Fellow.

"You can get an armful of daisies for a dime," pointed out the optimist, "and just look at their bright, merry little faces."

"What do I want with an armful of daisies?" growled the pessimist. "I'd rather have a cheese sandwich."—New York Journal.

A Wise Precaution.

"Mr. Grimes," said the rector to the vestryman, "we had better take up the collection before the sermon this morning."

"Indeed?"

"Yes. I'm going to preach on the subject of economy."—Stray Stories.

Cautious.

"Your wife boasts that you called on her every night for six months before you married her."

"Yes. I'm that way I escaped the necessity of writing any love letters."—Chicago Record Herald.

Same Sensation.

"Once I was hard pressed by wolves. It's a terrible sensation."

"I know how it feels. I used to open the dining room doors at a summer hotel."—Kansas City Journal.

A Compromise.

Stagiate—Won't you sing "Backward, turn Backward, O Time," Miss Lydia?

"It might wake father, but I'll turn back the clock."

Aero Advice.

Birds of a feather
Flock together,
Whether 'tis fair or stormy weather
But birds of the kind
That man designed
From the very start
[illegible]
And not get too close together.
—Boston Herald.

For Governor of Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Nov. 28.—It is rumored here that D. C. Cameron, defeated Liberal candidate for the House of Commons at the last general elections, will succeed Sir Daniel McMillan as next Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba. Mr. Cameron has had considerable legislative experience in Ontario, and it is expected that the announcement of his appointment will be approved by all. He is manager of the Rat Portage Lumber Co., one of the biggest lumber companies in the west, and is prominent in the business, social and political life of the province.

THE PLOT FOR THE STORY.

He Found It in the Chance Meeting and the Parting.

By M. J. PHILLIPS.

It was an ideal June morning. A chorus of bird songs aroused Cartright at sunup, and, yawning, he walked to the window. From some prehistoric ancestor who killed his food with a stone ax while the grass was still wet Cartright had inherited a passion for tramping through the dew. He dressed quickly and started out for a brisk walk.

Cartright was a literary free lance who was slowly winning his way. He had awakened that morning with a feeling known to all who disfigure good white paper with pen or typewriter—the desire to write and joy in the power to write. A certain great magazine editor in a kindly letter had asked Cartright for a story. His request was the magic password that admitted one clad in purple and fine linen, to the society of the truly elect of the literary world.

But inspiration refused to come at Cartright's bidding. With an instinctive grasp of the magazine's style he had sketched the principal characters of his story. There must be two—a man and a woman. The former must be fine and sincere and honorable, a gentleman in every respect, who had made a place in the world by his own efforts. The girl must be sweet and true, with softly curling hair and wide, frank, innocent blue eyes. The characters must be ideal companions warm friends, but not lovers. Cruel circumstances and their own ideals of honor must send them through the world apart, even though their very souls, as if alone in the wilderness, cried each unto the other.

He could get no further. Plan as he would, Cartright could find no reason to separate the children of his brain. The characters became almost as real to him as living personages. A regret grew up within him at the necessity of parting them, but to preserve the value of the story separation was inevitable.

He had been mistaken in his feeling that morning that the plot was about to disclose itself, for after breakfast it still eluded him. He could not think effectively in his study. The free, wind swept porch and his easy chair and pipe were not the scenes and aids to thought he usually found them. In despair he seized a fishing rod and started for the river, a half mile away.

There, sprawled on a grassy bank, the noon sunshine filtering through the trees and dappling the velvety carpet about him, he set himself anew to his task. Situation after situation, plot on plot, passed through his brain, each to be rejected in turn as impracticable. At the end of an hour the obstinate characters were still together and happy in their companionship.

A log bridge for the accommodation of the rare pedestrians and the rarer vehicles crossed the stream a few yards from where he lay. Squirrels chattered in the trees; birds flitted overhead. Only a faint hum from the bustling little city reached him. It was an ideal spot.

A splash in the water and a little cry awakened Cartright from the reverie in which he had fallen. A girl was standing on the bridge. Her sailor hat had blown into the river and was floating lazily toward him. The fishing rod was brought into requisition, and a moment later, bowing, he was presenting the dripping hat to its owner.

She was the girl of his story personified. He had imagined his heroine with wavy hair curled softly about her temples, just as this young lady's did. She was very young, and in her wide blue eyes were the fearlessness of a child and the soul of a woman. Her lips were scarlet, and in the creamy cheeks the color came and went. In slight details perhaps she was different. Yet so quickly did his brain child merge with the charming personality before him that on the instant they became one. To Cartright thereafter she was the "girl of the story."

A single glance and she knew him for a gentleman. Soon they were seated side by side talking like old friends.

He discovered that her name was Ruth Broadhurst and that she was visiting at Banker Lawton's. Miss Broadhurst knew of John Cartright—had read some of his stories. The young man's character and achievements had been highly spoken of by the Lawtons, and, although the irregularity of their meeting at first troubled her, the lack of a formal introduction soon ceased to make itself felt.

That will ever be a golden afternoon in Cartright's memory. At times he read aloud from the book of poems with which Miss Broadhurst had planned to while away an hour alone by the river. More often they chatted of many things—plans, books, mutual acquaintances, themselves. Then long silences would fall—silence more eloquent than words—in which each seemed to read the other's unspoken thought. It was wonderful to the girl, this perfect sympathy and companionship with a man whom she had not seen until a few hours before. Two little clouds occasionally darkened Cartright's sunshine. He was pigeonholed to another, and on Miss Broadhurst's slender, pink tipped third finger a splendid diamond flashed. He banished these thoughts whenever they came. "This one afternoon shall be ours," he said to himself.

Quite naturally he fell to talking of his story and the plot that would not come. "The man is an athlete, a splendid fellow in every way. Him I have modeled after Philip Lotridge, a friend of mine at college. He has won his way up from the ranks, has my hero, and he is worthy of any woman living, even the one my imagination has created for him. He has been abroad, and I've fitted him up with some of the experiences I had myself while reporting on a New York paper. But he is doomed to lose her. The Turks say, you know, 'He that has many horses hath no wives.' I've endowed him with money and graces of body and mind, but I cannot give him the girl he loves.

"And she, Miss Broadhurst, if I can picture her as I see her, should make me famous. I thought one so sweet and charming could not exist until I saw you, and you are her counterpart."

It was no idle compliment, no silly attempt at flirtation. Swiftly the girl searched Cartright's mind and found him sincere. "Thank you, Mr. Cartright," she said simply, yet she colored with pleasure.

"It may seem queer," he continued, but there is a feeling, too strong to be overcome, that I must part them. I would give all I have could they but marry yet they cannot. It is what I call my literary conscience. I know that my stories would ... were I to change in some cases even a single paragraph, but I never do it."

His companion nodded. "I know the feeling. When I was a little girl my mother gave me the task of sweeping the parlor. I did not like it, and at first I did it hurriedly, leaving unswept the places I thought would not be discovered. When mother came to inspect the room her tone of mingled reproof and surprise filled me with shame when she said, 'And my Ruth did not sweep behind the door!' That was all, yet whenever I am tempted to shirk or do anything which is not right I think 'I must sweep behind the door.'"

Her naive simplicity delighted Cartright, and he led her to talk of her home town, her friends and her daily occupations. Yet there was never a word of the ring nor the man who had placed it upon her finger, and Cartright respected her fine delicacy.

Everything must come to an end, and this incomparable day was drawing to a close. With a start of surprise the girl noted the slanting sun. "I had no idea it was so late," she said. "How the time has flown!"

Cartright helped her to her feet, every nerve thrilling at the touch of her little hand.

He held it between his own and beat impetuously toward her. "Need we say goodby?" he said. "May I not call tonight?"

She raised her eyes to his. They were both glad and troubled at his words, yet within their depths was an appeal he could not mistake—an appeal to his chivalry. "It must be goodby," she said, and then, "I am to be married in September."

He dropped her hand. "And so am I," he replied gloomily. "I suppose after the 12th of September I must not even think of you any more."

"Wednesday, the 12th! Why, that is my wedding day."

"And mine."

Miss Broadhurst smiled as she turned away. "Mr. Cartright, there is the plot for your story."

"Need it be written?" he asked passionately, pleadingly. "That story is no end the saddest I have ever known."

The sweet lips were tremulous, but the eyes were brave and steady now. "It must be written," she said softly. "Your heroine was true and sweet. Help her to sweep behind the door, to remain true to herself and her promise. And, oh, believe me, though they parted, those two in the story, she always remembered him, and," breathlessly, "was sorry, perhaps, that—that they were not to be together nor even see each other again."

"And he—the man in the story—was more than sorry. He would have said much, yet honor forbade. She gave him a rose which he always kept. And this is the end of the story."

The girl unpinned a rose at her breast. She kissed it and handed it to Cartright and went her way unsteadily, for her eyes were filled with tears. She turned once and looked back. He stood upon the spot where they had parted. The rose he held to his lips.

His Descent.

He was a gentler specimen of his class than one usually meets, and when he made his appeal for something to eat at the kitchen door he was asked by the good natured cook to come in by the fire. As he sat there she said:

"You don't look as though you had always been a tramp."

"I haven't," he replied without offense. "I came from a very good family."

She let him eat on without interruption, but after he had finished she said:

"You say you came from a good family. May I ask the name?"

"It was Blankleigh," he responded.

"Why," she said in surprise, "that's the name of the man next door to us."

"Yes," he replied. "I noticed it on the doorplate. That's who I came from. He threw me down his steps just before I called here."

First and Last Love.

Humor is not usually held to be Rabbinger d'Annunzio's strong point, but there is some wit in this saying of his, which Comoedia (Paris) prints. He was asked what is the difference between a man's first love and his last love. "The difference is," said D'Annunzio, "that he always thinks his first love is his last and his last his first."

African Greenbacks.

The social grasshocks of South Africa live in large societies. They select a tree of considerable size and literally cover it with a grass roof, under which their common dwelling is constructed. The roof serves the double purpose of keeping off the heat and the rain, and 500 or 600 pairs of birds are known to have the same shelter. The nests in this aerial dwelling are built in regular streets and closely resemble rows of tenement houses.

A Financial Genius.

"He is a financial genius. In a restaurant the other day he spilled a cup of coffee over a fellow's gray trousers."

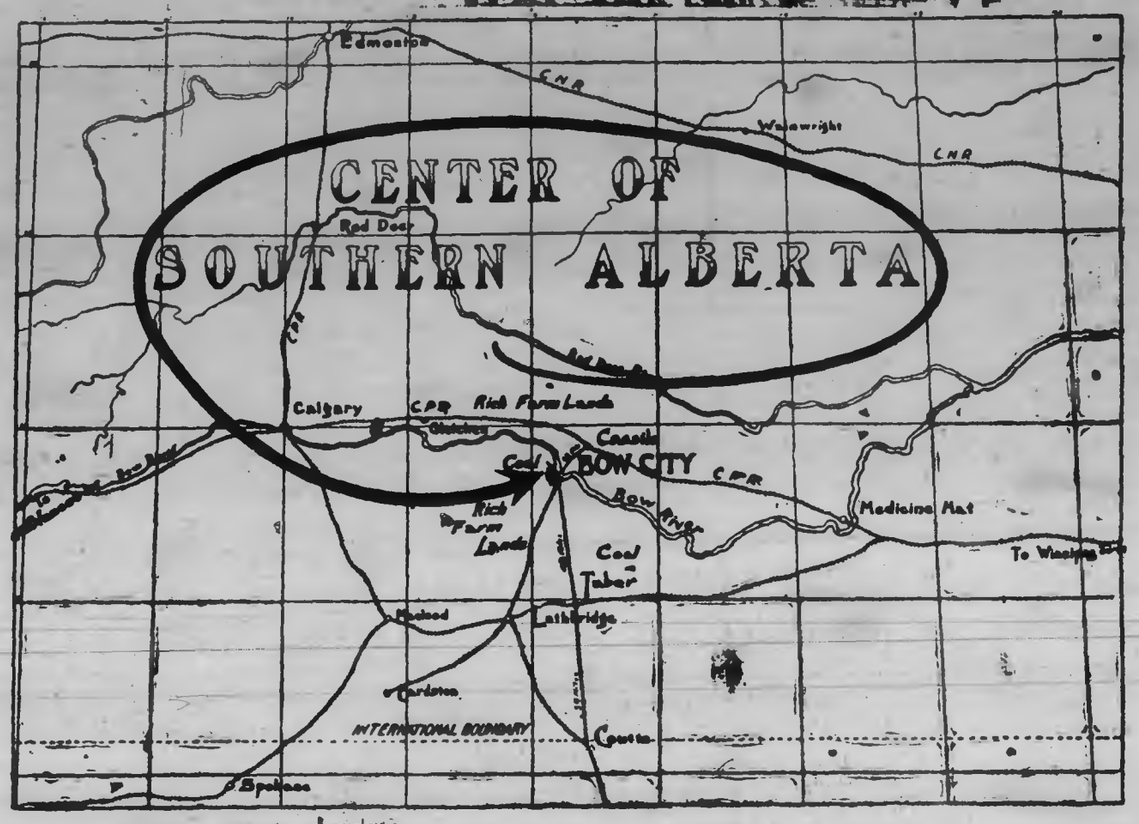
"And got out of paying for them, eh?"

"Why, he talked the other fellow into paying for the coffee."

The Man Behind the Message.

The value of a thing depends largely upon who says it. Words may be bullets, but character must be the powder at the back of them to give them projectile force. The man behind the message is as important as the man behind the gun.

"GIVE YOUR SON A DEED"



If, by way of illustration, you will review the history of the men in your town who have made money out of real estate, you will find that in each and every instance their profits were made from real estate acquired at ground floor prices.

More money can be made by those who acquire a realty interest in a town at its inception per dollar invested than from investments made after a period of years.

Do you know that you can purchase with $5 cash a full sized residential lot in Bow City, Alberta

the logical location for a great city, a city which is destined to be known, the world over, as a market place annually for hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain, grown on the vast irrigated fields surrounding Bow City, a shipping point for coal from the great Bow Centre Collieries, and a purchasing depot for hundreds of prosperous farmers resident throughout Southern Alberta.

To-day is your opportunity to acquire an interest in Bow City at the ground floor price.

It will be too late six months hence, to apply for a lot in Bow City at the present prices and on such easy terms as are offered you in this advertisement.

Why not follow Russell Sage's advice given in a letter published some years ago to the fathers in the Western States:—

"Buy your son a lot in a town being the "centre of a great agricultural country—when "he comes of age that lot will be worth considerable money and will provide a handsome "stake for him in life; it is at least most substantial life insurance—sure and certain."

Buy your son a $50 lot in Bow City, the coming metropolis of the western prairies. In a very short time he can re-sell the same at a big increase, which money he will find advantageous in business pursuits or in a college course.

Bow City, the centre of the great granary of Southern Albert has a future concerning which no sane business man or banker has any doubt.

When you are assured of the success of the city, when you have proven to you beyond the shadow of a doubt that Bow City will, in the very near future, be one of the most active, one of the most progressive towns on the Western prairies, you should not hesitate to acquire at least one $50 residential lot, when same is on sale on such easy terms as 10 per cent cash and the balance 10 per cent per month until paid—a deed at any time.

Bow City is in the heart of a famous irrigated farming belt whose farmers are assured of a crop every year. They are prosperous and their prosperity will naturally enhance the value of Bow City real estate.

The great coal mines of Bow City will furnish work for 1,000 to 1,500 miners daily, these miners will constitute a substantial basis for a successful city.

The present owners of Bow City have decided that no licenses shall be issued for the sale of spirituous liquors; they intend that this great mining and agricultural centre shall be free from any traffic in intoxicating drinks—it will be a clean city.

Bow City is the headquarters of a railway which taps a territory unparalleled for richness in crops and natural resources.

The Sale of Bow City lots opened but a few days ago

If you are desirous of acquiring a $50 residential lot close in you should lose no time in making application by wire direct to the General Agents of the townsite, or to the nearest sub-agent.

Do not delay, by sending your application by mail.

Wire at once your reservation for one or more lots On receipt of wire your name will be placed on the closest-in unsold lot or lots and same will be held in your name, allowing you sufficient time for your cash payment, mailed same day you wire, to travel from your home to the head office.

You may find it to your advantage, if you are desirous of securing a business opening, or a business lot, to write for copy of the plans, booklets and descriptive matter concerning Bow City, all of which may be had on application, free of charge.

FOR AND AGAINST SURGERY.

It is a familiar fact that surgery has been under fire in this country, that the profession has been charged with a dangerous craze for operations and that cases can be cited which give color to the complaints that are made. Much the same conditions prevail in England, and they have resulted in a controversy which will interest the American combatants.

For a prosecuting witness there is The Socialist Review, which has opened its pages to a writer who condemns the surgeons in unmeasured terms. His statistics would make them appear as a band of reckless empiricists and bluncerers. "Every practitioner knows," he declares, "that some surgeons have a mortality of 100 per cent." in operations for appendicitis." To prevent the slaughter, he suggests the registration of all hospitals and the following scheme: "The names of physicians are to be given; in the case of surgical operation followed by death the operating surgeon, whether in hospital or private practice, is to notify the coroner and enquiry will forthwith be held."

The London Lancet appears for the defense, attacks the statistics and mocks the plan of prevention with great energy. It argues that though there have been mistakes with the increase of operations and the adoption of new methods there has also been substantial progress, and it gives several instructive illustrations to prove its point. It speaks of the opposition to the use of anaesthetics and that the deaths are regrettable, we should think of the thousands who have benefitted by this step in advance. We may modify our procedure as this seems advisable, but surely there would be no justification for sacrificing all the good to be accomplished because there was a possibility of some evil.

The coroner's jury is counted as a device for setting ignorance above intelligence:

If the patient and his friends know the risk of the operation and the chance of life if no operation be performed, and if they agree to the operation and the surgeon is willing to do it, who shall say them or him nay? The very life blood of true progress in surgery is the devising and carrying out of new operations or the employing of methods inknown before; but what would be the result if the performance of a new operation or the use of a hitherto unknown method might subject the surgeon to the ordeal of a public trial?

The moral is, apparently, that you should try to be sure of your experts and discriminate as far as may be between them and the blunderers.

GO SHOPPING ALONE.

Smiles irradicated the floor-walker's face. Business had been poor, but it was picking up for that day. How did he know? Women were shopping in pairs and trios.

"They always buy so much more when they come in bunches. When a woman shops alone she buys only what she needs or can afford, and when she shops with friends she buys what she wants them to think she can afford."

You are not experimenting on yourself when you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a cold as that preparation has won its great reputation and extensive sales by its remarkable cures of colds, and can always be depended on. It is equally valuable for adults and children and may be given young children with implicit confidence as it contains no harmful drug. Sold by all dealers.

For pains in the side or chest dampen a piece of flannel with Chamberlain's Liniment and bind it on over the seat of pain. There is nothing better. For sale by all dealers.

A TARCOOLER FUNERAL.

Wood Was Scare, but They Managed to Rig Up a Coffin.

In some of the mining districts of South Australia there is a great scarcity of wood. Consequently, if you are so foolish as to die there you must not expect to have a coffin, but must be content to be wrapped in a sack before being deposited in Mother Earth.

However, when a certain very prominent resident of a mining camp died the other people of the settlement—by the way, it was called Tarcooler, though coolness was unknown and Tarbotter would have been a more suitable name—determined that he should be buried in style. So they set about getting a coffin. They made one of a sort, placed a lid on it and laid it (with the deceased inside) in an empty tent for the night.

Next morning the lid of the coffin was missing. It was afterward found that it had been stolen to make the tailboard of a butcher's cart.

However, in spite of this trifling loss the funeral was conducted with great solemnity. The coffin was much admired. It had been made out of the boxes in which the dynamite was sent to the mines. Some people might have considered that the obsequies were marred by the fact that the coffin bore in large letters on one side the legend "Keep dry," and on the other "Stow away from boilers," but that did not trouble the simple minds of the Tarcoolerians.—London Tit-Bits.

WORSE THAN WAR.

Infernal Regions of the Buddhists and Mohammedans.

The infernal regions of Buddhism are horrible. They comprise a great belt and 136 lesser hells. In these hells, according to the sculptures of the Buddhist temples, men are ground to powder and their dust turned into ants and fleas and spiders. They are pestled in a mortar. The hungry eat red-hot iron balls. The thirsty drink molten iron.

Islamism says of the infernal regions: "They who believe not shall have garments of fire fitted for them. Boiling water shall be poured on their heads and on their skins, and they shall be beaten with maces of iron."

In the Scandinavian mythology, the mythology of Odin and Thor, we are told that "in Nastrond there is a vast and direful structure, with doors that face the north. It is formed entirely of the backs of serpents, wattled together like wickerwork. But the serpents' heads are turned toward the inside of the hall, and they continually send forth floods of venom, in which wade all those who commit murder or forswear themselves."

Her First Poem.

She was one of those soft eyed maidens, sweetly innocent, shy and gentle. She was unaccustomed to newspaper offices, but, being ambitious, she managed to find enough courage to try winning an editor's sympathy, sympathy to be expressed by the acceptance of her poem.

"I have here," she said demurely, "a little verse I've composed. I really don't know what you'll think of it. You may not like it at all, but it's my first—that is, the first I've ever written for a newspaper—and I'd be very pleased indeed if you honestly thought it was good."

The editor kept at his work, now and then scowling, but not at the young woman especially.

"It's about a maiden tripping o'er the lea," she continued.

"What was the trouble?" asked the man behind the paper. "Couldn't she lift her feet?"—Philadelphia Times.

Slightly Mixed.

He wasn't good at connodrums, but when his turn came to ask one at a little social party he thought he could remember a good one he had heard. It was the old riddle:

"Why is a woman like the ivy?"

The answer, of course, is the gallant explanation:

"Because the more you're ruined the closer she sticks."

But he got it mixed and asked:

"Why is the ivy like a woman?"

None of the ladies present could give an appropriate reply, so he himself ventured this maladroit solution:

"Because the closer it clings the more you're ruined."

Spoiled It For Him.

Mr. Clarke's butler had asked for a night off, for the purpose, as he explained, of attending a ball in the village. The next day Mr. Clarke asked him how he had enjoyed himself.

"Oh, pretty good, sir, thank you," was the response. "It would have been better if it hadn't a-been for the women. I can't abide women at a ball."—New York Press.

A Beautiful Thought.

A little girl absorbed in gazing at the starry skies being asked of what she was thinking said, "I was thinking if the wrong side of heaven is so glorious what must the right side be!"

A Threat.

Immature Conductor (to clarinet player)—See here, Mr. Schieg, why don't you follow my beat? You—

Clarinet (solemnly)—If you don't howl I will!—Puck.

MURDEROUS MILLINERY

Some of the Cruelties Practised for Sake of Millinery.

The havoc that is being wrought among birds to satisfy demands of modern millinery was pressed home by Mr. James Buckland in a striking speech at the annual meeting of the Selborne Society, London, England.

"The whole volume of the bird life of the world is being reduced at an alarming rate," he said, and then he gave the reason—that to obtain the feathers the birds had to be killed in the breeding season.

At that time birds' natural fear of man disappears under the stress of providing for and protecting their young, and it is under conditions such as these that the old birds are shot and rifled of their plumes, and the young left to die of starvation in the nest.

Scenes of Slaughter.

Thirty years ago there were heronries in the United States which were estimated to contain about 3,000,000 white herons. At the same period these birds roamed widely over China in prodigious multitudes. But even these vast hordes could not withstand slaughter during the breeding season, and now the white heron is practically exterminated both in North America and in China. Now the same havoc is being wrought in South America—in every country of the world, indeed, where the white heron is still found.

The feeding grounds of the American jabiru, the largest but one of living storks, are also the scenes of slaughter during the very period when the bird should have respite. Thirty thousand quills of these birds are sold annually in London alone, and as the species was never very numerous, it will soon be wiped out.

So wary is the bird that it keeps beyond the range of a fowling-piece, but is shot to-day with a soft-nosed bullet from a Mauser rifle—a dreadful missile, which often tears away a great piece from the body of the bird. Even in this sickening condition, unless the mutilation be such as to prevent flight, the majestic creature will take wing in one last effort to escape. Of a sudden it falls lifeless to the earth—and woman's wish is gratified.

One Gang Shoots 200,000

So far this year but three plume sales have taken place in London, yet in those three sales alone there were catalogued the skins of over 25,000 humming birds.

Even the law is set at defiance by the gangs of men who make a livelihood by the slaughter of the birds. Not long ago a gang was surprised on one of the islands which the United States had decreed to be a "bird reservation," and these men had in their possession the plumage of 300,000 birds.

There was no bird in the world towards which the eyes of zoologists were turned in more admiring wonder than that pride of Australia, the lyre bird. Yet the rarer the bird became the fiercer grew the competition to secure its tail feathers, and not long ago a party of plume-hunters surrounded a patch of scrub in which the birds were known to be breeding, and, setting fire to it, shot down the birds as they struggled through one pitiless ring of fire to meet death in another. Then the tail feathers were cut off and the bodies left to rot.

It was decided to organize a crusade throughout the country by means chiefly of lantern lectures, and stir up public sentiment in favour of the [illegible] the importation of [illegible] be prohibited by law, and an appeal was made for subscriptions.

A TONKIN AMAZON.

The Remarkable Wife of a Notorious Rebel.

Fourteen followers or accomplices of the rebel De Tham, who still defies the French in the fastnesses of Tonkin, arrived at Marseilles on their way to the convict station of French Guiana. Among them is a woman. She is Thy Ba, De Tham's second wife, an altogether remarkable person. Her age is about 30. Imperious and cruel, this woman fought by her husband's side in all his battles with the French troops, and exercised great influence over him. She strenuously opposed the release of the Frenchman Voisin—who had been kidnapped by De Tham—and urged that his head should be struck off. It was by a mere chance that she was captured. The French troops, victors in a skirmish, were searching the bandit's lair. Thy Ba had taken refuge in a thicket, into which a passing soldier drove his bayonet. There was a howl. Thy Ba had betrayed herself. On the voyage this woman's word was law to her fellow prisoners, all of them men. She maintained an iron discipline over them in the improvised cell in which they were kept, and which they were only allowed to leave twice a day. She distributed their food to them and regulated all the details of their daily life on board. When the vessel reached port it was she who led the captives as they stepped ashore.

AN ACCOMMODATING FLAG

"The King of the Cocos Islands," who died the other day, came of a stock that would have done credit to the old Scottish clan system. The original "king" was king in more than name, but he preferred to be like an old-time Highland chief. So he came voluntarily under the shelter of the British flag, and remained king all the same. It is a most accommodating bit of bunting is the British flag.

Bribe Hangman for Lock of Murderer's Hair

London, Nov. 16.—Mrs. William Northrup McMillan is in a great measure responsible for the craze which now prevails for grewsome objects as mascots. She vows she would rather part with her jewel case her tiger skins, or her priceless bric-a-brac that with her ghastly mementoes from the shambles of Benin. These include daggers, instruments of torture, and most weird of all, the skull of a Benin chief which has a prominent position over the writing table in her boudoir. "I take it every where with me," she says.

Another strange mascot of hers is the blood-stained tusk of an elephant When Col. Roosevelt visited London this year he brought the McMillans several trophies of the chase obtained during his expedition in Africa. One they especially prize is the skin of a puff adder which they have had mounted into a writing table lamp. Mrs. McMillan laughingly says that her husband has signed beneath the rays of this lamp some most important documents which have resulted in big financial successes for him. "though," she adds, "of course he won't acknowledge that the lamp has anything to say to it, which is just like a man."

TALISMANS OF FORTUNE.

The late Consuelo Duchess of Manchester had some strange mementoes which she believed were talismans of good fortune. The governor of the jail in which the notorious Mrs. Dyer was imprisoned, and eventually executed, gave her a prayer book, which the murderess used while under sentence of death. This the duchess treasured possibly as an emblem of the repentance of the criminal. At any rate her grace considered that it brought her happiness. For years the book rested on a table in her bedroom. King Edward was told by some mutual friends of this weird object and was annoyed with the duchess for keeping such a memento. Her grace, in a polite way, however, as was her wont, gave his majesty to understand that she was not to be interfered with in regard to her tastes, and up to the time of her death the book stood in its accustomed position Afterwards it and a few similar objects were promptly destroyed by her daughter-in-law, the duchess, who has a wholesome horror of anything of the grewsome order.

AMULET OF INDIAN CHIEF

Among the most valued possessions of Mrs. Brown Potter is a richly ornamented silver amulet which was worn by an Indian chief who committed suicide because he had given offence to his deity Since it came into her possession Mrs. Brown Potter vows her fortunes have been steadily improving On various occasions she has been offered considerable prices for this ghastly object, but she declines emphatically to part with it.

Some years ago Louise, Duchess of Devonshire, and the late duke were walking on the sea shore at East bourne when there was washed in at their feet the hand of a negro which apparently had been cut off at the wrist. On one of the fingers was a ring of oriental workmanship The duchess had this ring removed and has kept it as a talisman ever since. She has worn it at Monte Carlo when she has on "little bit" at the tables and also when she played bridge.

HANGMEN IMPORTUNED.

Hangmen from time to time receive letters from ladies of position offering them sums of money for locks of hair or buttons from the garments of their victims. They stipulate that these must not be removed until after the culprit is dead. It seems that in the lore of the superstitious the ghastly object has no significance if taken in life. Even more intensely appreciated is a coin which has been rubbed on the dead body of an executed murderer. This, it is said, will bring almost fabulous wealth to the possessor Those who gamble are ready with any price for such a memento. In England, at any rate, there are overwhelming difficulties in getting possession of such indeed, it is only the personal friends of the governors of the prisons where executions take place or the hangman who can secure them.

THE CRIPPEN HOME.

It is not only the American tourists who have been going to see the home of Dr. Crippen in Hilldrop Crescent. Numerous society people have been going there with the object of securing a cutting from a plant or a bit of the wallpaper from the room in which the murder is supposed to have taken place. The majority have had to content themselves with bits of mortar taken from the outer walls, as those in charge have emphatically declined to be bribed into giving even the merest trifles. It is said, however, that Mrs. Aaquith, wife of the prime minister, has obtained the pen which Mrs. Crippen used to write her accounts for the Ladies' Theatrical Guild. It has a well used nib which no doubt makes it all the more valuable to its present possessor.

Georgina Lady Dudley a little while ago suggested to an important official at Scotland Yard the advisability of admitting visitors to see the house at Hilldrop Crescent at 60 cents a head and passing the money on to her for one of her charities! He, however, did not see the matter from her ladyship's point of view.

"You prove yourself a lady of resource by your suggestion," he said. "I believe emphatically were I to do so it would result in more profits than the horse show."

GENERAL ELECTION WILL NOT SETTLE IT.

Next Fight Will Be On Home Rule and Then the Real Struggle Will Be On.

Toronto, Nov. 26.—A private letter from a well-known newspaper correspondent at London received yesterday, has this concerning the election:

"I fancy the Conservatives will gain a few seats, though most folk say no. Anyway, the election won't settle things, because the next fight will be on 'home rule,' and then on tariff reform. I am reckoning the Unionists will get 300 seats out of the 670 in the house, but the general opinion seems, to be that they will come back with 250 instead of the 273 they have now.

"Wait until the government put their home rule bill into cold print, and then you will see some fun Out of every five voters in Ireland two are autocrats against one in 60 in England; moreover, Ireland has 106 members out of 670, with a population of less than five millions, out of a total for the kingdom of 45 millions. It is scandalous that a great constitutional question should be decided by a party like Redmond's."

NOT THE SHORTEST.

The British parliament which will be dissolved on Monday, has not been the shortest since the beginning of Queen Victoria's reign. It assembled on Feb. 15, this year, and, consequently its life was nine months and thirteen days.

The shortest parliament since 1837 lasted five months and fifteen days, from Jan. 12, 1886, to June 26, 1886. This was the Gladstone parliament. Mr. Gladstone introduced the Home Rule Bill, which was defeated by the House of Commons, and the result of the election was the return of the government of Lord Salisbury with a majority of 123.

The parliaments elected in 1859 and 1874 sat for slightly over six years; those lasting between five and six years were the parliaments of 1841, 1868, 1880, 1886, 1895, 1900, 1906, those between four and five years 1847, 1852; between three and four years, 1837; between two and three years, 1866, 1892. The parliament of 1857 sat for close on two years.

"I had been troubled with constipation for two years and tried all of the best physicians in Bristol, Tenn., and they could do nothing for me," writes Thomas H. Williams, Middleboro, Ky. "Two packages of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets cured me." For sale by all dealers.

VIOLET ASQUITH

Her Speech to Salvation Army Cadets

"On behalf of my father, I wish for the Salvation Army cadets that inspiration and strength may not fail them, and that their splendid campaign against disease and ignorance and pain may be crowned with success." With this message Miss Violet Asquith, daughter of the Prime Minister, concluded a touching and pretty speech which she made after delivering certificates in domestic hygiene to 272 Salvation Army cadets in England.

Mrs. Lloyd George spoke of the necessity of good food and pure air in the making of a healthy race. As a nation we suffered from bad food and too much drink, although she understood that people were drinking less since the tax was put on whiskey. (Laughter.) Poor people did not get enough and rich people got too much good food and drink. Thing were very unevenly divided, but we wanted a strong and healthy nation, and above all, a moral and sober nation. (Hear, hear.) Sir J. D. Crichton Browne, in his opening address, said he believed that the great whit plague, tuberculosis, which was carrying off 70,000 of our people every year, and crippling and disabling 300,000, might be extinguished in less than thirty years if we would only use the means at our disposal, and these means were mainly sanitary.

"THE GIRL AND THE EAGLE"

Lights That Failed to Solve a Dark Mystery

The mystery of "The Girl and the Eagle," a new "turn" in the programme of a London theatre, was helped to success by circumstances which obviously belonged to a scheme of different intention.

Into the darkened theatre there flew from the stage a green-eyed monster of an eagle, lathered in luminous paint, which held in its claws a lamb-like little lady so dead to that feeling called "the agony of suspense," that she trilled a cheery song as she floated over the upturned faces in the stalls.

She kept her head and her heart calm and her voice in tune even while hovering over a sinister-looking device of millinery with pins sticking from it like quills upon the fretful porcupine. And she was not in the least dismayed when gentlemen in the audience began to strike matches to see how it was done.

The inquisitive little flames flashed up one after another, but "The Girl and the Eagle" remained a dark secret. They disappeared together into an arrangement of black draperies on the stage, and when the lights of the theatre were turned on, as they were immediately, the mechanical bird had delivered its pretty parcel behind the screen, there were neither wires above nor rods beneath to show how the voyage had been accomplished.

Thus, thanks to the Peeping Toms of the wax vesta world, the success of the pretty mystery was all the more conspicuous.

BUILDING A MONOPLANE

E. Peterson Will Construct One Like DeLesseps'

E. Peterson, Fort William, decided to build a monoplane. The machine, with the exception of the engine, which has been ordered in Toronto, will be constructed entirely in Fort William. The monoplane will be similar in design to the one in which Count de Lesseps made his flights at Toronto. The frame work of the body and wings will be constructed of spruce and poplar wood and will have only one sustaining surface. A 30-horsepower engine will be installed. The monoplane complete will weigh in the neighborhood of 600 pounds, and will be capable of ascending to a height of 2,000 feet, and attaining a speed of 40 miles an hour. The body of the machine will be 25 feet in length and the wings will have an expansion of 25 feet. The Fort William aerial navigator expects to be able to sail in the air by the end of September. The monoplane will cost $1,000.

AN AUTOMOBILE CAR

Up-to-Date Method of Inspecting Railway Work in Montreal

Railway officials on the Lake Superior division of the Canadian Pacific railway will hereafter make their trips of inspection in an automobile car. It is the first of its kind to be operated in Fort William. It has a buggy body and a glass front with a covered top. Gasoline is the motive power, and a speed of from 50 to 60 miles an hour can be attained. It has seating capacity for eight.

WEDDING ROMANCE

A Windfall For a Veteran of the American Civil War

Mr. Marshall Bailey, a veteran of the American Civil War, was married in Dublin to a woman of thirty-five, until recently an inmate of the South Dublin Workhouse. Mr. Bailey was born in the United States about seventy years ago, and after leaving the American Army went abroad. He had had fortune, and for some years was an inmate of the South Dublin Workhouse, where he met his bride. About three months ago a piece of news reached him in the workhouse which enabled him to regain his independence and marry the woman of his choice. He learned that the American Government had awarded him a substantial pension and that arrears amounting to $1,750 were due to him. A large crowd, interested in the veteran's romance, witnessed the wedding. The best man, who is an inmate of the workhouse, was allowed out specially for the occasion. In reply to the showers of rice rained on the wedding carriage as it left the church the bridegroom threw out of the window a large quantity of silver, which was scrambled for by the crowd.

"SHALL WE DEE?"

Pathetic Story of a Flooded Colliery.

Describing, in his annual report on the mines of North and East Lancashire, the disaster at the Ince Hall Colliery, Accrington, Mr. Gerrard, inspector of Mines, gives a moving account of the efforts of two men and a boy to escape from the water which had flooded the workings.

The water was too strong for Haworth, who turned back. Kenyon kept on; some distance in the water he came to the boy Redmayne, crying and calling out "Mother, mother!" The boy had no light. Kenyon said, "Thee cling to me" (he had only a flannel vest with a belt over it on him, no trousers, shoes or stockings). The boy said, "Shall we dee?"

They struggled on through the water until a large stone knocked Kenyon down. Recovering himself, proceeding a little further, he missed the boy, but did not dare to go back for him; he nearly gave in several times. Resting by placing his head against the roof, he thought of his home and children and struggled on until met by Butterworth and rescued.

TEACHERS WITHOUT POSITIONS

Yet Many Classes in London Schools Are Overcrowded

In many parts of London, England, young women who have been trained as teachers may, it is asserted, be found serving as waitresses in teashops or as cashiers in drapery establishments, whilst men students unable to obtain a position in the sphere for which they are fitted, have been forced to accept situations as motor-omnibus drivers.

The arrangement which permits this misapplication of talent is a growing grievance among London training college students, who complain that the action of the London County Council Education Committee with regard to what is known as the "college" list, materially lessens their prospects of securing satisfactory positions. No student whose name is not on this list can apply for a vacancy in a London provided school. The list this year contains 300 names, but of these only ninety-three are names of L.C.C. students. Side by side with this state of affairs, the last official report shows that there are 2,000 classes in London elementary schools with over sixty children in each.

The attention of the President of the Board of Education is to be called to the fact that in the infants' department of a school in Islington each class contains more than seventy children, and one class contains eighty-four.

HOPE FOR THE OLD COUNTRY

Sir G. Reid Spoke on British Genius in Business

Sir George Reid, High Commissioner for the Australian Commonwealth, in a speech at Bradford, said that out in Australia some were very anxious about the old country. He expected to see traces of this dry rot which was supposed to be setting in, but so far he had discovered none. "I hope," he said, "you people in England will cheer up. It is a dreadful thing to get down in the dumps when there is nothing the matter with you" (laughter). Continuing, he said the Board of Trade returns for the past six months showed an increase of £70,000,000. That was the sort of decay he liked to see (laughter). "I begin to have some hope for you," he remarked. "Don't die yet. You are a curious lot," he observed. "When all the civilised world is shut up against you and you ought to go down by every rule of logic and commonsense and political economy, you exploit fresh continents. The genius of your success is that you have the magnificent knack of minding your own business. The fact is you have practical business interests that link you up with every community under the sun, and when you interfere you are only doing so in pursuance of your own interests. You are not to be beaten, and Heaven bless you all."

LETTER ON A DEAD WOMAN

Mrs. Harry Ford Wrote That She Was Still in Need of Friends.

A remarkable letter came to light at an inquest at Westminster concerning the finding of a body of an unknown woman in the Thames. The body had apparently been in the water for at least ten days. The letter, dated from a common lodging house at Crescent street, Notting Hill, was addressed to "Mrs. Harry Ford" It was signed "Janet Robertson."

The coroner read this letter, in the course of which the writer said:

"I am still in need of friends. I have many enemies, and never get my letters. I have tried all sorts of places, but some one always seems to get them first. Although I am an old hag, it will not take me long to pull myself together. I have been so badly used lately that I am disgusted with everything, myself included. I hope you will understand how I am placed, and forgive my faults. I am not really a bad sort."

SUICIDE ON BED OF ROSES

Left Note Saying He was Finishing His Life Poetically

George Spinoza, aged 52, was found dead in his flat in Paris suffocated by gas. He was lying on a bed of roses, and a note on the table announced his intention of finishing thus poetically a life which had become a burden to him.

COLORED POPULATION DECLINES

The Chatham Planet says the colored population of Chatham has been going behind of recent years. The scarcity of jobs is one if the reasons. The young colored men of the city find it difficult to get work, with the result that they are seeking it in other places Many of them have secured positions in Detroit, where there is a constant demand for colored waiters, hotel porters, etc.

We have a vacancy in our bindery for a bright, steady, young man to learn bookbinding—one of the best trades. Apply at Times Bookstore.

Preparing for Christmas.

The spirit of Christmas is pervading many of our local stores as is evidenced by the many tasteful window displays which attract the eye. Christmas shopping is now in order.

Times' Heating Plant.

A fine steam heating plant has been installed in The Times building, Hunter street, and was in operation yesterday for the first time.

How Your Gas Meter Works.

During the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1910, as per annual report of the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, under the subheading "gas meters," we find that 240 gas meters were presented for verification: of these 78 were correct, 5 fast and 139 slow. One was rejected as unsound, one as fast and six as slow.

Squeezed to Death at Belleville.

A Belleville despatch of yesterday says: While operating the turntable at the round house here this morning T. Ramsay, aged 21, was caught and squeezed to death between two engines before the huge machine could be stopped. He was the son of Thos. Ramsay, employed for years in the pump house here.

Prominent Lady Suicides.

Referring to a lady who has quite a number of friends in Peterborough, a Whitby despatch of yesterday says: Mr. John Armiston, aged 50 years, attended church and Sunday school yesterday apparently in the best of health and spirits, and this morning at four o'clock she committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. She was a prominent worker in the Methodist church and in temperance circles.

Fire Brigade Makes Quick Time.

The fire brigade received a call yesterday afternoon at 2.45 to 70 James street, the residence of Mr. Albert Green. It proved to be only a chimney blaze, however, and no damage was done. The brigade made quick time, doing the round trip in fifteen minutes. The alarm was sent in from box 52.

Local Lovers' Agreement Found.

Romance is not dead. Some might be mean enough to hint that matrimony, plus possible divorce is so much a matter of business that engagements must be arranged in black and white. Again, others might be small enough to hint at possible breach of promise action. Let all this be as it may, a local paper claims to have in its possession the following agreement, alleged to have been found on Charlotte street, viz., "We, the undersigned, hereby agree to the following: Should the lady get married on or before her 22nd birthday, she agrees to present the man with a dress suit and vice-versa, supplanted by a silk dress." Those affected need not be frightened. The safetest way to keep one's name out of print in a modern newspaper, is to confide in editor or reporter, and then place such on their respective honors to "keep mum."

Hockey Meeting Postponed.

The annual meeting of the City Hockey League to have been held in the Oriental Hotel parlors last night was postponed for one week. It is not yet known whether the postponement was due to the snow that fell last night, whether the president or secretary's cat had presented their respective family with an assorted lot of kittens, or whether the officials were out of town. The main point is that this important branch of local sport, has put off their annual gathering for a week. When they meet the finances of the league will be considered and compared, officers for the coming season will be elected and other important business transacted.

THE RED YEAR

—By—

LOUIS TRACY.

rut my friend Nejdi will take me to Aligarh. You see he is an Arab of ... too rough with him it will break his spirit; if too gentle he will break my neck. He needs the main de fer sous le gant de velours Please forgive me! I really didn't intend to mention gloves again."

"Oh, go away, you and your Arab You are both horrid. You dine here to-morrow night, my uncle said."

"Yes, if I don't send you a telegram from Aligarh. I may be brought there, you know, against my will."

Lifting his hat, he walked towards a huge pipal tree in the compound Beneath its far-flung branches a syce was sitting in front of a finely-proportioned and unusually big Arab horse. Both animal and man seemed to be dozing; but they woke into activity when the sahib approached. The Arab pricked his ears, swished his long and arched tail victoriously and showed the whites of his eyes. A Bedouin of the desert, a true scion of the incomparable breed of Nejd, he was suspicious of civilization, and his new owner was a stranger, as yet.

"Ready for the fray, I see," murmured Malcolm with a smile. He wasted no time over preliminaries. Bidding the syce place his thumbs in the steel rings of the bridle, the young Englishman gathered the reins and a wisp of gray mane in his left hand Seizing a favorable moment, when the struggling animal flinched from the touch of a low-lying branch on the off side, he vaulted into the saddle Chunga the syce, held on until his master's feet had found the stirrups Then he was told to let go, and Miss Winnifred Mayne, niece of a Commissioner of Oudh, quite the most eligible young lady the Meerut district could produce that year, witnessed a display of cool, resourceful horsemanship as the enraged Arab plunged and curvetted through the main gate.

It left her rather flushed and breathless.

"I like Mr. Malcolm," she confided to herself with a little laugh, "but his manner with women is distinctly brusque! I wonder why!"

The Grand Trunk Road ran to left and right. To the left it led to the bazaar, the cantonment, and the civil lines; to the right, after passing a few houses tenanted by Europeans, it entered the open country on a long stretch of over a thousand miles to Calcutta and the south In 1857 no thoroughfare in the world equalled the Grand Trunk Road. Beginning at Peshawur, in the extreme north of India, it traversed the Punjab for hundreds miles as far as Allahabad Here it broke into the Calcutta and Bombay branches, each nearly a mile straight, well made and tree-lined throughout it supplied the two great arteries of India's life. Malcolm had selected it as a training ground that evening because he meant to weary and subdue his too highly spirited charger. Whether the pace was fast or slow Nejdi would be compelled to meet many varieties of traffic, from artillery elephants and snarling camels down to the humble bullock cart of the ryot. Possibly, he would not shy at such monstrosities after twenty miles of lathering ride.

The mad pace set by the Arab when he heard the clatter of his feet on the hard road chimed in with the turbulent mood of his rider. Frank Malcolm was a soldier by choice and in stinct. When he joined the Indian army, and became a subaltern in a native cavalry regiment, he determined to devote himself to his profession. He gave his whole thought to it and to nothing else. His interests lay in his work. He regarded everything from the point of view of its influence on his military education, so it may be conceded instantly that the arrival in Meerut of an Oudh Commissioner's pretty niece should not have affected the peace of mind of this budding Napoleon.

But a nice young woman can find joints in the armor of the sternest souled young man. Her attack is all the more deadly if it be unpremeditated, and Frank Malcolm had already reached the self depreciatory stage wherein a comparatively impecunious subaltern asks himself the sad question whether it be possible for such a one to woo and wed a maid of high degree, or her Anglo-Indian equivalent, an heiress of much prospective wealth and present social importance.

But money and rank are artificial, the mere varnish of life, and the hot breath of reality can soon scorch them out of existence. Events were then shaping themselves in India that war destined to sweep aside convention for many a day, and the young Englishman known it, five miles from Meerut his Arab's hoofs threw pebbles over a swarthy moullah, lank and travel-stained, who was hastening towards the Punjab on a dreadful errand. The man turned and cursed him as he passed, and bowed with bitter venom that when the time of reckoning came there would not bt a Feringhi left in all the land. Malcolm, nowever, would have laughed had he heard. Affairs of state did not concern him. His only trouble was that Winifred Mayne stood on a pinnacle far removed from the beaten path of a cavalry subaltern. So, being in a rare fret and fume, he let the gray Arab gallop himself white, and, when the high-mettled Nejdi thought of easing the pace somewhat he was urged onward with the slight but utterly unprecedented prick of a spur.

That was a degradation not to be borne. The Calcutta Brahmin did not resent the Lascar's taunt more keenly With a swerve that almost unseated Malcolm, the Arab dashed in front of a bullock-cart, swept between the trees on the west side of the road, passed a

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

A meeting of the Charity Board was held last night at eight o'clock.

A meeting of the Managing Committee of the Peewit Boy Scouts will be held in the commanding officers' room at the armories tonight at 8 o'clock.

Members of the 24th Battery, C.F.A., are requested to attend a meeting at the armories tomorrow evening next, at 7.30 sharp, for the purpose of forming an Indoor Baseball Club.

Mr. J. G. Coughlin of the Coughlin Monumental Works, Hunter street was in Toronto last week in connection with the placing of a handsome monument manufactured by the local firm in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

The regular meeting of the Poultry Association will be held at their hall Simcoe street, on Thursday evening, December 1st. This is an important meeting and all the members are asked to be present. Brahmas, Orlingtons, and other variety of birds on exhibition.

Toronto is in an upheaval of legal dispute concerning the small loaf of bread. Peterborough citizens should watch the outcome, for, whilst there is no specific charge against local bakers, with the present price of flour, and high prices of other necessities of life, the loaf in Peterborough seems very small for the money paid by a long suffering public.

Montreal Bank Clerks.

A despatch from Montreal states that the clerks in the Bank of Montreal, are to receive an increase in their pay from $200 per annum upwards, according to their length of service and usefulness, according to an announcement which has just been made. It is stated that agitation along these lines have been in progress for some time, owing to the increased cost of living. The increase is to affect only the rank and file of the clerical staff.

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2,625 oz. of gold and 3,267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

WARRANT FOR CONDUCTOR.

Wanted for Stealing Fares and Selling Tickets.

(From the Montreal Gazette.)

Judge Lanctot, at the request of the Crown Prosecutor, has issued a bench warrant for the arrest of E. Smith, a former sleeping car conductor in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, who at one time ran between Montreal and Vancouver, and latterly between Montreal and Toronto.

Early in October information reached the Crown authorities which led up to Smith's arrest for stealing sleeping car fares, and for stealing and selling railway tickets to various persons in Montreal and elsewhere. Smith had a preliminary hearing and was committed for trial to the Court of King's Bench, his case being set for the 10th. When called, he failed to appear, with the result that his bail was forfeited and a bench warrant issued for his arrest.

The case caused a good deal of interest in railway circles, and it is probable that other than railway people will become interested, as the name and address of quite a number of people with whom he has been doing business are known, and it is likely that before the matter is finally disposed of several of the hunters for bargains in railway transportation will be dealt with.

"It is really too bad," said a high official of the Canadian Pacific on Saturday, "that the travelling public should suggest such dishonesty to conductors. If passengers would refrain from making conductors steal from the company by offering them facilities and inducements to do so, it would be better for them in every way. We have the names of a good many men who have done this, in Montreal and other places, and they include some pretty prominent men. Morally, they are as guilty, if not more so, than the conductors whom they train to become thieves, and the practice of trying to get cheap transportation at the expense of the company and the honesty of the conductors cannot be too sharply repressed.

"In the present instance it has led to the ruin of a young man and the breaking up of his home. While we are sorry for those who suffer by it, the company must stop this business of stealing fares, and prosecution will follow every instance that is discovered."

City Board of Works in Business Session

The Contracts for Removing Snow and Slush Awarded--The Illuminated Sign By-Law to be Amended--Signs May Project Over the Sidewalk Six Feet, Six Inches

The city's Board of Works met last night. There were present:—Chairman Ald. Hicks, and Aldermen Duncan, Graham, Metheral, Phelan, Duffus and Gillespie.

TENDERS FOR SNOW PLOWING.

The following tenders for removing snow and slush from the side walks were offered:
District No. 3—$130—Wm. Saxby.
District No. 5—$120—John Coombs.
District No. 8—$92—J. P. Francis.
District No. 6—$120—R. Rishea.
District No. 5—$155—Robt. Nicholls.
District No. 8—$90—B. Revoy.
District No. 7—$105—B. Revoy.
District No. 2—$197—E. Flaherty.
District No. 7—$100—Alex. O'Brien.
District No. 4—$143—Dan McMillan.
District No. 4—$118—Geo. Innes.

CONTRACTS AWARDED.

The following tenders were accepted:
District No. 2—$197—E. Flaherty.
District No. 7—$100—Alex. O'Brien.
District No. 4—$118—Geo. Innes.
District No. 3—$130—Wm. Saxby.
District No. 6—$120—R. Rishea.
District No. 8—$90—B. Revoy.
District No. 5—$155—Robt. Nicholls.

The lowest tender in each case was accepted, excepting that of No. 5 Ward, for which work Nicholls tendered $155 and Coombs $120. Aldermen Graham and Phelan favored the contract going to the lowest tender; but owing to the past satisfactory service given the city by Mr. Nicholls, he was awarded the contract.

Ald. Graham did not think this action right: it is of no use asking for tenders if the lowest are not accepted.

Ald Gillespie replied that circumstances sometimes altered cases.

PORTABLE ENGINE FOR SALE.

Ald. Duncan moved, seconded by Ald. Metheral, That Mr. Conroy be offered the portable engine at the price of $125. Carried.

The city has no further use for this steam engine now that electricity is being used.

Mr. Conroy refused to accept these terms.

THE SIGN BYLAW.

The city engineer reported that there are 51 illuminated signs in the city. Of these five are fanterns only, used at entrances to lodge and club rooms, and might, with the council's approval, be classed outside the meaning of illuminated signs. Five only have paid the necessary license fee of $2, and of the remainder five only do not comply with the bylaw as to size and construction.

Ald. Hicks offered that he would like to see the streets cleared of illuminat'd signs.

Ald. Metheral argued that this and the building bylaw should be decisively amended, or left alone, and the measures lived up to the strict letter of the law.

Ald. Duffus moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan,—That the sign bylaw be amended to provide that illuminated signs be permitted to extend over the sidewalk six feet six, and that the annual fee of $2 be collected.—Carried.

SMITH STREET BRIDGE.

The engineer reported Contractor Conroy's work in constructing the Smith street bridge as satisfactory.

Ald. Graham—"Is it true that the concrete work is cracked at both ends?"

Engineer Hay—"No. There is a crack in the railing, which does not extend down into the arches. This was caused by frost before the concrete was quite dry." Mr. Hay further added that he had never yet seen a piece of massive concrete work that did not show a crack or two. Which, however, would not affect the stability or safety of the structure.

On motion it was decided to pay Mr. Conroy the balance due him on his contract.

MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS

The engineer reported that several holes on Concession street should be filled in. This work would take about 25 loads of gravel. Nothing will be done in this matter until next spring.

The Board of Health recommended that a sewer be constructed on Hanson avenue, from Aberdeen to Manning avenue. This was slated for next year.

The board will take no action this year regarding the city confectioners' complaint that sprinkling the streets with oil, taints their confectionery, as it was conceded that the only sprinkling our streets will get until spring will be that of snow.

Inspector Bartlett submitted figures showing where he had saved the city $487.30 by his preparation of the form of concrete manholes constructed for the south end storm drainage system, under his supervision. Mr. Bartlett asked that that in consideration of the foregoing he be allowed $64 over and above his salary of $3 a day as inspector.

Ald. Duncan moved, seconded by Ald. Metheral,—That Mr. Bartlett be paid $64 as an allowance on account of the method he introduced in the construction of concrete manholes when such manholes are reported by the engineer as satisfactory. — Carried.

The board conceded that any one in the city's employe who effected a saving to the city by inventing new methods of construction for public works should be suitably recompensed.

Supt. Barnardo Homes Here.

Mr. Owens, 50 Peter street, Toronto, general superintendent of Dr. Barnardo's Homes in Canada, was in the city yesterday, leaving last night for home. Whilst in the city Mr. Owens spent some time in looking over, and arranging for the future of the new home for the lady staff of the local home, on Water street. Mr. Owens, spoken to by The Times, said that in the Toronto branch on Peter street, they can handle and distribute 300 boys to all parts of Canada, as they arrive from England Mr. Owens takes several trips a year to Winnipeg, Man., to arrange matters for the Home there.

Moving Picture Men to Fight.

The following item from an Ottawa paper will be of interest to many in Peterborough: If the moving picture show men of Ottawa carry out their threat to wage a campaign against the members of the City Council who voted to raise a license fee on their establishments, some of the aldermen say they will retaliate. One alderman declared that if the showmen attempted to ridicule members of the council by throwing cartoons on the screens in their theatres it would ultimately be the worse for them for action would be taken to see that the bylaws regulating the shows is enforced to the letter.

Last Job on Public Library.

The new Public Library is just about completed. Today Messrs Rutherford Bros., the contractors, will place under a stairway landing two iron brackets to support the same. This completes the work of the contractors, who are still in possession of the building until this last work is completed and the final 20 per cent. withheld, by terms of the contract, paid. A few days ago the mayor and aldermen paid a visit to the building and concurred in giving to the firm of Rutherford Bros. had kept faith with the city, and given them (the city) a good job. Mr. Wilson furnished the iron brackets referred to above.

Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain in Favor of Colonial Preference

VETERAN STATESMAN ADDRESSES WEST BIRMINGHAM ELECTORS AND SOUNDS CLARION NOTE.

Concessions Granted to the Colonies on Articles That They Produce Would Secure at Least Equal Advantage From Them With Respect to British Manufacturers.

London, Nov. 29.—The Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain in the course of an address to the electors of West Birmingham, says, "It would be a misfortune if the Colonial Conference passes off without our being able to come to an agreement which would establish reciprocal trade arrangements with the overseas dominions.

"A slight preference given the colonies on articles that they produce would secure, at least, an equal concession from them as regards our manufactures and these material benefits ought to be considered by the conference.

KING WOULD ASSENT TO VETO

Speaking at Finsbury, Winston Churchill said if the electors returned the present government to power the result would be that the Veto bill would be embodied in an Act of Parliament which would receive the assent of the sovereign.

WOULD INTRODUCE DISCORD

Sir Edward Grey, speaking at Dudley, said that Colonial Preference would be the most hollow and mistaken notion the Unionists ever put before the country, as it would introduce discord.

THE AUDITOR GENERAL'S REPORT REVEALS STRANGE PURCHASE

This Amount of Horse Power Available for Future Use.

Ottawa, Nov. 30.—A good deal of comment is being heard in the lobbies of parliament over an item that appears in the auditor-general's report under the heading "House of Commons, Sergeant-at-Arms Estimate."

The item is: "Tombola, Sacred Heart church, Ottawa—Basket of flowers, $8; pipe case, $7; jardiniere, $5; 1 fancy chest of drawers, $5; bronze candlestick, $4; 4 cushions, $11; center piece, $6; bags, 3 at $2; frame, $6; 2 shoe bags, $2.50; sundries, $8.35—$68.85."

Whether these articles were purchased for or at the Tombola is not stated. The government has to foot the bill.

Another item reads "Ketchum and Co., tennis rackets, 4 at $2, net and poles, $4; 6 balls, $2.25; 2 posters, 90c."

Letters to the Editor

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—What it was that induced Rev. Father McColl to take a fling at me personally in his lengthy letter in the Review of Monday, it would be indeed hard to say. He says that I am stupid, pompous, idiotic, etc. Unfortunately I am afraid it is largely true. I have many faults, I regret to say. But he might as well have done me up "properly" when he was at it. There was one allegation against me that he omitted, viz., that I am actuated by hatred of Catholics because they did not vote for me in 1908. How he came to miss that point I am at a loss to understand. Is it necessary, Mr. Editor, for me to say that I believe implicitly in the freedom of the people to do as they please in matters of religion or otherwise? Surely not. What I have been saying is that the Catholic church especially repudiates this idea, and if Father McColl's letter is intended to "refute" my statements that the Roman Catholic Church has declared against the sovereignty of the will of the people, democracy, the brotherhood of man, and liberty as it is known and believed in by struggling humanity today, it is a complete failure. No doubt these were the "attacks" referred to by those who asked Father McColl to reply to them. Why does he not refer to them then? I can't be bothered discussing myself or for that matter Father McColl, but I am vitally concerned in the liberty of the people which the Roman Catholic Church now more than ever expressedly denies. It says that "the People" have no liberties by right except those granted by the Roman Church. This whole terrible question has been revived by the recent papal decrees. The Church has declared war on democracy, Protestantism, Popular Liberty, the independence of the State, etc. A most appalling condition of affairs exist. The Church actually denies a man any rights, except what it may choose to allow him. In my humble way I am trying to arouse my fellowmen to this greatest of all issues so suddenly thrust upon us. Surely I have made my statements clear enough. Father O'Brien did not venture to discuss them, and Father McColl seems equally wary. Let me say that I cherish feelings of respect and esteem for my Catholic fellowmen just as I do for Protestants. I make no distinction between them and I would esteem Father McColl if he would give me but half a chance. What more can I say? Perhaps I should not have replied to his letter at all but that would have been a discourtesy which I would not willingly show to any man.

Yours, etc.,
J. H. BURNHAM.

Wants Practice Stopped.

Five Hundred Lives Lost on Caspian Sea

TEN SHIPS KNOWN TO HAVE FOUNDERED IN THE STORM—LANDING STAGE COLLAPSED.

Five Hundred or More Have Perished in the Terrific Hurricane Which is Raging Over the Caspian Sea.

Odessa, Nov. 29.—Five hundred or more have perished, it is believed, in a terrific hurricane which is raging over the Caspian Sea. Ten ships are known to have foundered. Fears are felt for many more, and at Astrakhan, a landing stage collapsed, hurling 300 men to their death.

Wreckage of small craft is being washed ashore, and coast guards report many ships in distress. The wind blew with fatal velocity.

The sea was lashed mountain-high.

The pounding of the gigantic waves weakened the landing stage, which suddenly sank while it was crowded with workmen.

New C.P.R. Station at Lindsay.

The Post says: In Saturday's issue we announced the decision of the C.P.R. to have their grain line cross the river near the Distillery Creek. Coupled with this comes the announcement that a new station will be built to replace the present one, together with additional quarters for freight, etc. After crossing the river the grain line will run east of the tool house and Queen street Methodist Church and join with the line to Burketon.

SPECIAL SERVICES

At St. Luke's Conducted by Rev. Mr. Anderson, are Meeting With Much Success.

Rev. S. Bennett Anderson, who is this week conducting a series of missionary meetings at St. Luke's church, is meeting with much success. On Monday night he addressed a large gathering, taking as his subject, "The Love of Jesus," from which he gave a most eloquent address. Thursday evening the regular service will be preceded by a song service. On Friday night Rev. Dr. Langefeldt will give a lecture on "A Voyage on the Rhine," illustrated by limelight views. There will be no admission charge.

JAPANESE LADY LECTURED.

Miss Kawai Entertained and Instructed the Y.W.C.A.

The ladies who filled the parlors of the Y.W.C.A. last night to hear Miss Kawai, were charmed with the dainty Japanese lady. At present, Miss Kawai is travelling through Canada in the interests of the Dominion Council Y.W.C. Associations. On her way to Canada she visited Associations in England, as well as in nearly every country on the continent of Europe.

In her address she dwelt especially on the work done in London, Eng., the headquarters of the World's Y.W.C.A. work. "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of," and the women in England hold weekly meetings for prayer for God's blessing on this work for women by women. All members of the city association felt what a privilege was theirs to be doing a little in this great work.

The chair was occupied by Mrs. Rogers, president of the association, while Rev. Mr. Keith of Knox church conducted the religious exercises.

Drugs in Place of Stoves.

Mr. Adam Hall, who for many years has conducted a successful tinware, stove and plumbing establishment at 407 George street, as noted in a former issue of The Times, is giving up this business to devote his exclusive attention to his new factory. A Times man yesterday had occasion to call at Mr. Hall's store. Here, the reporter was somewhat surprised to see empty shelves and clerkless counter. In conversation with Mr. Hall, The Times man learned that the successor to Mr. J. D. Tully will occupy the premises as soon as Mr. Hall removes the last of his goods. This will make considering its depth, the largest drug store in Peterborough.

THE KINDLY VICEROY

A Story Illustrating The Courteous Nature of Lord Dufferin

Here is a simple little story from "Many Memories of Life in India," by Mr. J. H. Rivett Carnac. It gives penetrating insight into the courteous and kindly nature of Lord Dufferin. "My wife and I had strolled over to the vice regal camp to see a friend, and were at the bottom of the street at the top of which were the great tents and the huge "shamianah" occupied by the Viceroy. Suddenly we saw Lord Dufferin, who had been distinguishable walking up and down the small garden in front, hurrying our way, pursued by a "jemadar" and an aide-de-camp, who, very properly, would not allow their charge out of their sight. Coming up to my wife and shaking hands, he said, 'I saw you in the distance, and could not resist the temptation of running down to tell you that ten minutes ago I had the pleasure of signing an order appointing the best man in India to be Foreign Secretary.' This was my wife's brother, who obtained the blue ribbon of the service very young and who for some time served this excellent master. This account of a kindly little attention on the part of the busy, hard worked Governor General will give a better idea of his character than any long record of his abilities and successes."

ODORS THAT AID DIGESTION

Eastern Peoples Often Make the Air Fragrant with Fine Mists

Sweet scents to aid digestion are an importation from the Orient. The influence of odors is exceedingly marked. Some people cannot remain where lilacs are in full bloom or bear the odor of jasmine. Some are given a headache by heliotrope or tuberose. Some are given the vertigo or a sinking sensation by xanthaceæ, some are nauseated even by roses. Attacks of real illness, with long trains of digestive disorders following in their wake, may be brought on by odors. The fact can be explained only as a pathological phenomenon exerting its influence on the most vulnerable point in the human economy, the gastro-intestinal tract. As offensive scents appear in public a train of morbid digestive symptoms, on the contrary, those that are sweet and agreeable may exercise a blessed beneficial effect. The Orientals have developed to a notable degree the faculty of deriving the most enjoyments from inhaling fragrant odors. The most beautiful creations created in the imagination of Mohammedans are the houris represented in the Koran as nymphs of Paradise, formed of musk, who exhale from their lovely bodies entrancing perfumes. It is the custom of many Eastern peoples to spend after each meal a season of quiet while the air around them is rendered fragrant by a fine mist. Or a bottle of their favourite perfume is constantly inhaled. Even the poor Indians in their fields, for all feel that it benefits health and digestion. It is believed that a pleasant state favourable to digestive processes may be induced through the olfactories only as well as through the stomach.

PROSPEROUS DOUKHOBORS

They Have Made a Veritable Garden of the Waterloo District

The Doukhobor settlement at Waterloo is fast becoming one of the finest. The members of the colony are actively engaged in varied pursuits for the gaining of a livelihood. The communistic principle prevails, and the settlement is Peter Verigin, head of the Doughobor society, his local agent being John Sherbinin.

In this settlement there are 1,000 Doughoboys. Waterloo is a veritable garden, and the great ranch is considered by experts to be almost perfect. They are clearing 1,000 acres of land, to be planted at once in an immense orchard of all kinds of fruits, both large and small.

The settlement is fulfilling a contract with the C.P.R. for 400,000 rail way ties. They possess three portable sawmills, and are now negotiating for a fourth. They have a ferry across the river at Waterloo, also one this side of Castlegar, and are erecting one still farther up the river. In addition to the above they are building a bridge which connects with a private road leading to Pass creek, where they own 2,000 acres of land. Where the road intercepts the bridge, they are going to erect a large store for the purpose of supplying their colony, as well as the public.

A FAMOUS CLOWN

The King Remembered the Old Entertainer With a Gift

The King has sent a gift of $25 to Mr. James Doughty, the oldest professional entertainer in the kingdom and once a favorite with London children as pantomime clown.

Mr. Doughty wrote to the King stating that he was the oldest member of his craft still before the public. To the old man's intense delight he received a reply from Sir William Carington, who stated that he had been commanded by the King to send him a post office order for $15. With his troupe of performing dogs Mr. Doughty has been a notable figure at Brighton for over thirty years. He is preparing to celebrate his ninety-second birthday on August 27. When he celebrated his birthday last year Mr. Doughty donned his old motley and sang some of the pantomime songs of fifty years ago.

ASSAULT CASES AMUSE COURT

The Man Who Went Back After a Black Eye and Various Other Facial Adornments

It was less the fight in a grocer's shop than the quaint way in which the assistant told how his master belabored him which created uproarious merriment at the Guildhall, London.

Thomas Walter Capp, the assistant, was complainant, and his employer, Wm. Mortimer Phelan, defendant. A quarrel took place in the shop over monetary matters, and Capp said he called his employer "a liar." He said it emphatically and with an adjective. Thereupon Phelan told him, "If you say that again I will give you that."

"What was that?" asked the court.

"Well, first a black eye," the shop assistant replied, amid laughter. "Then he gave me a blow behind the ear, and knocked me down. He asked me to get up, and knocked me down again. (Laughter.) Then he asked me to get up again, and once more knocked me down. (Laughter.) I went away then. (Laughter.) Some time afterwards I went back——"

"What for?" asked the solicitor.

"Only to show him what he had done," Capp answered, to the great amusement of the court. "Not to get any more," he explained. There was there was a peal of laughter. But Phelan told him if he did not stay he really would give him a black eye. Curious, by this time, to know the end of the incident, the magistrate asked, "What did he do?"

Complainant: Well, he gave me some more. (Much laughter.) This time he loosened some of my teeth. I couldn't open my eye for three days, and could eat nothing for four. (Laughter.)

Alderman Sir David Burnett, the magistrate: I must say that if anybody called me the name complainant admits using to defendant, I——

Mr. Peet, complainant's solicitor: Would strike?

The Magistrate: Yes, I think I should.

Mr. Peet: Then it's no use going any further.

The Magistrate: But I should legally be in the wrong. No words would justify an assault.

Mr. Peet: I will go on with the case, then.

The defendant contended that all he did was to turn Capp out of the shop.

Another witness said that complainant, after the first bout, returned to the scene, remarking, "I've had one eye closed up and I want the other done, too. I don't know whether that'll come off this time." (Laughter.)

Sir David Burnett dismissed the summons.

THE BABY ESKIMO

Always Healthy—His Mother Licks Him In Lieu of Washing

What do we know of the childhood of the Eskimo in the natural state? He is certainly not born with the proverbial silver spoon in his mouth. Silver and gold are practically unknown quantities in Eskimo land. Riches, civilization, luxuries, riches—have no attraction for the little man. The height of his ambition probably is to have plenty of meat to eat and sufficient skins to make his clothes. He takes no superstition says it makes babies cry to wash them, so the youngster has to get accustomed to dirt and make the best of it. I once came across an Eskimo child several months old that had never been washed; the only cleansing it had ever undergone was the occasional lick from its mother's tongue, and I have reason to believe that was by no means a belated one. In this instance I succeeded in persuading the baby washed. Wishing to employ the mother for a short time, I persuaded her to give her baby into the care of a Christian Eskimo woman, and, having accomplished that, the remainder was an easy matter.

The woman hunted up some baby's clothing, and she and the Christian Eskimo together undertook the task of spring cleaning the poor little bairn. When the mother returned she was delighted to see her child looking so nice, and, far from being offended, she was profuse with her thanks. I never heard that the baby was cross or that it cried more after that much needed rubbing.

Some one will possibly exclaim: "But how can a baby possibly thrive in so much dirt and filth?" Yet they do thrive, and it is surprising what chubby, fat faced babies one sees among the heathen Eskimo, in spite of the dirt. The baby's clothing is often very scanty; in fact, one occasionally sees a baby being carried in its mother's hood with only a cotton shirt on, despite the fact that the thermometer registers 20 degrees below zero. The mother's hood is the baby's cradle. Being made of seal or deer skin, it is warm and wind-proof; the infant also has the benefit of the heat of the mother's body, and is out of harm's way. If it were laid in a basket cradle in the tent it would be very much in the way, and would always be in danger of falling a prey to the wolfish Eskimo dogs that prowl around the door by day and night, ever ready to pick up a dainty morsel.—Wide World Magazine.

Election forecasts are with reason looked on with suspicion by those not directly concerned in their making, and the most available indications as to how the elections will go are, at best, only an average struck from the predictions of party leaders on both sides. BRAZIL'S NAVAL STRIKE.

The revolution in Brazil was a sort of glorified strike against the government for better pay, shorter hours and the abolition of flogging in the naval service. One of the demands at least entirely reasonable. Flogging as a means of discipline was banished from the British army and navy thirty years ago, and it can well be discarded by an American republic.

All the same the successful issue of the strike makes the government look very foolish. Congress in a panic voted a general amnesty, and the demands of the mutineers were granted. These men were able to dictate terms because they had appropriated the navy for their own use and were prepared to blow up the city of Rio Janeiro. THOSE ENTITLED TO USE OF LIBRARY.

2. Any resident and any ratepayer of the City of Peterborough, shall be entitled to access to the Reading Room while the same is open—so long as he or she complies with the Rules and Regulations adopted by the Board for the management and regulation of the Library and Reading Room.

RULES FOR USE OF LIBRARY.

3. Any resident of the city over the age of 12 years and any ratepayer shall also be entitled to borrow books from the Library other than books in the reference library and books the Board may withdraw from circulation, on complying with the following conditions:

(a) Upon signing an agreement to obey the rules and regulations now or hereafter adopted by the Board.

(b) In the case of residents who are not ratepayers, also upon filing with the librarian a recommendation and guarantee from a ratepayer of the city satisfactory to the librarian, in the form adopted by the board, which guarantee the librarian may at any time required to be renewed or another given in its place, if for any reason the guarantee filed should not be considered sufficient. Any person who shall refuse or neglect well and truly to indemnify under until he shall be notified in writing to the librarian and shall nevertheless remain in the use of any damage to or loss of books borrowed prior to the receipt of such notice of withdrawal by the librarian, provided that instead of such guarantee the applicant may deposit $5 with the librarian to be held as security for the observance of the terms of the agreement provided for in sub-clause "a" therefore, which sum shall be returned to the depositor, less any deduction properly made upon surrender of the borrower's card.

(c) The privileges of the library and reading room may also be extended by the librarian to non-residents of the city who shall pay an annual sum of $2 for the same, and who shall sign the agreement and furnish the recommendations and guarantee or make the deposit specified in sub-clause "a" and "b".

(d) The privileges of the library and reading room may also be extended by the librarian for a space of fourteen days to transient visitors to the city introduced by ratepayers who shall become responsible for such visitor and such non-resident may borrow a book from the library for a term not exceeding seven days on payment of ten cents for each book borrowed.

(e) The privileges granted to any one under any of the above clauses may be revoked at any time by the board, and no guarantee shall be accepted from any member of the board or any officer or employe of the board.

(f) Each person on signing the agreement in sub-clause as mentioned shall be furnished with a borrowers' card on which shall be endorsed his or her registered number, which card must be presented to the librarian when a book is borrowed, returned or renewed, and the registered owner of a card shall be held responsible for books drawn out by means of his or her card, and if a card is lost it shall not be replaced until the expiration of two weeks from the receipt of a written notice by the librarian of its loss, when a duplicate card may be issued upon payment of ten cents therefore, and if a lost card is recovered after a new one has been issued, the duplicate must be immediately surrendered.

(g) Immediate written notice must be given to the librarian of any change of residence of the holder of a borrower's card.

(h) The holder of a card is entitled to obtain one book at a time, provided it is not one of a work of fiction, but in case the work is not more than two volumes the two volumes shall be treated as one book.

(i) Each book issued may be retained for fourteen days and the loan may be once renewed for a like term, except in the case of a book that has been specially reserved for another holder, but when a demand for same arises the librarian may contract the same for the retention of same to a shorter period.

(j) A card holder may apply for a book which is then out by paying five cents for the privilege, but it shall, after its return, not be held for the applicant more than twenty-four hours, after the Librarian has mailed to the applicant a notice that the work is in applicant's use to be entitled to the book in the order of their applications.

(k) Any card holder returning a book longer than the specified time shall be fined three cents per day for each day the same is so retained.

(l) If any book is not returned within two weeks after the time specified for the return of same, the librarian, after notice to the borrower, shall proceed to collect the

FIGHT ON A PEAK

A Clergyman's Experience in the Lake District of England

While holidaying in the Lake District, England, the Rev. H. F. Lloyd, had a most exciting experience. Mr. Lloyd went on a climbing excursion alone among the mountains that flank the Troutgeck valley, and when nearing the summit of Ill Bell, which is some 2,746 feet above sea level, he was startled to see a large bird hovering about him in a rather threatening manner. He watched it, trying to evade its movements the while, and, thinking it was a hawk of the larger variety, continued his climb. But as he proceeded this strange visitor became more and more aggressive, and began to swoop down upon him, making a direct attack. It struck at his head and passed just above him. The attention became more alarming when another bird of the same species, apparently the paired mate, joined in the attack, darting from behind the rocky crags in the immediate neighborhood.

Fortunately Mr. Lloyd had a stick which he carried to assist him in his climb, and with this he was able to keep the two birds at bay, striking out to protect himself from their combined attack. As the encounter assumed a perilous phase the reverend gentleman beat a speedy retreat, leaving the enraged creatures masters of the battle ground. Mr. Lloyd afterwards observed that his assailants were a couple of great buzzards that have evidently taken up quarters in the neighborhood. The great buzzard, it may be mentioned, is the largest game bird in Europe, and is not a denizen of the Lake District. Mr. Lloyd, on relating his exciting adventure, was told that several visitors had recently had similar experiences, one gentleman a few days before coming from his climb almost in a state of panic, and requesting that a party should be organized to try to shoot the birds, which have naturally become something of a terror to the district. It is said that last year two persons were attacked on different occasions when climbing the same mountain, it is then thought that the bird was a pair that had strayed from its accustomed haunts.

"ROSEBERY" DEAD

The Close of a Romantic Career on the Turf

By the death of Mr. James Smith at Epsom Downs a fantastic career in sport and business is recorded. He was universally known as "Rosebery" since 1876 that he accompanied the foal that has been associated with his name ever since, for in that year even the Chesterfield and Cambridgeshire with his horse Rosebery—a test that no horse had previously achieved. In connection with his nickname "Rosebery," one episode worthy of a place in the more thoughtful melodrama may be recounted. During the autumn prior to the horse's great victories, a prominent London sportsman, getting wind of Rosebery's carefully concealed merits, sent his brother down to the stable to spy out the land. The advent in the neighborhood of a mysterious stranger quickly became known, and to rid the stable of this unwelcome visitor the trainer hit on an ingenious plan. It was customary to send a boy on a hack to the village for letters every day, so the trainer, knowing that the "tout" would find it out, mounted the lad on Rosebery. Immediately the "tout" found out the nature of Rosebery's employment he returned to London convinced that his brother had got on the wrong scent.

Let Go With a Warning.

At yesterday's session of the police court a local citizen was charged with letting three of his horses loose, so that they made lawns and flower beds look like a strawberry shortcake struck by dynamite. As the owner of the enquines did not know they were joy riding over the neighbors' lawns, he was let go with a warning.

An Ancient Sleigh.

Old Boreas on Monday night threw a white garment of snow over the city, and yesterday, the half snow, half rain fall, added sufficient trimmings to those owning sleighs to get them into commission. It was funny yesterday morning to see some of the sleighs on the street. At 10.15 a gentleman owning a horse and part of a sleigh, was ambitious to take a sleigh ride. Down George street went an ancient "Rosinante," reminding one of the steed ridden by Don Quixote. Behind this animated bone pile was [illegible] The driver seated in the interrogation mark described vehicle, evidently took what he sat in for a sleigh. To the casual observer it looked like 30 cents worth of iron and wood, and decayed paint. The dash board was gone, or nearly so. It looked like a woman's wash board through which the shell from a 13-inch gun had passed. One of the runners must have been through a cyclone, and the cyclone that bent it, must really have dallied with intoxicants. That runner was twisted worse than the conscience of a local option voter with a bottle of rye in the cellar. The cushions on the seat [illegible] it had never entered into the state where, well, thieves might have entered and shied at the sight, but where rust and moths decay; moths must have held clam bakes, revels and dinner parties on these cushions. The back of that ancient vehicle demonstrated that the paint combine is in power and that time will tell." Still the somewhat aged owner of this still more ancient sleigh drove down George street as proudly as though he might be emulating Shake-peare's hero in saying "I am Sir Oracle, and when I drive this sleigh, let no dog bark!"

The quicker a cold is got rid of the less the danger from pneumonia and other serious diseases. Dr. B. W. L. Hall, of Waverly, Va., says, "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me." For sale by all dealers.

SOCIETY EVENTS

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge.

Mr. W. T. Bishop of Galt, is a guest at the National.

Mr. E. A. Barrett of Toronto, registered yesterday at the White House.

Mr. Lightbound of Montreal, is a guest at the Hotel National.

Mr. James Hagen, Kingston, is staying at the Snowden House.

Mr. J. Dixon, of Fenelon Falls, is a guest at the Snowden House.

Mr. Wm. Dick has gone on an extended trip to his paternal home in Brantford.

Mr. G. A. Lamb of Toronto, and Mr. A. E. Scott of Winnipeg, are guests at the Hotel National.

Mrs. M. W. Lyle will not receive until after the New Year, on account of illness in the family.

Capt George D. Fraser, who has been on an extended trip to the Northwest, returned to the city yesterday.

Miss Helen Flavelle of the Normal School, has returned after spending Sunday with her parents, in Lindsay.

Mr. H. M. Bell, Lindsay; Mr. Jas. Dixon, Fenelon Falls, and Mr. R. E. Charlton, Montreal, are at the Snowden.

The following amongst others are registered at the National: Mr. W. G. A. Lamb, Chicago; Mr. T. H. Lightbound, Montreal; Mr. Thomas, Chicago; Mr. C. W. Hedman, Chicago; Mr. B. A. Scott, Winnipeg.

Mr. M. W. Matchett of Hamilton, accompanied by his son, Roger, spent Sunday in the city, the guest of Mr. Matchett's mother, Mrs. R. M. Matchett, Ashburnham.

Mr. G. R. R. Cockburn, former president of the Ontario Bank, and well known in Peterborough, has been confined to his rooms at the Prince George Hotel, for the past couple of weeks and his condition has been causing his friends some anxiety. Dr. A. Orr Hastings, his physician, said yesterday morning that Mr. Cockburn was suffering from kidney trouble, but was not critically ill.

Miss Kawai, of Tokio, who is the guest of the Y.W.C.A. here, during her visit at Kingston a few days ago was presented with a beautiful pin by the Queen's University girls who attended Muskoka Y.W.C.A. conference last August in which Miss Kawai took part. Her kindly manner and charming personality made her very popular with those who had the pleasure of meeting her on that as well as other occasions. She leaves for the West tomorrow morning.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

No less than 42 commercial men, with two trains still due were registered at the Oriental last night.

Messrs. Yeates Bros., have purchased the cigar store formerly conducted by Mr. M. Pappas at 337 George street. The Yeates Bros. are both well known here, have many friends, and will beyond peradventure make their new store a success.

Right now is the time that ladies, and not only ladies, but gentlemen, should use a little discretion and common sense in their purchasing. Clerks in the stores, like oxen and horses at the plow, sometimes get tired from being on their legs all day long. Now, with Christmas coming, which means long hours, hard work, tired legs and brains, why not do your shopping early and let these hard worked men and girls off at an hour that will enable them to get a good rest.

Lindsay Post: A good story is going the rounds about a well-known citizen. It has to do with a speculative deal in connection with the "Thomas Shoe Co." of inglorious memory. Now this citizen, ever alert for a wise speculation hurried to Fenelon Falls, during the "Thomas boom" and purchased two lots near the glove factory site from a resident of the Cataract Village. The poet Burns says: "The best laid plans of men and mice gang aft aglee." The puncture of the bubble left two lots on the citizen's hands which he is anxious to dispose of.

broad ditch, and crashed into a field of millet. Another ditch, another field, breast high with tall castor-oil plants, a frantic race through a grove of mangoes—when Malcolm had to lie flat on Nejdi's neck to avoid being swept off by the low branches—and horse and man dived headlong into deep water.

The splash, for more than the ducking, frightened the horse. Malcolm, in that instant of prior warning which the possessor of steady nerves learns too use so well, disengaged his feet from the stirrups. He was thrown clear, and, when he came to the surface, he saw that the Arab and himself were floundering in a moat. Not the pleasantest of bathing-places anywhere, in India such a sheet of almost stagnant water has excessive peculiarities. Among other items, it breeds fever and harbors snakes, so Malcolm floundered rather than swam to the bank, where he had the negative satisfaction of catching Nejdi's bridle when that disconcerted steed scrambled out after him.

The two were coated with green slime. Being obviously unhurt, they probably had a forlornly comic aspect. At any rate, a woman's musical laugh came from the lofty wall which bounded the moat on the further side, and a woman's clear voice said:

"A bold leap, sahib! Did you mean to scale the fort on horseback? And why not have chosen a spot where the water was cleaner?"

Before he could see the speaker, so smothered was he in dripping moss and weeds, Malcolm knew that some lady of rank had watched his adventure. She used the pure Persian of the court, and her diction was refined. Luckily, he had studied Persian as well as its Indian off-shoot, Hindustani, and he understood the words. He pressed back his dank hair, squeezed the water and slime off his face, and looked up.

To his exceeding wonder, his eyes met those of a young Mohammedan woman, richly garbed, and of remarkable appearance. She was unveiled, an amazing fact in itself, and her creamy skin, arched eyebrows, regular features, and raven-black hair proclaimed her aristocratic lineage. She was leaning forward in an embrasure of the battlemented wall. Behind her, two attendants, oval-faced brown-skinned women of the people, peered shyly at the Englishman. When he glanced their way, they hurriedly adjusted their silk saris, or shawls, so as to hide their faces. Their mistress used no such bashful subterfuge. She leaned somewhat farther through the narrow embrasure, revealing by the action her bejewelled and exquisitely molded arms.

"Perhaps you do not speak my language," she said in Urdu the tongue most frequently heard in Upper India. "If you will go round to the gate—that way—" and she waved a graceful hand to the left, "my servants will render you some assistance."

By that time, Malcolm had remembered his wits. A verse of a poem by Hafiz occurred to him.

"Princess," he said, "the radiance of your presence is as the full moon suddenly illumining the path of a weary traveler, who finds himself on the edge of a morass."

A flash of surprise and pleasure lit up the fine eyes of the haughty beauty perched up there on the palace wall.

"'Tis well said," she vowed, smiling with all the rare effect of full red lips and white even teeth. "Nevertheless, this is no time for compliments. You need our help, and it shall be given willingly. Make for the gate, I pray you."

She turned and gave an order to one of the attendants. With another encouraging smile to Malcolm, she disappeared.

Leading the Arab, who, with the fatalism of his race, was quiet as a sheep now that he had found a master, the young officer took the direction pointed out by the lady. Rounding an angle of the wall, he came to a causeway spanned by a small bridge, which was guarded by the machicolated towers of a strong gate. A ponderous door, studded with great bosses of iron fashioned to represent elephants' heads, swung open half reluctantly it seemed—and he was admitted to a spacious inner courtyard.

The number of armed retainers gathered there was unexpectedly large. He was well acquainted with the Meerut district, yet he had no notion that such a fortress existed within an hour's fast ride of the station. The King of Delhi had a large hunting lodge somewhere in the locality, but he had never seen the place. If this were it, why should it be crammed with soldiers? Above all, why should they eye him with such illconcealed displeasure? Duty had brought him once to Delhi—it was barely forty miles from Meerut—and the relations between the feeble old King, Bahadur Shah, and the British authorities were then most friendly, while the sangerssoni at the Court mixed freely with the Europeans. His quick intelligence caught at the belief that these men resented his presence because he was brought among them by the command of the lady. He knew now that he must have seen and spoken to one of the royal princesses. None other would dare to show herself unveiled to a stranger and a white man at that. The manifest annoyance of her household was thus easily accounted for, but he marveled at the strength of her body guard.

He was given little time for observation. A distinguished looking man evidently vested with authority, bustled forward and addressed him civilly enough. Servants came with water and towels, and cleaned his garments sufficiently to make him presentable, while other men groomed his horse. He was wet through, of course, but that was not a serious matter with the thermometer at seventy degrees in the shade, and, despite the ordinance of the Prophet, a glass of excellent red wine was handed to him.

But he saw no more of the Princess. He thought she would hardly dare to receive him openly, and her deputy gave no sign of admitting him to the interior of the palace, which

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2,625 oz. of gold and 3,267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been gleaned from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

Dying Statement will be Excluded from Case

JUDGE'S DECISION IN HATTIE LEBLANC MURDER TRIAL — DEFENCE IS CONFIDENT.

Important Point Gained By Defence In Case of Young Canadian Girl, Now Facing Charge of Killing Waltham Laundryman— Intense Interest in Proceedings.

East Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 30.—Judge Bond presiding in the trial of Hattie Le Blanc in the East Cambridge Court today, rendered a decision on the question of not admitting the so-called dying statement of Clarence F. Glover, in which he declared that Hattie Le Blanc shot him.

Judge Bond decided that the dying statement should be excluded from the case.

Boston, Nov. 30.—Hattie Le Blanc the 17-year-old Canadian girl, who is charged with the murder of Clarence F. Glover, in whose home she worked as a domestic, faced Judge Bond and a jury today in the knowledge that the court would hand down a decision which would go far toward determining whether or not she rests in the shadow of the electric chair. The point upon which the entire case hinged was whether or not the alleged declaration of Glover after he had been found shot, that Hattie M. Le Blanc was his assailant, was made by the man in the knowledge that he was dying and so competent to be presented to the jury as evidence.

DEFENCE IS CONFIDENT.

Hattie Le Blanc's attorneys feel confident that they have won a most pronounced legal victory that will go far towards securing the acquittal of the youthful prisoner.

District Attorney Higgins has admitted that the government case is built upon the accusation of Hattie Le Blanc by Glover, and all other testimony tending to implicate the young girl of homicide is dependent on the charge made by the murdered man.

STILLNESS OF DEATH.

There was the stillness of death in the court room when court opened. Every one present seemed to realize that the fate of the 17-year-old girl hung in the balance. The usual eagerness of the great crowd that fought for seats in the court room to get a glimpse of the prisoner as she entered court was not so apparent. The spectators waited in breathless silence for the appearance of Judge Bond. Men and women stood in the mud and rain and watched Hattie Le Blanc as she was brought to court for the third day of the trial.

PRISONER IS GRAVE.

The little prisoner was dressed as she had been on previous days. She appeared more grave, and the fact that the crisis in her case had been reached seemed impressed upon her. She flashed an eager and hopeful glance at Judge Bond as he came into court. Her anxiety was noted by Attorney Johnson, her senior counsel, and he gave her a reassuring nod, which brought a faint smile to her face.

DID MINISTER OFFER BRIBE?

MR. BUCHANAN, OF INGERSOLL, SAYS THAT REV. E. D. SILCOX DID SO.

Oxford Graft Inquiry—Witness Declares He Had Several Overtures Made to Him But He Had Refused All of Them.

Woodstock, Nov. 30.—In the evidence of Mr. Buchanan, of Ingersoll, today, he said that Rev. E. D. Silcox, now of Toronto, formerly of Embro, offered him, when chairman of the Property Committee, $300 to get a higher price for the Woodstock and Ingersoll toll road than the county was offering, and said that he (Silcox) would get a suit out of it. Later Buchanan testified that E. L. Sutherland came to him and offered him $800 if he would get Judge Finkle, the county judge, appointed as third arbitrator. A third man, John Young, a farmer of Brookdale, afterwards offered him $1,000 for the same purpose.

The three appeared for the Mathesons of Embro, who had a large share of the toll road. The county offered $10,000 for the road, and the arbitrators fixed the price at $11,000. Mr. Buchanan swore that he refused all these offers to bribe, as Mr. E. F. B. Johnston put it, and although the leading negotiators for the county did not mention the offers to any one until a couple of years afterwards.

FIRST CHARGE LAID.

It was against Mr. Buchanan, who is a manufacturer of Ingersoll, and one of the most prominent men in the county and member of the County Council for fifteen years, that the first charge was laid today when the investigation ordered by the Provincial Government into the charges of graft opened in the court house before Judge Snyder, of Hamilton.

This charge was that Buchanan "gad made proposals to the owners to endeavor to induce them to sign papers selling the Woodstock and Ingersoll toll road for $12,000."

"Of this it was alleged the owners were to receive only $11,000, a party interested $100, and Buchanan $900.

Buchanan is an elderly man with grey hair, tall, shrewd looking, with clean whiskers, making him resemble somewhat the caricature of Uncle Sam.

ATTACKED HIM SAVAGELY.

E. F. B. Johnston, who appears as chief counsel for the Crown, went at Buchanan savagely as the interrogation went on, charging him with lapses of memory. Later on he introduced Judge Finkle's report in which Buchanan is found guilty of accepting $340 from the Case Machinery Company of Toronto, for corrupt purposes to influence the purchase of a road machine.

The minister referred to is Rev. E. D. Silcox, formerly of Embro, and later pastor of Zion Congregational church, Toronto. Buchanan stated that he made the first move to purchase the Woodstock-Ingersoll toll road, going out to Embro to meet Miss Matheson, one of the chief owners. There was considerable ill-feeling between himself and them.

"I had been active in having their toll keepers fined, and I saw a letter in which Mr. Matheson of Sarnia, called me that stinker Buchanan.

HALL'S BRIDGE.

Weather very stormy and wintry-like.

The bazaar and concert held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Buckhorn Presbyterian church, on Tuesday evening of last week was a decided success. The fancy articles and arrangements did great credit to the ladies, and some thirty-five dollars was the result of their labors.

Quite a number from here attended the concert given by Miss Flynn at Lakehurst on Friday evening. All had a good time although the weather was a little uncertain.

The Wesley Methodist congregation spent a most enjoyable time, on Thursday evening last at the home of Mr. W. J. Northey, when they presented Mr. Northey with a handsome Morris chair, and Mrs. Northey with a beautiful wicker rocking chair Mr. and Mrs. Northey are leaving our midst, which will be deeply regretted by their many friends.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Dr. Cook Does Not Know Whether He Reached Pole or Not

WHO DOES NOT KNOW WHETHER OR NOT HE REACHED THE NORTH POLE.

May Have Been In Error—Explorer Values Sympathy and Confidence of Fellowman More Than Honor of Discovery.

New York, Nov. 30. Dr. Frederick A. Cook, after a year in hiding, has written his own story. It is to be printed in a series of articles in Hampton's Magazine, the periodical that paid $50,000 for Commander Peary's story of his trip to the North Pole.

"Dr. Cook in his story confesses that he does not know whether he reached the pole or not. The editors of Hampton's Magazine declare that his story is the most intensely interesting human document they have ever read. In it Dr. Cook deals with the physiology of his adventure and declares: 'Did I get to the North Pole? Perhaps I made a mistake in thinking that I did. Perhaps I did not make a mistake. After mature thought I confess that I do not know absolutely whether I reached the Pole or not. This may come as an amazing statement, but I am willing to startle the world if by so doing I can get an opportunity to present my case.

WANTS PUBLIC CONFIDENCE.

"'By my case I mean not my case as a geographical discoverer, but my case as a man. Much as the attainment of the north pole once meant to me, the sympathy and confidence of my fellow man means more.

"'Fully, freely and frankly I shall tell you everything. Tell you everything and leave the decision with you.

"'If after reading my story you say Cook is sincere and honest, half crazed by months of isolation and hunger, he believed that he reached the pole; he is not a faker,' then I shall be satisfied.

PEARY JUST LAUGHED.

Washington, Nov. 30. — Captain Robert E. Peary laughed today when informed that a New York magazine had given out a statement purporting to be a confession that Dr. Cook does not know whether or not he reached the north pole. He refuses to comment, however.

"I have absolutely nothing to say, and will not discuss the matter one way or the other," he declared.

MURDER SUSPECT NOW IN PARIS

Wm. Lewis, of Trunk Mystery Case, is Being Sought by Parisian Police.

New York, Nov. 30.—Wm. Lewis, the trunk murder mystery suspect, has been traced to Paris, it was learned today.

In 1909 he was known to have been working in a town near New York. After leaving this position he declared, he was going to Pittsburg, but later changed his plans and went to Paris. The Parisian police are searching for him.

An Eloquent Preacher.

To the Editor of The Times,—

Sir,—On Monday evening I stepped into St. Luke's Church, East City, to hear the Rev. I Bennett Anderson preach. I want to say that the Anglican Church has a man of rare abilities in the person of the said preacher. He may well be called the Modern Luther. He throws his whole heart and soul into his sermon and speaks with a tongue of fire. It would be well for those who have been led astray by the promiscuous teachings of the so-called higher critics and Russellism, to go and hear this man who believes in an unmutilated Bible a real perdition for ungodly men, a real devil who is deceiving men and a real Heaven for penitent and regenerated sinners. If you can go and hear him it will do you good.

Yours,
—ONE WHO HEARD HIM.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

EAGER TO WORK.

Health Regained by Right Food.

The average healthy man or woman is usually eager to be busy at some useful task or employment.

But let dyspepsia or indigestion get hold of one, and all endeavor becomes a burden.

"A year ago, after recovering from an operation," writes a Michigan lady, "my stomach and nerves began to give me much trouble.

"At times my appetite was voracious, but when indulged, indigestion followed. Other times I had no appetite whatever. The food I took did not nourish me and I grew weaker than ever.

"I lost interest in everything and wanted to be alone. I had always had good nerves, but now the merest trifle would upset me and bring on a violent headache. Walking across the room was an effort and prescribed exercise was out of the question.

"I had seen Grape-Nuts advertised but did not believe what I read at the time. At last when it seemed as if I was literally starving, I began to eat Grape-Nuts.

"I had not been able to work for a year, but now after two months on Grape-Nuts I am eager to be at work again. My stomach gives me no trouble now, my nerves are as steady as ever, and interest in life and ambition have come back with the return to health."

NEGRO'S ESCAPADE.

He Shot One Person to Death and Wounded Four Others.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 30.—Despatches from Waverly say that Max Neal, a negro, who shot one negro to death and wounded four others, was riddled with bullets, by a posse that surrounded the negro in a cabin late last night. Neal, on Monday evening, fired eleven times through the window of a house occupied by Anna and Etta Johnson, killing the former and badly wounding the latter, and Paul Brown, who was in the house at the time.

While hiding from the posse, Neal fired upon Leslie and Spooks Jackson, boys on their way to work. Both were badly hurt. The ambush attack on the boys was unprovoked.

TAFT'S MESSAGE A LENGTHY ONE

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS TO CONGRESS CONTAINS UPWARDS OF 30,000 WORDS.

Will Urge Pension Bill—Word Has Gone Forth That Tariff Will Be Dealt With—Business Men Oppose Any Alteration.

Washington, Nov. 30.—The measure that President Taft is now preparing for Congress is expected to exceed in length any that he has ever sent in. According to the best forecast available at the executive office at the White House today, it will contain over 30,000 words.

Though the president is spending every moment available on his task it was stated today that the message probably would not be ready for distribution to the press associations until Saturday night or Sunday.

In his message President Taft will urge Congress to pass a pension retirement bill for civic employes. It is not likely that the president will advocate any particular bill, but will leave this phase of the matter to Congress. Senator Cummings, of Iowa, has made a special study of the pension subject, and there is a chance that President Taft will consult with him about the possibility of pushing such a bill through Congress.

Business men throughout the country are urging President Taft to refrain from taking any steps towards revision of the tariff, even a schedule-by-schedule revision.

"Let's have a rest," is the burden of the letters that are coming from business men. All seem to be of the opinion that attempts at tariff revision will not be as dangerous in the next Congress as at the coming session, these calculations being based on the supposition that there will be a deadlock between the Democratic House and Republican Senate.

Members of Congress of the stand pat variety are joining in a movement to prevent any tamoering with the tariff at the approaching session, asserting that it will be time enough to deal with the subject when the Democrats take charge of legislation.

The word has gone forth that President Taft will deal with the tariff in his measure, and those who are in favor of the present duties, say that a tariff revision would be as dangerous as an actual revision.

Price of Eggs.

Deadly Third-Rail System.

Windsor, Nov. 30.—The first accident since the innstallation of the dent since the installation of the deadly third rail system in the Windsor yards of the Michigan Central Railway, resulted in the death of Joseph Leblanc, aged thirty, an electrician. Fixing a light at the time, a chain he was holding touched a third-rail, 4,600 volts of electricity passed through his body.

Balfour's Proposal will Help to Win Votes

GIVES CAMPAIGN A NEW COMPLEXION—SOME WILL OPPOSE THE PROPOSITION.

For Tariff Reform Referendum, But They May Fall in Line and Accept the Situation.—Elected Without Opposition.

London, Nov. 30.—The acceptance by Mr. Balfour, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, of the policy of the referendum in the case of Tariff Reform has given the campaign a new complexion. In a political address last night Mr. Balfour announced that in the event of victory in the approaching elections he would be willing to submit the question of tariff reform to a referendum.

The declaration of the Unionist leader is received with great enthusiasm by the bulk of the party who believe that it will help to win votes in the north where protection has not made the same headway as elsewhere. It also places the extreme radicals in a quandary, as heretofore, the principle of the referendum has been a plank in their platform.

WILL ACCEPT SITUATION.

A few ardent tariff reformers are opposed to the proposition but they probably will accept the situation as Joseph Chamberlain, who is encouraging his followers through letters from the sick room has been urging them to concentrate their efforts upon the matter of home rule and the constitutional questions involving the House of Lords to which the contest is now narrowed down and which the parties are carrying on the hardest kind of a fight.

The results which will have been declared by Saturday night should provide a fair indication of the outcome.

ELECTED WITHOUT OPPOSITION

At least 100 members, of which 60 are Unionists, will be elected without contest. Saturday will see polling for 45 seats so far as now arranged. Of these 25 are at present held by the Liberals. Amongst these are the Manchester constituencies which the Unionists are making every effort to capture. Should they succeed the effect upon the rest of the country will be important.

NATIONALISTS AT WORK.

In Ireland where the voting will take place later. The Nationalists are renominating the present members. Shane Leslie, Nationalist, is again contesting Londonderry City, which was lost to the Unionists by a few votes in January. The O'Brienites are receiving the financial support of the moderates who consider John Redmond's plans impossible and also are disgusted with the Orangemen's threats of violence and bloodshed if the existing government for Ireland is changed. They have more candidates than in the last election.

Fixing the International Boundary.

(Special to The Times.)

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 2.—The American and Canadian sections of the International Waterways Commission, which has been entrusted with the task of definitely fixing the great lakes boundary line between the two countries, will assemble in Buffalo today for a joint session.

Negro to Swing for His Crime.

(Special to The Times.)

Charleston, S.C., Dec. 2.—To-morrow is the date set for the execution of Daniel Duncan, the young negro convicted of murdering Max Lubelsky a King street merchant, last June. Duncan beat Lubelsky's head to a pulp, and less than three weeks later returned to the store and attacked Lubelsky's widow.

New C.N.R. Station.

Cobourg, Nov. 30.—Work on the new C.N.R. station here is progressing nicely. The company has asked the City Council for permission to divert Division street during the construct on of their subway on that thoroughfare.

Queen Alexandra's Birthday.

(Special to The Times.)

London, Dec. 2.—Queen Alexandra reached her sixty sixth birthday anniversary today and is the recipient of many presents and messages of congratulation from relatives and friends at home and abroad. Flags are displayed on public buildings and the customary salutes were fired at all naval and military stations. The anniversary will be made the occasion for a family re-union, attended by King George and Queen Mary, Princess Victoria, Queen Maud of Norway and other members of the royal family.

STARTLING TURN GIVEN TO TRIAL

WIDOW OF MURDERED LAUNDRYMAN DECLARED TO BE A VAMPIRE.

A Sensational Attack—Dead Man Was Infatuated With Hattie LeBlanc, Who Wins Big Point in Fight for Life.

East Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 30.—Hattie Le Blanc, the 17-year-old French-Canadian girl, who is charged with murdering Clarence Glover, who was infatuated with her, won the first big point in her fight for life today in the criminal court here when Judge Bond ruled that Glover's dying statement, "Hattie Le Blanc shot me," should be excluded from the evidence.

Following this, lawyers, who are watching the case predicted that the girl would be acquitted. District Attorney Higgins fought all day yesterday and half of today to gain admission of the statement in the testimony.

A new and startling turn was given to the trial when Lawyer Melvin M. Johnson, attorney for the accused girl, made a sensational attack upon Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, the widow of the murdered man.

In an argument before Judge Bond with the jury excluded for the admission of testimony concerning Mrs. Glover, Mr. Johnson said:— "I desire to show that Mrs. Glover was a vampire. That is just what I mean. I use the word advisedly. That is what I propose to prove and show to the jury. I intend to show that she had intended to kill her husband. I intend to show that Mrs. Glover had the opportunity to commit the crime by her presence in the vicinity of the crime itself."

Speakers for Boy Scouts.

When the Executive Committee of the Boy Scouts met the other night in the armories, many matters of importance were discussed. On motion of Mr. O'Connell, seconded by Mr. Kenner, Judge Huycke was unanimously chosen as chairman. It was decided to obtain, if possible, a competent assistant for the present scout master and to continue enrolling new members. The committee thought it advisable to carry on a series of lectures to be delivered by prominent local men, and Dr. MacPherson, medical health officer, has kindly consented to begin the work on Saturday evening of this week. The other speakers who are expected to lecture include Dr. M. F. O'Brien, D. Walker, A. Mowat, John Crane, G. C. Wainwright, Judge Huycke, D. O'Connell, H. R. H. Kenner, F. E. Hodgson, J. H. McClellan, F. D. Kerr, Lt. Col. Stevenson and others.

PAY OF CITY COMMISSIONERS.

Colbert Saskatoon is to join the increasing number of cities that are governed by commission. The commission is to consist of two men and a mayor. The two men are to be paid $1,500 each. The cost of living in Saskatoon is considered, this is not a princely salary. With property on the main street selling at a thousand dollars per front foot, Saskatoon can afford to pay more—twice as much, in fact. Saskatoon makes no mistake in deciding on government by commission. It may make a bad blunder trying to do it cheaply. So far as commissioners are concerned, the labor is not only worthy of his hire, but also of a part of what he saves the general ratepayer. A good example of how city commissioners ought to be paid and treated may be seen in the neighboring province of Alberta. Edmonton, if we remember rightly, is run by a commission of four. The head commissioner, Bouillon who is an expert in his experience in Seattle, a pretty city planning and betterments, got stiff place to beautify. Not being eager to leave, he asked a salary which he thought would stop them, but Edmonton didn't even hesitate. In Edmonton all the public utilities are public owned. It is too early to tell whether all are paying or which one hand washes the other, but the Edmonton people seem satisfied and that is the chief thing.

REV. DR. SYMOND'S PREDICTION

"The great questions of the future is what will China do with the world and what will the world do with China?" stated the Rev. Dr. Herbert Symonds, of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, in an address on the work of the Edinburgh Conference, at St. George's church last evening. "China is just awakening now," continued Dr. Symonds, "she has a population of 400,000,000, which is equivalent to the population of North America, Great Britain, France, Germany and Austria. She has made the English language the diplomatic language, and has made it compulsory in all her universities. If China should take revenge on the white man for the unkind way they have treated her in the past, it would be an awful revenge."

BRITISH "DECADENCE."

The Victoria Colonist says that it receives letters from Englishmen protesting against the belief alleged to be held in Canada that the United Kingdom is a decaying country. The Colonist answers:

"Miles of editorials and letters have been printed in the British press representing that Great Britain is rapidly on the down grade. The Colonist has been found fault with for asserting the contrary. The decadence of Great Britain has become a sort of unholy cult with some folks in the Mother Country, and it is it not surprising if some Canadians take their expressions of opinion seriously. But we fail to discover any cause for anxiety."

The colonist is right. The story of British decadence originated not in Canada or in the United States, but in England. But it is not so much English as Junco and protectionist. It is a part of a campaign for Germanizing Great Britain. The people of Great Britain are told that they are being beaten in industry and commerce, and that the only remedy is protection. They are told that they are declining in military power, and that the only remedy is conscription. The more they believe in "retrenchment" the more likely they are to swallow the patent medicine which the agitators have in stock. Some Canadians may have been credulous enough to believe the story, but its origin is across Atlantic.

Of course it would be foolish to contend that the social conditions of Great Britain are perfect, or to oppose well-considered plans for improvement. The present government of Great Britain is distinctively a government of social reform, waging war with intemperance, ignorance and pauperism, and striving to strengthen the fibre of the people. It does not talk of decadence, but searches out the evil and strikes at it in a practical way.

COLONIAL OFFICE SHUFFLE.

Opinions Differ as to the Suitability of Mr. Harcourt for the Office.

London Nov. 29. As regards the shuffle at the colonial office, though opinions differ as to the suitability of Mr. "Lulu" Harcourt for the position of colonial secretary, there is a general feeling that it is better that the holder of the seals of this increasingly important portfolio should sit in the Commons, as did Lord Crewe's immediate predecessors, Mr. Lyttelton and Mr. Chamberlain.

When the resignation of Lord Morley was announced, it was stated that the opportunity offered to adjust the position of secretary for the colonies in union with the enormous growth of the self-governing nations would be taken advantage of and the new holder of the office would be restricted to dealing with the crown colonies. It was stated that the prime minister of England would be the medium through which the dominions would deal with the King of England. This was promptly denied. The significance of the appointment of Mr. Harcourt lies in the fact that his predecessor, Lord Crewe, is one of England's finest statesmen. It is unlikely that a government which so correctly interprets the signs of the times in other thing would elevate to such an important appointment a man untried in the domain of diplomacy.

FLED FROM BOREDOM.

The Tale of a Purposely Interrupted Yachting Cruise.

A few seasons back a well known hostess chartered a splendid yacht for August and invited a large number of her friends for a three weeks' cruise. At first all went well, though the party was not specially well assorted, but after a few days they began to evince signs of being somewhat bored with each other's company.

The hostess marked these signs of incipient boredom, which became more plainly evident each day, and at last in despair she took counsel with one of her guests, an old and experienced yachtsman.

"What on earth shall I do to amuse these people?" she asked.

The yachtsman looked at the serene sky and calm, blue water and shook his head doubtfully.

"A storm would enliven them up a bit," he said, "but the weather looks quite settled. There is only one thing to be done. You must arrange a breakdown; the engineer will manage that all right for you. He has probably often done so before. Then you must make for the nearest port for repairs and let your guests have a run ashore. Some of them, I expect, will find an excuse for bidding you goodby and those who remain with you will get along all right together."

The hostess took her guest's advice and arrived at Toulon a day later, where nigh twenty of her guests bid her goodby.—London M. A. P.

THE PRINCE WINKED.

And Miss Alcott Was at the Other End of the Flirtation.

It seems an awful thing, but here is the circumstance on record that Louisa M Alcott, the sainted author of "Little Women," once publicly flirted with Edward VII. The fact comes out in Mrs. Belle Mose's book, "Louisa May Alcott, Dreamer and Worker." There is a passage in the book which contains Miss Alcott's personal account of the incident. It refers to the time when the late king, then Prince of Wales, made his famous visit to this country.

"I went to Boston," Miss Alcott relates, "and I saw the Prince of Wales riot over the common with his train at reviews—a yellow haired laddie, very like his mother. Fanny W. and I nodded and waved as he passed and he openly winked his boyish eye at us, for Fanny with her yellow curls and wild waving looked rather rowdy, and the poor little prince wanted some fun. We laughed and thought that we had been more distinguished by the saucy wink than by a stately bow. Boys are always jolly—even princes."

By the way, this incident occurred in 1860, when the Prince of Wales was nineteen years old and consequently quite a broth of a boy, and when Miss Alcott—we blush to record it—was twenty-eight.—New York Mail.

The Gold Dust Was There.

North America has counted as a gold producing continent only since the late forties. But it might well have done so for about 200 years. According to the London Chronicle, in the voyage round the world which began in 1719 the privateer Captain Shelvocke found in certain California valleys "a thick black mold which, as you turn it fresh up to the sun, appears as if intermingled with gold dust. Though we were a little prejudiced," he adds, "against the thought that it could be possible that this metal should be so promiscuously and universally mingled with common earth, yet we endeavored to cleanse and wash the earth from some of it, and the more we did the more it appeared like gold. In order to be further satisfied I brought away some of it, which we lost in our confusion in China."

Ate Himself Thin.

A terribly emaciated man, about thirty-five years of age, was eating four meals a day, including a heavy breakfast. He was also taking milk between meals. I induced him to give up the milk between meals and to take only a cup of weak tea for breakfast. At once his weight began to increase. It is now normal. Obviously it was a case not only of ordinary mental worry, but also of worry and overwork of the millions of cell lives within him. He gave the cells and organs a rest and at once there was a storage of energy and weight.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Linked Before and After.

Having entered the church at Regensburg, in Germany, for the purpose of being married and taken his place beside the bride, a man named Wahl, who seems to have been of a somewhat nervous disposition, suddenly rushed out of the building, took a cab to the station and jumped into a moving train. We have always maintained that the bridegroom should be handcuffed to the best man until the conclusion of the ceremony. It is foolish to take unnecessary risks.—London Globe.

Happiness.

"There is an instinct in the heart of man which makes him fear a cloudless happiness. It seems to him that he owes to misfortune a tribe of his life, and that which he does not pay bears interest, is amassed and largely swells a debt which sooner or later he must acquit."

Her Long Dream.

Estelle—Ah! His proposal was just like a dream!

Agnes—Well, you ought to know, dear. You've been dreaming of that proposal for years.

Breaks His Silence.

Winnipeg, Nov. 29.—W. R. Clarke, former president of the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway, who is in the city, has broken his long silence. He makes a long statement explaining and defending his side of the case and dealing with what he calls Premier Sifton's policy of confiscation. He says "if the bill of Premier Sifton to use the money for public buildings should pass the legislature, it will be regarded in the United States and also Europe as a gross piece of bad faith, and will make people hesitate to invest in Alberta. It will also tend to check immigration."

ORANGEMEN WILL FIGHT HOME RULE

MANY COUNTIES LIKELY TO CONTEST THE DOMINANCY OF JOHN REDMOND.

"Sold to American Coin" — Orangemen Declare They Will Raise a Million to Fight Home Rule—Sir Ed. Carson's Attitude.

Dublin, Nov. 29.—A high state of excitement prevailed throughout Ulster Province today as a result of the resolutions adopted by its citizens in an anti-Home Rule indignation meeting, to buy arms and equip regiments. Fifty thousand collars has been subscribed to the armanent fund and the leaders of the movement today declared that it would be increased to a million if necessary.

ANOTHER MEETING PLANNED.

The Protestant constituency has planned another meeting which will be held at Belfast when supplemental resolutions will be adopted to those already in force, that the Irish shall neither pay taxes levied by an Irish Parliament, nor obey its decrees.

OTHERS WILL FOLLOW.

With Ulster leading, it was reported today that other counties would contest the dominancy of John Redmond. Sir Edward Carson, ex-solicitor-general, and now a Conservative member of parliament, declared that the Irish should never consent to their country being sold to American dollars.

"It is American money which has aroused this sentiment," declared he today. "It is unpatriotic, and the Irish people should be ashamed of it."

NO EXCITEMENT OVER ELECTIONS

PROFESSIONAL POLITICIANS AND STAND-PATTERS ONLY ONE WORKED UP.

Man on Street Is Calm—Nothing In the Nature of a Landslide and What Wagering Is Done Is at Even Money.

London, Nov. 29.—There will be a contest in every single division in London with the exception of the city. It is stated the unopposed returns will approach 100, but it is doubtful if it will reach so high a figure. Candidates are appearing in places where a contest was regarded as unlikely. The Liberals are even fighting in Westminster and the Strand, two boroughs which are ever whelmingly Unionist. Mr. Jos. Martin is being opposed by a second Liberal candidate, Levi Jacobs.

Liberal workers who are canvassing find that Home Rule comes to much to the front for them. Some canvassers are finding many who voted for the budget a year ago not that way disposed today.

About the only people who seem to get excited over the forthcoming conflict are professional politicians and stand-pat partizans, and even among those is much relative limpness.

The feeling is that there will be no surprise if the contests still threatened come to naught on nomination The man in the street does not seem affected, no matter how hysterical the declamation may be, and thinks twice before giving his forecast of the net results. Up to now there is an absence of anything in the nature of a landslide and what wagering is taking place has been even.

STRONG EFFORTS MADE TO SECURE COMMUTATION OF THE DEATH SENTENCE.

Emigration to Canada—325,000 Arrived This Year—Coming Election in Nova Scotia Likely to Result In a Change.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—The reviewer of capital cases is now going over the evidence in the case of Robert Parker, under sentence of death at Belleville. The minister has not made any recommendation, but strong efforts are being exerted to secure commutation

INFLUX TO CANADA.

It is stated at the Department of Immigration that the total influx during the calendar year now closing will be 325,000 people. It is expected to materially increase this next year. This fall has seen a large arrival of women and children who were preceded last April by the heads of the family.

DELEGATES TO BRITAIN.

Blake-Robertson, assistant commissioner of immigration, left today for Great Britain to arrange for the lectures to be delivered there by the twenty delegates who are to be sent over by the government.

NOVA SCOTIA ELECTION.

Nova Scotia Conservative members predict a change in the Provincial government when the next elections occur. It will probably be in April or May. Candidates are now in the field in 12 out of 18 constituencies, and the strongest men available are being put up, while every attention is being paid to organization and revision of voters' lists. The opposition in the house is no strong in numbers but aggressive, and the cry that it is time for a change is very effective as the Liberals have been in power all but four years since Confederation.

The recent by elections in Digby reduced the majority to 290 from a normal 800, and this despite the support of the successful candidate by the forces of both governments.

An order-in-council has been issued allowing the taking of lobsters in New Brunswick on December 1st instead of January 5, in view of failure of herring and sardine fisheries.

PAWNED FOR DEBT

"Widespread Custom" in West Africa Discussed in the House of Commons

A question was asked by Sir George White in the House of Commons as to evidence given at the recent Nigeria Liquor Traffic Inquiry that "thousands of children are pawned by their parents for gin, and kept in a condition of domestic slavery for many years." In reply, Colonel Seely, Under Secretary for the Colonies, said: "As regards the widespread custom throughout West Africa of pledging or pawning persons—not necessarily children—as security for debt, I cannot do better than quote from the recent report of a Committee, composed entirely of native gentlemen, on the laws and customs of the Yoruba country:—'When a lender advances money to a borrower, he asks the latter to provide an acceptable surety, who is responsible in default of payment by the borrower. The borrower is drawn in service for the lender one day in [illegible], the service representing interest for the money advanced; he lives in his own house. But if a child is provided as a substitute he is to live with and work for the lender as a slave, the consideration for the change being that the borrower is debt-free, and the lender enjoys the services of the borrower's child. But by this arrangement the child does not become the slave of the lender, the child does not forfeit his rights and privileges as a free born. He can succeed to the lender precisely in the same way as to his own father; indeed, he enjoys more freedom with the former, for he can at any time return to live with him. On the other hand the lender is responsible to the public authorities for injury to the health of the child and for his death. The custom, although not involving slavery, is discouraged as far as possible by the Government, and appears from the evidence of Father Coppard, a missionary of nineteen years' experience in the country, to be becoming less prevalent. Should cases occur in which the person pledged is put into a condition of servitude, the offenders are punishable under the law against slave dealing. Certain statements were made by witnesses before Sir Mackenzie Chalmers' Committee as to the pawning of children for gin, but no evidence whatever was put forward to show that such children had more connection with debts for liquor than any other debts. Indeed one of the native witnesses, Bishop Johnson, questioned on this point, replied, 'People who drink rarely get into debt more than others, but the habit is general all over the country, whether they drink or not. It is an institution in the country.'"

WOMEN AS FARMERS

A Pioneer Urges Others to Follow Her Example

After twenty years' experience as an English farmer Miss V. Courtauld recommends any woman fond of country life to follow her lead. She advises them, however, to think seriously about it first. It was absolutely hopeless, she said, for a woman to think of success unless she had practical knowledge and experience, sufficient capital, country tastes, perseverance, and a capacity for hard work. When she first told her father that she wanted to be a farmer, Miss Courtauld said he regarded the idea as he would have done had she suggested she should enter the Army. Curious reasons, she proceeded, were given at that time why women should not farm. One was that they could not pinch at beasts at market, and bargain for them over pints of beer in smoky inn tap rooms. Whether that was the way English farmers did their business fifty or sixty years ago she could not say. The idea that a woman could not attend market or go to sales and buy on her own account was quite erroneous. She had done so for many years, and had never met with anything but the greatest courtesy and consideration from her brother farmers.

A woman who could manage indoor servants should be quite capable of controlling farm hands.

POSED AS A BACHELOR

Assize Sequel to Frustrated Wedding at Ramsgate

At Maidstone Assizes a man was charged with making a false declaration for the purpose of procuring a marriage. The accused, James Henry Herman, aged 37, a traveller, made the acquaintance of a young woman, and representing that he was a bachelor, it was arranged that they should be married at a local chapel. When he was taxed with being married he strenuously denied it, and in support of his denial produced a forged telegram purporting to have come from a detective at Jersey, stating that it was a case of mistaken identity. The young woman, however, declined to marry him. She was about to receive a large legacy left her by a relative. His lordship, in passing sentence of twelve months' hard labor, said he had no doubt that the prisoner wanted to get hold of the young woman's money.

LOST HIS WEALTH

According to Reynold's Newspaper, "there is serving behind the bar of a well-known New York hotel a young man whose name, if it were published, would create no little sensation among the elite of Glasgow. Only a few years ago he was a popular figure in Glasgow city, being the possessor of much wealth. He has managed to get rid of most of it, and, finding himself stranded, has become a bar-tender.

THIS BIRD CAN TALK

A Glasgow naturalist has at present an Australian love bird, which, in addition to whistling, can speak distinctly over 50 words. It has been brought up in the same room with a small dog, which it calls by name, and a talking parrot, whose every utterance it imitates.

Present for Conservative Club.

The family of the late James Stevenson, ex-M.P., 453 Water street yesterday presented the young Conservative Club with a large steel engraving of Sir John A. Macdonald. The engraving is enclosed in a handsome frame. This picture was one of the cherished possessions of the late Mr. Stevenson, and will no doubt be welcomed by the club to which it was given.

Local Ladies Leave the City.

Today Peterboro loses two of its best known young ladies in the persons of Miss Stevenson and Miss Florence Stevenson, who have for the past year or two resided at 453 Water street. Since the death of their father, the late James Stevenson, the Misses Stevenson have decided to locate elsewhere. It is thought that they will spend the winter at Toronto.

Thomas at Winnipeg.

Lindsay Post: Word has been received in town that D. B. Thomas was seen in Winnipeg yesterday. He had been carefully traced to that city and now that he has been located his arrest is expected to follow any hour This information was secured from a reliable source so the town may yet have the satisfaction of hearing of the bogus shoe manufacturer's apprehension.

Port Hope Cop Beaten Up.

A Port Hope despatch says: Night Constable Burns, while attempting to arrest four men at an early hour this morning received a severe beating. One of the assailants knocked him down, while another took his baton and pounded him over the head, inflicting several bad bruises. Two of the men have been arrested, and the case will come up as soon as the policeman has sufficiently recovered to appear against them.

Mrs. Fred Laing's Demise.

On Tuesday night, Mrs. Fred Laing of Emily, passed away in Nicholls Hospital. She had been a sufferer from anaemia for the past four years. The late Mrs. Laing was 48 years of age. She was the third daughter of the late David Storey of Emily. Her maiden name being Susan E. She was a member of the Methodist Church. Her husband and one daughter, Mary, are left to mourn her loss. She is also survived by three sisters and two brothers, the sisters being Mrs. J. T. Switzer, and Mrs. Alex Laing, Emily, and Mrs. W. C. Switzer of this city. The brothers are Messrs. Jas. A. of this city, and Evans Storey of Emily.

The funeral will take place this afternoon from lot 2, concession C, Emily, to the Emily cemetery.

Good Hockey is Assured.

Even should the Commissioners leave the City Hockey League this year, other teams are rapping at the door for admission. It seems that a couple of teams have corralled all the good material, and as a result had the edge of others to such an extent that the only interest in the league has centered to first honors. This year it looks as though things will be different. The fans, the ones who put up the coin that keeps the game agoing, will have a live fight before the honors of the season are won.

Canon Davidson Tests Chimes.

Rev. Canon Davidson has returned home after spending the past few days in Toronto, Hamilton and Woodstock. He preached special sermons in St. Clement's church, in North Toronto on Sunday and on Monday he visited Woodstock, where he inspected the chimes on the Anglican church in that city. On Monday Mr. Davidson visited Hamilton. Here Rev D. R. Drummon, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, showed him the chimes on the church and had them rung for half an hour in order that he might hear them from various parts of the city.

RHEUMATISM? USE ZAM-BUK.

When you feel the aching of rheumatism, or lumbago, or the shooting pains of sciatica, apply Zam-Buk.

Mrs. Francis Wyatt, of 25 Guy ave. nue, Montreal, says: "I have found Zam-Buk most soothing and valuable for rheumatism and stiffness of the joints and muscles. I suffered long and acutely from rheumatism, and tried one liniment after another in vain. I also took medicines internally, but it remained for Zam-Buk to effect a cure.

"Zam-Buk seemed to penetrate the very seat of the pains, driving them completely out, and I am now quite cured."

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for piles, ulcers, cold sores, chapped hands, cuts, burns, scalds, scalp sores, babies' rashes, and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores, 50c box, or Zam-Buk Co. Toronto, for price.

THE RED YEAR

—By—

LOUIS TRACY.

(CONLINUED.)

loomed around the square of the courtyard like some great prison.

A chaprassi recovered his hat, which he had left floating in the moat. Nejdi allowed him to mount quietly; the steel door had closed on him, and he was picking his way across the fields towards the Meerut road, before he quite realized how curious were the circumstances which had befallen him since he parted from Winifred Mayne in the porch of her uncle's bungalow.

Then he bent forward in the saddle to stroke Nejdi's curved neck, and laughed cheerfully.

"You are wiser than I, good horse," said he. "When the game is up, you take thing's placidly. Here am I, your supposed superior in intellect, in danger of being bewitched by a woman's eyes. Whether brown or black, they play the deuce with a man if they shine in a woman's head. So ho, then, boy, let us home and eat, and forget these fairies in muslin and clinging silk."

Yet a month passed, and Frank Malcolm did not succeed in forgetting. Like any moth hovering round a lamp, the more he was singed the closer he fluttered, though the memory of the Indian Princess's brilliant black eyes was soon lost in the sparkle of Winifred's brown ones.

As it happened the young soldier was a prime favorite with the Commissioner, and it is possible that the course of true love might have run most smoothly if the red torch of war had not flashed over the land like the glare of some mighty volcano.

On Sunday evening, May 10th, Malcolm rode away from his own small bungalow, and took the Aligarh road. As in all up-country stations, the European residences in Meerut were scattered over an immense area. The cantonment was split into two sections by an irregular ravine, or nullah, running east and west. North of this ditch were many officers' bungalows, and the barracks of the European troops, tenanted by a regiment of dragoons, the 60th Rifles, and a strong force of artillery, both horse and foot. Between the infantry and cavalry barracks stood the soldiers' church. Fully two miles away, on the south side of the ravine, were the sepoy lines, and another group of isolated bungalows. The native town was in this quarter, while the space intervening between the British and Indian troops was partly covered with rambling bazaars.

Malcolm had been detained nearly half an hour by some difficulty which a subadar had experienced in arranging the details of the night's guard. Several men were absent without leave, and he attributed this unusual occurrence to the severe measures the colonel had taken when certain troopers refused to use the cartridges supplied for the new Enfield rifle. But, like every other officer in Meerut, he was confident that the nearness of the strongest European force in the North-West Provinces would certainly keep the malcontents quiet. Above all else, he was ready to stake his life on the loyalty of the great majority of the men of his own regiment, the 3rd Native Cavalry.

In pushing Nejdi along at a fast canter, therefore, he had no weightier matter on his mind than the fear that he might have kept Winifred waiting. When he dashed into the compound, and saw that there was no dog-cart standing in the porch, he imagined that the girl had gone without him, or horrible suspicion, with some other cavalier.

It was not so. Winifred herself appeared on the veranda as he dismounted.

"You are a laggard," she said, severely.

"I could not help it. I was busy in the orderly-room. But why lose more time? If that fat pony of yours is rattled along we shall not be very much behindhand."

"You must not speak disrespectfully of my pony. If he is fat, it is due to content, not laziness. And you are evidently not aware that Evensong is half an hour later to-day, owing to the heat. Of course, I expected you earlier, and, if necessary, I would have gone alone, but—"

She hesitated, and looked over her shoulder into the immense drawing room that occupied the centre of the bungalow from front to rear.

"I don't mind admitting," she went on, laughing nervously, "that I am a wee bit afraid these days—there is so much talk of a native rising. Uncle gets so cross with me when I say any thing of that kind that I keep my opinions to myself."

"The country is unsettled," said Frank, "and it would be folly to deny the fact. But, at any rate, you are safe enough in Meerut."

"Are you sure? Only yesterday morning eighty-five men of your own regiment were sent to prison, were they not?"

"Yes, but they alone were disaffected. Every soldier knows he must obey, and these fellows refused point blank to use their cartridges, though the Colonel said they might tear them instead of biting them. He could go no further—I wonder he met their stupid whims even thus far."

"Well, perhaps you are right. Come in, for a minute or two. My uncle is in a rare temper. You must help to talk him out of it. By the way, where are all the servants? The dog-cart ought to be here. Kot hai!"

No one came in response to her call. Thinking that a syce or chaprassi would appear in a moment, Frank hung Nejdi's bridle on a lamp-hook in the porch, and entered the bungalow.

He soon discovered that Mr. Mayne's wrath was due to a statement in a Calcutta newspaper that a certain Colonel Wheler had been preaching to his sepoys.

"What between a psalm-singing Viceroy and commanding officers who hold conventicles, we are in for a nice hot weather," growled the Commissioner, shoving a box of cheroots towards Malcolm when the latter found him stretched in a long cane chair on the back veranda. "Here is Lady Canning trying to convert native women, and a number of missionaries publishing manifestoes about the influence of railways and steamships in bringing about the spiritual union of the world! I tell you, Malcolm, India won't stand it. We can do as we like with Hindu and Mussalman so

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A. of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2,625 oz. of gold and 3,267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

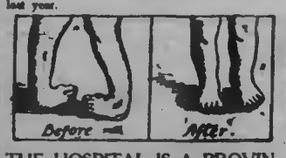
READY FOR MOTHER.

Appeals to Fathers and Mothers of Ontario on behalf of suffering children.

This Institution did more work in 1910 than ever before. Total In-Patients 1,224. Of these, 783 were from the city and 441 from the country.

Since its organization, the Hospital has treated in its cots and beds 16,837 children; 12,370 of these were unable to pay and were treated free.

There were 60 cases of club feet corrected last year.



THE HOSPITAL IS A PROVINCIAL CHARITY.

The sick child from the most remote corner of Ontario has the same claim as the child living within sight of the great House of Mercy in College Street, Toronto. Our cause is the children's cause. Could there be one that has a stronger claim on the people of this Province?

Perfect results in Hamlin cases. 16 infants were relieved of this terrible deformity last year.

If the Hospital is to continue its great work, it must appeal to your pocketbook as well as to your heart. Let your Dollars be messages of mercy to the suffering little children of Ontario.

Cement Prices Down.

The price of cement has been lowered. This announcement may come as a surprise to many—for, when mergers merge, the opposite tendency is usually looked for, but this time the unexpected has happened. About a year ago most of the largest cement interests joined hands and formed one company, known as The Canada Cement Company Limited. It was immediately predicted in many quarters, that prices would be advanced, that on account of the big merger the consumer would have to pay dear for his cement in the future. The promoters of the company, on the other hand, stoutly contested this theory, pointing out that owing to reduction of expenses and increased efficiency, they hoped to be able to give cheaper cement that ever before.

Canada and Canadians By Col. MacQueen

Patriotic Speech at Canadian Club Banquet at the National Hotel Last Night

Last night the local Canadian Club held their second banquet this season at the National Hotel. The attendance was not quite as large as that at the former banquet, still it favorably represented the leading business and professional men of Peterborough. To amuse the guests, Mr. Denison had placed in the spacious dining hall a large cabinet phonograph, from which proceeded the latest music and songs rendered by famous artists. Dr. Cameron president of the club, occupied the chair. After the excellent repast had been done full justice to, the chairman in a few well chosen words, said that as one or two of those who were going to sing were late, the address by Col. McQueen would be delayed a few minutes. After a wait of some minutes the president noted that the membership of the club was about the same as it was last year. He thought every member might get a few new members in. In future the meetings of the club will be at 8 o'clock sharp. In future dinner tickets will be available at the National Hotel office. Due notice will be sent to members who can get their tickets at the office. He then introduced Col. MacQueen of Toronto.

Col. MacQueen, greeted with applause, said in part, after expressing the pleasure it gave him to be present, that he would give a few rambling remarks, prefaced by a story. The story was one told by Dr. Beers of Montreal, who was the father of Canada's national game, lacrosse. Dr. Beers took an article on Spain to a New York magazine. Dr. Beers told how different authors had written on countries they had never visited. Many Canadians rave about the waterfalls of Europe, who have never seen Niagara. As his text he took "God of our Fathers, etc." The speaker then went on to quote some patriotic poetry. Whether we look to the pioneers of old, the militia or Canada's present population we see true loyalty. One point to consider is by whom and how Canada was discovered. He referred to Newfoundland and Nova Scotia's discovery. For nearly 500 years Canada or in 1497 Canada was forgotten. The king then sent John Cabot to see what he could find. John was later succeeded by his son Sebastian. The Portuguese next looked after Canada. The Portuguese captain died on the way. The French then sent an expedition. Jacques Cartier then sailed up the St. Lawrence. He visited Hochelaga and Montreal. In honor of old France, who has gone so much for Canada, he asked for the song "Oh Canada."

This was ably rendered by Mr. W McIlroy, amid much applause.

Col. MacQueen, resuming, said it would take too much time to tell the struggles between the French and the Indians. Later on France laid claim to all of Canada, in fact to the Gulf of Mexico. Then France lost all. France would not let England trade in the Mississippi Valley; this was in 1774. This was at the beginning of the seven years' war. Washington tried to build a fort, Fort Necessity. On the 4th of July, 1774, Washington instead of firing off fire works was himself "fired." Had Washington been captured by a French officer of those days he would not have taken the place he did in establishing the United States; Washington would have been shot under such a capture. General Wolf captured Quebec. On June 25th Wolfe landed his little force on the Point Levis side of the St. Lawrence. He was defeated largely by fever among the troops. In December, as the glorious fall sunlight fell on the river's bosom; as the flocks of wild geese and ducks flew by, things were shaping for Wolfe's coming victory. The speaker then gave the familiar story of Wolfe's capture of Quebec. Wolfe had brought his little force of 4828 men to the Plains of Abraham, where it was either death or victory. The French general had double or three times the strength of the British army. Wolfe's men never fired a shot till they were ordered, and then one of the deadliest volleys ever shot by British guns, massacred the French troops. Montcalm died next morning after the death of the brave wolfe. Then down came the flag of Old France for the first time since 1535, and the Union Jack has waved over Quebec ever since. Here the speaker produced a Union Jack, saying, "This flag floats now from Halifax to Vancouver, and please God we will always keep it there (cheers).

Here Mr. McIlroy sang "Rule Britannia."

The speaker continued to give the history of Canada to current days. He was followed by several local speakers when the meeting broke up in the usual patriotic manner.

Peterboro's Chimes Have Been Ordered

The chimes of St. John's church of to be possibly more accurate the "Chimes of Peterborough," are ordered. Great credit for this addition to our city must be given to Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's church, the very able committee backing the movement and, particularly the last, the kind hearted, enterprising and public spirited citizens, both of Peterborough and abroad, who gave so generously contributed towards the fund. The committee has decided to purchase the set manufactured by Taylor and Company, of Loughborough, England, at a cost of $5,600, and yesterday morning a cablegram was sent to the English firm notifying them that their offer had been accepted. The chimes will weigh 14,000 pounds and will be perhaps the richest and heaviest in the Province, with the possible exception of those in St. James' Cathedral, Toronto.

There was a largely attended meeting of the committee held at the Bank of Ottawa, and the conditions were thoroughly discussed. Mr. Wainwright reported that over $5,200 had been subscribed, $4,500 of which had been paid up.

It is thought that a considerable further sum will yet be subscribed. Canon Davidson presented his report of his visit to Woodstock and Hamilton. The Woodstock bells, he said, were installed by Taylor & Sons. Canon Davidson stated that the effect in both places was good. The chimes gave the most widespread pleasure to the citizens. He also stated that he found it impossible to compare the different sets of chimes. The Woodstock bells are heavier than the Hamilton ones, though the former had only ten bells. The eleven bells were, however, an improvement over the ten bells.

In the granting of the contract between the tenders of Taylor and Co., of Loughborogh, Eng., and Meneely & Co., of Troy, N.Y., it was pointed out that the Meneeley chime was considerably more expensive and yet a lighter one than the English chime. The Meneeley chime weighed 10,600 pounds, and cost $5,550, while the Taylor & Co's chime, weighed 14,000 pounds, and cost $5,600.

The decision was finally given in favor of Taylor & Sons' offer.

The largest bell weighs 3,000 lbs., being three times the size of the present St. John's bell and the other bells graduated down to 550 lbs. This, compared with the Woodstock bells, would leave their largest bell 2,500 lbs., and the largest bell of the Hamilton chimes would be 2,100 lbs., and the Petrolea, by Meneely would also be 2,100 lbs. Peterborough will, accordingly, have one of the heaviest and richest chimes in Ontario. The only possible exception being that at St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, and the weight of these chimes is not known.

It is a matter of public sentiment that the procuring of these chimes is not work done exclusively for St. John's church, but to attain a result that will be "pro bono publico." It is hoped that the new chimes in full working order will be installed in time to have a merry peal of bells announce to our citizens on July 1st, that that day, is the anniversary of Canada's greatest day, when the scattered, jealous provinces became united into one glorious confederation, that has made a nation.

OBITUARY.

Death of Mr. W. H. Rackham, One of Peterborough's Most Respected Citizens.

One of Peterborough's oldest and most generally respected citizens in the person of Mr. W. H. Rackham has passed away. The late Mr. Rackham, known favorably to all who knew him, was a typical example of the English gentleman. Whilst the late Mr. Rackham neither entered politics nor "made his pile," his word was as good as the ordinary man's bond. Our older citizens remember that in the days of Mr. Rackham's affluence, he entertained largely and widely. He was sixty-four years of age. The late Mr. Rackham came from Norfolk, England in 1871, and has been a resident of Peterborough since that time. He was for some time engaged in farming, but for some years past has been living retired. In his early years of residence he was one of the first officers of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, at the time of its organization in 1875. He married Miss Cannon of Peterborough, who dies about twenty-five years ago. To this union was born four daughters and one son, all of whom are living and were with the father at the time of his death. The daughters are Mrs. A. F. Stevenson, Niagara Fall, Ont.; Mrs. B. C. H. Andrews, Peterborough; Mrs. A. C. B. Poussette, Detroit; and Mrs. A.J. McClellan, Peterborough. The son is Mr. Gerald A. Rackham, Peterborough.

The funeral will take place from 474 Gilmour street on Saturday, Dec. 3rd, at 2.30 p.m. Interment at Little Lake cemetery.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

CROWDS SURGE INTO COURT TO HEAR TRIAL OF CANADIAN GIRL

Principal Gordon Will Not Attend Banquet

Mr. W. H. Roberts on received a telegram last night from Rev. Dr. Gordon, Principal of Queen's College, Kingston, stating that he would be unable, through severe illness, to be present at the banquet of Queen's College Alumni Association, which takes place at the National Hotel tonight. The Principal was to have been a guest at Mr. Robertson's home during his visit to Peterborough. Dr. Gordon stated in his message that he was keenly disappointed at not being able to be here. We are sure the members of the Alumni Association will also feel extremely sorry, and will extend to Dr. Gordon their heat felt sympathy in his illness, and hopes for his speedy recovery.

CHILD DEAD AND MOTHER LAUGHED

Crawled on the Stove and Met Awful Death.

(Special to The Times.)

Montreal, Dec. 1.—Locked in the kitchen with his six year-old sister while his mother gossiped with neighbors, two years old Wasel Tolavulk, a Polish child, was burned to death. He crawled on the stove and met an awful death. The mother laughed, when she arrived home.

WEALTHY FARMER BURNED TO DEATH

Philip Dulmage, a Cherry Valley Farmer Burned in His Barn.

(Special to The Times.)

Picton, Ont., Dec. 1.—This morning about four o'clock Mr. Philip Dulmage, a wealthy farmer, living near Cherry Valley, was burned to death in his barn.

Deceased was about sixty years of age and unmarried. It is said he left his house about three a.m. and went to his barn and a few minutes later the fire broke out.

SHOT BROTHER BY ACCIDENT

A Desperate Effort to Save Brother From Charge of Mad Bull.

(Special to The Times.)

Montreal, Dec. 1.—In a desperate effort to save his brother, Fred Drexel Rodgers of Philadelphia, from the charge of a mad wounded bull, W. T. Rodgers fired wildly, and killed the brother he was trying to protect.

The shooting occurred on the banks of Lake Coulonge. The body was brought here by the brother and his guides, and shipped today to Philadelphia.

SIXTY-TWO YEARS ON THE THRONE

Sixty-Second Anniversary of the Accession of Emperor Francis.

(Special to The Times.)

Vienna, Dec. 2.—The sixty-second Anniversary of the occasion of Emperor Francis Joseph, who came to the throne in the storm and tumult occasioned by the revolution of 1848, was observed throughout the dual empire today with thanksgiving services and other outward forms as in past years.

It must be remembered that when letter delivery service was instituted in Peterboro, most of the boxes went out of business.

RAISED HER RENT.

Snubbed at Back Door and He Raised the Rent.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—Rev. Dr. Somerville, treasurer of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, reports the incident here related as having actually occurred in Toronto.

A woman who lives on an uptown street, answered a knock at the back door only to find a Jewish old clothes man asking for cast-off garments. Being busy with domestic duties, she treated him brusquely and practically closed the door in his face.

Immediatel afterwards the front door bell rang, and again the housewife responded only to find the man she had just dismissed at the rear entrance.

"Madame," said he, "your rent heretofore has been $30 a month. Henceforth I shall charge you $40. I own this house."

The old clothes man was also the landlord.

Every family has need of a good reliable liniment. For sprains, bruises, soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains there is none better than Chamberlain's. Sold by all dealers.

WON A BRIBE VIA THE WATER WAGON

WM. THAW, THIRD, KEPT STRICTLY AWAY FROM RED EYE FOR SIX LONG MONTHS.

And Now He Gets Reward—Marries Miss Gladys Virginia Bradley—Says He Can Now Do Without It.

(Special to The Times.)

New York, Dec. 1.—The gorgeous white and gold ballroom of the St. Regis Hotel was the scene of a gay and brilliant gathering today at the wedding of Miss Gladys Virginia Bradley, and William Thaw, 3rd, both of Pittsburg.

The bride, whose beauty has attracted much attention in New York and elsewhere, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henderson Bradley, and a sister of Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle of Philadelphia.

Mr. Thaw, the bridegroom, is a nephew of Harry K. Thaw, and like the latter he has managed to keep much in the limelight through his numerous escapades and his reckless spending of the Thaw millions.

His escapades have been widely exploited, from his brandy-and-soda drinking match in a Pittsburg Club to his tribal marriage to a Soudanese woman in Egypt. Several years ago his mother applied to the courts to have him adjudged incapable of managing his own affairs, on the ground that he was a "common drunkard," but the proceedings were stopped on the promise of the young man to reform. After this he spent some time on a ranch in Wyoming.

ON TRIAL FOR LIFE.

Theater Owner is Charged With Killing Wealthy Oil Operator.

Vincennes, Ind., Dec. 1.—Menno E. Moore, lessee or owner of theaters in Vincennes, Washington, Mitchell, Princeton and Bedford, today is on trial for the murder of Charles Edward Gibson, a wealthy oil operator, whom he shot on the platform of the Baltimore & Ohio Station on the morning of October 3.

The interest in the case hinges on the testimony of the twenty-six year old wife of Moore, claiming the "unwritten law." When she takes the stand tomorrow she is expected to lay bare her life in an effort to save her husband. It will be a frank, remarkable tale, starting with an alleged attack and with details not unlike Evelyn Thaw's.

Mrs. Moore and the four-year-old son did not appear today, but the aged mother and father of the accused and his father-in-law set with him.

May Fall 5,000,000 Short of the Estimate

POPULATION OF U.S. AND ITS POSSESSIONS LIKELY TO REACH ONLY 95,000,000.

Estimate Was 100,000,000—Number of People Under Last Census Was 76,303,387—Inhabitants in the Various States.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The population of the United States and its possessions unofficially estimated by the census bureau to be 100,000,000 may fall 5,000,000 short of these figures, according to careful computations made today.

The population of more than half of the States has already been announced, and a computation based on the percentage of increase in these States, compared with the States whose population has not yet been announced, does not throw out the census bureau's claim that this census will show 100,000,000 population under the American flag.

The population of 24 States has been announced, and the total for these does not agree with the estimated population made by director of the census Durand before the beginning of the enumeration. His estimate was 90,000,000 in continental United States and 10,000,000 in Porto Rico, the Philippines and the other insular possessions.

CONSUMPTIVE FREE HOSPITAL IS IN RUINS.

Early yesterday morning the free branch of the Weston Hospital for consumptives, was discovered to be in flames and was destroyed. There were 92 patients, nearly half of whom had to be assisted by the nurses, who worked heroically. The financial loss is about $100,000, but what is most to be regretted is the discomfort and possible injury to the patients.

WIDOW GROWS ANGRY AS LAWYER FOR DEFENCE DELVES INTO THE PAST.

Proceedings in Murder Trial at Cambridge Take Sensational Turn—Rumor That an Arrest May Be Made—Mrs. Glover Suffers Under a Severe Examination.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 1. The dramatic climax in the trial of Hattie Le Blanc, the 17-year-old girl charged with killing Clarence E. Glover, came today, and the court room was crowded with hundreds curious to hear Mrs. Lillian Glover, the widow on the witness stand. A sharp battle of wits was promised, for Mrs. Glover had nerved herself to meet the sharp attack of Melvin M. Johnson, the accused girl's young attorney, who characterizes Mrs. Glover as a vampire, and has assured the court that he will introduce evidence to show that she committed the crime of which his client is accused.

There were rumors that an arrest might be made in court.

A FIGURE OF INTEREST.

Mrs. Glover has been precipitated into the scene so sensationally that she has become a greater figure of interest in the trial than the little white-faced girl who sat beside the steel cage for prisoners. When the doors were opened the crowd surged into the building, being admitted in bunches of ten and twelve, so that a dangerous crush might be obviated.

A MYSTERIOUS WOMAN.

It was also expected that something more might develop about the mysterious woman wearing a black veil rolled up from her face, who walked excitedly up to the front of the residence of Dr. Nicholas W. Cousins, while Glover lay dying on the steps, asked what had happened, and then sped away in the darkness. That was one of the new facts that has developed at this trial.

WAS THERE A MOTIVE?

Before the cross-examination of Mrs. Glover was begun today, Assistant District Attorney Weir hinted at the motive that the State will allege that Hattie Le Blanc had for killing Glover. He had brought out from Mrs. Glover that her husband and Hattie Le Blanc went to the Waltham football game on November 26th of last year, the day of the tragedy, and that Mrs. Glover had paid some attention to Mrs. George A. Freeman. He gave Mrs. Freeman a box of candies.

"Did Hattie say anything about that?" asked Mr. Weir.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Glover. "Hattie told me to tell Mr. Glover not to make love to Mrs. Freeman."

Mrs. Glover declared on the witness stand that she never shot any thing in her life. Once she said she shot at a wood pecker, and missed it.

LOT LULTERS FROM ANOTHER

Mr. Johnson succeeded in getting Mrs. Glover angry right at the start when he began to dig into her past. She admitted that she had got letters for a long period of time under the name of Miss Minnie Everett Clark after she was married. She did not receive the letters at her home, but went to the post office after them.

TO EDUCATE PEOPLE.

The Provincial Board of Health Fitting Up Special Car for That Purpose.

The Provincial Board of Health for Ontario, has had a special car fitted up for the purpose of educating the people to the possibilities of proper treatment of sufferers from tuberculosis. There are models of "consumptive shacks," in which patients practically get open-air treatment.

Photographs of germs, etc., and mottoes summarising in a sentence the chief points about the tuberculosis problem decorate the walls of the car.

PAY-AS-YOU-ENTER SYSTEM

Went Into Effect on Toronto Radial System Yesterday.

The pay-as-you-enter system went into effect on every street car in the city of Toronto yesterday. This system has been in operation in Montreal for a long time, and seems to have given general satisfaction. At least the annoyance of having a conductor jamming through a crowded car and stepping on people's pet corns will be a thing of the past. Whether passengers will all get seats or not is another question—and smoking on the cars is absolutely prohibited, at least until the open cars come into fashion again.

FIRST MEMBERS WILL BE UNIONISTS

NOMINATIONS TODAY IN MANY PLACES AND NO OPPOSITION IN NINE SEATS.

Mr. Balfour's Proposal—Ultimate Effect Still in Doubt—Mr. Law Says Unionists Must Enact Tariff Reform if Returned.

London, Dec. 1.—The ultimate effect upon the Opposition's attempt to unload the tariff reform issue for the purpose of the present campaign is still in doubt. While the Unionists were greatly encouraged by Mr. Balfour's sudden and surprising announcement that he would not object to the submission of the question to a referendum, the leader's bold stroke has far from disheartened the Liberals, who find therein good ammunition and are accusing their opponents of changing their policy daily in a desperate effort to catch votes and so secure power at any cost.

NOW HOLDING BACK.

Moreover, the more ardent tariff reformers who yesterday congratulated Mr. Balfour on his tactful manoeuvering, were not so ready today to endorse his pledge.

Speaking at Manchester Andrew Bonar Law, Unionist member for Dulwich Division of Camberwell, refused to "eat my words," adding that if the Unionists obtained an adequate majority at the polls they would be bound to enact a tariff reform measure.

NOMINATIONS TOMORROW.

The first members returned to the new parliament will be Unionists. In many constituencies nominations will be made tomorrow and in at least nine instances there will be no contests. These include the city of London seats and those held by Joseph Chamberlain and Jesse Collings of Birmingham and George Wyndham of Dover.

GALE BATTERING EUROPE'S COAST

FRENCH HEARTS WON BY THE SPLENDID LIFE SAVING WORK OF AMERICANS.

How Twenty-Five Were Rescued—Dozen Small Vessels Go Down and Many Perish in Vortex of the Storm.

Cherbourg, Dec. 1.—French hearts have been won by the heroic work of American sailors in the terrific storm which has been raging off the French coast for 36 hours. The gale was still blowing today, though slightly decreased in fury, and was accompanied by torrential rains.

By the rapid work of the crew of the Louisiana, one of the visiting American ships of the second division, 25 men were saved from the steam cutter of the French cruiser Dupleix. After a hard battle the Louisiana's men succeeded in getting the French sailors on board and the majority of them are hobnobbing with the Americans today, only a few having been able to return to their vessel.

Despatches received here show that the western coast of Europe is being battered by the gale from the English Channel to the Bay of Gibraltar. Fully a score of lives have been lost and it is feared that at least a dozen small vessels have gone down. The American battleship fleet here was caught in the vortex of the storm.

Washington is Society Crazy Over Big Event

OVER FORMAL PRESENTATION AT WHITE HOUSE OF MISS HELEN TAFT YESTERDAY.

The Function Was By Long Odds the Most Brilliant of the Season's Social Calendar.

Washington, Dec. 1. Not since the wedding of Alice Roosevelt to the Hon. Nicholas Longworth of Cincinnati, has Washington society been so stirred up over an event as it is over the reception and tea which will be held at the White House between 5 and 7 o'clock this evening in honor of the formal presentation of the daughter of the President, Helen Taft. Preparations for the debut of Miss Taft has been going on many weeks, not merely at the White House, but in many of the houses of the fashionables at the capital, and the function today will be by long odds the most brilliant on the season's social calendar.

Not only is this the formal presentation of Miss Taft to society, but it is something more. It is recognized as amounting to the test of whether one has entry to the 400. If one is not invited to this reception it will mean that he or she is not inside the pale of the foremost social circles here, and that it will not be easy in the course of this season to break into them.

GIRL LOOKS LIKE LE NEVE.

Young Woman Held Up by U.S. Immigration Authorities Becomes Confused.

New York, Dec. 1.—A girl bearing a striking resemblance to Miss Ethel Clare Le Neve, the young woman for the love of whom Dr. Crippen killed his wife, was held up by the immigration authorities when the White Star liner Majestic arrived today from Southampton and Queenstown. The girl was booked as Elizabeth McNaughton, but she became confused when questioned and the officers decided to hold her until she could prove her identity.

Word that Miss Ethel Le Neve was on board was current among the Majestic's passengers all the way across. They saw that Miss McNaughton closely resembled the pictures of the Le Neve girl, and a close watch was kept on her. She kept to her state room as much as possible, however, and very little of her was seen on the trip.

Questioned by the immigration officials when the Majestic landed today, the girl insisted that she had given her right name.

The mystery surrounding the case was deepened by a despatch from the authorities asking the officials here to look out for a Miss Allen of London. The girl, her parents claimed, was a runaway, and was coming to America, her parents claimed, to join the Pillar of Fire, a religious sect of Bound Brook, N.J.

Chief Stewart Roos, in charge of the second cabin, was the first to note the striking resemblance between Miss McNaughton and the published photographs of the Le Neve girl. Miss Mary Walker, another passenger, was also under suspicion for a time, but she had no trouble in convincing the authorities of her identity. She was accompanied by her sister Gertrude, and came here to visit her uncle, Robert A. Day.

WARSAW

Mrs. S. R. Payne and her daughter Marie have left the village to spend the winter with her brother.

Plenty of sleighing now. The farmers are all taking advantage of it to come to the village.

Ernie Courvette took the sleighs to Peterboro this morning, the first this winter. He made good time, returning at 5.15 p.m.

Mr. Levi Payne's new store is progressing rapidly. The interior fixtures are being put in place. Mr. Payne expects to begin active business in a couple of weeks.

This makes seven fine large stores in the village. Truly Warsaw is growing.

The local Cheese meeting was held today. Much important business was attended to.

The factory will be run as a creamery during the winter months.

Mrs. C. M. Smith is visiting friends in Peterboro.

Miss Belle Selkirk is among us again. We hope she had a pleasant visit.

Mr. Cooper, the supply rector of St. Mark's Anglican Church is leaving us this week, as the permanent rector, Mr. Brown, will be at his post on Sunday.

Our best wishes go with Mr. Cooper as he was well liked in this locality.

Miss Flo. McDonald is visiting this week at Mr. David Prain's.

Miss Dorothy Dobson comes often to the village now, we believe.

Mr. Fred Bell is able to be out again.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION.

St. Catharines Stan. The movement which is again on foot to abolish the Water Commission, futile though it may be should the matter go before the electorate, is another evidence of the changes of public opinion and of the growing favor of the government of all civic affairs by one commission. At a recent meeting of the Board of Trade of Guelph, a vigorous and active body in that city, a resolution was passed supporting the idea of putting all civic utilities and departments, now so governed now, under one commission which would be a responsible body and which would effect economy and order out of an imperfect elective system. When by council government a city is carried to a tax rate of twenty-five mills, when there are opportunities for favoritism, when men elected to office have little time to devote to affairs that should occupy their entire attention, there is a chance for things to drift into conditions wholly distasteful to the voting masses.

In cities where government by commission has been tried it has proved successful so far as can be learned. Some of the more progressive cities in the United States are trying it, trusting to evolve a better method of looking after a city's interests than through aldermen elected year by year. It is no reflection on those chosen by the citizens to represent them in the council that better results are not obtained. The public must not forget that mayors and aldermen give their services practically free, that they get more criticism than praise, and that while they are amendable to a voting people they can never use the free hand they would if not directly answerable to the vote of the unthinking man. Still the fact remains that economy is not usually effected under an elective method. Two sets of officials are paid salaries where one would often do, unnecessary staffs are kept and the cutting of general expenses that would be done by a commission is regarded as dangerous and impossible tasks for councils. It is opportune for the electors of St. Catharines to think over the proposal of government by commission and to be prepared to vote intelligently on the question should it come before them for vote in a year or two.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUE IN ENGLAND.

It is impossible to keep secondary and minor issues out of an election, and it is evident that the electorate of the United Kingdom will hear a great deal in the next few weeks about home rule, protection, land reform, labor legislation, and so on. But the paramount issue is, and will remain, the constitutional one—the power and function of the lords in the scheme of government. The respective leaders of the two great parties do not shrink from this issue and are not trying to dodge or obscure it:

What are the differences between them as to this issue? What is the maximum the tories are now willing to grant; what the minimum the liberals consider irreducible?

It may not be that the British peers are surrendering more than any class has ever given up since the eve of the French revolution; but they are really surrendering a great deal. Fame or not, deathbed repentance or not, the fact of their surrender is momentous. They offer to reduce by half the membership of the upper house, to abolish the hereditary principle, to introduce an elective element, to submit most disputes between the houses to a joint session, and certain essential ones to a popular referendum, and to waive all veto claims as to finance bills proper.

Two years ago such concessions as these would have staggered the stubborn tories and amazed the liberals and radicals. Two years ago no one would have denied that they were calculated to give an impetus to democracy and a severe blow to feudalism and privilege.

Today, however, the liberals scornfully reject them as vague, illusory, inadequate. They are determined to fight and risk everything in an election rather than accept the above-mentioned compromise. Why? Because they say the lords as mended would still remain permanently tory—a perpetual opposition to any liberal government. They demand a chance "to carry the lords" or an opportunity to pass legislation over and against the lords' veto. Here is Mr. Asquith's brief summary of the liberal position:

We propose such a change in the relations of the two chambers as will confine the second chamber to those subordinate functions which are admittedly appropriate to such a body and which will secure a fair even working of the two parties whichever party is in power. We ask that in future the will of the people as expressed by the house of commons shall within the lifetime of a single parliament be effectively supreme.

This, say Asquith and all his associates, is not at all revolutionary, but moderate and reasonable—so reasonable that they will take nothing less and confidently appeal to the electors.

The campaign will be short, sharp and exciting; the voters will have little time for reflection and the pondering of arguments. Their mood, emotions, instincts and impressions will determine the result of the contest.

For the Children

Luncheon Time in a Berlin School.

American boys and girls who carry their luncheons to school or who live near enough to go to their homes for the midday meal may perhaps envy the poor scholars of Berlin. Recently in the German capital a plan of providing a substantial luncheon for the children of the public schools was instituted. This luncheon is served free of cost to those scholars whose parents are unable to pay. It has been proved that the youngsters learn much more rapidly when provided with wholesome food. Fortunately the school children of this country, as a rule, have no need of such assistance, but in the large cities like New York Chicago poverty bears heavily on many youthful students, and they frequently go hungry

A Scottish Hallowe'en Custom.

Take three dishes, put clean water in one, foul water in another and leave the third empty. Blindfold a person and lead him to the hearth where the dishes are ranged. He or she dips the left hand—if by chance in the clean water, the future husband or wife will come to the bar of matrimony without having previously been married; if in the foul, a widow; if in the empty dish, it foretells with equal certainty no marriage at all. It is repeated three times, and every time the arrangement of the dishes is altered. Robert Burns, the Scottish poet, humorously tells of such a test in verse:

In order on the clean hearthstone
The dishes three are ranged,
And every time great care is shown
To have them duly changed.
And Uncle John, who wedded life
For decades did desire,
Because he got the empty thrice,
Threw all three in the fire
In wrath that night.

With merry songs these friendly folks
I wot did not grow weary,
And goblin tales and funny jokes—
Their sports were cheap and cheery.
Till buttered oat cakes, smoked and sweet,
Set all their jaws a-moving;
Then, when there was no more to eat,
To part it seemed behooving,
Full blythe that night.

For a Halloween Party.

It is doubtful if any festival of the year offers better opportunity for original frolicsome parties than Hallowe'en. Appropriate decorations are easily made with jack-o'-lanterns, autumn leaves, strings of ears of corn or such ghostly emblems as black cats and silhouette witches mounted on broomsticks.

The refreshment problem is solved with equal ease. Sweet, syrupy cider, plenty of apples, nuts to roast and nuts to crack, not to mention a panful of crisp doughnuts, and, to top all off, a batch of savory pumpkin pies—these are only some of the edibles which at once suggest themselves.

As for games to play, they, too, have been set by custom to a certain extent. You may "bob" for apples in a tub of water, you may pop corn, you may do any one of a dozen things which your parents will be sure to remember about if they have ever taken part in Hallowe'en celebrations.

Winter Home of Deer.

The winter home of the American red deer is very interesting. When the snow begins to fly the leader of the herd guides them to some sheltered spot where food is plentiful. Here, as the snow falls, they pack it down, tramping out a considerable space, while about them the snow mounts higher and higher until they cannot get out if they would. From the main opening, or "yard," as it is called, tramped out paths lead to the nearby trees and shrubbery which supply them with food.

Conundrums.

Why is an ax an inconsistent weapon? Because it first cuts a tree down and then cuts it up.

What is that which can run all the way between two towns and yet never move? A road.

What part of the face resembles the old fashioned schoolmaster? The eye, because it always has a pupil under the lash.

How do we know that Noah had a pig in the ark? Because he had Ham.

WENDLING IS A DEGENERATE.

Ranchman Who Will Be Tried for the Murder of Eight-Year-Old Girl Is of a Low Type.

Of evidence that the State will follow in attempting to place the noose about the neck of Joseph Wendling, the ranchman accused of murdering 8-year-old Alma Kellner was revealed today. It will include expert testimony aimed to show that he is a degenerate of the type that would be expected to commit such a murder.

J. R. Clement, attorney for Wendling, declared today that he anticipates no difficulty in proving his client's innocence. He will make a bitter fight against the line of medical testimony that the State is building up.

Mrs. Cora Munea, a former sweetheart of Wendling, will testify for the State against Wendling. The nature of her testimony has not yet been revealed. Wendling sneers at her every time she appears in court, and she scowls in return.

ANOTHER BATTLE WITH REVOLVERS

Laredo, Nov. 30.—With communication with Matamoras, Mexico, cut off today, the report has come across the Rio Grande that a battle has been fought there between revolutionists and Federal troops. The fate of the city was not known here this morning. Matamoras lies in the State of Tamauplipas and has been menaced by rebels for a week, although General Gerimona Treveno, commander of the government forces in the northern provinces has repeatedly assured the people that there was no danger.

Telegraph wires leading out of the city were cut late last night and the despatching wire of the National Railway Company of Mexico was taken over either by the government or revolutionary forces.

PORCUPINE LINE IN SIX MONTHS

Toronto, Dec. 1.—This afternoon Mr. J. L. Englehart, chairman of the T. & N.O. Railway Commission, held a conference with Commissioner Fred Dane, Engineer Clement and Superintendent Black to outline the plans for the immediate construction of a new branch line to the Porcupine gold country.

The cost is to be approximately $500,000, and the length of trackage 32 miles, running from Mileage 224; two miles north of Kelso, southwesterly to Tisdale township, across which it will be carried.

The plans also include about five miles additional to the Mattagami River, which, however, may not be built for some time to come.

This important extension to the T. & N.O. lines was decided on yesterday at a meeting of the Provincial Cabinet, when an Order-in-Council was passed. Work will be started at once, and may be managed either by contract or undertaken by the commission, with its own engineers and plans. The latter is the most likely course.

"We will stand for new delays," said Mr. Englehardt to a reporter this morning. "If our expectations are realized the new road will be finished and cars running over it by next Dominion Day.

Last July the government gave an assurance to local interests that if a line were carried into Porcupine from the T. & N.O. there would be a guarantee of a charter at the next session.

MURDER CASE IS RECALLED

St. Thomas, Nov. 30.—Alexander Willis, a carpenter of Rodney, was arrested on a charge of entering the house of Daniel McLean, who is in the West. Mrs. McLean had fallen asleep by the fire and was awakened by a man in the room. She screamed to her daughter and the man put the light out and fled. The finding of a carpenter's rule led to the arrest of Willis. This is the same man who was tried five years ago on a charge of murdering Miss Eliza Lowery at the home of Benjamin Colville, near Old Rodney. In that case the two women were alone in the house when a man entered, and Mrs. Colville said attacked her, and when Miss Lowery came to her rescue he beat her to death. The Crown always held that Mrs. Colville knew the name of the intruder. She died since and is said to have told on her death bed the name of the man.

REVOLUTIONISTS GAINED OBJECT

Chihua, Mexico, Dec. 1.—While the insurrectos retreated following their skirmish with government troops at the gates of the city on Sunday, they gained their object which was to prevent the government gaining control of the Mexico and Northwestern railroad from this point to Minaca. Since the attack on a train a week ago not a car has run over the line.

The revolutionists are said to have their main force at Santa Isabel, about thirty-five miles west of here and other forces at San Andreas, Guerror, and controlling the line.

General Navarro returned to this city with force to await reinforcements. It is reported that insurrectos have been reinforced by bands from Parral and that in all they number about 1,000.

FORTIFIED POSITIONS

They are said to have fortified a number of positions along the line. With this condition confronting him there is nothing for General Navarro to do until his little army of 400 has been at least doubled. It is understood here that reinforcements have been ordered to proceed from the the City of Mexico.

A number of Mexicans who were implicated in the murder of John Ellick, an American, recently at Badiraguato, Sinaloa, have been arrested and sentenced to be hanged next week.

ESCAPES BEAR HUG

Harold Loze, of Star City, Sask., Avoids Fatal Hug by Jumping Into a Creek

Harold Loso, a lad of thirteen, living with his uncles, the Fleming brothers, near Star City, Saskatchewan, was attacked by a bear. He had been sent on an errand to a neighbor's, was returning, and had just reached a bridge over a creek which crosses the farm. Hearing something behind him the lad turned in time to see a huge black bear at his very heels. Harold drew his knife and had it half open when the bear rose on its hind legs and grabbed for him, knocking the knife out of his hand. The boy immediately dropped into the creek, and being a swimmer, dived under the bridge, bravely fooling the bear and thus saving his life.

Apparently the bear had been lying in a bluff near the trail, and seeing the boy pass, had followed him, catching him at the bridge. Bruin gave two or three growls of disappointment and finally walked away. Chase was immediately given but no bear could be found.

The berries being scarce this year, bears are getting bold and hungry. Harold's overalls and shirt were torn by the claws of the animal, otherwise he is none the worse for his adventure.

OYSTER SHELL SCALES

While looking over several young orchards in the southern districts of Hastings, Mr. O. D. McIntosh, Stirling, says he finds a great many dead and dying trees. Many of them are badly affected with oyster shell scales and the egg masses of the apple tent are very abundant, and unless something is done before next summer the trees will no doubt suffer severely. The green apple aphis is a serious pest this summer. The growth of young wood this year, in most cases, is excessive, and it will be well for the trees if they are headed back some for next year. Early spring is probably the best time to do the pruning of young trees. It is while trees are young that they get their shape to the grower's liking, and those who are buying trees will do well to get two-year-old trees, and then see that they get a good start. The Codling Worm is getting in its work this year in the old orchards, with the result that very many wormy apples may be seen in most of the old orchards. If the only losses were the wormy apples, it would not be so bad, but the extra expense of picking and sorting to get a few good ones very materially affects the price the buyers can afford to pay for apples.

A LONG TRAIN

Pennsylvania Engine Hauled 1[illegible] Steel Cars

A monster train of loaded cars of over a mile and a quarter in length was hauled over the middle division of the Pennsylvania road between Altoona and Harrisburg, August 16. The train was made up of 120 steel cars, all of 100,000 pounds capacity. A year ago a model H. B. engine hauled 106 cars over this division, and at that time the feat was regarded throughout the country as remarkable. The same model engine pulled the train on the last big haul, and representatives from a number of engineering journals, together with Freight Superintendent W. C. Copley, accompanied the train. Telephonic communication was established between the engine and caboose of the train, and the engineer was directed by the officials from the rear end of the train. An average speed of more than 20 miles an hour was maintained over the division.

GIRL AT THE WHEEL

Fast Ride in Motor Boat to Bring Young Man to the City Hospital

Frederick W. Fuess became seriously ill of appendicitis at St Lawrence Park, Ogdensburg, and the doctors stated that an operation must be performed within a few hours if the life of the young man were to be saved. Miss Ruth Remington volunteered the services of her fast yacht, and she had the boat in readiness at the dock. Miss Remington guided the boat to Ogdensburg, and the run of 38 miles was made in the fast time of one hour and twenty minutes. Mr. Feuss was then removed to the city hospital, where Dr. Madill was in readiness, and the operation was performed at once and a life saved

LOGGERS' NARROW ESCAPE

They Had to Make a Quick Dash From the Flames

One hundred loggers employed in the camp of Hastings' Mills on Wales Island, British Columbia, one hundred miles up the coast last Saturday, had to board a logging train and through blinding smoke and angry flames seek refuge on the beach at Granite Bay, five miles away. A bush fire, fanned by a west wind, travelled five miles in less than an hour and a half, destroying the valuable standing timber. It cleared a pathway a mile wide. The loggers abandoned their camp after loading their supplies and donkey engine on flat cars. The run to the beach was made down grade at a record speed. They had a close call.

SOME LARGEST THING IN CANADA

Canada has the largest wheat field in the world, the largest elevator and the largest mill, says Oakville Star. The largest lift lock in the world is at Peterboro'. The longest bridge span is being built at Quebec. The largest railway yard in the Empire is at Winnipeg, and the largest collieries in the world are at Nova Scotia. Canada has the most prolific and extensive sea fisheries in the world, the largest silver, nickel and copper mines and the thickest known coal seam in the world.

Four to Hang in Ontario.

Toronto, Dec. 2.—An unprecedented record for hangings in Ontario will be established during the two weeks beginning today if all of the sentences now standing are carried out. The first to die, if the extreme penalty is enacted, will be Robert Parker, the aged Hastings County murderer. The others under sentence are Thomas McNulty and Mary Dolan, convicted at Barrie of strangling their illegitimate child, and Rufus Woodmark, the Smith's Falls, wife murder.

Rev. Dr. Shorey for Lindsay.

Rev. Dr. Shorey, formerly pastor of George Street Church, has accepted an invitation from the Cambridge Street Methodist Church, Lindsay, to become their pastor for the next conference year. Rev. Dr. Shorey is completing the fourth year of a successfull pastorate here in Cobourg, and there is general regret that he cannot remain longer.

Intermediate Hockey Team.

Lindsay Post: Mr. R. M. Glover, the veteran hockey player, of Peterboro, was in town this morning and in discussing hockey matters said the Electric City would have a pretty fair team for the intermediate series of the O.H.A. In asking what the prospects were in Lindsay for hockey this year the information was given that there was nothing done as yet towards organizing.

G.T.R. Receipts.

The Grand Trunk October statement shows that gross receipts of Grand Trunk proper increased £25,000; working expenses increased £30,000. Canada Atlantic net profits decreased £1,550, Grand Trunk Western net profits decreased £5,450, and Detroit, Grand Haven net profits increased £1,500. The total net profits for the whole system showed a decrease of £11,300.

Senator Cox Sent a Cheque.

President Jos. Gibson, president of the Temperance Alliance discussing the temperance movement stated to a press representative, with a great deal of satisfaction that he has just received a cheque for $400 from Hon. George A. Cox, of Toronto, to assist in carrying out the work already planned by the Alliance, and that the letter accompanying the contribution stated that he would make a further contribution at an early date.

A Mild Winter.

A Western Ontario prognosticator says: "The animal may need the extra coat to combat with the extra cold fall which will be over about the 15th of December, from which time the mildest lot of weather for the time of the year that is possible for us to have will continue until May 1st, 1911. If the above predictions come true, it means a lighter coal bill for some of us."

Dr. O'Brien Will Lecture.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien will deliver a lecture under the auspices of St. Peter's T.A.S. in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum on Monday evening next, December 5th, on the subject of "Some Christian and Pagan Monuments of Rome." The lecture will be fully illustrated by limelight views and promises to be of great interest. There will undoubtedly be a large attendance

Two Drunks Let Go Home.

Alexander Savage of Frankford, Ont., and Wm. Carner of St. Catharines, both pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness at the police court yesterday morning. Carner wanted to go to Port Hope, but was "broke." He was allowed to go. Savage said that he came to the city and met a few of the boys and got a little too much. He had $1.50 to take him home, and the magistrate told him to practice a quick step to that grand old tune, "Home Sweet Home." He practised.

Dr. King as Judge in Toronto.

Dr. King, than whom no better judge of Boston terriers exists in Canada, and whose own terriers are much of a madness when members of that species are concerned, has been asked to act as judge at the big Toronto Bench Show to be held in that city on January 2nd, for the Boston terrier class. What Dr. King doesn't know about the points of a Boston terrier would take a very very small volume to contain, and what he does know about the distinctive points of excellence of that particular breed would take a whole shelf of encyclopedia size to contain.

Increased Receipts at Customs.

The Peterborough Customs House which has been increasing its receipts each month, evidently started out at the first of last month to show what could be done. The result has been a remarkable increase in the receipts for the month as compared with the corresponding month of last year. For November, 1909, the amount collected was $28,359.01, while last month the figure was $10291.80, an increase of $1192.26.

Hit Back at Aldermen.

The Ottawa City Council decided some time ago to raise the license fee for moving picture theatres from $25 to $300 a year in spite of the howl set up by the proprietors of these establishments. Now, to get back at the aldermen who were instrumental in bringing about this increase, which goes into force Jan. 1, the proprietors of the "nickel shows" have decided to throw the names of the aldermen in question on the screen at every show, with a request to the patrons of the theatre not to vote for these aldermen at the coming election. "We will leave it to the public as to whether we had a square deal," say the theatre men.

THE RED YEAR

—By—

LOUIS TRACY.

long as we leave their respective religions untouched. The moment those are threatened we enter the danger zone. Confound it, why can't we let the people worship God in their own way? If anything, they are far more religiously inclined than we ourselves. Where is the Englishman who will flop down in the middle of the road to say his prayers at sunset, or measure his length along two thousand miles of a river bank merely as a penance? Give me authority to pack a shipload of busy-bodies home to England, and I'll soon have the country quiet enough—"

An ominous sound interrupted the Commissioner's outburst. Both men heard the crackle of distant musketry. At first, neither was willing to admit its significance.

"Where is Winifred?" demanded Mr. Mayne, suddenly.

"She is looking for a servant, I fancy. There was none in the front of the house, and I wanted a man to hold my horse."

A far-off volley rumbled over the plain, and a few birds stirred uneasily among the trees.

"No servant to be seen—at this hour!"

They looked at each other in silence.

"We must find Winifred," said the older man, rising from his chair.

"And I must hurry back to my regiment," said Frank.

"You think, then, that there is trouble with the native troops?"

"With the sepoys yes. I have been told that the 11th and 20th are not wholly to be trusted. And those volleys are fired by infantry."

A rapid step and the rustle of a dress warned them that the girl was approaching. She came, like a startled fawn.

"The servants' quarters are deserted," she cried. "Great columns of smoke are rising over the trees, and you hear the shooting! Oh, what does it mean?"

"It means, my dear, that the Dragoons and the 60th will have to teach these impudent rebels a much-needed lesson," said her uncle. "There is no cause for alarm. Must you really go, Malcolm?"

"Go!" broke in Winifred with the shrill accents of terror. "Where are you going?"

"To my regiment, of course," said Frank, smiling at her fears. "Probably we shall be able to put down this outbreak before the white troops arrive. Good-by. I shall either return, or send a trustworthy messenger, within an hour."

And so, confident and eager, he was gone, and the first moments of the hour-sped when, perhaps, a strong man in control at Meerut might have saved India.

CHAPTER II.

A Night in May

Winifred, quite unconsciously, had stated the actual incident that led to the outbreak of the Mutiny. The hot weather was so trying for the white troops in Meerut, many of whom, under ordinary conditions, would then have been in the hills, that the General had ordered a Church Parade in the evening, and at an unusual hour.

All day long the troopers of the 3rd Cavalry nursed their wrath at the fate of their comrades who had refused to handle the suspected cartridges. They had seen men whom they regarded as martyrs stripped of their uniforms and riveted in chains in front of the whole garrison on the morning of the 9th. Though fear of the British force in the cantonment kept them quiet Hindu vied with Musalman in muttered execrations of the dominant race. The fact that the day following the punishment parade was a Sunday brought about a certain relaxation from discipline. The men loafed in the bazaars, were taunted by courtesans with lack of courage, and either drowned their troubles in strong drink or drew together in knots to talk treason.

Suddenly a sepoy raced up to the cavalry lines with thrilling news.

"The Rifles and Artillery are coming to disarm all the native regiments!" he shouted.

He had watched the 60th falling in for Church Parade, and, in view of the action taken at Barrackpore and Lucknow—sepoy battalions having been disbanded in both stations for mutinous conduct—he instantly jumped to the conclusion that the military authorities at Meerut meant to steal a march on the disaffected troops. His warning cry was as a torch laid to a gunpowder train.

The 3rd Cavalry, Malcolm's own corps, swarmed out of bazaar and quarters like angry wasps. Nearly half the regiment ran to secure their picketed horses, armed themselves in hot haste, and galloped to the gaol. Smashing open the doors, they freed the imprisoned troopers, struck off their fetters, and took no measures to prevent the escape of the general horde of convicts. Yet, even in that moment of frenzy, some of the men remained true to their colors. Captain Craigie and Lieutenant Melville Clarke, hearing the uproar, mounted their chargers, rode to the lines, and actually brought their troops to the parade ground in perfect discipline. Meanwhile, the alarm had spread to the sepoys. No one knew exactly what caused all the commotion. Wild rumors spread, but no man could speak definitely. The British officers of the 11th and 20th regiments were getting their men into something like order when a sowar clattered up, and yelled to the infantry that the European troops were marching to disarm them.

At once, the 20th broke in confusion, seized their muskets, and procured ammunition. The 11th wavered, and were listening to the appeal of their beloved commanding officer, Colonel Finnis, when some of the 20th came back and fired at him. He fell, pierced with many bullets, the first victim of India's Red Year. His men hesitated no longer. Afire with religious fanaticism, they, too, armed themselves, and dispersed in search of loot and human prey. They acted on no preconcerted plan. The trained troops simply formed the nucleus of an armed mob, its numbers ever swelling as the convicts from the gaol, the bad characters from the city, and even the native police, joined in the work of

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2,625 oz. of gold and 3,267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines; a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.
